CHICAGO
Looking Forward

"CRUCIAL periods" have become regular diet for the motion picture industry. In fact, whatever trend affairs have taken in any direction in the film trade recently a certain large group of observers have seen fit to announce that the business is facing a "crucial period."

As a matter of fact the film business is in a very fortunate position, especially with reference to the difficulties which are surrounding many other commercial activities due directly to unsettled conditions brought about by the war.

The one unsatisfactory matter confronting the film business is the taxation proposition, but even that is no cause for genuine pessimism because there is an excellent prospect that Congress, realizing that probably legislation affecting motion pictures was enacted without sufficient knowledge concerning the business at hand, will take steps at this session to modify the tax placed on films.

From present indications and from the wartime experience of England and Canada, the motion picture theatre will be the least affected by popular retrenchments incidental to the war of any activity of the amusement world. The public regardless of conditions must have amusement and there is no amusement of comparable quality which is as convenient and inexpensive as the motion picture.

Without question the coming year will be a year of great change and development for the film business, just as has every year practically since the dawn of the industry. One change that the New Year undoubtedly will bring to the film business is a radical readjustment of its scheme of distribution. Sums that would equal generous dividends for various distributing companies are wasted regularly through the disorganized method of distributing film which is now generally in vogue.

Waste can never be eliminated entirely from the studio because of the very nature of the work of producing motion pictures. But the work of distributing pictures is a straight commercial proposition and the methods of economy, organization and system which make other big commercial activities profitable will do the same for the film distributor.

At the present time there are negotiations in progress which if terminated successfully will bring together under one roof in the various distribution centers the activities of several leading exchanges. This will not be a step toward a "trust" nor a monopoly, nor a formidable combination which is to be feared by exhibitors.

Such a combination of distribution activities will simply mean the elimination of much needless "overhead" expense and the general improvement of service to the exhibitor. It also will mean a profit to a number of companies that have been dissipating their profits on needless expense and are now bordering on disaster. There is a good chance of this combination being effected by the New Year or shortly thereafter, and if it is done the weakest link in the motion picture industry—that of distribution—will be greatly fortified.

Artistically the motion picture is assured of a steady and certain progress. This is thoroughly apparent because pictures have attracted from other similar lines men and women of proved ability and the success which has attended their efforts elsewhere will be duplicated in picture work. While the technical progress of the motion picture during the last two or three years has been a thing of marvel, the brains and energy that is being spent on this work forecasts that new improvements will be made from time to time.

One thing that the new year is certain to bring about is the practical elimination of the old make-shift picture house—the nickelodeon. In many places the industry generally has progressed far more rapidly than the theatre itself. But another year will mark the disappearance of the store-front and in its place will come the film palace of the type that is being constructed everywhere throughout the country, which is in itself an eloquent testimonial to the faith that is placed in the future of the motion picture business.

The Washington Meeting

The conciliation effected last week in Washington between leading exhibitors representing both the American Exhibitors’ Association and the Motion Picture Exhibitors’ League of America should be a cause for genuine gratification to exhibitors everywhere.

It would be a sad commentary indeed upon the intelligence of all concerned if it was not possible for representatives of both organizations to lay aside their differences in the face of the grave peril the industry faces from the enforcement of inequitable taxation measures.

In the nomination of H. B. Varner to represent the exhibitors of the country at Washington during the present session of Congress a very wise choice was made, and while Mr. Varner is a member of the American Exhibitors’ Association and, in fact, one of its organizers, members of the old league can have perfect confidence that Mr. Varner will work for the best interests of all exhibitors regardless of their political affiliations.

Certainly a single strong organization representative of all the exhibitors of the country is much better for all concerned than two distinct bodies, provided only that such an organization is rightly and sanely conducted.

The old league has made many grievous errors; it has misplaced confidence and it has placed in positions of authority men who are utterly unqualified to be representative of the rank and file of exhibitors. But if it has reached a point in its mad career wherein it has come to realize that an organization to be successful must be operated for the main and not for the few it is likely that the Washington meeting may result in a permanent armistice.

Regardless of their organization affiliations, everyone present at the Washington conference is entitled to a vote of gratitude for the splendid spirit they have shown in forgetting small differences in the face of the grave necessity for the exhibitors of the country placing a solid front against the opposing forces in the contest for an equitable readjustment of the revenue act as applying to motion pictures.

Rival Organizations Unite to Face War Problems

Under Name of "Allied Exhibitors Joint Convention"

H. B. Varner Chosen Capital Representative

Differences which seemed insurmountable, as well as petty bickerings, were thrown aside when delegates from the American Exhibitors Association and the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League met in Washington last week, assayed each other, and then went into joint session under the name of the Allied Exhibitors' Joint Convention.

Harmony which prevailed during the two-day session at the Capitol city made it difficult to recall the stormy days of the Chicago convention which ended in the withdrawal of many exhibitors and the birth of the American Exhibitors' Association.

Whatever may be the lasting effects of the present truce, the exhibitors of the United States are firmly united on the war tax problem and present a solid front in an effort to have this feature of the war revenue act modified.

As an indication of the thoroughness with which the melting pot did its work, witness the presence of C. C. Pettijohn and Lee A. Ochs on the amalgamation committee or Frank J. Rembusch and Mr. Ochs serving side by side on the committee on the 15-cent-reel tax situation.

Exhibitors See Legislators

Joint committees of the two associations saw practically every member of the ways and means committees of both the House and the Senate. Considerable amazement, according to reports, was expressed by the law makers that the war measure had inflicted such hardships upon the majority of exhibitors.

Probably one of the strongest indications of the give and take spirit of the convention is evidenced in the appointment of H. B. Varner as permanent representative in Washington of the exhibitors of the entire country. The expense of his occupancy will be borne by funds collected from both organizations. One of the actions of the joint session was to vote him $500 for his first thirty days' expenses.

Mr. Varner heads what is known as the Allied Legislative Committee, serving with him on the committee, although none of them will draw a salary and will not be located in Washington, are Frank J. Rembusch, secretary; Lee A. Ochs, J. H. O'Donnell, Ernest Horstman.

Reel Tax Resolution

"It is the sense of this joint convention," is the essence of one of the resolutions passed by the exhibitors, "that the film, or so-called footage tax, should be repealed or so amended as to fix definitely the sources from which this tax shall be collected in such manner that this tax may not be shifted to a different branch of the industry than the one for which intended."

Another resolution adopted at the session condemned the action of eleven distributors in filing charges before the United States district attorney in New York against the exhibitors of Brooklyn, who, they claimed, planned a boycott on two film companies for assessing the 15 cents per reel per day tax.

This resolution reads:

"That the action of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry in filing criminal charges against the Associated Motion Picture Exhibitors of Brooklyn, charging them with conspiracy and boycott, be condemned, and that the entire support of the joint convention be pledged to these exhibitors."

Other Committees Named

Other committees selected by the body are the resolutions committee, composed of Frank W. Eager, chairman; C. C. Pettijohn, secretary; Louis L. Levine and Alfred S. Black; and the committee on 15-cent reel tax, Frank J. Rembusch, Harry Crandall, Lee A. Ochs, Alfred S. Black and Frank W. Eager.

The latter committee was instructed by the convention to visit the producers in New York City in an effort to get them to remove the reel tax. In which, it carried out, will make for the ultimate amalgamation of the two exhibitors' organizations, is as follows:

"Resolved, by the joint convention of the members and representatives of the various motion picture exhibitors' organizations of the country, that the convention assembled, Washington, D. C., this 12th day of December, 1917:

"That whereas the United States Government has called upon the owners and operators of motion picture theatres in the various States to render certain assistance and perform certain services during the present war crisis, it is now unanimously declared to be the sense of this meeting that all motion picture exhibitors of the United States do hereby pledge and tender to the United States Government a united and wholehearted support in carrying out and making effective all plans and war aims and we hereby tender our motion picture taxes and all other dues and appurtenances to be used for such purposes.

Permanent Peace Sought

"That the Council of National Defense and Committees of the Government be notified that a permanent committee of exhibitors is hereby selected, consisting of Lee A. Ochs, H. B. Varner, H. O'Donnell, Ernest Horstman and Frank J. Rembusch to present to them a copy of the resolutions and to assist in every way in devising means to carry into effect such plans as have already been adopted by the Government."

"Be it further resolved that it is for the best interests of all motion picture exhibitors and the promotion of the motion picture industry at large that all exhibitors and exhibitors' organizations shall in the future stand united and work harmoniously together for our common cause to the end that our actions may be consistent and fair and equitable solution may be found for the many problems now confronting us, and to the further end that the near future may see one large harmonious, united organization of motion picture exhibitors in the United States, her provinces and Canada, and that a committee be forthwith selected representative of all motion picture exhibitors present to formulate plans to effectuate the objects of this resolution.

Oppose Business Evils

"That, in order that the motion picture exhibitors in the United States may know of some of the subjects on which the various exhibitors' organizations agree to stand against and oppose it is the sense of this joint convention that all organizations are unalterably opposed to the advance deposit system, the present exorbitant and unnecessary high salaries of certain stars, the unbusinesslike and unnecessary waste in other branches of the industry by manufacturers and distributors, the passing along of the 15 cents per reel manufacturers' tax, the daylight saving plan and any suggestions (Continued on page 16, Col. 3)
“Business as Usual” Slogan for Exhibitors Plea of Mutual Head

John R. Freuler Warns Against Retrenchment and Urges Booking Good Productions With Liberal Exploitation

John R. Freuler, president of the Mutual Film Corporation, returned from New York last week, and has issued a warning to exhibitors against what he terms “hysterical trembling” regarding the outcome of present conditions relative to the film industry.

Any show of weakness on the part of the industry, Mr. Freuler said, cannot but be reflected in the attitude of the public. He urged no let-up by the exhibitor in exploitation as a means of curtailing expenses and suggested that the theatre owners aid the government by selling thrift stamps from their box offices.

“A great many amusement proprietors of prominence along the highway called Broadway have been scared into hysterical trembling by the effects, real and fancied, of a public tendency toward thrift and saving,” he said. “A lot of perfectly good shows have gone into the warehouses and admission prices have been slashed.

“It does not seem to have occurred to these gentlemen that shutting down and giving out distressing expressions of their state of mind to the newspapers might not be the best business policy. If the public has a mind to save money it also has a mind to buy with care and wisdom and with an eye to best values.

Opportunity for Exhibitors

“This gives to the motion picture an opportunity. There is more value, dime for dime, in motion picture amusement than in any other diversion presented to the American public.

“Properly exploited, the motion picture can hold its patrons regardless of the retrenchments which may seriously affect more costly and less valuable forms of entertainment.

“The motion picture exhibitors of the nation, particularly those who are generous users of newspaper space, should bear this fact in mind and let the spirit of big value for low prices be reflected in their advertising copy.

“The whole family can go to the motion pictures for the cost of one one-dollar seat at the play of the speaking stage, and have money left for car fare.

Thrift Stamp Campaign

“I have heard some underground whimperings about the probable effects of the coming thrift stamp campaign to be carried on for the purpose of spreading the war loan out among the people of small savings.

“The best thing the motion picture exhibitor can do is to join this movement. Anything less would be folly and something very close to treason. The thrift stamp movement is being espoused by a great many department stores and among concerns which depend upon the purchaser of small means. They do not see in it anything of a competitive character.

“It will do your theatre no harm to sell thrift stamps from the box office. There will be a certain association of ideas which will help the atmosphere of your business. If your patrons acquire thrift stamps at your box office they will come unconsiously to associate the idea of saving money with going to your show. It is a good idea for you.

Loans Spent Here

“I have at various times referred to the effect of war conditions on the amusement industry in other countries. It is timely now to remind the exhibitors that the war loan money is practically all to be spent at home and that shortly the disbursements will have to flow into the pockets of the wage earners and the big army of spenders.

“Let your theatre advertising and the show behind the advertising reflect a big, honest value in amusement—make an admission to your show a bargain buy in amusement and you can do business. I am arguing for no reduction of admission prices—I am arguing for the biggest amusement value which you can deliver for a reasonable admission fee.”

Chicago Censorship Further Muddled by Proposed Ordinance

Still another disturbing factor which will further confuse Chicago’s censorship square appeared this week when Alderman John J. Coughlin of the first ward made known his intention to introduce into the city council an ordinance which, if passed, will allow the city to share in the gross profits of a picture.

The judiciary committee already has under consideration the Steffen amendment to the present laws governing censorship which provides for a board of ten, none to be members of the police department, to pass on pictures and issue permits. In part, Ald. Coughlin’s ordinance reads:

“Ordered, that the corporation counsel prepare and submit to the Council committee of judiciary an ordinance regulating the production of films for moving pictures. Said ordinance to provide for the presentation of slides and scenarios of the proposed film to the film censorship. If, in the judgment of the film censors, a permit shall issue, they shall issue the same, and for and in consideration of the issuance of said permit, the producer shall pay to the City of Chicago — per cent of the gross receipts.”

CABARET SCENE FROM “THE STRUGGLE EVERLASTING”

What George Creel, chairman of the committee on public information, thinks about the new film replacing the system now in vogue under the dictatorship of Major M. L. C. Funkhouser of Chicago are two widely different things, it was disclosed last week in the Federal court before Judge George A. Carpenter.

In a deposition introduced into the court by the Fox Film Corporation, in behalf of its production, “The Rose of Blood,” barred from Chicago by Major Funkhouser because he believed it detrimental to the country’s best interests, the government censor went on record as being in favor of “free film.”

“The same right to a free film that is to free speech or a free press,” Mr. Creel declared in the document. Mr. Creel’s deposition was taken by Charles P. Schwartz, representing the Fox Company, and by Assistant Corporation Counsel Frank P. Ayres of Chicago, representing Major Funkhouser. The committee on public information reviewed the film and approved it for exhibition.

Jurist Views Picture

Evidence was heard for two days before Judge Carpenter and the hearing finally terminated in the jurist, ballasts, film companies and the film corporation counsel repairing to a local projection room, where the subject of the controversy was viewed.

Judge Carpenter has not as yet made his ruling on the plea of the company that an injunction be issued restraining the city from interfering with performance of the production.

“I dissent in a great many instances from Major Funkhouser’s observations as to the views of the government,” said Mr. Creel, when he was queried whether he had been consulted, or had he the authority to speak for a government bureau in these matters?

Producers Aid Government

The government censor stated that a very intimate contact had been established between the government and the motion picture industry and the producers of the nation have worked generously to place the purposes and needs of America before the people, through the films.

He added that while there is no absolute authority vested in the committee on public information to suppress a picture, there has never been such a request from the committee which has not been complied with instantly by the film companies. The cross-examination of Mr. Creel by Attorney Ayres, as set out in the deposition, follows:

“Our sole object is to prevent the exhibition of pictures that this committee believes to be prejudicial to the national interest,” said Mr. Creel. “Aside from that we have no interest in any commercial enterprise, nor would we feel at liberty to infringe upon the legal rights of any local authority, municipal or state. We simply declare our opinions with regard to these films when presented to us, and that declaration of opinion carries with it no authority other than that imposed upon the individual by his own patriotism.

Creel Patriotic Plays

“We do feel a very vital interest in getting producers to put emphasis upon patriotic subjects and solely because of that we do have an interest in the production of patriotic films. We have made a general request of the motion picture industry that it concern itself more and more with the production of patriotic films.

“As a government officer, do you want ‘The Rose of Blood’ to be exhibited in the cities of the United States, including Chicago?” asked Attorney Ayres.

“Yes, sir,” replied Mr. Creel. “I want this picture to be shown because it violates none of the requests of the government and seems to us to convey a patriotic message.”

Government Opposes Suppression

“The policy of the government,” declared Mr. Creel, “is to let the people know the facts in every case and the suppression of facts or happenings is opposed to this policy.”

“If it should appear that this film portrays an uprising against the Romanoff government of Russia at a time when that government was friendly terms with this government, you would say that such a picture should be exhibited at this time, when we are at war?” persisted the assistant corporation counsel.

“The President of the United States himself has declared his full sympathy with that revolution,” was Mr. Creel’s answer. “It is also implied in this and the policy of this government to suppress the news of world happenings, no matter whether such is liked or disliked by any nation. The Russian rebellion is a fact. We have accepted that fact, and any newspaper, pictorial or film presentation of that rebellion is absolutely entitled to presentation so far as the government is concerned. We do not object in any degree to any showing of that revolution on the ground that the Romanoffs were the heads of a friendly government.”

Major Funkhouser’s Objections

Mr. Ayres then set out Major Funkhouser’s objections to “The Rose of Blood,” stating that “it portrays the revolutions which have occurred and are occurring in Russia, depicting the effects of bombs, firearms and poison.” He asked whether Mr. Creel would object to the showing of the taking of human life on the screen.

“There is the same right to a free film that is to a free speech and a free press,” declared Mr. Creel, “and when the newspapers of the country comment daily upon the destruction of human life, it is stupid to try to keep it from the screen.”

“Ask to differentiate as to the taking of human life,” Mr. Creel made this statement.

“Scenes from the American revolution, showing bloody incidents in our struggle for liberty, scenes connected with the French revolution and scenes connected with the uprising of the Russian people against what America believes to have been a corrupt and cruel regime, all carry with them a showing of killing. I can imagine that scenes showing individual murder, with emphasis upon the revolting side of it, might well be kept from the sight of people; but where the blood-letting is in connection with historical facts, known to the world, I think that a very clean-cut distinction should be made.”

James Boys Cited

“Yes, if we are willing to state whether in your opinion historical pictures like those of the James Boys should be exhibited?” asked Mr. Ayres.

“It is very far-fetched to link the (Continued on page 18, Col. 3)

General Film Company to Distribute W. W. Hodkinson Corp. Productions

Two Paralta Plays Now Ready for Booking at General Exchanges—Globe Films, Ltd., Buys Canadian Rights

Arrangements were completed during the past week whereby the newly reorganized W. W. Hodkinson Corporation will use for its distribution medium the established exchanges of the General Film Company. The Hodkinson company will, however, station its own selling force at the points of distribution.

Coming as it does when amalgamation has the center of the stage in point of discussion among those prominent in the film industry, the combination may have more than a passing significance. The General Film company has also made known its willingness to offer its exchange facilities to other national distributors on a basis similar to the Hodkinson arrangement.

In addition to making public its arrangement for distribution in the United States the Hodkinson company also announced that Canadian rights to its productions have been sold to the Globe Films, Ltd., Toronto, and that a foreign arrangement has been entered into with the Inter-Ocean Film Company.

New Plan Under Way

The first productions to be handled through the new channels are Paralta Plays, two of which "A Man's Man" with J. W. Kerrigan and "Madam Who?" with Bessie Barriscale are ready for immediate bookings through General Film Exchanges.

"I have in the past," said Mr. Hodkinson in commenting on the move, "I am today and shall in the future use every force that is available for the furtherance of the solid organization which I am building, not only for myself and my associates, but for the industry as a whole."

An announcement made by the General Film company intimates that it will soon begin a series of new activities which will result in other important additions to the products to be distributed by that company. It also announces that the company has undergone a sweeping reorganization during the past year and now possesses facilities equal to any distributing agency in the world.

Universal Pictures

Will Urge Public to Buy "Thrift Stamps"

The Universal Film Manufacturing Company has undertaken an active campaign to boost the sale of thrift stamps, the method decided upon by United States Treasurer William McAdoo to raise $2,000,000,000 through a direct appeal to the general public. To begin with, $1,000 in awards for the "Best Ending Contest" now under way in connection with Universal's serial, "The Mystery Ship," will be paid in Liberty bonds, savings certificates and thrift stamps to the 388 boys and girls who will share in the distribution of awards.

As a more widely effective influence upon the millions who visit moving picture theatres each week, Universal will adopt a direct method of advertising the government plan through attaching a "leader" or "trailer" to every five-reel Bluebird or Universal feature. The star of each production will be posed in the act of presenting the government plan to patrons of the picture theatre as she holds a placard, lettered as follows: "Help Yourself and Help Your Country. Buy War Savings Stamps. 25 cents. Ask the Postman." In adopting this means of appealing to the public Universal is following up the work done by large commercial firms in contributing newspaper advertising space to boosting the government’s drives for war funds.

"And be it further resolved that we are in favor of and endorse the following: That issuance by the Government of a 15-cent coin, the abolition of or a proper definition of section 106a of the war revenue tax act."

Uphold Cleveland Exhibitors

"The action of the motion picture exhibitors of Cleveland in their effort for legal relief from the arbitrary imposition of the 15 cents per reel manufacturers’ tax and to pledge the united support of all organizations in their future endeavors upon this subject, and a change in the present tax schedule to comply with the following: (a) The elimination of the present tax based on the seating capacity of theatres; (b) the elimination of all admission taxes of children under 12 years of age; (c) the addition of a tax of one cent on each five cents admission of all persons over 12 years of age."

The permanent committee authorized by the resolution to "formulate plans to effectuate the objects of the resolution" was appointed as follows: Charles C. Pettijohn, Indianapolis; L. M. Mosher, Buffalo; Louis Frank, Chicago; Harry M. Crandall, Washington; Lee A. Ochs, New York; A. S. Black, Maine; Joseph Hoppin, Chicago, and L. S. Blumenfeld, Jersey City.

Western Delegates Delayed

Western delegates to Washington suffered heart-breaking delays on their journey to the capital. Heavy snows east of Buffalo practically paralyzed transportation and many did not arrive in time for the Tuesday session of the body.

The Chicago delegation, composed of E. T. Beatty, Louis H. Frank, August Zilligen, Jr., and Jacob Cooper, were among those who did not take their places in the convention until Wednesday as their train was fifteen hours late.

One hundred and fifty delegates in all were present at the second day session of the body being about equally divided between the two associations. It was apparent from the start that existing differences would not be allowed to disrupt the harmonious character of the meeting. One exhibitor who began a talk which might have opened up old sores, was promptly ruled out of order by the chair.

Centralize Distribution System to Reduce Overhead, Says Rowland

Metro President Opposes Monopoly But Favors Clearing House Plan—Would Result in More Profits to Exhibitors

(In the following interview Richard A. Rowland, president of the Metro Picture Corporation, endorses a centralization of distribution whereby several distributors would merge their distribution activities, yet each company would retain its individual identity. The Exhibitors Herald is in a position to state that such a plan as is outlined by Mr. Rowland below probably will be effected within thirty days, as negotiations have been under way for some time.)

The chief trouble of the motion picture business at the present time, according to Richard A. Rowland, president of the Metro Pictures Corporation, is the system of distribution. While being distinctly opposed to any amalgamation, monopoly or trust, Mr. Rowland favors a centralization of distribution with four or five big releasing concerns each independent of the other, through which all manufacturers shall distribute their pictures. Mr. Rowland believes that a monopoly in the picture business is an impossibility, as well as being undesirable; but that the tremendous overhead—now the bane of the industry—can be materially reduced if five big clearing house organizations or less are put into operation.

"There is room, all kinds of room, for improvement for distribution on the motion picture industry," said Mr. Rowland. "We do not want an amalgamation, a monopoly or a trust, because such a thing as well as being undesirable, could not survive in the motion picture industry. What we do want is a sale system through clearing houses and it makes no difference whether the number be three, or four, or five, so long as there are a few, whereby each manufacturer shall retain his identity and place his goods through these clearing houses to the exhibitor. The manufacturer, in the last analysis, must be content to depend on the merit of his attractions for his profits.

"Under the present system, the overhead charges on distribution are such that it is necessary for a concern to make at least one feature picture a week. As a result, there is a production without reference to real show value, and it would be better if fewer pictures were made, in order that time and care could be given, so that each production would be a box office attraction. This lower production rate would only be possible by a clearing house or centralized system of distribution. Each manufacturer could have a man in the office of the clearing house through which his product is distributed to look after his interests and to see that his product is given proper attention.

Reduce Rental Prices

"A centralized system of distribution would make it possible to provide exhibitors with good pictures at a price the exhibitor can afford to pay. It is a great mistake to attempt to strangle the industry, for in doing so you strangle the industry. It is a great mistake also to over-sell the exhibitor. Help should be given to him to enable him to get the last dollar out of the production. A centralized system of distribution would result in more profits for the exhibitor and for the producer, and at the same time would bring rental prices down.

"It must be remembered that our present systems, whether for program or open booking, are merely a temporary make-shift. They have resulted in the cut-throat competition, which will eventually prove disastrous to the entire business. I am against any monopoly, but I believe if a system was adopted whereby the exhibitor could sign up with a clearing house for two years, first asuring himself that the people with whom he was doing business were of such a character and standing that his pictures would be satisfactory, it would be possible to give him more advertising and more help in every way at a lower rental price than he now pays. The system would encourage better production, because the producer would have to rise or fall by the merit of his product.

"I believe that the entire industry should give the most serious consideration to this subject, because I believe it would be possible to work out a plan that would prove satisfactory to the great majority of those engaged in the business.

"As far as the new year is concerned, Metro intends to keep its organization elastic and to continue its present policies until practical proofs are provided showing their faults. Metro is not interested in the theories, but only in the facts after their demonstration by practical experience."
Fox General Manager Predicts 1918
Biggest Year in History of Industry

Winfield R. Sheehan Declares Time Will Never Come When People Will Not Demand and Have Some Amusement

That the motion picture industry will have the biggest year in its history during 1918 is the prediction of Winfield H. Sheehan, general manager of the Fox Film Corporation. He does not believe the industry faces a crisis or is in the slightest danger of having to be saved by mergers or combinations. The war, he thinks, will benefit rather than prove harmful to theatres which are showing pictures.

"I know," says Mr. Sheehan, "that a few persons are shivering from fright, but the experience of exhibitors in other countries—countries that have seen more of this war than we probably ever will hear about—does not justify such an attitude.

"There always is a pessimist present. Many theatre managers, a few years ago, when motion pictures were just beginning to demonstrate their value, felt certain the spoken drama was doomed. Five and ten-cent amusements, they were predicting, would put $2 amusements out of business. Nothing could live in the face of such competition.

"Since the war began, we have heard all manner of wild predictions. It would ruin business generally; it would bankrupt the nation. No government could stand the financial drain more than a few months. But the war has been in progress three years, business has gone ahead, and none of the governments has yet applied for a receiver.

"The next thing to come," the Fox general manager declares, "when people will not require, and demand, and have, some sort of amusement. And even if they cannot spare $5 or $6 for two seats at a so-called legitimate theatre, they certainly will not be compelled to save for many days to accumulate the price of a double feature performance.

"As a matter of fact, if there is curtailment of expenditures for amusements the result is certain to be favorable to motion picture picture theatres. It will open to them a new class of patronage. It will bring them the custom of people who have been extravagant and now are beginning to save. And there will be no corresponding loss of present patronage. The people of this country will have to be pinched a great deal harder than they ever have been before they will unanimously vote the expenditure of from 20 to 50 cents an extravagance."

Michigan A. E. A. Membership Drive
Raises Total Enrollment to 400

Detroit Exhibitors Still Oppose 15c Per Reel Per Day Charge—C. C. Pettijohn Recent Guest

With two men canvassing the state in its interest, the Michigan branch of the American Exhibitors' Association report a membership at the present time exceeding four hundred. A tabulated list of the membership has been sworn to before a notary public and sent to the national officers. It has been suggested that other branches of the national association adopt similar steps that the heads of the body may be informed of the exact strength as concerns membership. In this way, the Michigan men contend, it will be shown, as it could in no other way, that the association is a strong one.

Exhibitors in Detroit hold weekly meetings with an average attendance of about sixty. They are still firmly opposing the 15 cents per reel per day tax and to quote one of their number, "we are going to win or some of the exchanges here will go out of business."

C. C. Pettijohn, general manager of the American Exhibitors' Association, and his bride were guests of honor at the joint meeting held last week. A cabaret and dancing party featured the evening's entertainment.

James Boys with an uprising of a people against a government," Mr. Creel said. "This supposedly friendly government, whose feelings Major Funkhouser seems to want to avoid hurting, is a repudiated government, and in this repudiation the nations of the world join.

"If the uprising in Russia was strikingly like that of the L. W. in Oklahoma, would this thing ring a bell? And encouragement to such a class of people in this country, would you yet say that this picture, 'The Rose of Blood,' should be exhibited?"

"I see absolutely no connection between the two," Mr. Creel replied. "The Oklahoma affair was a small local disturbance and any attempt to exaggerate such an uprising into the size of a Russian revolution would seem to me distinctly unpatriotic."

Mr. Creel had declared the wishes of the government in this matter and it is up to Major Funkhouser to do as he pleases. It is entirely up to him to disregard the wishes of the government if he so desires."

Exhibitor Deplores High Priced Stars
at Expense of Story

Charles L. Dooley, president of the Motion Picture Association of Paterson, N. J., has come forth as an advocate of "more story, less star" productions. In a letter to the president of M. H. Hoffman, Inc., Mr. Dooley, who is also director of the Regent and Garden theatres, booked "The Fringe of Society" and had the following to say in regard to Mr. Backer's policy:

"No star is big enough to earn a profit for the exhibitor if the picture is too costly. My opinion is that entirely too much attention is being paid to the star, and entirely too little attention to the story.

"The present salvation of the exhibitors of the country is in booking pictures at prices that will give us a fair return on our investment. It was a question of either discontinuing expensive productions that do not bring sufficient revenue or of going out of business. We have thrown off the shackles. The Regent and Garden theatres are not going out of business.

"I believe that there are thousands of exhibitors in the country in the same position. My advice to them is to do what we have done—throw off the last shackles and book pictures at prices that give them a chance to make a living."

Constance Talmadge to Begin "The Shuttle"

Constance Talmadge will begin work shortly on "The Shuttle," which has been arranged for the screen from Mrs. Hodgson Burnett's novel of the same name. The role of Betty Vanderpool, fearless, straightforward and lovable, is one, it is said, particularly suited to Miss Talmadge, who has just finished a trip to New York, which she finished just before leaving New York, is now being titled and cut and will be distributed through Select Exchanges.
Taxes Collected During November Must Be Turned Over to Collector Before December 31

Sample forms for making returns on the war tax for theatres, clubs and cabarets have been received by Julius F. Smietanka, Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Columbia. All forms of amusement are reported on the same blank, which is perforated so that it can be divided into three distinct parts, an original return, a duplicate return and a receipt.

As far as could be ascertained there are no forms provided by the government upon which the exhibitor can keep a daily record of the revenue from his theatre. The Chicago office had not been notified as to whether this form of blank would be provided.

The first form on the sheet is in the nature of a sworn statement by the exhibitor as to the amount received by him during the month. There are four items only and the space is provided for the amount received on paid admissions (1 cent on each 10 cents or fraction) free admissions (same rate) children under 12 years of age (1 cent) and leases, etc. of boxes or seats (10 per cent of charges for similar seats for single performances).

Forms of Payment

All remittances must be made payable to the collector of internal revenue. They may be made by check, cash, draft or money order. The form must be sworn to before some person authorized to act in this capacity. The exhibitor must sign his name and also give his connection with the theatre whether he be manager, owner or a partner in a corporation owning the playhouse.

The second form on the sheet is a duplicate of the first but must be filled out and accompany the return. Under no condition should any of the forms be detached.

At the bottom of the sheet is the receipt, a part of this must also be filled in by the exhibitor, who must specify the month for which return is made and write in the amount paid. Also on this blank is a notice from Daniel C. Roper, commissioner of internal revenue, which specifies when the return must be made and the penalty for failure so to do. It follows:

Penalty For Non-Return

"By authority of the act of October 3, 1917, the amount of tax shown by this return to be due is hereby made payable on the submission of this return not later than the last day of the month following the month for which the return is made. Whoever fails to collect or truly account for and pay over said tax shall be subject to a penalty of not more than $1,000 or to imprisonment for not more than one year, or both, and in addition, to the penalty of double the tax not collected or accounted for and paid over and the penalty of double the tax made for by the amount of the tax when paid."

These sheets are arranged to carry a month's receipts and the totals need but be transferred to the government blank shown in the above cut. The government blank may be used by exhibitors for making daily entries of the amount received in taxes, separately computed as to each payment or admission."

The Chicago office, which has under its jurisdiction nine counties, has not as yet made any computation of the amount of war revenue thus far received from the theatres embraced in the territory. Information concerning the number of theatre houses in the district has been submitted to Washington and as yet, no further instructions have been received.

The Exhibitors' Herald has on hand blanks which can be used by exhibitors for making daily entries of the amount received in taxes,

Chaplin's Hollywood Motion Picture Plant, Most Complete in West, Nears Completion

Finishing Touches Being Added to Buildings—Comedian Sole Owner—to Commence Work on New Film in Three Weeks

The construction of the Charlie Chaplin motion picture plant, in Hollywood, Cal., is progressing rapidly. The foundations for the last group of buildings were laid this week and simultaneously with this, work was started on the erection of the steel structure for the glass studio. An army of painters began the finishing touches on the completed buildings, carrying out a general color scheme of French gray and white.

Within three weeks it is expected the entire plant will be completed. The progress made thus far has been due to the rapidity of the skilled workmen who have handled the construction and the ideal weather conditions.

Charlie Chaplin, the sole owner of the new studios, has personally supervised the work since his return from Honolulu and expects to resume his activities before the camera soon, with his initial production for the First National Exhibitors' Circuit.

Already hundreds of visitors have inspected the Chaplin plant and experts who have looked over the many studios of Southern California declare the comedian's new work shop to be second to none.

Interest has been centered on the stage—which is the largest in existence devoted to one company. This has a working area of more than twenty thousand square feet, one-third of which will be covered with glass. The flooring is vertical Oregon pine over a concrete foundation.

Adjoining the stage are immense scene docks and furniture and property rooms. Next there is an open space that will be occupied by a swimming tank 20x60x10, made of concrete and tile. Beyond and facing the stage are the dressing rooms to be used by the principals of the company. There are twelve of these, 8x10 in size, containing every modern convenience.

The administration buildings are the last to receive attention. These face on La Brea avenue, running from De Longpre avenue halfway to Sunset Boulevard. The buildings will divide at the center thereby permitting an entrance to the plant.

Cooper in Washington

Everybody who goes to Washington, D. C. sees the Washington monument. And J. Cooper, member of the Chicago committee to the motion picture theatre owners convention in Washington, is no exception.

Now Cooper thinks he saw a little more of the monument than the average tourist. Authorities may differ, but here's his claim.

With the other sightseers he took the elevator to the height, 550 feet above terra firma. After viewing the surrounding landscape he recalled a disagreeable sensation due to the upward motion of the elevator and decided to walk part way down. What are a few stairs between friends?

After covering about half the distance he hailed an elevator and was told by the operator that he would have to return to the top if he wished to ride. Walking down stairs appealed to him more and he completed the descent. It took him twenty minutes to finish his journey and about an hour more to shake off the feeling of fatigue and dizziness.

Exhibitor Deplores Lack of Organization Among Distributors

J. R. Muir, owner and manager of a chain of motion picture theatres in British Columbia, has written Samuel Goldfish, head of Goldwyn Pictures, in which he states that the condition of the film industry as outlined by Mr. Goldfish, in a recent interview, is borne out by experiences of exhibitors in Canada.

The film business is in a critical condition from the exhibitors' quite as much as from the manufacturers' point of view," said Mr. Muir. "I know, as you contend, that exhibitors everywhere in Canada as in the United States, are suffering from the upward tendency in rentals, due to lack of organization among the producers and to reckless bidding for stars. It is the exhibitor and his patrons who have made these players famous, and when they hold out for huge sums of money which prevent producers from making legitimate profits off any but excessive rentals, they are biting the hand that has fed them."

Mr. Muir said that in his opinion the producers who have "come back" by placing such stars in specials are doing almost as much as the stars themselves to ruin the picture business.

The night that Feely was injured at the burning of the Parkway Bath Houses, there happened to be a moving picture queen in the neighborhood. She heard that a man was hurt and saw a chance for a few headlines, so she dashed to the scene of the accident. As she ran, she started her petticoat into bandages to render first aid to the injured. She charged through the crowd, reached the front ranks and stepped out into the glare of the fire, whereupon the crowd burst into shouts of laughter. She looked down and to her dismay, discovered that in her excitement she had not only dismantled her "Heather-bloom" but her outside skirt as well. She retired abashed, like the falls of Niagara. Special Productions and Longer Runs Used to Counteract Effect of War Tax

Detroit Exhibitor Has Solved Problem by Increasing Admissions and Offering Big Feature

Special productions such as "Raffles, the Amateur Cracksman," are the solution of the present war tax problem of exhibitors, according to Hiller & Wilk of New York, who have handled some of the biggest state rights pictures offered during the last few years.

The state rights specialists explain that exhibitors, by booking a big production once a month or perhaps even oftener, are enabled to raise their admission price to a figure that will allow them to assume the tax and, at the same time, make a profit more than large enough to offset any possible loss through the falling off of patronage when presenting regular five-reel program pictures with the two reels of comedy and the one-reel filler.

As a concrete case in point they cite the instance of a Detroit theatre which makes a specialty of running a big special every three weeks. During the ordinary program runs this house charges ten and fifteen cents admission, adding two cents to the former price and three cents to the latter figure and making the patron assume the war tax.

During the week on which the big picture is run, the admission price is increased to twenty-five and thirty-five cents and the management assumes payment of the war tax.

The experience of this house has been that the big specials cost them practically the same rental as their regular program features as they run the special for the entire week, thereby getting the advantage of long time booking rate, while they change their program features daily. With the daily change the house management is forced to use new paper each day, have a new style of window card distributed each day and purchase Heralds for each presentation. As little of this form of advertising is purchased in quantities large enough for the exhibitor to demand a price, he usually pays the maximum.

When the special is run for a week, paper and advertising helps are purchased in large quantities and at the lowest prices. The work of posting and distribution is done at one time. Quite a sum is saved in express charges and in other overhead expenses made necessary through the daily change.

This Detroit house also appears to have overcome the difficulty of having to shelve and at the same time pay for their program material during the week they run the big specials. The exhibitor explains this with the statement that he treats all the exchanges fairly, meets them more than halfway in everything, if necessary pays a little high film rental.

As a result of their diagnosis of conditions, Hiller & Wilk are sending out letters broadcast to exhibitors explaining the plan with the suggestion that they immediately get in touch with their local state rights exchanges who have secured "Raffles, the Amateur Cracksman."

Forbes-Robertson Returns to England

Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, the eminent English actor, who came to America to take part in Herbert Brennon's production of "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," has departed for England.

The last public appearance of the distinguished British actor was at Hero Land, in Grand Central Palace, New York, where he spoke briefly in behalf of the Allies' cause and its needs. His journey to America was made solely for the purpose of fulfilling the contract he had made to appear in the screen production of Jerome K. Jerome's drama.

For nearly two months he has been devoting all his time before the camera and production has been progressing diligently at the Brennon studios.

The role of the Stranger in Mr. Jerome's drama is the English actor's most popular and best liked stage creation.

Anita Loos Quits

Douglas Fairbanks; Emerson Also Free

Difference of opinion as concerns policy is the reason given out for the dissolution of the famous Fairbanks-Loos-Emerson combination, which occurred when the scenario writer and director concluded their contracts with the Fairbanks company. Miss Loos and Mr. Emerson left Los Angeles almost immediately for New York. It is understood that they will "look around" for a time before signing new contracts.

With the parting of the three a partnership formed under the Triangle banner comes to an end. Anita Loos is credited with having written most of the successful Fairbanks plays, which were, in nearly every instance, directed by Mr. Emerson. Her clever subtilting, it is said, was a governing factor in the rapid rise of the comedian in the motion picture world.

According to reports, the disagreement arose over the type of stories which Fairbanks was to do in the future. Fairbanks, the two say, wishes to appear in romantic comedy-drama rather than in the comedy satires which have made him famous.

As Miss Loos and Mr. Emerson make a specialty of high speed comedy satire and no compromise could be reached, the combination came to a parting of the ways.

Arctrafts announces that the future Fairbanks productions will be directed by Allan Dwan.

Day of Spectacle for Spectacle's Sake
Has Passed, Declares Goldwyn Director

"Spectacle for spectacle's sake is a dead precept and a deadly precept for the modern picture producer," declares R. A. Walsh, the Goldwyn director. "I know, because I have had a good deal to do with some big pictures myself and I have watched the development of this type of screen play very closely. I was fortunate to work with pictures that, while they made a great display of crowds and great buildings, yet were first of all dramas of intimate human emotions. And that is the essential thing.

I have always felt that 'The Birth of a Nation' did almost as much mischief to the film industry as it did good. That is the way with big, daring, creative things. All nature and all human development testify to that.

'The Birth of a Nation' did harm because its success gave producers a notion that they could go out and hire a town and an army and then it was all over but the shouting of the audience. It happens that big pictures were made on that principle in Italy before 'The Birth of a Nation' and made without a genuine success either artistic or popular, except in a very few instances. But producers forgot that, if they ever knew it, and they misunderstood the success of 'The Birth of a Nation.' The result was an era of prodigal expenditure on mobs and trappings and everything but the essentials of motion picture art—powerful story and powerful direction.

I know that 'The Birth' won out because it had those essentials, and people have told me that the success of the 'Honour System' was based on the drama of it, rather than the length of the film and the scale of the undertaking.

All this is growing plain to producers now. It was clear at my first talk with President Goldfish that I should be in perfect accord with my new associates. Goldwyn has spent large sums on the production of 'Folly of the Circus' and 'Thais'; for both of these they have employed great numbers of actors; but in each case there was no attempt to hide the drama in the crowds, to command mere numbers or footage. Goldwyn's ideal, like mine, is first of all a powerful story, second an adequate production. That may mean half a dozen actors and a few corners of rooms, or it may mean a whole Alexandria, built 'on the lot' or a circus rented outright. But it must all spring from the story. That is the key to photoplay success and photoplay art."

Larry Trimble III;
Will Form New Co.
Upon Recovery, Report

As a result of the unceasing effort and tireless work which he devoted to the second Petrova production, Larry Trimble, the director, suffered a temporary physical breakdown last week. He is now under the care of a physician and it is hoped will be around within the next few days.

In the production of the second Petrova picture Trimble is credited with taking forty-seven scenes in one day. His illness is the result of the unflagging zeal which he exerted on behalf of the film, the title for which has as yet not been selected. Mr. Trimble will announce the formation of a picture organization soon, it is said, in the affairs of which he will play a prominent part, both from a business and professional viewpoint.

Beat on Disaster

Has Day's Lead on Competitors with Halifax Holocaust Pictures

James Barr O'Neil, Gaumont-Mutual camera man, who was on duty in Halifax, N.S., at the time the disaster that cost 1,226 lives, accomplished an extraordinary feat in making 500 feet of film covering the worst aspects of the holocaust and arriving in New York twenty-four hours ahead of any competitor, the pictures being exhibited on Broadway Thursday evening, December 13. They arrived in Chicago and the central west December 15.

Mr. O'Neil was five miles from the harbor front visiting the home of a friend when the explosion took place, the windows of the house being shattered and several occupants cut with glass.

The camera used by O'Neil had to be dug out of a mass of wreckage to which the upper floors of his hotel on Prince Edward street had been reduced, but the machine was soon put in working order and the operator succeeded in obtaining some of the most thrilling scenes of the great disaster.

Many difficulties had to be surmounted in getting out of Halifax, all trains having been commandeered for the removal of wounded, but O'Neil was determined not to be beaten on so important a piece of work. He clung to the rods of the last coach on a hospital express and once clear of the wrecked area managed to make his way by automobile to a direct train for Portland, Me., whence he proceeded to New York.

Exhibitors Anxious to Book Big Serial "The Eagle's Eye"

Foursquare Exchanges in all parts of the country report receiving applications for bookings on the new Wharton America serial. The serial, entitled "The Eagle's Eye," is written by Chief William J. Flynn, of the United States Secret Service. The home office, 739 Seventh avenue, New York, receives an unprecedented volume of orders from Detroit, Cincinnati and Cleveland.

Manager Samuel Rubenstein, of the Boston Foursquare Exchange, states that numerous New England exhibitors are also eagerly awaiting the announcement of the publication dates. Frank J. Flaherty, of Chicago, and Sidney J. Baker, of St. Louis, are two Foursquare managers who find exhibitors in their territories anxious to get the serial.

In the New York Foursquare office Manager H. G. Goldwyn has received numerous applications for "The Eagle's Eye" and all other Foursquare offices throughout the country are handling similar applications. Subscriptions and contracts are being signed in advance of the trade showing, so great is the confidence felt in the ability of the Wharton America serial being written by Courtney Riley Cooper under Chief Flynn's supervision.

In accordance with an announcement made recently relative to the "Shorty, Hamilton Comedies," consisting of twelve five-reel comedy dramas per year, the W. H. Clifford Photoplay Company have published another comedy entitled "The Snail," a Chinese-American story. This title, it is said, does not reflect the activities of "Shorty" in the telling of the story.

There is an absence of slapstick methods or over-acting in order to get a laugh. The story is told with a full recognition of its dramatic value and interpreted by a company of recognized screen favorites. The W. H. Clifford Photoplay Company operates in its own studios and laboratory and with every modern facility for turning out the highest type of product, it is announced.

The marketing of the "Shorty Hamilton" series is being negotiated in the Ernest Shipman offices, 17 West 44th Street, New York city, both for the domestic and foreign rights.

"FREEDOM OF WORLD" OVERCOMES SLUMP IN MANY THEATRES

Marcus Loew Books Goldwyn Film for Circuit—Big Business Reported in Ohio

Exhibitors in all parts of North America are showing great enthusiasm over the success of the Goldwyn-distributed patriotic production, "For the Freedom of the World." Marcus Loew booked the production on sight for his entire chain of theatres and the Loew managers who previously had seen the picture and reported favorably on it, have arranged to present this attraction backed by a special advertising campaign.

In Youngstown and Canton, Ohio, Feiber and Shea have shown the feature to capacity houses in each city and were so well pleased with the drawing power and appeal of the picture that they re-booked it for all of their houses. From the day of its first presentation in the Victoria Theatre, Philadelphia, "For the Freedom of the World" has proved itself very popular.

General Film Co's. Attitude Commended "Reflects Confidence" States Official

Commenting upon the recent vote of commendation by a league of exhibitors in the Pacific Northwest for General Film Company's attitude in the 15-cent charge matter, an official of that company points to it as another evidence of the cordiality that exists between the company and the exhibitors of the country.

"Perhaps at no time in its history has the General Film Company possessed so uniformly the confidence of the exhibitor," said the official. "The good intentions of General Film toward its clients are firmly understood and thoroughly appreciated. This gratifying sentiment has been cumulative. It is not the result of any impulsive declaration on the part of General Film Company, nor any pretensions of extravagant affection. It has been the result of performance, not boasting. The friendship of the exhibitor has been won in a dignified and lasting manner. And each time when the test came General Film Company, I am glad to say, has been found standing just where the exhibitor could reasonably have expected us to stand—with the exhibitor."

"Thus it is that General Film Company is really in a logical position, especially as regards the 15 cents per reel tax, knowing that following its natural inclination, did not participate in the published call of distributors, urging the exhibitors to accept the 15 cents charge to take care of the war tax on film footage, and was also one of the first to waive the collection of this charge. Hence it became in no way involved in the organized resistance to this charge, nor in the specific fights represented, for example, in the suit of the Cleveland exhibitors against distributing companies, nor in the Brooklyn attempt of distributors disciplined for cancellations."

"In fact, it has been all the other way. Nothing but commendation remains for General Film for its attitude in the present trade disturbances. And when it is pointedly praised and thanked in a resolution of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' Corporation of the Northwest for its attitude, the company can easily be pardoned for feeling intense satisfaction. Certainly it has propriety in keeping itself from being stamped into an antagonism of the exhibitor."
An enjoyable spectacle offering especially appropriate feature for children's programs and for neighborhood houses is "The Babes in the Woods," based on the fairy tales of "Hansel and Gretel" and "Babes in the Woods." It has a modern prologue and epilogue introducing a touch of present day interest. The production has been well and elaborately handled; the settings have been selected with care, large and capable cast supports the excellent team of child stars. The photography throughout is splendid. C. M. and S. A. Franklin are responsible for the excellent direction.

The story: John Hamilton finds that his second wife is false and decides to disappear for a while. He returns one evening when his wife and his brother are planning to dispose of his two children. He tells them a story of little Gretchen and Hansel, who were sold by a cruel stepmother and later that they might get the fortune which the children inherited from their father. He tells how they were put in a forest, kidnapped by a witch and later by a bad prince. The little children finally return to their home town, their story is told and the stepmother and false prince are bound in fetters. The story has such an effect on Mrs. Hamilton that she begs her husband's forgiveness and readily promises to love the children.

Ethel Barrymore in "AN AMERICAN WIDOW"
Metro comedy-drama; five parts; published December 24

In "An American Widow" Metro presents Ethel Barrymore in a comedy drama of unusual merit. The role of the rich Mrs. Carter is one well befitting the talents of this actress and combined with an entertaining story, it is as good a photoplay as has been offered patrons for a long time. It runs along in an amusing vein and registers with telling effect. Irving Cummings, Charles Dickson, Alfred Kapple, Ernest Stailard, Dudley Hawley and Pearl Brown are members of the cast. The direction is by Frank Reicher.

The story: Mrs. Carter, known as the "American Widow," plans to marry the Earl of Dettminster, when she learns that in order to retain her inheritance her second husband must be of American birth. She decides to marry an American, divorce him and then marry the Earl and Jasper Mallory is called upon to be the second husband. During the divorce proceedings Mallory and Mrs. Carter seek seclusion and both happen to select the bungalow of a friend. Thrown together constantly they learn to love each other and when the decree is granted. Mrs. Carter decides she would rather marry Mallory than the Earl. The picture was shown at the Boston Theatre, Chicago, last week.

Olive Tell in "HER SISTER"
Empire-Mutual drama; five parts; published December 24

Olive Tell, in her second picture on the Mutual program, is indeed a likeable young person and has a good vehicle in "Her Sister." It is clean-cut and well told, with original twists that make it an acceptable offering. A large and well selected cast supports Miss Tell, which includes David Powell, Eileen Dennes, Eileen Errol, Madeline Meredith. Charles Edwards, Sidney Blair, Herbert Evans and Eleanor Seybolt. The direction is by John B. O'Brien.

The story: Eleanor Alderson meets Ernest Bickley, the son of a wealthy family, and they fall in love. Mrs. Bickley invites Eleanor to a house party. Her sister Jane, who has been unavoidably compromised with Hamilton, a married man, is also a guest at the house party. Mrs. Herriard, a widow, anxious to marry Ernest and get the Bickley fortune, learns that Mrs. Hamilton is seeking a divorce and has named Jane Alderson as co-respondent. Photographs are mixed and Eleanor's photograph is printed in the papers and captioned as co-respondent. Mrs. Herriard shows the photograph to the Bickley family and Mrs. Hamilton arrives to serve papers on Jane. Eleanor, in order to shield her sister, who has assumed another name, accepts the guilt. However, she states that Mrs. Herriard is the guilty one and the chauffeur identifies her as the woman Hamilton has been going about with. Mrs. Hamilton transfers her charge and the Alderson girls, being exonerated, are welcomed into the Bickley home.

THE "HERALD'S" REVIEW SERVICE

The dominant aim of the reviewers on the staff of the EXHIBITORS HERALD is to supply the exhibitor with the information necessary to enable him to appreciate intelligently the production under consideration—to know if the picture is exceptional, if it is of standard quality, if it is suitable in theme and treatment to his requirements. The review department is absolutely essential to every person who books pictures. Its independence, strict impartiality and fairness guarantees an accurate estimation of every important production published.
The "Volunteer" is unique, pleasing, timely and entertaining. It is novel in that almost all of Mr. Brady's stars as well as Mr. Brad's cameraman and second director appear in the production. Its timeliness consists in its war time note, and the incidents leading up to and revolving around its war message. Little need be said about Madge Evans. She is one of the few child stars old enough and wise enough to play up to the part. Miss Gordon, Miss Clayton, Miss Elvidge, Miss Greeley, Mr. Blackwell and Mr. Love are among the stars who appear. No doubt patrons of motion picture theaters will be glad to see the well known and good going pictures Mr. Brady is shown at work in his private office. Mr. Vail and Mr. Knoles are among the directors appearing in the production.

The important parts in support of Madge Evans are Henry Hull, Muriel Ostriche, Victor Kennard, Kate Lester, Charles Charles and Jack Drumiere. The direction is by Harley Knoles. Spectators viewing this production will also be given an opportunity of seeing how motion pictures are made at the World studio.

The story: When her father goes to France as a soldier and her mother as a Red Cross nurse, Madge Evans is forced to sever her connections with the motion picture company for which she is working and go to live with her grandparents, stern Quakers. Madge's uncle Jonathan is anxious to enlist, but his father does not approve of it. However, on his twenty-first birthday he ignores his father's wishes and becomes a "Sammy." His father refuses to have anything to do with him, but little Madge soon wins him over. Madge learns that one of her pictures is to appear in the town and she pleads with her grandmother to take her, but he refuses. The opening of the matinee finds grandfather, grandmother, uncle Jonathan and Madge all spectators in different parts of the house, each oblivious of the other's presence. Through Madge, her grandfather's bigotry is revealed to him and he becomes less stern and more human. The picture was shown at the Boston Theatre, Chicago, this week.

Geraldine Farrar in
"THE DEVIL-STONE"
Artcraft drama; five parts; published December 17

As a whole: Excellent Story: Intriguing
Star: Excellent Support: Spacious Settings: Exceptional
Photography: Good

The story of "The Devil-Stone" is illogical and inconsistent. It is weak and unconvincing and the ending is so ridiculous the whole strikes one as farce-comedy. With humorous songs and dances, the picture might make a good farce. Miss Farrar's role is not suitable for this talented star. The work of Wallace Reid is also lost in this production. Tully Marshall as Silas Martin, a grizzly miser, has a good part and handles it adequately. Hobart Bosworth is another prominent member of the cast. The direction is by Cecil B. DeMille.

The story: Silas Martin, a miser, marries Marcia Manot in order to gain possession of a valuable emerald which she owns. After the wedding Marcia is shown true side of Martin and finds her marriage a mistake. Martin steals the stone and places Marcia and Guy Sterling, his business manager, in a false light in order to gain a divorce. Stealing in on Martin one night Marcia learns that he has the stone. She gains possession of it and Martin endeavors to take it away from her. They struggle, and Marcia kills him in self-defense. Sterling is accused of the murder, but the evidence clears him and Martin's death remains a mystery. Sterling marries Marcia and has an extraordinary criminologist investigate the death. The criminologist traces the crime to Marcia and when confronted she confesses. She is given a month's leave of absence, after which time she is to give herself up to the law. She returns to her old home and gives the emerald to the priest of the village that he might make provision for homeless orphans. She returns to the criminologist and gives herself up. However, her good deed has redeemed her, the criminologist does not turn her over to the authorities, and she and Sterling are happily reunited.

Taylor Holmes in
"UNEASY MONEY"
Essanay-Perfection comedy-drama; six parts; published January 1

As a whole: Splendid Story: Enjoyable
Star: Entertaining
Support: Suitable
Settings: Good
Photography: Good

The Essanay-Taylor Holmes subjects so far produced have established a high standard of excellence. "Uneasy Money" is a clean, humorous story, interestingly told with an intensity that should make it as popular as any of the other features starring this indubitably screen enterpriser. Mr. Holmes is given opportunity to display his cleverness at comedy and as the English Lord Dawlish makes the most of every situation. Virginia Valli, Lillian Drew, Rodney La Rocque and Arthur Bates have important parts and afford Mr. Holmes good support. The direction is by L. C. Windom. A clever, well trained monkey shares honors with the stars and is responsible for some amount of comedy.

The story: Lord Dawlish, poor, but having a title, learns that an American millionaire has left him a fortune. He also learns that the dead man's relatives have been cut off with practically nothing. He goes to America and wants to share the fortune with Elizabeth Nuttycombe, the niece, who refuses to accept it. He meets Nutty Nuttycombe, Elizabeth's brother, who takes him out to their farm to spend a few days. Elizabeth, unaware of his identity, sets him to washing dishes, painting chicken coops and various other occupations very distasteful to the English lord. When Nutty informs Elizabeth of Bill's true identity, Elizabeth becomes angered at Bill and drives him from the house. Before leaving, Bill writes a note to Elizabeth that he has turned the entire fortune over to her. After reading the letter Elizabeth persuades the departing Bill and tells him that if he will marry her, she will accept the fortune. And so the matter is satisfactorily settled.

Zoe Rae in
"THE SILENT LAD"
Butterfly drama; five parts; published December 10

As a whole: Slow
Story: Drags
Star: Unnatural Support: Suitable
Settings: Good
Photography: Good

"The Silent Lady," presenting little Zoe Rae, is a slow, uninteresting feature. It never gets anywhere and most of its situations are silly and obviously created so that star and players will have something to do. It is all a great ado about nothing. There is nothing childish or winsome about Zoe Rae's work to make it appealing. Gretchen Leeder is likeable in the role of Miss Summerville. Winter Hall, Harry Holden and Edwin Brown are three good characters. Lule
Exhibitors' Herald

Warren and E. A. Warren are other members of the cast. Direction is by Elsie Jane Wilson.

The story: Kate is being raised by three old bachelors, Philemon, Peter and Capt. Bartholomew. She is taken sick and a doctor is called. He orders a trained nurse and Miss Summerville arrives. She wins the heart of Kate as well as that of the doctor. One night Miss Summerville learns that a Captain Peyton is to visit the seacoast lighthouse. She turns off the light in hopes the captain will not find the place. This angers Philemon, who demands an explanation. She tells him she was engaged to marry Peyton, when she learned that he was married. Philemon decides to turn her out of the house and shows her she is about to leave he begs forgiveness. "The Cinderella Man" is the sort of picture that should prove adaptable to all audiences. But when Margie meets Tony Quintard, a poor poet, who would rather starve than accept the hospitality of his wealthy uncle, Margie does not think so much of Walter and is anxious to break off her engagement. Caner tells Margie, in the presence of Walter, that they are penniless. Walter is glad to break the engagement and Margie rushes to tell Tony the good news, because Tony would have nothing to do with a woman of the daughter of a millionaire. Caner is forced to explain matters to Tony but when Margie promises Tony to live on just what he earns, there is a prediction of much happiness for both Tony and Margie. "The Tenth Case" presents the rather familiar story of a devoted daughter marrying a wealthy suitor to relieve her father's financial difficulties in the first part and then develops into a strong story of the fallibility of circumstantial evidence. The unfolding of the theme provides interesting film entertainment.

As a starring vehicle for June Elvidge it offers this charming actress an ideal role and she is accorded excellent support and backing. John Bo wra his Sanford King, George MacQuarrie, who makes his initial appearance under the World banner, Gladden James, Eric Mayne, Eloise Clement and Charles Dungan. Director George Kelson has staged and directed the production with infinite care.

The story: Claudia Payton marries Jerome Landis to save her father from ruin and shortly after the marriage she finds she really loves him. Harry Landis, a young nephew making his home with Jerome, demands more money from his uncle who refuses. Claudia comes to his rescue and gives him a check. He makes frequent demands upon Claudia and when she refuses further aid he conceals himself in Claudia's bedroom and is discovered by Jerome. Jerome Landis sues his wife for divorce. In order that Claudia might not lose her son, she and her lawyer "frame-up" a case on the judge's wife. The judge then appreciates that circumstantial evidence is not altogether proof of guilt and gives Claudia custody of her son every other six months. While on a joy ride, Harry Landis is seriously injured and before dying confesses his part in the bedroom episode. Jerome is repentant and begs his wife's forgiveness. It is granted and they are happily reunited.

Though "The Pride of New York" is a comedy-drama, its story revolves around a timely and, at-the-present-time, favorite theme—the war. The feature is entertaining with its touches of humor and yet is impressive, stirring messages serving forth the necessity for enlistment and unity being contained in the subtitles. George Walsh has rapidly come to the front as a dare-devil comedian and his various stunts in this production are hair-raising in the extreme. Regina Quinn appears opposite Mr. Walsh and William Bailey and James A. Marcus have important parts. The story and direction are by R. A. Walsh.

His unfitness for such a position is soon discovered and he is reduced to the ranks. Jim's regiment goes to Europe and with six German aeroplanes and several minor victories to his credit he becomes the "pride of New York." A young girl belonging to New York's millionaire class has gone to Europe to become a nurse. She meets Jim and becomes interested in him because of his bravery and patriotism. When he rescues her from the clutches of a German prince she is grateful and as a natural course they fall in love.

Roy Stewart in
THE LEARNIN' OF JIM BENTON
Triangle drama; five parts; published December 9

"The Learnin' of Jim Benton" is a "rip-roaring" western drama. It is replete with tense situations and exciting moments and contains a great deal of humor, offering an inter-casting subject. Roy Stewart has a good role and handles it well. In his support appear Fritz Ridgeway, Walter Perry, Ed Brady, Wm. Ellington, Thornton Edwards, John P. Wild and Harry Kattenberry. The story is by Al Heitz and direction by Cliff Smith.

The story: Jim Benton refuses to join the sheepmen's association and his water supply is cut off. This precipitates a feud and Benton's men attack the shepherders' men. Benton promises Evelyn Hastings, the school teacher, that he will not kill except in self-defense. When they shoot his haw off he believes it necessary to open fire and kills one of the men. Jim is accused of murder and a jury finds him guilty. As the time for his execution arrives the governor is called in and at the last moment he grants Jim a reprieve. Thus Jim wins freedom and the school teacher. The picture pleased audiences at the Pastime Theatre, Chicago, last week.

"Song of Songs" in Films

Elise Ferguson's newest screen vehicle is "The Song of Songs," adapted from Edward Sheldon's well known play of the same name. Joe Kaufman is staging the production and it is expected that in this famous play Miss Ferguson will present her greatest work to date on the screen. In the cast are Cecil Fletcher, Cranford Kent, Frank Losse, Gertrude Berkeley, Robert Cummings, Corinne Uzel, Charles Wellesley and Henry Leone.

Olive Tell in "Her Sister"
Furnishes Christmas Feature of Mutual's Holiday Program

Mutual's Christmas offering will be "Her Sister," a Charles Frohman play, in pictures starring the Charles Frohman actress, Olive Tell, whose work in "The Unforeseen" established the quality of her screen work. The picture will be published December 24.

"Her Sister" is a picture adaptation of the Broadway success in which Ethel Barrymore scored a sensational hit. Miss Tell is admirably suited, it is said, to the part of Eleanor Alderson. She is supported by David Powell and a cast of Frohman players.

The production provides Miss Tell with a vehicle that is strong in human appeal. As Eleanor Alderson, a gown model, she protects her younger sister, Jane, also a model, from the lure of the omnipresent "Don Juan," and they are both discharged for refusing to accept the invitations of buyers who want to buy wine. Fosing as a fortune teller, Eleanor establishes herself in an environment of mystic Egyptian glamour. Jane becomes involved in an affair at a roadhouse with a married man, but is saved from exposure by the timely arrival of Eleanor. This is one of many escapes from which she is extorted by the good offices of her sister.

In the supporting cast is David Powell, Eileen Dennes, Anita Rothe, Mrs. Clarat-Bracy, Harriett Thompson and Martha Dean.

"Lost Express" is Concluded

In the concluding chapter of "The Lost Express," the "Return of the Lost Express" to be published December 24, the mystery of the missing train is cleared. Helen, after a series of adventures, discovers the train and drives it back to the main track. The picture is brought to a climax in the destruction of an entire town by fire, and a rescue from the flames by Helen.

Billie Rhodes, in the Strand comedy, "Mary's Boomerang," takes the part of a girl who attempts to prove that her chum's husband, a thief, gets all mixed up in a family mess, which almost leads to a divorce but finally emerges from the affair a sadder but wiser girl.

Oneta," a horse with almost human intelligence, is costar with George Ovey in the Cub comedy, "Jerry's Best Friend." This equine does various stunts and rescues Jerry from a band of cattle thieves and outlaws.

The Mutual Weekly is full of topics of timely interest, covering a diversity of subjects that are pertinent. It will be published December 24.

“The Volunteer” Play Within a Play
Stars Madge Evans and Henry Hull

The current World-Picture Brady-Made, in which Madge Evans, the World’s “kiddie star” and Henry Hull are featured equally, has motion pictures as its topic. It starts in the World’s studio at Fort Lee, N. J., and follows the picture which supposedly is being taken at that particular time with little Madge as its star and Harley Knoles directing.

The Play Within a Play shows Madge’s father going off to war (which he did in real life) and Madge’s mother departing for France as a member of the Red Cross.

This makes it necessary for little Miss Evans—in the story—to abandon her professional career for the time being and go to live with relatives out West, until her parents return. These relatives are Quakers, and the head of the family is so firmly set against war that he and his son, who is filled with patriotic fervor and desires to enlist, keep the household in perpetual riot.

Little Madge Among Quakers

Neither does the iron-clad old Quaker countenance moving pictures or other forms of amusement, so that when little Madge’s last photoplay comes along to the small town near which her relatives live, he sternly forbids the others to go near it, and then sneaks off by himself to have a secret look.

His wife, his warlike son and little Madge similarly repair to the movie theatre, each by himself and sit in different parts of the house, the children not only making no noise, but not showing the least interest in the show. The crowd files out the elder members of the Quaker family are at first a very shame-faced lot. But the end justifies the means, for the deep patriotism of the story they have just witnessed has the effect of lighting the fire in the old man’s heart and he gladly sends his son to the service of his country.

“The Volunteer” is the motion picture play in which all the stars of World-Pictures appear personally, each for a moment, as one by one they bid Madge good-bye when she is leaving the studio for her new home. These include Kitty Gordon, Ethel Clayton, Evelyn Greeley, June Elvidge, Carlyle Blackwell, Montagu Love and director-general William A. Brady, together with Madge’s own director, Harley Knoles.

The first scene, showing all the World companies working in the studio, was photographed from a platform built sixty feet high just outside the great structure of glass and steel. At this point a section of the glass was removed, and the camera was inserted in the aperture.

“The Dream Doll” a Timely Offering Sadie Goes to Heaven” Issued Dec 24.

Essanay timed the publication of its novelty Perfection picture, “The Dream Doll,” so as to give it to the public during the holiday season. And that it selected the appropriate time is evidenced in the heavy holiday week bookings, already reported by the George Kleine offices.

Though not a Christmas picture, “The Dream Doll” is particularly appropriate for holiday programs, as it shows that remarkable acting is done on the part of some fourteen-inch dolls.

The picture runs for an hour and is acted for the most part by the little dolls. They interpret a pretty legend in which the love element is strong and appealing to picture goers of all ages. Marguerite Clayton, Rod LaRocque and other Essanay players appear in the picture.

Mary McAlister, the six-year-old Essanay actress, has completed her latest picture, “Sadie Goes to Heaven,” adapted from the story published in Good Housekeeping. This production includes some remarkable acting by a small dog, “rented out” by a Michigan farmer. The little animal shows remarkable aptitude for obeying the director. Published December 24, through George Kleine as an Essanay Perfection Picture, “Sadie Goes to Heaven” cites the adventures of a little ghost doll in the home of the rich.

We note that a Wharton “prop” man has invented a harmless paper bullet for use in sham battles before the camera. Another versatile subject for P. A.’s shot to pieces. Now it someone invents a wrecks bullet for the reckless film stars, there’ll be a lot of weeping and wailing in the region of the publicity sanctums.

Why Films Cost So Much

In taking scenes of Mary MacLane’s picture “Men Who Have Made Love to Me,” a gross of cigarettes was used, according to Essanay’s pub. dispenser.

FILMS TO EDUCATE UNCLE SAM'S FIGHTERS

By Nat S. Strong

The motion picture screen is to play a far greater part in the present world war than even its most optimistic supporter would have ventured to predict. It is to be used for the intensive training of soldiers, the turning of recruits into the finished product.

After all other methods of direct instruction of recruits have failed of the desired results the United States Government has turned to the screen to bring the recruits to that degree of efficiency that will enable them to enter the first line trenches after a few weeks post graduate course in the direct military instruction school.

For several months government officials, members of the War College and staff officers of the army have been seeking some method by which large bodies of men might be taught military tactics and evolutions by one instructor and at one time. More than thirty plans were suggested and all were rejected. Almost at the moment when the officials in charge of the training of the immense army composed of absolutely raw material had decided that the old drill ground method of instruction of man by man and squad by squad would have to continue Leslie W. Brennan, a Utica financier, advanced the idea that properly taken motion pictures would solve the problem.

The suggestion of Mr. Brennan was met with skepticism, so much so in fact that he offered to stand the entire expense of proving that his suggestion was not only plausible but practical.

Secretary of War Baker issued orders that the Plebs at West Point be placed at the disposal of Mr. Brennan. With an excellent material at his command, by Captain Matthew Tomlinson, instructor of the West Point Plebs Mr. Brennan went to the big military school and started the pictures for which the Plebs posed in the Manual of Arms, School of the Soldier, School of the Squad, School of the Company, Semaphore, Arm Signals, Firing Positions, Grenade Throwing and Trench Work.

Upon the completion of the pictures they were screened for members of the War College and were demonstrated to be of such value that the War College assigned Captains Ellis and Gary, authors of the Plattsburg Manual, to enlarge upon the first efforts and the government appropriated seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars for the work.

Captains Ellis and Gary have been working for several weeks on the enlarged pictures which are about ready for distribution to the cantonments.

The original pictures as directed by Mr. Brennan and Captain Tomlinson, show the proper method to perform each movement and are repeated several times in each print so that the movement may be impressed upon the mind of the recruit.

In the enlarged government pictures which take thirty thousand feet of film, all the ideas of Mr. Brennan are used, but Captains Ellis and Gary have gone even farther, showing the improper manner of executing movements. This idea of showing the improper method has caused considerable discussion among educators many of whom insist that an improper manner never should be demonstrated to a student as it may convey the suggestion of executing the movement in the improper manner.

As a result of the success in working out the idea suggested by Mr. Brennan it is declared that the next batch of recruits called into service will learn their military lessons in from sixty to ninety days less than the green men who preceded them into the cantonments.

Not only will the military tactic films be used in the cantonments but prints of the original Brennan film will be available for newly formed military companies, State Guards, Home Defense Leagues, Y. M. C. A’s, schools, colleges and even public schools.

Adjudant General Charles H. Sherrill, of New York, the commissioned officers of the First Brigade, New York Guard and several prominent educators attended a private showing of the tactic films in Wurlitzer Hall on Thursday evening, December 13, and were enthusiastic over their possibilities from a military educational standpoint. All left the Wurlitzer projection room firm in the conviction that another heretofore untapped field of use for films had been discovered.

Government officials who are behind the universal military movement idea also are loud in their praise of the West Point films, declaring that these films will solve the problem caused by the lack of military instructors, and also solve financial difficulties surrounding a military education which heretofore appeared unsurmountable.

In many cities throughout the United States the authorities have been anxious to start a course of military training in the public schools. In almost every instance the desire had to be placed aside owing to the fact that military instructors are not available and because the number of children to be trained would necessitate the employment of several instructors.

The West Point films, it is pointed out, overcome these difficulties as several hundred children may receive military instruction at the same time and without the assistance of an experienced drill master. As a result it is expected that many municipalities will obtain projection machines for use in larger schools and will use the pictures to make the students proficient in military knowledge.

Review Board Passes "Those Who Pay" Film in a Special Report

The National Board of Review has placed its stamp of approval on the Thomas H. Ince production, "Those Who Pay," which is being published through the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, in a special report, reading as follows:

"An unusual story of domestic trouble with the maximum of emphasis on character portrayed and none on the sensual. The picture is a valuable contribution to the intimate drama of married life, valuable, because restrained and convincing."

"Those Who Pay" is the second film of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation and is now available to exhibitors of the United States and Canada on their wide-open booking plan.

Strand Plans Statue for Men in Service

Harold Edel, Managing Director of the Strand Theatre, New York, has engaged G. E. McCune to design a bronze statue in honor of the ex-employees who are now in the U. S. service. Drawings have already been submitted and accepted by Mr. Edel and the memorial will be ready in about a month. The statue will be of aDefaults of Motion and will be inscribed with the names of the former Strand employees, twenty-one in number, now in the various branches of the service. An extract from President Wilson's declaration of war, together with a facsimile of the President's signature will also be inscribed presenting in all a pretentious token of regard for the boys, many of whom are already "over there."

“Third Floor Back” Near Completion at Brenon Studio

"The Passing of the Third Floor Back," in which Herbert Brenon is presenting Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, is now rapidly nearing completion. Sir Johnston will sail for England this week and the production will be offered to the public shortly after the new year.

Alfred Hickman has been added to the cast and will be seen in the role of the slavey's father, a part which has been developed in the screen adaptation of Jerome K. Jerome's play. "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" has long been a favorite on the stage. During the past few years he has been devoting the greater part of his time to screen work. Perhaps his finest attainment in the cinema world was his characterization of the deposed Czar in Herbert Brenon's "The Fall of the Romanoffs."

The Weekly Program—Its Importance as a Business Getter

BY PAUL J. SMITH*

A LMOOST any exhibitor will admit without question that publicity means much to the motion picture theatre. And almost any exhibitor will likewise admit, if he will pause and think a moment, that the weekly program is one of the best means of publicity at his disposal.

Unfortunately, for themselves, there are some exhibitors who will not pause and think. There are some exhibitors to whom the weekly program is more or less of a nuisance, something to be gotten rid of as quickly as possible and with as little effort as possible. But if this class of exhibitors would only analyze the publicity question they would soon come to the conclusion that countless others of their brethren have reached in the last year. And that conclusion is: The weekly program can help a great deal if given proper care.

One great question that comes up in thinking of weekly programs is, what kind of a program will hit home the hardest and bring in the most returns? Some exhibitors are content with merely mentioning the date, the name of the picture and the name of the star. Others go a little further by adding a short remark about the star or the play that will hold the reader's interest for a moment longer and cause him to concentrate upon the play in question.

Others have gone still deeper. Not content with filling cut their program in this manner:

Monday—July 2nd

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS

THE HABIT OF HAPPINESS

A Happy Star in a Happy Play

they have studied over the press matter of the play and have taken from it every atom of information that might prove of interest to the reader. Perhaps the white space runs into rather long paragraphs. So much the better. If you can write a paragraph that folks will read, you hold their attention on the play that much longer and you give the information a chance to be absorbed.

Now, about the appearance of the program. Should you economize by putting into the hands of your patrons a program that gives them the information in good advertising form, but one which bears the earmarks of having been gotten out cheaply, or should you spend a little more money and give them a program that appeals to their sense of beauty and elegance?

Here's a good example for you to consider. Would you

Bluebird Program Arranged Into February

Mae Murray Finishes “Eternal Columbine”

With the Bluebird program arranged well into February, stars and directors are busy on locations with future subjects for publication in the early months of the New Year. Mae Murray has just completed “The Eternal Columbine,” created to introduce her dancing. Carmel Myers will be the star of “The Green Seal,” to be published late in February with Ashton Dearholt, her new leading man.

“The Girl Who Dared” will present Dorothy Phillips as a February Bluebird star, with William Stowell and Lon Chaney featured in her support. Priscilla Dean, instead of Ruef in this feature, and Cora With Monroe Salisbury, have been created by Rupert Julian: “The Highest Card” and “His Wife from Arizona.”

Violet Mersereau and J. C. Herndon both appear in February 4 in a picture that reflects war, but not the present strife. “Morgan’s Raiders” is the new title. The initial title was “The Wild Cat,” but “Morgan’s Raiders” has been decided upon as its permanent caption for distribution. Previous to her appearance in this film Miss Mersereau will appear as the star of Bluebird’s December 31 attraction, “The Girl by the Roadside.”

Another feature that has been fixed for the Bluebird program is at present titled “The Latamount,” in which Franklyn Farnum will appear the week of January 26. Edith Johnson, who became Mr. Farnum’s leading lady with the production of “The Scarlet Car,” to be published December 24, will be featured in the new attraction as the star’s chief support.

“Unmarried Wife” will be Carmel Myers’ second Bluebird and will be published on the regular program January 7. Mae Murray will form the January 15 feature, aptly titled “Fair Value.” For January 21 the attraction will be Dorothy Phillips in “Broadway Love,” rounding out a list that is set nearly two months ahead.

“THE IMPOSTOR” NEXT EMPIRE-MUTUAL FILM

After “Her Sister” the next Empire-Mutual publication will be “The Impostor,” starring Ann Murdock and featuring David Powell, who has supported Miss Murdock in four other Empire pictures.

The story of “The Impostor” is that of a young girl of refinement who, finding herself alone and penniless, accosts a young married man of a chivalrous nature who takes her to his hotel and gives her food. The story threads its way through a maze of complications, for he is discovered by gossiping friends of his wife who mistake a generous, human act for something very different.

World Play Renamed

“Cardinal Mercier”

“Cardinal Mercier” is the title finally chosen for the William A. Brady motion picture depicting conditions in Belgium during and since the German invasion of that unhappy country. The aged divine is the central figure of many stirring events in this story, several of them having historical significance. Montagu Love is the star of “Cardinal Mercier,” which is said to be one of the biggest and most costly productions ever issued under the Brady supervision.
Exhibitors Fined; Thirty Arrested in Pennsylvania

Censorship Board Charges Film Run Without State Seal Attached

Lancaster, Pa.—Two owners of motion picture theatres here and thirty in Philadelphia, have been arrested charged with violating the state censorship law of Pennsylvania by showing pictures lacking the seal of the state board.

Robert Bowman, manager of the Scenic Theatre, and C. C. Smith, manager of the Manor Street Theatre, were both arrested and later fined at a hearing before Alderman Doebler. Bowman was assessed $25 and costs for running four films and Smith was fined $10 and costs for running two films.

Feeling is running high among exhibitors here who contend they have been made the-dupe of an unscrupulous Philadelphia exchange. Dr. Ellis Oberholtzer, head of the Pennsylvania state board, preferred charges against the two men. They had what appeared to be a certificate on each of the films in question, but upon investigation Dr. Oberholtzer declared them spurious.

The law governing censoring and showing of motion pictures in Pennsylvania requires that every film must contain to the extent of four feet the certificate of stamp of approval, with the number placed at the end of each film. In Philadelphia thirty warrants have been issued for managers of motion picture theatres charged with the same offense. Hearing of the cases will come up before Magistrate Beaton this week.

Exhibitor Appeals to Higher Court on Sunday Closing

Schenectady, N. Y.—Seeking settlement of a long standing issue as to the legality of motion picture performances on Sunday in Schenectady, the motion picture theatre owners here will soon take the case of Victor Bergstrom, manager of the Majestic theatre, before the court of appeals.

The case is the outgrowth of a long campaign begun last spring against Sunday motion picture shows by the authorities. The exhibitors opened their theatres to test the validity of a decision that the places violated the law. Wholesale arrests were made by the police on two or three successive Sundays.

Two juries returned verdicts of not guilty and then a jury found Bergstrom guilty. The exhibitors immediately appealed the case and the appellate division of the court of appeals ordered the case to be placed in the court of appeals.

Aberdeen Exhibitor Pays $597.05 War Tax

Aberdeen, So. Dak.—H. L. Walker, manager of the Orpheum theatre here, paid the government $597.05, the proceeds for November of the 10 percent war tax on admission tickets. The size of the sum from this one theatre is an indication of the amount of revenue to be derived by the government through this channel of taxation.

Exhibitors of this city returned report no appreciable falling off in attendance due to the imposition of the tax and the resultant increase in the price of admission.

Campbell was directed to continue the campaign for new members of the association throughout the state at the meeting just closed here.

Tulsa Exhibitors Must Comply With City Fire Ordinance

Tulsa, Okla.—Following an infelctual campaign on the part of Fire Marshal Shoat here to enforce the provisions of Tulsa’s ordinance governing fire prevention in theatres, Mayor H. B. Worley issued orders recently to arrest all offending exhibitors.

Exhibitors, it is said, have repeatedly violated the law regarding exits, keeping aisles open and allowing free passage through lobbies. Marshal Shoat declared that he had issued order after order and that they had been ignored by the owners of the picture theatres.

Oklahoma Theatregoers Pay Half Million Tax

Oklahoma City—Theatregoers of Oklahoma will pay the government in excess of half a million dollars annually in war tax, according to an estimate made by Hubert L. Bolen, collector of internal revenue for the Oklahoma district.

The collector made his estimate after he had received reports from 500 theatres doing business in the state, covering war taxes for the month of November. He estimated that the income coming from the theatres would be in excess of $50,000. None of the theatres in this city have as yet made returns. One Tulsa theatre collected $1,500 during the month in taxes.

Indianapolis Operator Fined in License Fight

Indianapolis, Ind.—Robert L. Gavin, a motion picture machine operator, was fined $1 and costs this week in the city court on a charge of having operated a machine without a license. This was a test case as to whether the city has the right to impose an annual license fee of $6 on picture operators as authorized in the new municipal code.

It was originally intenderd to arrest all operators who had failed to get licenses, but Ralph Spena, attorney for the Motion Picture Operators’ union, reached an agreement whereby a test would be made of Gavin’s case and the other operators would abide by the decision. The attorneys for the union will appeal the case.

“The Bargain” Liked by Convict Critics

After the showing of the W. H. Productions Co.'s film featuring William S. Hart as the Two-Gun Man, in “The Bargain,” which was held for the prisoners at Sing Sing recently, under the auspices of the Mutual Welfare League, a novel method was determined upon in order to find out what impression such a picture made on the minds of the men. A general collection was taken up among the prisoners and cards distributed among them so that they could give a written opinion of the production. Many opinions were advanced, but it was particularly noticeable that all the men seemed to have absorbed the moral lesson of the picture and to have been thoroughly impressed with the strength of Mr. Hart's portrayal of the "bad man," who had the character and will to make himself go straight.

Select Pictures Corp. Makes Many Changes in Branch Managers

A number of changes have taken place during the current week in several of the western exchanges maintained by the Select Pictures Corporation.

Harry H. Hicks, formerly branch manager at Los Angeles, has been appointed branch manager at San Francisco. Bernard E. Loper, for the past five years Pathe's manager at Los Angeles, has gone over to the Select organization, to be branch manager in the same city. H. L. Knappen has become manager of Select's Denver Exchange, where he had at one time been manager for Pathe. Chas. S. Goetz becomes sales manager at Kansas City, with W. H. Bell, branch manager at that city.

Another change during the current week in the Select branches was the moving of the Des Moines office to Omaha, Neb. C. W. Taylor, who has been Select's manager at Des Moines, retains charge of the exchange, which will be located at 1521 broadway, Omaha. Mr. Taylor feels that on account of express service and resulting carriage charges it is possible to obtain better results by distributing from Omaha than from Des Moines.

Still a further change in Select Exchanges occurred in Washington, D. C., where S. B. Jordan, formerly manager in the capital city exchange, moved his headquarters from the old E street location to 535 Thirteenth street, N. W.

Arthur S. Kanamori, manager of Select Pictures, continues on his trip throughout the middle west. During the ensuing week he will turn eastward, however, and visit exchanges at Cleveland, Cincinnati, Detroit, Pittsburgh and Buffalo.

Max Goldstine, host de luxe of the Artcraft Exchange, is no woman hater. Perish the thought. If you ever had this idea you should have seen the genial Max at the recent Wallie Reid luncheon. Two regular women come in and were assailed with invitations to fill a few of the table furthest from Max. That old boy stood it about as long as he could and then, jamming his celery in his watch pocket, he filled his car with a band artillery and beat it to the female section of the festive board.

L. L. Lesserman, manager of the Universal exchange, advises that Universal showings will be screened on Saturdays at 10 a.m., instead of Fridays, as here-tofore.

To note: Jack Meredith, former leading man with Norma Talmadge, Charlotte Walker, Evelyn Nesbit, and many others, will blaze the trail for the Universal exchange and right here in little old Chi. too. Beware you seasoned knights of the grip, they tell us Jack's got tons of pep. On your toes, worthy competitors.

Cahill-Igoe Company
Supply Cuts of Stars

The Cahill-Igoe Company, publishers of Screen Opinions and De Luxe programs, have recently inaugurated a new service which should be very helpful to the motion picture exhibitors.

A well known Chicago artist was employed to make pen and ink drawings over photographs of seventy-five of the leading film artists. Cuts have been made from these in two sizes, one inch by one and one-fourth inch high and two inches wide by two and one-half inches high. Being zinc etchings they will print on any grade of stock, from rough newspaper stock to the most expensive high grade enameled papers.

The use of these cuts is free to exhibitors who are users of the programs published by Cahill-Igoe Company. Any other exhibitor can purchase them at a nominal sum.

Chicago's Annual “Movie Week” Has Strong Backing

Chicago's second annual “Go-to-Movie Week,” the custom inaugurated last year by Rob Reel, motion picture editor of the Chicago American, of setting aside the week between Christmas and New Year's for special attendance at the film plays, has this year, practically the combined support of the exhibitors of Chicago.

Slides are now being shown in theaters throughout the city notifying the public of the coming event. Bob Reel is backing the plan by exploiting it fully in his newspaper. The skeptics who held aloof when the plan was first broached, a year ago, made great speed to climb onto the band wagon this year and are among the biggest boosters of the event.

“Let's Be Cheerful” is the campaign slogan, and this message has been flashed on screens nightly for the past week. Many exhibitors have advertised that they have obtained the most wholesome and cleanest photo-plays possible for the holidays. “Have you arranged to have a ‘Movie’ party? Are you going to send or take some one who has not the chance you have to be cheerful?” is one of the many questions asked the audiences from the screen.

Wins Prize Naming Charlotte Picture—Breaks Into Rhyme

The recent contest inaugurated by the Commonwealth Pictures Corporation to obtain a title for the production featuring Charlotte, world's champion skater, resulted in two dividing the prize of $100. Bertha A. Backus, 354 Hope street, Providence, R. I., one of the prize winners, has dedicated the following verses to the company.

A Word to the Wise

When "Charlotte," with her winged feet
Drew the world's gaze toward "Commonwealth," I
The thinking caps were donned by those Who push the quill for art or health. They knew that when the magic name
Was found to herald her new play
Some lucky dog would wake to find A hundred bones had come his way.

I joined the ranks of those who burn
The candle light 'till early morning. And when Old Sol looked in at me
I had evoked "The Frozen Warning." Alas! Had I kept union hours
Nor proved the muse with overtime,
She would have lingered by my side. And I would not have penned this rhyme. She flew to find a chap named Dan
And soon was whispering in his ear Till we poor ink-fingered scribners With the same thought our pens smeared. The Frozen Warning" wins; and now Two lucky dogs—not one—are we; So I must "dively up" with Dan, And he must share his prize with me.

Patron Saint of Christmas cheer, We'll send you a box of candy canes; We have our troubles, though perchance They be from without or without. You know whose joints to lubricate Until they write, "We drink your health; Merry Christmas—Please accept A hundred bones from "Commonwealth".

B. C. Exhibitors Association to Fight New Amusement Tax About to Be Imposed

Tactlessly worded slides suppressed by provincial government—Exhibitors use 24-sheet posters

The motion picture exhibitors of British Columbia are living up to their statement that they were going to fight the new amusement tax to a finish. Exhibitors throughout the Province have been suppressing the showing of slides during the past week. Some of these slides were not very tactfully worded, some going so far as to state that Mr. Brewster, the premier, levied the tax so that he could increase his own salary.

Naturally the Provincial Government took offense at this statement and the Attorney General immediately instructed the Censor that no picture showing another theatre in the province that unless the screening of slides discussing the amusement tax was discontinued their licenses would be cancelled. The Act governing the theatres in British Columbia calls for the censoring of all slides before being exhibited. However, this law has never been enforced.

Winnipeg Censor Board to be reorganized

Complete reorganization of the provincial motion picture censorship bureau of Winnipeg, together with a change in policy, was unofficially intimated at the parliament buildings today. It was stated that an amendment would be made in which many important changes would be advanced.

The necessity for filling the vacancy caused by the death of the late William Horn, chairman of the censors' board, is said to have provided the government with an opportunity for the reorganization, which has been planned for some time.

It is expected that two new censors will be appointed, one to take Mr. Horn's place, and the other to replace H. Wiloughby, who is reported to be going to another department of the government.

For some time the government has been receiving complaints from motion picture exchanges that the board of appeal is wrongly constituted in that it comprises three persons whose opinions on the merits or demerits of a picture should have no more weight than the opinions of the three censors before whom the picture is originally taken.

It is expected, therefore, that the government plans instituting a drastic change in this regard. The manner in which the new appeal board is to be constituted is not known at present.

Superfeatures Limited announce that they will handle all the Griffin pictures for Canada, the latest features being "Civilization," "Lone Wolf," "Vera, the Medium," and "Comingo." Mr. Stewart, general manager, is leaving for the Maritime Provinces to open up offices in that territory and before long this new distributing company in Canada will have offices in the six most important centers.

Roy O'Connor, formerly manager of the Jola Theatre, Toronto, has been appointed salesman for the Specialty Film Import Co.

Specialty Import Co. announces that it has secured pictures of the recent Halifax disaster for Pathé News and will issue them in Toronto within a few days.

Up to the present time no reports have been received as to whether or not any theatres were destroyed in the Halifax disaster. It is more than likely that the amusement theatres will be practically empty until things get straightened out. This is one of the worst disasters that has occurred in any Canadian city.

The Allied theatre, located at 1240 Ontario street, East Montreal, opened recently under the management of Mr. Bastein. It was formerly operated under the name of Liberty Theatre.

Mrs. W. F. Osborne, wife of Prof. Osborne, of Manitoba University, has been appointed to the provincial board of motion picture censors, according to an announcement by Hon. Edward Brown, provincial treasurer. The appointment took effect on Dec. 1.

A chairman for the board has not yet been selected. It is learned that the government contemplates appointing an expert, who has been connected with the theatrical business for some years.

Business in Canada film theatres during the past week was a little slow due to the Dominion election which took place on Dec. 17. Meetings were held almost every night by the political candidates, which took large numbers from the local theatres.

The Canadian correspondent extends to all readers of this page a very Merry Christmas and a Happy and Prosperous New Year.

Government enforces drastic film ruling

Some time ago the Saskatchewan Government passed a law that any films shown in that province not bearing the censor's stamp would be confiscated by the government.

However, it appears that the Saskatchewan Government failed to notify the exhibitors of this new law and this omission on their part has caused some difficulties in that territory.

Although the exchange holds permits from the censors, the reels must bear the censor's stamp. In some cases, after the film has been used for a considerable length of time, the film inspectors when making reports omit to see that the stamp is on the reel, cutting it out with the broken footage.

Last week the Government seized several films being shown in Saskatchewan without making an argument before the exchange was able to secure them again.

Immediately the reels were received by the exchange in question, the manager took the matter up with the censor board who advised him that the films cannot be restamped unless they are recensored at the original charge, even though they hold permits for them.

A meeting of the Winnipeg Exchange-men's Association was arranged to amalgamate with the Jamaican Exchange-men's Association to meet in Regina in order that they may take up the matter of censor-stamped reels with the Saskatchewan Government in a body. Other matters of importance will also be taken up at this meeting.

Through the courtesy of the management of the new Allen theatre, Toronto, Ont., Victory Bond salesmen were granted the privilege of selling bonds in the foyer of the theatre after the performance on the closing night of the campaign. The management offered all persons subscribing an opportunity to draw for a double ticket of admission to the theatre, good for three months.

England's Eyes Its Picture Shows

England's special commission to inquire into the physical, social, moral and educational influence of motion pictures with special reference to the young has finished its investigation and made its findings public.

The commission was appointed by the National Council of Public Morals at the behest of a number of persons who desired to clarify the existing position of films being displayed upon the British Isles. The body was headed by the bishop of Birmingham and consisted of several clergymen, educators, representatives of the Incorporated Society of Authors, Playwrights and Composers and various others.

The commission received evidence from all parts of the country and devoted careful attention to the nature and extent of the complaints that had been made against picture exhibitions.

General Condition Good

While numerous recommendations were made which the committee decided would be to the improvement of conditions in toto, none of them were of sufficient importance to affect the whole, were given practically a clean bill of health.

Improvements in the theatres, where the films are exhibited, it was declared, could and should be made. Chief among the changes recommended were better lighting and supervision of the theatres.

As a result of the most radical performers of the Kingdom, who insisted that the motion picture theatres should be abolished; that they were immoral and made for increase in juvenile crime, the commission has this to say:

Abolition Impossible

"The abolition of the picture house, as advocated by some, is impossible, even if it were desirable, and in the judgment of the commission, not desirable." Although tabulating the many faults to be found in the business the commission also, fairly mindedly, recounted the good in it, considered the moving theatres responsible.

"As an offset to the evil for which the pictures may be responsible," a part of the report reads, "is placed the benefit to be derived from keeping the young off the street and their elders from the public houses. Further than this the decrease of street gangists has resulted in no small measure from the popularity of the pictures."

Great National Importance

In refusing to entertain the plea that the theatres be abolished the committee commented upon in its findings that not only is improvement of the industry practical, but of great national importance.

While recognizing the impossibility that all shows should be determined by exclusive regard for children the commissioners felt that care must be taken to protect the public from what would be morally injurious.

They advocated that a much stricter censorship be exercised, and urged that the law should not only include the pictures themselves, but also the posters advertising the shows.

Some Films Injurious

Some connection of the motion pictures with imitative juvenile crime was found to exist, but only to a limited extent. It was suggested that apart from "sex" and "crime" films an injurious effect on young minds is produced by excessive sensationalism and frightfulness.

Great emphasis was urged for special exhibitions for the young and the educational authorities and societies that are interested in the welfare of youth are invited to organize. Plans for the young, the committee points from its investigation are "not commercial propositions," so that if the need is met it must be through the agency of philanthropic effort or by public authority.

Recommend State Censorship

Although they refer in high terms to the existing censorship, the commissioners are of the opinion that for the protection of the young, as well as for the insuring of its continued suitability to the nation, it should have the support and official countenance of the state and therefore advocate a state censorship.

Motion pictures in the United Kingdom continue to increase in popularity so that the present large proportion of the population depends upon this form of amusement for regular recreation. According to the latest statistics there are 4,500 picture houses in the British Isles, with an annual attendance of 1,075,000,000. The average for the entire population is a visit to a picture show once every two weeks.

Book and Feature Come Out Together

The publishers of Varick Varney's novel, "The Girl by the Roadside," to be published as a Bluebird feature, Dec. 31, with Violet Mersereau as star of the screen version, will soon issue a special edition of the novel to conform identically with the moving picture. Stills from the Bluebird production will be used as illustrations and the book-trade will be supplied at about the time the photoplay is shown throughout the country.

Coming Raver Play Provides Nine Roles for Edmund Breese

Edmund Breese, the noted actor, will interpret nine distinct roles in the new mystery play, in which he will be starred shortly by Harry Raver. The picture is now in a picture of filming at the Raver studios in Yonkers, under the direction of Burton King. The title it will bear has not been chosen, but will be announced in a short time.

The parts Edmund Breese will play in the picture are of the "Crook" variety, a type of character this artist portrays faithfully. A cast of popular picture players has been engaged to support Mr. Breese and Alma Hanlon, who are said to be especially well suited to their respective parts.

American Made Films Sought in Australia Says Harold Bolger

Film conditions in Australia, according to Harold Bolger, Goldwyn executive, have surmounted the early setbacks, and are now flourishing. Mr. Bolger is touring the Orient for the Goldwyn corporation but made a thorough investigation of conditions especially in Auckland, New Zealand and Sydney, Australia.

"Both from personal investigation and from conversations with the leading film men of Australia and New Zealand," reports Mr. Bolger, "I have received a most optimistic impression of the state of the market for American films here and the prosperity of theatres and exhibitors."

"Harry Hayward, chairman of the board of directors of the New Zealand Motion Picture company, told me that while English films have a certain 'home folks' appeal, the American product enjoys one advantage that outweighs at this time even the superior workmanship of many of our films in general display. It is the simple fact that the thousands of extra miles that England lies beyond the United States are immeasurable to the uncertainties and difficulties of shipment created by the war."

Dwyer Brothers & Co. Open Branch Office

The Dwyer Bros. & Company, formerly known as the Columbus Theatre Equipment Co., have opened a branch office at 631 Walnut street, Cincinnati, Ohio. A complete line of Simplex Projectors and theatre supplies will be carried in stock to supply theatres in Kentucky and southern Ohio. Arthur H. Fix, well known to the trade in and around Cincinnati, will act as manager.

Plate-Glass Booth in This New Theatre

Kahn & Greenfield's remodeled New Mission Theatre, San Francisco, Cal., which has just recently reopened, now has a seating capacity of three thousand.

One of the interesting innovations is the operating room on the main floor with a large plate glass window in the rear of it, so that the theatre patrons may walk around and view the Simplex projectors in operation from a large rear back of the booth especially designed for this purpose.

J. Clarke Belmont, special western representative of the Canadian Universal Film Co., recently paid a visit to the exhibitors of Vancouver Island. Mr. Belmont reports business conditions rather quiet there just now.

J. K. Fraser of Hedley, B. C., who closed his house under the imposition of the Amusement Tax in British Columbia, has reopened again.

Has Trade Showing in New England

New England exhibitors, according to reports received from Frank G. Hall, from Nathan Gordon, the New England exhibitor and exchanger, have put their stamp of approval upon “Those Who Pay” the Thos. H. Ince seven-part drama recently issued by the U. S. Exhibitors’ Booking Corporation as its second feature.

“Those Who Pay” was presented for the first time in New England at a trade show for the area, and all the exhibitors from New York, Massachusetts, all over the district were present, many coming from Maine, Vermont and New Hampshire to see what the Booking Corporation had to offer as its second picture.

The presentation was under the joint direction of Mr. Gordon, through whose Globe Feature Film Corporation U. S. subjects are being marketed, and A. L. Erghott, the U. S. representative in the New England territory. Arrangements also are under way for another trade showing for “The Belbina,” the third U. S. film, for which there already has been a strong demand in the New England district. Exhibitors were quick to recognize the money-getting qualities of the title of the Sidney Olcott drama and many are preparing to run it during the holidays in the hope of counteracting the anticipated business depression.

M. R. Fink to Show
Buyers “Mother” Film

Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin, of General Enterprises, Inc., announce that following an itinerary which they mapped out, M. R. Fink started last week on a tour of the important states in the interest of “Mother.”

It is planned to hold screenings of the McClure feature in all of the important cities, such as Philadelphia, Washington, Boston, Chicago, etc., at which time territorial buyers of the various sections will be present. All of these gatherings have been pre-arranged by Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin in order that every state right man may have the opportunity of viewing the merits of “Mother” for himself.

Taylor Holmes Doing

Taylor Holmes is in Arizona with his “Ruggles of Red Gap” company, filming the outdoor scenes of the George K. Spoor special. Director Windom completed most of the interiors prior to leaving the Chicago studios. “Ruggles of Red Gap” affords Mr. Holmes an unusual opportunity to assume a characterization for which he is naturally adapted, that of an impressionable English valet in the United States Western country.

With Mr. Holmes are such supporting characters as Lawrence D’Orsay and Frederick Burton, both of whom appeared in the original stage presentation; Lillian Drew and Virginia Valli, Essanay stars.

L-Ko President to Prolong Coast Stay; Shifts in Staff Made

President Julius Stern, of L-Ko comedies, will remain on the Pacific coast for another month to observe the outcome of several plans he has made, in consultation with Director General J. G. Blystone, at the Hollywood studios where L-Kos are produced. There has been a shift of players and directors and we may be brought about by the addition of new stars.

W. S. Frederick will direct Mack Swain, the “Ambrose” comedian, in a series that will bring that character to the screen once a month. Vin Moore, directing Myrtle Sterling, will have Al Forbes as his principal comedian. Gale Henry is being directed by Robert Kerr with Hughie Mack and Bobby Dunn doing the leading male comedy.

Dave Morris, transferred from Nestors, is being supervised in his offerings by Archie Mayo. The female contingent of assisting players and various companies include Babe Emerson, Katheryn Young and Rae Godfrey.

N. Y. EXPOSITION
PLANS PROGRESSING

Plans are well under way, reports indicated, for another motion picture exposition to be held in Grand Central Palace, New York, February 2 to 10 of next year. At a recent meeting of the exposition committee held in the Times building, considerable progress was reported.

A large number of motion picture producing companies have already contracted for space and inquiries have been received from a number of concerns not directly connected with the industry. Among these are creators of gowns, tailors, milliners, toilet article and make-up manufacturers.

Raver Sells Rights to “The Public Defender”

A deal has been consummated by which Harry Raver disposed of the United States and Canadian rights for “The Public Defender” to Renowned Pictures Corp., of 1600 Broadway, New York, who will exploit the Goldman-Harris story in picture form by means of territorial franchises.

A daily showing of the production will be given in the private show rooms of the Renowned organization and a campaign of publicity will be used to assist buyers in creating a demand for theatre bookings.

Raver Completes
New Mystery Story

The final scenes of the new mystery story in course of production by Harry Raver have been photographed and the picture is now ready for the cutting room. The picture is described as a new type of “crook” drama and is said to contain a plot of unusual complications interwoven in a story notable for plenty of action of the rapid fire sort.

Lillian Walker Film
Being Heavily Booked

Grieve and Herz, Chicago, report exceptionally big business on their Lillian Walker picture, “ Lust of the Ages.” The picture ran in all the Lubliner and Trinz houses in Chicago and has just completed an extended run at the Merrill-Milwaukee’s photoplay palace. E. C. Bostick, in writing to Grieve and Herz states: “Lust of the Ages” went over exceptionally big and the comments we receive on the picture are most favorable.

U. S. Exhibitors’ Corp.
Appoints 3 Salesmen

Recent additions to the sales staff of the U. S. Exhibitors’ Booking Corporation are R. S. Clarke, who will supervise the marketing of United States subjects in the New Jersey district, and will make his headquarters in Frank Gersten Exchange, Forty-second street, New York. Harvey E. Gausman, who will take care of the Los Angeles district, and Walter Holton has been given the Mutual Film Corporation, New York office, to join the home office staff.

New Scenario Editor
Heads American Staff

Will Ritchey has been engaged for the American Film Company scenario department at Santa Barbara, and will henceforth be editor-in-chief of the staff. His aids will consist of Charles Turner Daze, James E. Hungerford, Chester Blinn Clapp, Elizabeth Mahoney and Myron M. Stearns. Better stories for better pictures is the order of President Samuel S. Hutchinson of the American.

MARY GARDEN IN THAIS
by Anatole France
Directed by Frank H. Crane
Released throughout North America December 30

Goldwyn has the unusual honor of introducing for the first time to the millions of devotees of the photo-drama this exceptional dramatic artist in a production from a story by one of the foremost figures in the literature of the world. In “Thais” Mary Garden is the thrilling, electric, vital personality of flesh and blood—the daring, sensational, unusual woman who constantly challenges the attention of the world; the artist who is the most-admired genius of our time.

A Prediction:

MARY GARDEN is receiving more publicity, more attention from the critics, more attention from all classes of the public, than any star who has ever been presented in your theatre.

THAIS” is the one production of recent years that is so certain in its box-office appeal as to justify you in playing it for double the time you ever have given any other picture.

Mitchel H. Mark, president, and Harold Edel, managing director of The Strand Theatre, who have as their New Year’s week attraction at one of the world’s greatest amusement institutions, Goldwyn’s remarkable presentation of MARY GARDEN in “THAIS,” make this unusual announcement:

“We know of no picture with which Mary Garden in ‘Thais’ can be compared and we expect to break every attendance record of The Strand with this unrivalled production.”

And Still More:

Ascher Bros., Chicago, telegraph: Mary Garden in “Thais” will prove the greatest attraction ever offered patrons of the screen. It is the most remarkable production of the year and we offer our congratulations.

Stanley V. Mastbaum, of Philadelphia, one of America’s greatest exhibitors, writes: “Thais” is perfect to the smallest detail. Mary Garden and the production are both wonderful. “Thais” is an artistic knock-out.

Yes, This Is Clark

This is Frederick Russell Clark, President of the TITAN PICTURES CORPORATION, producers of "TITAN COMEDIES," and down below are Rex Weber and Jo Swerling. Weber is the director and Swerling is the scenario editor.

You are probably wondering why we are telling you about Clark, Weber and Swerling. Perhaps you miss the pictures of our stars. You may resent the fact that we have the audacity to present this trio to your attention, in view of the fact that they are not principals in the "TITAN COMEDIES."

But they are men who MAKE "TITAN COMEDIES"

CLARK is the man behind the business.

WEBER is the man behind the man behind the camera.

SWERLING is the man behind the script.

These three men are co-operating, contributing their abilities and talents in the production of the best that is in them, because the purpose for which these pictures are made is a great and patriotic one, supplying a fund each week for the American Military Relief Association, and calls for the very best.

Only stars of the highest magnitude are utilized. These stars are given scripts written by a trained newspaper man, directed by a man who has been associated with the best in moving pictures and supervised generally by a business man who is big enough to demand the best there is.

These are the elements which make "TITAN COMEDIES."

The Story of The Imperial German Government's Spies, Plots and Propaganda in the United States

AMERICA'S SERIAL SUPREME

"THE EAGLE'S EYE"

By William J. Flynn
Chief of the United States Secret Service

THE PLOTS, conspiracies and desperate crimes committed here since the beginning of the war by the Imperial German Government's spies, and the work of the United States Secret Service in combating them, has been the subject of more news articles and editorial comment than anything except the great war itself.

This serial, an authentic exposure of plots and crimes of the Imperial German Government's secret agents, founded on official facts, will go before the public with the greatest advance interest ever existing in any attraction, either picture or play.

Everybody has read of this perilous menace and everybody is interested. What interests everybody cannot fail to prove a great attraction on the screen.

It is being produced by The Whartons, the masters of serial production, with a talented company headed by King Baggot and Marguerite Snow. It will tell a powerful dramatic story in TWENTY EPISODES, each complete in itself. It will pack every theatre where it is presented.

THERE will be no delays in carrying out the policy recently announced by the W. H. Clifford Photoplay Company. Twelve five-reel comedy dramas under the trademark of the SHORTY HAMILTON series will be issued with a release of one on the first day of each month beginning January 1st, 1918. Two of the series are now ready for negotiation. The State Rights buyers have been previously advised regarding the first—"Denny from Ireland"—and we would now call attention to the second release—"The Snail"—a Chinese-American story filled with big red-ef-tervescing with opportunities, all of which are taken full advantage of by natural esc.
Perils of Deposit Scheme

With the entire financial structure of the country in an upheaval owing to the existence of unusual conditions incidental to the war, exhibitors who have foolishly acceded to the inequitable and unjust Paramount-Artcraft scheme of advance deposits should stop and consider the situation very carefully.

From reliable sources it is learned that the Paramount-Artcraft combination has collected and now holds more than three million dollars of exhibitors' money in the guise of advance deposits. In normal times this vast sum probably would be reasonably safe in the keeping of the film company, but under existing conditions exhibitors are submitting to a great hazard in allowing Paramount-Artcraft to retain this sum of money without advancing any security for it.

No one credits the statement that Paramount-Artcraft keeps this sum of money locked up in banks in order that they may be able to return it to exhibitors at any time. On the other hand, it is commonly believed that the film company uses this money in the general financing of its business and should a severe financial stringency be brought on by the war it is not beyond reason to believe that the exhibitors of the country would be struck by the disastrous blow of the loss of the three million dollars in question, or the greater part of it.

In practically every state in the Union there are laws prohibiting a company accepting moneys for deposit unless the company is chartered to do a banking business. The obvious reason for this is the protection of the deposits by compelling the company to operate and invest its funds according to definite restrictions and limitations.

The Paramount-Artcraft combination with its three million dollars of exhibitors' money on deposit presents a genuine problem.

Reforms for 1918

Unless negotiations encounter inordinate and unexpected delays, the coming year will see a number of distributing combinations that should be greatly beneficial to the industry at large.

Owing to a multitude of reasons, the film business up to the present time has been characterized with a great deal of lost motion. Much of this can be rightfully attributed to the fact that it being a new business there could not be avoided experimentation in methods.

But the time has arrived for a reduction in the cost of doing business all along the line. By far the greatest part of this reduction can be accomplished in the distribution of film. Fewer offices should be made to serve larger territories. Longer runs should be obtained by proper per-day reductions in rental charges to exhibitors. More assistance should be given the exhibitor in “putting over” his pictures.

Nineteen-eighteen will be a banner year in the history of the industry and will mark the turning-point to a business, a greater stability and more uniform profit if it succeeds in the accomplishment of the necessary reforms in distribution.

Music Combine Fails

One of the most high-handed attempts which has appeared during the past year to place an unwarranted financial burden on the shoulders of exhibitors is the effort of the music publishers' combine to enforce a per-seat tax on all theatres that used music copyrighted by these publishers.

This effort of the music combine is an indication of the injustices that exhibitors may expect to be subjected to unless at the outset there is a determined stand taken against any and all attempts to enforce inequitable conditions.
Fortunately, the attempt of the music publishers to become overlords of the picture theatres of the country is destined to early failure because of the fact that there is a great deal of good music available without the taxation provision and because many of the biggest and most reputable music publishers have repudiated the combine and are willing to meet the exhibitor half way.

The music combine if it was allowed to gather strength gradually would eventually develop into a great menace, but as the situation now stands with the intelligent exhibitors of the country not using the "non-taxable" music and closing their doors to the advances of the publishers in the combine it is evident that the high-handed effort of certain publishers to tax every theatre in the country on a per-seat basis will go down to failure.

The music publishers who have refused to enter the combine have shown a splendid good-will toward the motion picture exhibitor which should be appreciated widely.

Laemmle's Bomb-Shell

Carl Laemmle and his associates in the Universal Film Manufacturing Company have a habit of expressing themselves in a most direct and forcible manner when the occasion requires it. The authorized interview with Mr. Laemmle printed on another page of this week's issue is along this line and certainly answers to the description of a bomb-shell.

Mr. Laemmle's statement does one thing at least: it starts the movement to drop the senseless talk of fabulous profits which up to date has characterized the infant stage of the industry. Another and more concrete result which the statement should accomplish is that it should impress exhibitors everywhere with the absolute necessity of obtaining more money from the public via the box office.

One fact which exhibitors should keep constantly in mind is that all the money coming into the industry comes in through the theatre box office. The public now has been educated to expect a better type of amusement than they have been paying for. The obvious and necessary conclusion is that they should be compelled to pay more.

Martin J. Quigley.

Fate of Industry Lies in Hands of Exhibitors

Carl Laemmle, in Sensational Interview, Insists That Only Way to Avert Financial Ruins Through Increasing Admission Price to Public

(In the following sensational interview with Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, the future welfare of the motion picture industry is put squarely up to the exhibitor. Mr. Laemmle in his statement makes it very plain that his company, together with many others, must obtain increased rentals from exhibitors who in turn must exact a greater revenue from the public. The president of the Universal frankly admits that his company has been unable to pay a dividend during the past year because of the low rental fees which it has been compelled to accept from exhibitors. The Laemmle statement is a powerful argument for increased box office charges, and as such should receive serious consideration from all exhibitors—EDITOR.)

Charging that producers by a hypocritical stand as regards the financial condition of their various enterprises has dragged the industry to the edge of an abyss over which the whole business must plunge to disaster unless radical steps are taken, Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal Film Co., has placed the blame squarely on the exhibitors who increase his admission prices and pay more for his film service.

In an interview which, though based in the name of an important financial condition of the Universal company, indicts all the producing companies, Mr. Laemmle declared that the producing end of the industry has arrived at a point where it must receive higher rentals for its product or “we can all get ready for the damndest crash that ever resounded in any industry in the history of the world.”

No Dividends Paid

That the stockholders of the Universal company have not been paid a dividend, either on the preferred or common stock, for a year.

That on every positive reel of short stuff shipped in a recent six months period the company sustained a loss of $3.08 per reel.

That the company now has on its shelves $71,000 feet of good negatives one, two and three reels in length valued at close to a million dollars which it cannot market except at a loss.

That a single theatre such as the Strand or Rialto, New York, pays its stockholders more cash dividends than a world-wide producing and distributing corporation such as the Universal.

Take False Stand

Mr. Laemmle stated that the picture companies have a deadly fear of being considered anything but the richest company in their line of business.

“All companies and theatre men are playing to the public (including the exhibitors, too) that we have the fattest bank-roll imaginable, and that nothing short of an earthquake can shake our foundations,” said Mr. Laemmle. “On the theory that nothing succeeds like success, we have deliberately let the public think that the moving picture business is a gold mine.

“We have all concealed our failures and our losses, but have made a great noise about our successes. Our press men tell us all about the pictures that net a profit of $100,000 or $1,000,000, but they are never allowed to print a word about the many pictures that net us as great a loss or greater one.

The people love to hear about success, even though it is not their own. They don’t like to hear about failures, because they are not so interesting to talk about.

“Before this success stuff, after they have contracted mental indigestion eating up stories about the making of millions, the public thinks that this is merely a theory, they believe to be wallowing in wealth. They soar. And finally they build up an envious hatred of the supposed plutocrats.

Public Must Pay

“I seriously and solemnly venture the prediction that all of us—the producers, the distributors and the exhibitors—will become ripe for the picking unless all of us get more money from the only source it is possible to get it from—the public.

“The fate of the moving picture business has been in the hands of the producers in past years. But today it is in the hands of the exhibitors. If they get more money, they can pay more money for their goods, we can all pull through. If they don’t arouse themselves to this imperative necessity, we can all get ready for the damndest crash that ever resounded in any industry in the land.

“I am not squeaking. I am not misrepresenting. I am stating some plain truths which should have been published long ago. I have always been an optimist in this business. And the picture of conditions which I have painted is not a pessimistic one. On the contrary, conditions are, if anything, a whole lot worse than I have said.

Close to Disaster

“Today the moving picture industry is closer to disaster than it has been in the past ten years. It needs and must have an operation that will either kill or cure completely. Raising all admission prices is the operation that will accomplish that, if we are not already very sick or else put it on its feet.

“And let’s handle it without gloves. Don’t tell the people that the war taxes are the only cause of your advanced prices. They are only one of many causes. Tell them the plain truth—that with expenses increased all along the line, as a result of which you’ve got to get more or quit. Then they can’t accuse you of profiteering on the war tax or anything else.

From this point on President Laemmle confined his statements to the condition of the Universal company. He said that in his belief the element of waste is lower in the Universal than in any company in the business. He cited the fact that the officers of the company have purposely paid themselves much smaller salaries than the usual run of salaries paid to producing company executives.

Development Absorbs Profits

“In spite of the elimination of waste and extravagance,” he continued, “our expenses have constantly advanced so close to our gross income that we have not paid a cent of dividends in a year.

“True, we have made money. Our book shows very large figures of big profits, but unfortunately they are all on paper or else they are in the form of studies, negatives or equipment. We have paid for these out of earnings and we have remitted them to our bank roll when we could turn earnings into dividends instead of equipment. But it hasn’t. And probably it won’t, because every time we seem just ready to reach a dividend-paying basis, some new development comes along which compels us to re-invest, and re-invest terrific sums either in negatives or new exchanges or new markets or something else unforeseen.

“We have been asked why we discontinued our one, two and three-reel program pictures. The answer is interesting: An audit of our books shows that in a recent 6-months period we lost $3,080 on one, two and three-reel pictures shipped from our plant—not on every negative reel but on every positive. And in that period we shipped 24,810 such reels.

Eighteen Months’ Loss

“This has been going on for eighteen months, but every time we even hinted that we might discontinue the short stuff, we received pleading letters from exhibitors, urging us to stand by the little exhibitor, who needed the short stuff in his business. So we stuck to it and took our loss, thinking that we could turn the loss into a profit by getting the exhibitors to pay us a little more money for the short pictures. But instead of paying more they paid less and less and less, hammering the price down and down until we finally had to quit releasing short stuff altogether, with the exception of serials, weeklies and others.

“Mr. Stanley Mastbaum has proposed an amalgamation as a remedy for existing evils. That may be possible but I doubt it. Experience has shown me that every time there is a merger in the film business, new companies spring up and re-create the same bad business.

Chicago Council Committee Takes More Time to Decide License Fee

Aldermanic Body Has Under Consideration Increased Rates For Both Theatres and Film Exchanges—Will Visit Latter

More time needed to study three plans for the licensing of theatres prepared by Deputy City Collector George H. Lohman and the appointment of a subcommittee to conduct an investigation of Chicago's film exchanges has caused additional delay in the city's attempt to foment new license rates. The license committee's action last week assures the theatre owners that there will be no change in the amount of the license paid the city before the first of July, 1918.

Both exhibitors and exchange men were not being heard when, after much difficulty, enough members of the committee were found to make a quorum. The theatre owners were given no opportunity to talk as the time of the committee was devoted to hearing the various plans of licensing compiled by Mr. Lohman.

Mr. Lohman stated that there were in Chicago 393 legitimate motion picture theaters who paid into the city an annual revenue of $77,573. He said the "legitimate" he meant theaters devoted exclusively to pictures and at which no vaudeville acts were staged.

Have Necessary Information

It is the opinion of the various aldermen that they were in possession of all the information they could obtain from the exhibitors and they voted to consider the three plans to arrive at an equitable charge.

The three plans to be considered by the aldermanic body are a flat charge of 50 cents a seat suggested by Alderman Woodhull; a rate of 40 cents a seat suggested by Alderman Horne and a scale advanced by Alderman Bowler, which fixes rates of $125, $150 or $175 a year for houses of 300 seat capacity, with an additional $35 for each 100 seats above the minimum.

It was not decided at the meeting whether another public hearing would be held and this was left subject to the decision of the chair, although Alderman Woodhull expressed the opinion that it would be no more than fair when the body had arrived at a figure to call in the exhibitors and get their viewpoint.

Exchange Licenses Discussed

In the matter of fixing the license rate of film exchanges the committee discussed various methods. Among those suggested was basing the fee on the linear feet of film stored by the exchanges; upon the number of vaults used and upon the cubic feet of vault space.

I. Van Ronkel, representing the Universal Film Chicago exchange, told the aldermen that his company, in anticipation of future expansion of business, had built six vaults, whereas the present needs only called for use of three of these. He said that he did not believe it would be fair to tax the Universal for all six. He suggested that the committee make a sliding scale for exchange ranging to $100 as the maximum per exchange.

Drive Out Exchange

"I think the charge should be $100 per vault," said Alderman Krumdick.

"It would drive all the exchanges to Kenosha or Milwaukee," retorted Van Ronkel.

Alderman Bowler then suggested that a subcommittee be appointed to visit the various exchanges about the city and obtain information to be conveyed to the committee for its use in arriving at the license rate. Alderman Toman, chairman of the committee, appointed Aldermen Woodhull, Novak and Krumdick as members of the subcommittee and they will visit the exchanges and report at the next meeting of the committee.

Chaplin Aid Meets Death in Auto Accident at Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Cal.—Eric Campbell, the film actor, who has appeared opposite Charles Chaplin in his various comedies, was killed in an automobile accident here on December 20. Jean Crosby, a motion picture actress, and Harold Schneider, a scenario writer, who were with Campbell, were also injured.

Mr. Campbell, who was driving his own car, ran into a machine being driven by W. A. Hollebeck. Mr. Hollebeck suffered a broken leg, but assisted in extricating Campbell's body from beneath his machine.

Eric Campbell was born in Dunoon, Scotland, and was educated at Victoria University, England. He appeared upon the speaking stage under the D'Oyley Carte's Opera Company, Oliver Morosco and Klaw & Erlanger banners. He made two pictures of his own for the London Film Company and appeared in "The Floorwalker," "The Fireman," "The Vagabond," "The Count," "The Immigrant," "Easy Street" and other Chaplin successes. He was six feet four inches in height, and weighed 296 pounds.

Mr. Campbell leaves a wife in San Francisco, who is the sister of Mrs. William Corey, wife of the steel magnate.

Committee Sent to Washington, in Report, Holds Out Hope for Speedy Revision of War Tax on Tickets

Speculation as to the outcome of the activities of the Amalgamation committee, formed at the Allied Exhibitors' Convention in Washington, Dec. 12-13, was rife at the meeting of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners' Association, Chicago branch of the American Exhibitors' Association, last week.

The resolution under which the committee came into being, provided in part that "the near future may see one large, harmonious, united organization of motion picture exhibitors in the United States, her provinces and Canada."

Louis H. Frank, treasurer of the local chapter, and chairman of the Chicago delegation to the Washington convention, explained in response to questions, that he did not know what might be accomplished.

Meeting Not Scheduled

"The committee has not yet met," said Mr. Frank, "and I have no idea when it will. But I want to say this much about the convention: I never attended a finer meeting in my life and cannot speak too highly of the harmony which prevailed."

"At no time was either the A. E. A. nor the M. P. E. L. mentioned. The members of the old league in their every action championed and stood for what we, of the new organization, have fought for."

The resolutions passed at the convention were read to the members present by the secretary. Mr. Frank, in explaining one of the resolutions in which section 1007 was referred to, said that this section was the one dealing with the 15 cents per reel tax. He stated that the legislative committee had been instructed to ask Congress to make a definite decision as to who was to pay the tax.

Ruling on Reel Tax

"The committee will ask," said Mr. Frank, "if Congress should decide that it should be passed along to the exhibitor to have it abolished in its entirety."

He held out hope that some revision of the tax would be made. Members of the Ways and Means Committee of both the House and Senate, he said, were very attentive and seemed surprised that the measure had worked the hardships shown apparent by the schedules compiled by the various exhibitors.

While Congress has adjourned until the third of January, the speaker told the members that he had been assured by the congressmen that early action would be taken upon the tax on motion picture theatres. Congress, he said, was informed that two more months of the present tax would drive 20 per cent of the exhibitors of the United States out of business.

Tax Revisions Sought

The legislative committee will endeavor to get the tax on the five and ten cent tickets removed entirely and reduced to one cent on the fifteen cent tickets. Failing in this, it will recommend that the tax on admissions for children under 12 years of age be reduced and that a tax of one cent be put on all five cent tickets.

"In Washington, prominent in the discussions was a class of exhibitors termed 'slackers,'" said Mr. Frank.

"Upon inquiry I found that these were the men who had reduced the price of admission to their theatres to five cents to avoid the tax. It was the consensus of opinion that the tax should be removed on children's admissions, and the one cent tax be put on all five cent tickets in order to get the 'slackers.'"

E. T. Beauty, also a member of the Chicago delegation to Washington, told the exhibitors that they might in the near future face the problem of shutting down for three days a week in the interests of coal conservation. This information, he said, he had received from Fuel Administrator Williams for the Chicago district. There was also some talk of this measure in Washington, it was said.

Committee on Lights

A committee was appointed to call on the Commonwealth Edison Company to obtain, if possible, a reduction in the amount charged in the lighting contracts of the exhibitors, because of the two "lightless nights" imposed each week.

A committee was also appointed to wait upon a member of the organization who, it is said, has failed to comply with the terms of a certain action taken by the exhibitors against a local film exchange. It was told that unless he agreed to work in harmony with the organization he would be dropped from membership.

Hold Special Meeting

Manhattan Local No. 1, of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, will hold a special meeting Thursday, December 27, at 11 a. m., 215 West 42nd Street, New York city, for the purpose of electing officers for ensuing year.

‘Lightless’ Sundays

There is little likelihood that the United States Fuel Administration will rescind its order for "lightless" Sundays. There is a good probability that it will be continued for a little longer as the result of negotiations with the exhibitors.

"Jack Spurlock—Prodigal," is to be filmed by the Fox Film Corporation. The story, upon which the picture will be based, was written by George Horace Lorimer, editor of the Saturday Evening Post and ran as a serial in that periodical.

Coupled with the announcement from the Fox company that it will spend $750,000 on a picture and that the largest amount of money ever paid for a similar privilege in obtaining the story, comes a statement that the production, when completed, will be distributed as a part of the regular Fox weekly Special Features and not as an "extra."

"Notwithstanding the extraordinary prestige linked with 'Jack Spurlock—Prodigal,' and its distinguished author," said General Manager Sheehan, "the picture will be released as one of the regular features, not as an 'extra' even though it undoubtedly carries the punch entitling it to be classed in the so-called de luxe category."

The cast for the production has not as yet been selected.

William A. Brady Lauds Exposition; Strong Asset of Picture Industry

William A. Brady, president of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, in a recent interview concerning the Motion Picture Exposition in Grand Central Palace, New York, next February, stated that there are so many good reasons why the progressive producer of films and motion picture equipment will find it advantageous to exhibit at the exposition that the point is scarcely worth while arguing.

"Of course there are those who will attempt to tell you that exhibiting is not worth the effort—not worth the cost of floor space," said Mr. Brady. "They are the same ones who seem to think that cheap actors are as good as real artists—the same ones who will not engage a high-priced star for fear it will not pay. Let the skeptical ones get it into their heads that in taking space they are not merely renting so much space as they might in a storage warehouse—no—they are securing space and also the privilege to display their goods to thousands of interested motion picture exhibitors.

Restrained by Mark

Using Name "Strand"

Court Decides 125th Street House Cannot Profit by Other Extensive Advertising

The appellate division of the Supreme Court of New York granted an injunction last Friday to Mitchell H. Mark, president of the Mitchell H. Mark Realty Corporation, owner of the Strand Theatre at Broadway and Forty-seventh street, restraining the use of that name by another theatre on 125th street known as the Harlem Strand. In the opinion of the court it was cited that thousands of dollars had been spent in advertising the name of the theatre and that the defendants had failed to justify or explain the adoption of a name so closely resembling that of the plaintiff.

"The obvious effect of their use of such a name," the opinion concludes, "is to create the impression that it is conducting a branch of the plaintiff's theatre or is in some way connected therewith, and as their unlawful assumption of the name in question was had with full knowledge of the plaintiff's claims and rights, we think a case was made out for the issuance of an injunction during the pendency of the action."

S. W. Hand Elected on Cincinnati Board

At the last meeting of the Associated Film Exchanges of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce, Stanley W. Hand, manager of the local office of the World Film Corporation, was elected chairman of the board of control.

Mr. Hand has been associated with the World Film Corporation for the last three years in New York and Boston, and was only recently transferred to the management of the Cincinnati office.

FATE OF INDUSTRY

"I think a better suggestion is a national fight for more money from the public. The theatres at present are giving their patrons better pictures, better music, better surroundings, better everything—but the advance in admission prices has been ridiculously low. In Russia, I am informed, the picture theatres charge as high as a dollar. In Germany, in England and in many other countries the admission prices are anywhere from two to four times as much as the average American admission price.

Exhibitors Must Act

"I know that many will say it can't be done. You don't know the public. My territory is different. I've tried and couldn't put it over. My answer is that it must be done; that I do know the public as well as any man in the business; that your territory is not any different from other territories in principle; and that if you've tried and failed, you'll have to keep on trying until you put it over.

"One theatre such as the Rialto or Strand in New York pays its stockholders more cash dividends than a worldwide producing and distributing corporation such as the Universal. This would be funny if it were not so serious. Imagine it! A tremendous organization, with offices in every part of the civilized world, with seventy exchanges in America alone, employing thousands of people, releasing between one and two million feet of positive reels of pictures every week; an organization with an almost unbelievably huge income, is operating on such a close margin that it cannot pay as much in dividends as one single local theatre.

"While I have no right to speak for any other concern than the Universal, I feel convinced that the same condition which I have described applies to nearly every producing concern in the business to a greater or less degree.

"We have all kept a stiff upper lip and made a monumental bluff at boundless prosperity. By a foolish silence, and a cowardly fear we have permitted the whole world to believe that all of us were miesiąng money as in a mint."

N. A. M. P. I. Plans National Drive On War Tax 'Scare

Educational Campaign to Stimulate Theatre Attendance Will Be Begun

Plans for an educational campaign, nation-wide in scope, urging the public to attend motion picture theatres and in this way "do their bit" toward paying the war tax, were enthusiastically received at the quarterly meeting of the board of directors of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry held Dec. 14, in the Times building, New York.

In addition to unanimously approving the plan which was suggested by Executive Secretary Frederick H. Elliott, the directors, by resolution, extended their thanks to William R. Heard and his syndicate of papers for the offer to furnish and assist in the distribution of a million copies of a heroic entitled, "Who Pays the War Tax, You do?"

The report on the Motion Picture Exposition which is to be held under the joint auspices of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America and the National Association showed that progress has been made in obtaining contracts, although solicitation has been under way but a few weeks. Two floors of the Grand Central Palace have been leased and practically two-thirds of the main floor space has been disposed.

The meeting was presided over by President William A. Brady and the following were present: Arthur S. Friend, Paramount Pictures Corporation; William L. Sherill, Frohmam Amusement Corporation; Louis, F. Blumenthal, Lee Ochs, Ernest Horstmann, Alfred S. Black, Louis L. Levine, F. S. Eagers, Joseph Powers, Universal Film Manufacturing Company; Walter W. Irwin, Greater Vitagraph Company; Paul Gulick, Universal Film Manufacturing Company; Thomas Wiley, General Division; Gabriel L. Hess, Goldwyn Pictures Corporation; Joseph F. Cofoul, Novelty Slide Company; and C. C. Bur, Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

The exhibitor directors from out of the city came to New York to attend the meeting at the close of the convention held in Washington on the preceding day. Various reports of committees were presented and acted upon and many routine matters were considered. Several of which were referred to special committees for attention.

Standard Film Corp.

Buys "The Bargain"

Phil L. Ryan, sales manager for the Standard Film Corporation, has just completed negotiations with the W. H. Productions Co., of New York, for the purchase of the state-rights feature, "The Bargain," the production of the Motion Pictures of Thomas H. Ince and starring Win. S. Hart. The standard corporation also purchased and is exploiting fifteen features, the negatives of which are controlled by the W. H. Productions Co.

General Enterprises Inc. to Widen Scope; to Produce as Well as Sell Features

Successful Sales Campaign of Messrs Lubin and Sawyer on "The Warrior" Completed—Petrova and Cabanne Signed

Arthur H. Sawyer and Herbert Lubin, heads of General Enterprises, Inc., who have recently completed a most successful sales campaign in the interests of "The Warrior," announce that their plans for the new year embrace continued activity in the field of state rights, together with a widening of their present arrangements to include the production of special features during the year 1918. Herbert Lubin, who negotiated the contract between Madame Petrova and Superpictures, Inc., has consummated arrangements whereby William Christy Cabanne, author and producer of "The Slacker" and "Draft 258," will head Cabanne Superpictures, Inc., in the production plans of which Mr. Lubin will take a prominent part. This new organization is now being formed and work on the first production will start early in January.

The next film spectacle to be exploited by General Enterprises, Inc., as a successor to "The Warrior" will be seven reels in length and will offer as a star one of the leading female screen players at present in high public favor. The theme of the story, which is said to be particularly timely, bears the stamp of a well-known feature producer, is intended to fulfill the demands of state right buyers.

In addition to the plans outlined above, the McClure production "Mother" is at present being successfully exploited by Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin. They have also acquired the rights to "Brides," a six-part society melodrama, starring the former Universal favorite, Jane Gail, and directed by William Haddock.

The present offices of General Enterprises, Inc., at 1476 Broadway, New York, will be enlarged to care for the increased scope of the firm's activities during the coming year. It is planned to install a complete projection suite, wherein the various territorial purchasers may view the state rights offerings of the company.

HERBERT BRENON'S BROTHER-IN-LAW DIES IN ACCIDENT

George W. Oberg, brother-in-law of Herbert Brenon, the producer, and an ensign in the Naval Auxiliary Service, was drowned in Baltimore on December 16. While on duty at the water front he slipped on an icy pier and fell into the water.

Ensign Oberg was 31 years old and enlisted on October 29 last, in New York. He was a brother of Mrs. Herbert Brenon who, before her marriage to the film producer, was Miss Helen Oberg.
“The Eagle’s Eye” Wharton Serial Exposes German Espionage System

Will Appear on Screen in Twenty Episodes—Based on Story
by Wm. J. Flynn, Chief U. S. Secret Service

The new serial, “The Eagle’s Eye,” founded on the story of William J. Flynn, Chief of the United States Secret Service, in which he exposes the plots and evil machinations of the Imperial German spy system in this country, is being rapidly produced by the Whartons. The first episodes will soon be ready for publication.

This production will be made in record time for so large a proposition. It will be presented in twenty episodes. While work is being conducted on several episodes simultaneously at the Thotha studio, sub-directors and camera men are taking interiors and locations in Washington, New York and other cities where the Imperial German spy army was most active in the development of its conspiracies.

Each episode will be complete in itself, so far as the exposure of an individual plot is concerned, but the entire serial will be interwoven with an intensely dramatic story, which would prove a great attraction in itself irrespective of the sensational incidents that Chief Flynn introduced and in which wide public interest exists.

King Baggot and Marguerite Snow play the leading roles. The cast of characters includes impersonations of the leaders of the Kaiser’s spy army, among them Count von Bernstein, Captains Franz von Papen and Karl Boy-Ed, Dr. Heinrich Alber, Wolf von Igel and Madame Augusta Stephan. These parts will be played by Bertram Marburg, Paul Everton, John Wade, Frederick Jones, William Bailey and Florence Shaw.

In the twenty episodes Chief Flynn will picture the incidents of twenty great conspiracies set on foot by the Imperial German spies to compromise this Government and to hamper the Allies in their fight against Germany. Little was published about them at the time they were discovered and frustrated. Many of the most important incidents in the investigation of the Secret Service, which will be made known in this serial, have never been mentioned at all in the public press.

Demand for Space
at N. Y. Exposition to Be Held Feb. 2-9

Progress has been made during the past fortnight in securing contracts for space allotment for the Motion Picture Exposition in Grand Central Palace, New York, February 2 to 9. The exposition will be held under the joint auspices of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry and the Motion Picture Exhibitors’ League of America, and will occupy three entire floors.

Twenty-two companies already have taken space and negotiations are pending with one hundred others. Contracts signed thus far are for larger individual spaces than has been the case at any similar exposition of the past and all of the present entrants plan to make large and attractive displays. The plans for the show are not based upon precedent, but will embrace many new ideas in promoting an exposition to draw the public in great numbers.

Among the largest companies exhibiting are the famous Players-Lasky Corporation, Artcraft Pictures Corporation, Paramount Pictures Corporation, Metro Pictures Corporation, Pathe Exchange, Inc., Goldwyn Picture Corporation, Vitaphone Co., of America, Fox Film Corporation, Universal Film Mfg. Co., World Film Corporation, Frohman Amusement Corporation, Wharton Releasing Corporation, and Triangle Film Corporation.

Completed Filming
"Third Floor Back"

Herbert Brenon has taken the last scenes for his forthcoming production, "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," upon which he has been working for over two months, and already the old acts have been torn down and his staff of workmen have begun to build for the next picture.

The first public showing of "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" will take place in January. The publication date is announced for February. Sir Johnstone Forbes-Robertson, the English actor, who came to this country to play a leading role in the production has already taken his departure for England. He completed his portrayal of the role of the stranger about two weeks ago.

Since that time Mr. Brenon has been filming the scenes in which Sir Johnstone does not appear.

Child Star Host to Waifs

Since the completion of "Sadie Goes to Heaven," Mary McAlister, Essanay’s child actress, devoted all her time and that of her mother to preparations for her big Christmas day event, which afforded holiday festivities for some 1,500 children of the Chicago slums. Little Mary was given free passage of the Compelia theatre, Chicago, on Christmas morning and was hostess to orphans from all over Chicago, showing them her newest pictures and candy out into the audience. She also delivered a speech, telling her guests how pictures are made.
ALLEN FILM CORPORATION OBTAINS RIGHTS IN FIVE MORE STATES FOR "MOTHER" PLAY

Through negotiations consummated last week, James R. Grainger, president of the Allen Film Corporation, obtained for his company from Herbert Lubin of General Enterprises, Inc., state rights to the "Mother" film, starring Elizabeth Risdon, for Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri and Arkansas. The Allen company had previously purchased rights to the George Loane Tucker production for Illinois, Michigan, Iowa and Nebraska.

Mr. Grainger stated that he was largely influenced in purchasing the additional territory through learning that the picture had been booked by S. L. Rothapfel, managing director of the Rialto Theatre, New York, and soon to open the new Rivoli Theatre in the same city. "Mother" will be shown in both playhouses the latter part of January or early in February.

"The Warrior," the comedy drama starring the giant Maciste, has been newly subtitled by Jack Lait. This production, state rights of which are owned by the Allen Film Corporation, in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, will be shown in the chain of Lubliner and Trinz theatres in Chicago shortly after the first of the year.

James Hobart Hutchinson, eldest son of Samuel S. Hutchinson, president of the American Film Company, Inc., of Chicago, who is enlisted with the First Company Military Police, 310 Train, 35th Division, at Camp Custer, Mich., was that subject of this item.

Mr. Hutchinson, who was a student of Armour's Technical Institute, enlisted on the day that he was twenty-one, which was early in December. He chose the Military Police because of his love of horsemanship, in which he excels, became a private, and hopes to win a commission.

In a letter of endorsement, he wrote that the picture excited unusual interest among his patrons and despite the inclement weather he had record attendance during the run of the film. "I would like to have more pictures like "The Warrior," for my theatre" is the concluding sentence of his letter.

Cleveland M. P. Men Sever Connection With National Body

Repudiation of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry was one of the first actions taken by the Cleveland branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League at a meeting following the return of that body's representatives from the Washington conference. This step was embodied in a resolution which was passed unanimously.

The reasons, as set forth in the resolution, for the break are: The absolutely unfriendly attitude of the eleven producing members of that body against their fellow exhibitor members regarding the imposition of the 15-cent per reel footage tax, contrary to the constitution of the N. A. M. P. I.

Their attitude at the trial at Cleveland before Judge Phillips, in blocking all attempts to clarify the situation regarding said tax.

Their attitude of silent contempt shown by their absence from the Washington convention the week of December 10, 1917, to which they had been invited by President Lee A. Ochs, with a view to bringing about a harmonious arrangement between the various branches of the motion picture industry, regarding the footage tax, and other forms of taxation.

Their attitude in instigating criminal proceedings against their fellow exhibitor members in Brooklyn, who acted solely in defense of their rights as exhibitors.

WHO SENT IT?
Julian Eltinge, the noted delineator of female roles, has a hobby for collecting famous men's shoes. He has in his possession the shoes that John L. Sullivan wore in his last fight with Jim Corbett; Corbett's footgear worn in his battle with Fitzsimmons, and a pair of boots that formerly graced the feet of the late King Edward.

Some days ago, however, he opened a package addressed: "Julian Eltinge. Somewhere in the West," which contained a dainty little number two shoe with a card reading: "From an ardent admirer." Now Mr. Eltinge swears he intends to find the owner of the dainty boot. As he is still a benedict, young and fairly good looking—well, who knows?

Robertson-Cole Co.
Reports Brisk Sales of U. S. Corp. Films

Notwithstanding slack conditions in the foreign film market, Miss Edna Williams, special representative of the Robertson-Cole Co., of New York and London, which has acquired the foreign distributing rights to the productions of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, has encountered little difficulty, it is said, in disposing of the subjects thus far put on the market by the booking concern. By the arrangement between the U. S. Corporation and the Robertson-Cole Company the booking concern has been brought into direct touch with exhibitors and distributors in all parts of the world, and during the past week a number of important sales were negotiated.

Exhibition rights to the Thomas H. Ince spectacle, "The Zeppelin's Last Raid," have been sold for Japan, China, India, Burma, Ceylon, Dutch East Indies, Philippines and Hawaii.

Rights to "The Zeppelin's Last Raid," "Those Who Pay," and "The Belgian," the three first features of the U. S. Corporation, have been disposed of for Chile, Peru, Bolivia and Ecuador, and arrangements have also been made with the purchasers to take the entire output of the booking concern.

Theatre Display Advertising a Big Factor in South America as Well as in U. S. A.

American exhibitors who have only a vague idea of the manner in which theatre managers in other countries handle productions, or who have been led to believe that the art of obtaining publicity is understood only in the United States, will be interested in the photographs printed herewith the Fox Film Corporation received from its branch in South America. These indicate very conclusively that advertising is just as much a factor in successful theatre management in the southern hemisphere as in any other part of the world.

The striking photographs show the Cinema Pathe in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, at the time the theatre was showing "The Beast," starring George Walsh and Anna Luther, and "The Love Thief." The theatre has a three-story front and most of this is covered with lithographs and painted signs on which the name of the production featured stands out prominently. It is repeated so often that there is no possibility of anyone who comes within view of the building forming any misconception regarding what the attraction is.

The display is arranged to catch the eyes both of persons passing along the sidewalk in front of the theatre and those who may see the building from a distance. Stills from the productions and, in the case of George Walsh, the name of the star, also are displayed. And, as indicative of what the source of production means to theatre patrons in Rio de Janeiro, over the advertising runs the announcement: "These are Fox films."

"Ladron de Amor" and "George Walsh" and "Brutalidade" are given ample display, but it is worth while also, even in far-away Brazil, that the public be assured in large lettering of the fact that there is a sterling mark on the silver which the Cinema Pathe offers. Production, plus star, plus producer, plus theatre, that is the order of values as fixed by the management of this successful house. The photographs incidentally illustrate the manner in which William Fox pictures are taking hold in a territory that this American producer has invaded only within the last twelve months.

INDUSTRIAL FILMS TO BE EXPLOITED BY UNITY PHOTOPLAYS

Pictures Showing Process of Manufacture Made by Kansas City Man—Have 20,000 Feet

America's industrial resources, together with an interesting depiction of the processes through which various articles are put in the course of their manufacture, is contained in twenty thousand feet of film recently purchased by Unity Photoplays Company, Chicago. These will be distributed on the same basis as the Rex Beach travel pictures.

The film was made by a Kansas City man in the course of his investigations of the country's industrial resources and under conditions which made it possible to show many hitherto unknown aspects of manufacture in certain lines.

Though the film was made primarily for the purpose of refreshing his memory in the preparation of his report, it holds one's interest, it is said, for the reason that it gives details impossible of reduction to words and presents a graphic picture of the varied activities of the country's manufacturers.

The film is being reassembled into 1,000-foot subjects and will be issued one reel each week under a contract similar to the one used for the Beach pictures in Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin.

The Loop Film Mystery

"A horse, a horse, my kingdom for a horse!"

This cry rose above the din and roar of traffic in State street last Friday and was found to emanate from the office of Manager Moore of the Orpheum theatre. Over in Clark street at the Boston theatre, Manager Miller prayed for bicycles.

Patrons who were fortunate enough to escape being trampled to death by hysterical messenger boys hugging tin film cases to their breasts in a death grip, once inside the theatre found themselves confronted with the old familiar sign on the screen: "Just a moment please..."

Wounded, identified with the industry in the early days, rubbed their eyes and recalled the time when "bicycling" films was in vogue.

And as the title Flicked through the darkened mantle over the city and the last police ambulance had carried away the last exhausted messenger boy, the mystery was cleared up. Both the Orpheum and the Boston had booked the Metro film "Red Whites and Blues" for the same day and there was only one print in town. Simple, eh, my dear Watson, when you are on the inside?

Ouida Bergere Opens New Service Office

An independent organization designed to grapple with and overcome problems in the production of film plays has been organized in New York by Miss Ouida Bergere. A long time lease has been executed for offices at 516 Fifth avenue, New York, and London affiliations have been obtained. care of Hughes Massie, 40 Fleet street, as well as in Los Angeles, Cal., through the Mabel Condon exchange.

Some of the activities planned by Miss Bergere include the supplying of lists of available plays, directors, writers, and supporting talent, scenario editing, continuity writers to producers; screen tests of new talent; aid to directors in casting productions; furnishing necessary talent for productions; representing directors seeking new affiliations and converting books, plays and original stories into scenario form.

Alice Brady to Star in Film "The Knife"

Select Pictures has acquired "The Knife," another Broadway success, for a film production. Miss Alice Brady will appear in the feminine role.

"The Knife" is a play from the pen of Eugene Walter, author of "The Easiest Way" and "Paid in Full." It is a melodrama of the highest class, and in the intensity of theme and action lends itself particularly well to screen adaptation, it is said.

Production has been started on "The Knife," and the star, with her director, Robert G. Vigola, and part of her company, have just returned from a flying trip to Florida, where the opening scenes of the story were filmed.

In our desire to be as helpful to the reviewers as possible, this department has secured at the present time the following scenario: Cast on 45 - knit 2 - pull 2, for six inches - bind off 24 stitches on the cord. Knit down two inches - cast on 12 stitches in a circle. At the top, rib down six inches, being careful, of course, whose ribs you use. Since wool is expensive, clothes line is preferable for use in projection rooms, but great caution must be taken to prevent it from becoming looped about the neck, as some fall guys are sure to take up the slack, and lots of producers will be too only willing to "string" you, and make a get-away, while the lights were off, leaving you in great suspense.

Don't worry, Mitch, you can put it under the carpet and raise footpads. Oh, bunions. Be careful.

Seng Organ Carries Messages to Exhibitors

The December 20th issue of "The Parentage Messenger" sets a fast pace in the field of house organs. Printed in red and green, with a Holly border cleverly interspersed in its pages, the journal carries a truly Christmas atmosphere.

In addition to its attractiveness the booklet contains a timely warning to exhibitors to observe the "Up" and "Down" men of the business as follows: "The Wonderful Recovery of Exhibitors in Europe from the chaos caused by early war conditions and the accompanying depression of the pessimistic utterances of many in the United States, Mr. Seng closes his article thus: "But - for the sake of your future - for the sake of the New Year so near at hand - start now to Boost, Boost, Boost! With your fellow exhibitors raise the shout that will be heard round the world: 'All's well with us.'"

Strand Theatre, N. Y., To Present "Carmen" as Added Feature

The Strand Theater, New York, will introduce a novelty in the entertainments after the holidays and Manager Edel is busily engaged selecting material and singers for the rather pretentious addition which will consist of a weekly presentation of condensed versions of grand opera.

The first opera to be presented is "Carmen." Not only has Mr. Edel engaged a cast of high class opera stars to sing the various roles, but special sets of scenery are being painted for the various operatic productions. The cast for "Carmen" includes Anita Tegelli, who will sing the title role, Rosa Lind, as Michaeella, Carlo Mari as Don Jose and Auguste Bouillez, as Escamillo, Oscar Spireus will conduct.

The picture was directed by James Kirkwood.

Crest Pictures Corp.
Screening the Novel "The Grain of Dust"

Carle E. Carlton, president of the Crest Pictures Corp., has recently taken over the Ogden productions, is now completing the filming of David Graham Phillips' noted story "The Grain of Dust," starring Lillian Walker and in which Edith Day will also be featured.

Mr. Carlton is well known in the theatrical world as a theatre owner and operator. He will now devote a great part of his time to the production of state right features. "I intend," he says, "to purchase the rights of well known successful novels by famous authors of the day. I believe that old Bill Shakespeare was right when he said the play's the thing."

Lester Park, formerly general manager of the Ogden Pictures, is associated with Crest Pictures as manager of distribution.

Harry Revier, who directed "The Lust of the Ages" and "The Grain of Dust" is now working out the continuity of a story by a well known author which will be offered to state right buyers by Crest Picture Corporation.

New Subtitles Add Appeal to "Mother"

In order to supply an atmosphere of sympathetic interest in keeping with the human appeal of the McClure production, "Mother," Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin have added a special series of subtitles to replace those originally in the picture. In accordance with plans previously announced, "Mother" serves as an introduction to the film story proper and a beautiful series of symbolic subtitles was constructed under the personal direction of Mr. Sawyer.
Spectacular achievement and advancement will mark the motion picture art in 1918, in my opinion. There will be a spirit of persistent betterment, a striving for the attainment of higher ideals.

Greater stories than ever before will be told on the screen; the themes will be closer to the heart of the American public and the action of the plays will be more human. Productions, while not more lavish, will depict actual occurrences in a more convincing way than ever before.

America will learn from the motion picture camera the progressive story of the world war. I believe, too, that our National cause will be greatly assisted by the motion picture, due to the fact that the American branch of the industry is united behind President Wilson.

During the next twelve months, I propose to take the motion picture patrons through the library of classical literature, as well as the popular writings, including farce and melodrama. Producers should not decry the lack of material when there remains the work of Victor Hugo, Dumas, Dickens, Scott, Thackeray, Balzac, De Maupassant, Daudet, Bulwer Lytton and all the renowned American writers to draw upon.

I hope to develop playwrights by giving the young American brain of both men and women, the opportunity to write original stories for my scenarios. The payment will be paid double the previous prices for original scenarios during 1918.

During the next twelve months the writer for the screen will receive a better earned recognition. The creation of his brain will be exploited under his name, instead of giving all the credit to a star actor or actress in the picture. The only way to develop big brains and imagination is to give them public recognition in addition to liberal payment.

Cheerfulness is contagious and a large percentage of the plays during the next year will be light comedies, farces, etc., as a relief from the daily news from the war torn countries.

The great film play of the future will not necessarily be the spectacular. It will be a straightforward story, naturally acted, staged with newly invented lighting effects and directed without exaggregation. That character of story will appeal to every clean human mind.

Censorship by a simple minded controller of thought and intellectualty will die in the coming year.

No person on earth is qualified to pass final judgment on any subject, whether it be in law courts or in the legislation of the Government. And, much less should motion picture censorship be entrusted to one man for first and final decision, whether that man be

By William Fox

The Russian people rebel against censorship and the Czar. So, too, will the American people rebel against the censor cak whether it be of the press or the motion picture.

I feel that my 1917 pictures, "A Daughter of the Gods," "The Honor System," "A Tale of Two Cities," and "Romeo and Juliet" have evidenced the advance in the motion picture art.

Children's pictures such as "Jack and the Beanstalk," "Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp," "Treasure Island," have been exceedingly well received by school teachers, women's clubs, the press and others interested in the better class of pictures.

During 1918 I will present Victor Hugo's immortal masterpiece, "Les Miserables." William Farnum will appear in the role of Jean Valjean. I consider this production a classic.

Theda Bara in "Cleopatra," is another picture to be seen throughout the United States during 1918. "Queen of the Sea," with Annette Kellerman, will inaugurate genuine under water photography, which, I know, will be acceptable to the American public.

Du Barry, "Jack Spurlock, Prodigal," and a host of other fine novels, will be issued by my company.

I also have ready for presentation, "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves," the most charming picture of its type I have ever seen.

We have a children's fairy tale made in Japan which I am sure will point the way to advanced picturization of foreign atmosphere.

During 1918 I shall send producing companies to Brazil and Argentina. This will serve to show the glorious scenery and the development of the Pan-American countries.

Arrangements have been made by which I shall film 52 extraordinary productions, known as Standard Pictures; 22 photographic plays running on the screen from one hour to seventy-five minutes, and 56 comedies. In addition to these, we shall stage a few films which will show the occasion for the entry of America into the world war.

Under my management during the year 1918 will be Theda Bara, William Farnum, Annette Kellerman, George Walsh, Jewel Carmen, Virginia Pearson, Tom Nix, June Caprice, Sonia Margova, Jane and Katherine Lee, Frances Carpenter and Virginia Corbin, Gertrude Messinger and Georgie Stone, Gladys Brockwell and others.

Foursquare Appoints Eduardo Gainsborg
To Important Post

Eduardo Gainsborg, who has been engaged by M. H. Hoffman to take charge of the San Francisco Foursquare Pictures exchange, left New York last week for his destination. Mr. Gainsborg is one of the recent entrants into the film industry, but his progress has been sufficiently rapid to win his appointment to one of the most important posts in the Foursquare Pictures organization.

Mr. Gainsborg is a Columbia College graduate, a man of keen discernment, and his methods will be those of the experienced man of affairs who applies same business methods to the distribution of motion pictures.

THREE COMPANIES AT GOLDWYN PLANT MAKING NEW PLAYS

The business outlook in the motion picture field as viewed by Goldwyn Pictures Corporation is such that instead of lessening or temporarily curtailing its production activities, it has redoubled its labors at the Fort Lee plant, with three companies working under the glass top.

Madge Kennedy, under the direction of Edward Dillon is making "Our Little Wife," from Avery Hopwood's play; Maebelle Moore, having finished work in "Dodging a Million," by Edgar Selwyn and A. M. Kennedy, under the direction of George Loane Tucker, has started work on a new production as yet unnamed, and Mae Marsh is hard at work in a new picture from a story by Irvin S. Cobb.
William Russell in
"IN BAD"
American-Mutual comedy-drama; five parts; published January 28.

"In Bad" further proves that William Russell knows how to put comedy into his work. This production is full of amusing situations, excitement and mystery. The scenery is beautiful, enhanced by excellent photography and lighting. Frances Billington, Harvey Clark, Bull Montana, Fred Smith, Lucie Ward and Carl Stockdale comprise the supporting cast. The direction is by Edward Sloman. It is a feature that should prove acceptable anywhere with audiences demanding the best film entertainment.

The story: Monty Miles is considered a nuisance by his aunt Theodosia, and his eccentric ways cause her many unhappy moments. Richard Harrison is planning a treasure hunting expedition and asks aunt Theodosia to accompany them as companion for his daughter Victoria. Monty also is invited, but refuses to go until he catches a glimpse of Victoria. However, Victoria will have nothing to do with him, and his acceptance of the invitation to go treasure hunting is rejected. Monty decides to go alone and though he is ignored by the members of the party, he is successful in saving the treasure from the thieving crew which has accompanied Harrison. Harrison becomes engaged to aunt Theodosia and Monty to Victoria.

Vivian Martin in
"THE FAIR BARBARIAN"
Paramount comedy-drama; five parts; published December 17

"The Fair Barbarian" affords Vivian Martin one of the best roles she has had for some time. It gives her an opportunity to display that charming comedienne talent and her work, together with the humorous story, makes the offering one of excellent entertainment value.

In support of Miss Martin appear G. H. Geldert, Douglas McLean, Jane Wolff, Josephine Crowell, Mae Buch, William Hutchison, Al Paget and Charles Gerrard. The direction is by Robert T. Thornby from the story by Frances Hodgson Burnett.

The story: Octavia Bassett of Bloody Gulch, after a break with her sweetheart, decides to visit her aunt Belinda in Slowbridge. Her apparel and automobile shock the inhabitants of Slowbridge and tongues are set wagging at the musical given by Lady Theobald. She matches wits with Captain Barold, and Lady Theobald, who is anxious to have the Captain marry her niece Lucia. However, Lucia loves Mr. Burnett, a "common" mill owner. Octavia has just decided that she will marry Captain Barold when Jack Belasys, her ex-fiancé, and her father, arrive in Slowbridge. The pleasure of seeing Jack and knowing she can return to Bloody Gulch reunite Jack and Octavia.

Elizabeth Risdon in
"MOTHER"
McClure Pictures drama; six parts; published by Allen Film Corp.

The directorial genius of George Loane Tucker has lifted the photoplay "Mother" far out of the classification of mediocrity and fixed its position securely as a human interest drama of rare merit. Coupled with the splendid work of Mr. Tucker there is the acting of Elizabeth Risdon, which is the final stroke in registering the production as one of the really worth-while screen dramas of the year.

"Mother" has not a melodramatic or a spectacular moment and it is not a drama with a so-called "punch"; it is just a beautifully convincing narrative of the power of mother-love, acted and directed in a manner that is thoroughly faithful to life. In several instances Mr. Tucker, by a stroke of direction and Miss Risdon, by expert histrionic technic, have accomplished scenes that are moments of great drama in their directness and convincing appeal.

The story: The dominant theme of the narrative is the power of mother love. A frail little mother, after schooling her son diligently in the ways of righteousness, finds him one day in the prisoner's dock. Refusing to resort to deceit to free her son, the little mother sees him taken off to prison. There is a thread of romance running through the play. The alertness and devotion of the mother forestally, the calamity of an elopement with another's wife. Gradually the beneficent influence of the mother impresses itself upon the son and eventually a complete transformation is accomplished. In the end, with mother love triumphant over the wayward tendencies of the son, the frail little woman dies, her life's work having been accomplished.

FLORENCE REED AS BODY IN A TENSE SCENE FROM "THE STRUGGLE EVERLASTING." (Harry Rapf.)

the best work of his brilliant career. The photography also is vastly superior to the usual feature and is credited to Lawrence Williams.

The cast is an excellent one. Florence Reed as Body is beauty, passion, greed and curiosity incarnate until at last she succumbs to Soul and influences Mind to follow. Milton Sills as Mind has accomplished a characterization that should bring him stardom honors. Irving Cummings as Soul was Ecclaeistical, rather than purely spiritual, but played in a thoughtful vein. Wellington Plater did a conspicuous piece of work as the pugilist. Others deserving special mention are E. J. Radcliffe, Edwin N. Hoyt, Fred C. Jones, Albert Hall, R. Hatteras, Margaret Pitt, Mildred Cheshire and George Cooper.

The story: Mind and Soul at college are brothers. Mind tires of the routine and discipline and against the advice of Soul goes out to study life. He becomes ensnared with Body and brings her to college where she lures all youth from study to the adoration of sensation in the body. After college days, when Mind has freed himself from the overpowering influence, Body passes on from one type to another until all types have in turn been enthralled by the lure. Then she tires of them all and hears the appeal of Soul. The Pugilist, Banker, Poet, Actor, Musician and Aristocrat all meet failure through their weakness where Body is concerned and at the last Body turns all her vitality to serving Soul in his ministering to the poor and needy. Mind then realizes the truth when she tells him that Soul is right and that they must both be perfectly influenced by Soul in order to serve, for it is a path on which we all reach the eternal goal.

There is a quaintness, a variation, and a timely interest about "Madam WHO?" but makes an acceptable offering. It is a civil war story minus the usual battlefield scenes. The picturesque wearing apparel of the days of 1861 gives the production a quaint appeal and dainty Bessie Barriscale seems to belong to hoop skirts and high daisies. She is enchantingly charming in the role of Jeanne Beaufort and does some very good acting. Ed Coxen is the hero of the story and affords Miss Barriscale excellent support. With so many of the current war dramas treating of the European conflict a good story of the civil war days should prove desirable and diverting.

The story: Jeanne Beaufort becomes a member of the secret service of the South and one night breaks into a meeting of Northern secret service men. As a punishment the leader marries her to one of his men, but will not divulge the name of her husband. In the meantime a body goes to live in the North and communicates with the South regarding the movements of the Northerners. She meets Captain Armitage, the Northern army and, being thrown constantly together, they fall in love. 'Parr' Kennedy, chief of the Northern secret service, learns that Alice Trent is Jeanne Beaufort and sends out a squad, headed by Armitage, to arrest her, but Jeanne has fled to the South. Jeanne learns that the man she is married to is Captain Morgan of the South. Alice Trent, perceiving that the South is being influenced by both sides—a man whom she loathes. As Richmond falls into Northern hands Morgan comes to claim his wife, but Armitage, coming in and seeing Morgan and Jeanne struggling, tells Morgan he will be waiting for him when the war is ended.

"The Girl by the Roadside" presents Violet Mersereau in a plum role and this little screen star will no doubt like this production. However, the story is a difficult one to follow unless close attention is paid to its unfolding. It is a story worked out along different lines and would have held interest better if the incidents had been more coherently told. In the cast are Ethel Allen, C. A. Andrews, Allen Edwards, Robert F. Hill, Royal Byron, Kenneth Hall and Sam B. Minter. The direction is by Theodore Marston.

The story: Judith Ralston falls from her horse and sprains her ankle. Boone Pendleton, passing in his auto, picks her up. After going a short distance he discovers that the gasoline tank is empty and is forced to take Judith to his home. A storm forces them to remain at the lodge for a couple of days. In the meantime Judith's brother's brother-in-law are placed under arrest by federal authorities and Payban is in search of Judith. He traces her to the hunting lodge but Judith runs away, and goes to her brother's country home. Bud and his wife drive the jailer and escape, going to their country home. Unable to secure other passage they inveigle Boone Pendleton to take them to their home. Billy Cartwright, a young detective, also takes notice to get to the Ralston's country estate. Investigation discloses a counterfeiting outfit in the cellar of the Ralston's home and with this evidence Bud and his wife are taken to Washington. Then during no evidence against Judith she is freed and becomes the wife of Boone Pendleton.

Like former June Caprice productions, "Unknown 274" has its little touches of pathos, humor, comedy and drama. The story has but a slight plot, but should awaken a certain amount of real interest. A wonderful collage, which has added much to other productions with this star, does a clever bit in this picture and proves to be a regular actor. Supporting Miss Caprice are Kittens Reichert, Florence Ashbrook, Tom Burrough, Inez Butter.

The story: At the orphanage June receives the title of "Unknown 274," because no one knows anything about her parentage. The abuse which she receives from the matron of the orphanage drives June to accept the hospitality of a scheming couple who plan to take her to New York, marry her to some wealthy man, and live comfortably on their ill-gotten money. June receives music instructions from an aged professor and a bond of sympathy springs up between the two. One day, when the husband tries to force his attentions on June, she picks up the violin, which is the only remembrance she has from her father, and rushes to the home of the professor. Through the violin the professor learns that June is his daughter of whom he had lost track. The man the scheming couple had selected for June to marry proves his love for June and a bright future is in store for little "Unknown 274."

"Bucking Broadway" is another western drama, built along conventional lines. There is the stalwart western lover, the city bred villain and the innocent girl. Bucking Broadway offers little that is new, but is as good as former productions of this type. Mr. Carey is, of course, the honest, hard working rancher who loves a ranchman's daughter and who does his best to keep her love. However, he loses out to a Broadway type, a typical stage villain, and fights with determination he goes to New York. A free-for-all fight follows and he overcomes his adversary. Molly Malone as Molly Owers is the feminine lead. Others in the cast are L. M. Wells, Vesta Pegg and Gertrude Astor. The direction is by Jack Ford.

The story: Shortly after Cheyenne Harry and Molly Owers become engaged Captain Thornton, of New York, enters upon the scene and persuades Molly to elope with him. Harry and Molly's father are heartbroken. Finally Harry decides to rescue Molly from Thornton. In a hotel he finds Thornton giving a dinner party, announcing his engagement to Molly. As the evening progresses Molly learns the true nature of Thornton and endeavors to escape from him. Harry goes to her rescue with the assistance of some cowboys as they literally "clean up" the place and Molly and Harry are reunited.

This latest Pathé picture, featuring Irene Castle, is undoubtedly one of the best of the season, both for its entertainment and plausibility. The refreshing feature of this production lies in the fact that in no place is the story sub-sidized to allow the star to pose as a fashion plate as has been the case in some of her previous vehicles, although her Sphicorean ability does crop out in one part of the picture, and while not absolutely essential to the plot, is worked in so as not to interrupt the continuity of the story. It is in all interesting and this added to the star's popularity.

The story: The father of Paula Farring (Irene Castle), has been ruined by a crowd of capitalists, headed by Peter Van Brunt, and following a run upon a suburban bank, of which he is president, Paula Farring's father is ruined. In a letter left to Paula he names as his heir his ruin's plans to clear her father's name to avenge his death. Through a school girl friend, under the name of Paula Farring, she obtains entrance to a house party at the Van Brunt home, but before her plans materialize she is discovered to be Farrington's daughter. Her plan is to publish the papers which will clear her father's name with the aid of the cabaret "bouncer" who allows the safe and obtains the papers. Only to return it to Van Brunt with the statement that they must face God not her. Van Brunt sues and the others determine to clear Farrington's name if they, themselves, must serve prison terms.

Between racing with a tea cart, diving into a bath tub and holding a boxing match with Russell Hitchcock, McAlister and her companion could not entertain the audience any better. When Mrs. Riche arrives home she is surprised to find the child, but nevertheless delighted, and plans to keep her. However, when Sadie learns that her little dog, George Washington Square, cannot remain she returns to her distracted parents, who had been searching vainly for her.

While "Loyalty" is not a production that will appeal to every class of audience, it is a well done production. The story is a combination of much-used plots, yet it has been interestingly worked up, and replete with fine acting. Betty Brice as Nell Woodward, is very much at home in the role assigned to her and handles it well. Jack Moreley, who is cast as Hugh Gordon, a rich woman's son, who becomes a dope fiend, and later redeems himself, gives a sincere characterization. Maurice MacQuarrie's James Randell, the lawyer, reaches the perfection of scene acting. The direction of "Loyalty" is by Jack Pratt.

The story: Nell Woodward, an actress of the west, goes east to make a name for herself on Broadway. She is a success under the direction of James Randell. Hugh Gordon, son of a wealthy widow, loves Nell, and when Mrs. Gordon refuses to meet Nell, she is piqued and marries Hugh. Randell becomes angered, discharges Nell and replaces her. As a last resort, she is forced to become a cabaret entertainer. Hugh, disowned by his mother, reaches the lowest depths when he becomes a dope fiend. Nell realizes that it is up to her to put Hugh back in his former social position, and when Mrs. Gordon offers her a large sum of money if she will leave the city, she accepts, taking Hugh with her. They go west and Hugh, after a long struggle, finally overcomes the drug habit. When Nell sees her work is completed, she leaves, but is followed by Hugh, who demands that she remain with him, which she does. The production was well received at the Rondax Theatre, Chicago, where it was shown last week.

As a general rule a Charles Ray production can be looked upon to be good, to be entertaining and enjoyable. "His Mother's Boy" is all of this and affords five reels of trouble-forgetting pleasure. There is a good deal of excitement attached to the denouement of the story and a couple of well staged fights that are almost cheer-producers. Supporting Mr. Ray are Doris Lee, William Elmer, Joseph Swickard, Jerome Storm, Gertrude Claire and Lydia Knott. The direction is by Victor L. Schertzinger, supervised by Thomas H. Ince.

The story: Matthew Denton learns that because the Centipede oil wells do not pay dividends the villagers intimate that his dead father was a swindler. He leaves his mother and New England home to go to Centipede, Texas, and ascertain the cause of the shortage of oil. He becomes an employee under the direction of Banty Jones, foreman of the wells, and a crook. He also falls in love with Mabel Gleny, whom Jones regards as his "gal" and when Mabel shows her engagement ring Jones gives Matthew a specified time to get out of the town. However, Matthew has found a valve through which oil has been diverted to another company. He has also learned that Jones is receiving the benefit of these stolen oil sales. A fight ensues between the two men. Matthew coming out victor. Jones disappears, humiliated, and McAl is proud of her hero. Back home the villagers are delighted with the news that the oil wells are safe and that dividends will be forthcoming again.

There is a human appeal about "The Maternal Spark" that makes it an enjoyable production. The story is dramatic and presents a delicate and much used subject in an interesting manner. Irene Hunt, Josie Sedgwick and Rowland Lee have the principal roles. Joey Jacobs is a likeable mite of mischiefiveness and is responsible for much of the true-to-life atmosphere of the play. The direction is by G. P. Hamilton and play is from the story by R. Cecil Smith.

The story: John J. Mills, railroad magnate, is pleased with the intelligent manner in which Howard Helms, a small town lawyer, handles a claim for him, and makes him his private secretary. Helms and his wife move to the city and are long Helms is in the clutches of a vampire. Clarice Philps, the vampire, finds herself in love for the first time and the realization makes her happy. However, she is not aware that Helms is a married man until the wife comes to her and brings the little son, pleading for the return of the husband. Appreciating her false position, Clarice gives up Helms and he and his wife return to the small town where they had been happy before his promotion.

Edith Storey in Western Play

Metro has acquired the rights to "The Claim," the drama written by Charles Kenyon and Frank Dare, as a starring vehicle for Edith Storey. The play had a New York run earlier this season, with Florence Roberts in the leading role. "The Claim" is a comedy drama with Western mining camp and dance hall atmosphere and possesses a stirring Western plot. Miss Storey will interpret the role of Belle Jones, a dance hall singer and dancer.

"The Sins of Ambition" depends on a most excellent cast for the force of its message rather than on the merit of the story, which is melodramatic in the extreme. The interest is preserved throughout by the splendid work of Lesh Barnard, Wilfred Lucas, Andrews Randolph and Barbara Castleton. Edward Lawrence, Madeline Traverse and James Morrison also shared the honors. Except for the concentration of these artists the story could not possibly have carried the plot. The direction was often stilted, but the players managed to overcome the handicap and made the seven-plot play interesting. The photography was novel and some of the settings particularly lavish.

"Because of a Woman" sounds like a 10-20-30-cent melodrama, but nothing is more misleading in this case. The story, written along familiar lines, the chief merit in the seven part feature being some remarkable night photography and beautiful exteriors.

The plot concerns two men in love with the same girl; one is married by his employers and goes west to live down his disgrace. While working as a telegraph operator for the Santa Fe he comes face to face with his rival, wins a confession from him and returns east where he bests him at his own game.

Jack Livingston carried off the stellar honors, although Belle Bennett, who makes a rather tardy entrance, not appearing until the fourth reel, is the advertised star. She is pleasing in her part and makes a full and interesting role that calls for no emotional moments. The balance of the cast was adequate, consisting of George Chesebro, Louella Maxim, Lilian Langdon, Josef Swickard and George Pearce. The picture was well directed by Jack Conway and moved along smoothly and swiftly. It pleased audiences at the Lake Shore Theatre, Chicago, where it was shown last week.

The story: To Noel Clavering, business manager of a mining company in Virginia, is confided the secret of a big mining deal. Allan Barrett, Noel's rival for the hand of Muriel Guymer, overhears the information, and sells it to a rival concern. Noel is asked to resign and goes west, where he passes the toughest life as a telegraph operator at a rough station. Barrett is sent to the locality to investigate a mine and Noel forces a confession from him admitting that he sold information to the opposition. Noel later learns that Barrett and Muriel are married and returns to Virginia where he finds Barrett neglecting his wife and carrying on with a woman. He wins Muriel away from Barrett, falls in love with her herself and Barrett returns to his own fire-side.

"The Heart of a Lion" is a story that is intensely dramatic and well told, with a certain human appeal. William Farnum is very appropriately cast as the brother, Dick, who sacrificed all his pleasures that a younger brother might receive a thorough education and wealth. A younger brother has deceived him, casts him off and becomes a hardened and bitter man, only to have this bitterness melt away when he finds that the younger man has made good. The story has a heart appeal that plays right to the heart of the audience.

The story: Barney sacrifices every pleasure that his brother, Dick, might secure an education. Dick falls into bad company and makes frequent requests to Barney for money until he is driven to sell his homestead which he labored so hard to maintain. When he finds that Dick and the girl he loves has deceived him he casts them off and goes to a mining camp, where, with an inborn talent for doctoring, he becomes a physician. This awakens the man in Dick and he resolves to make good. Under the influence of Margaret Sanford, who has loved Barney in secret, he becomes a successful minister and his first assignment brings him to the same camp where he and Miss Sanford have been. His brother's financial loss has no effect on Barney until Tex Daly shoots Dick. Dick never recovers and Barney goes for Daly. Daly fires first, but misses Barney. A return shot from the doctor kills Daly. As the story ends Mr. Sanford and Miss Sanford pledge their vows. The production was well received at the Orpheum Theatre, Chicago, where it was shown this week.

The story of "Without Honor" has been handled in a fairly entertaining manner, but there isn't a great deal to the plot and the story is padded considerably. But, judging from the way it was received by patrons of the Pastime Theatre, Chicago, it is produced in a way that many people like. Margery Wilson is seen in a becoming role minus her burlap gown. Good work is done by Arthur Moon, Darrell Foss, Walt Whitman, Laura Sears, Anna Dodge and Walter Perkins. The direction is by E. Mason Hopper. The theme of the story is woven around the weaknesses of a young man and his final doom.

The story: Driven to despair by his bigoted father and his narrow-minded wife, Roy Hanford leaves home and goes to the city where, through "Breeze" Ballard, he meets Jeannie McGregor and marries her under an assumed name, not mentioning the fact that he has a wife. They are happy in their home until his father and a sheriff come to arrest him for bigamy. In order to save him from prison Jeannie tells the sheriff they were never married. Roy returns home with his father, where he soon dies a drunkard. Jeannie secures employment on a dairy farm near Roy's home town. When Roy's father learns of this he demands that she be sent away. At the psychological moment "Breeze" arrives and produces evidence that Jeannie was legally married.

Titan Triumvirate Selects a Comedy

Planning of comedy pictures is a serious business as evidenced by the expressions of concern registered on the faces of the three gentlemen shown in the accompanying photograph. They are the "big three" of the Titan Pictures Corporation, Frederick Russell Clark, president; Rex Weber, director, and Jo Swerling, scenario editor. The one-reel comedies are produced under the auspices of the American Military Relief Association and a fund realized from the productions goes to Uncle Sam's boys "over there."

Goldwyn to Publish Three Features

Starring Kennedy, Normand and Marsh

Goldwyn Pictures Corporation announces the following features to follow Mary Garden in "Thais," Jan. 14, Madge Kennedy in "Oh, Mary, Be Careful!" by George Weston; Jan. 28, Mabel Normand in "Dodging a Million," by Edgar Selwyn and A. M. Kennedy, directed by George Loane Tucker; Feb. 10, Mae Marsh in "Fields of Honor," by Irvin S. Cobb and Edgar Selwyn.

In "Oh, Mary, Be Careful!" Goldwyn has obtained for Miss Kennedy one of the most popular novels of the past twenty-four months. The star has been given a picture of rare dramatic plot and situation with a farce relief, it is said. The government's request for the postponement by Goldwyn of "Joan of Plattsburg" is more than offset by the production of "Dodging a Million." It is a skillful and exciting mystery drama of suspense and action that brings Mabel Normand back to the screen under most favorable circumstances. In "Fields of Honor" Mae Marsh does some of the best emotional acting of her career. The story is by Irvin S. Cobb and Edgar Selwyn and was directed by Ralph W. Ince.

Mutual Film Corporation Completes Schedule of Plays Through January

Edna Goodrich is announced by the Mutual Film Corporation in the photodrama, "Her Second Husband," in the New Year's schedule productions. It was published December 21.

Miss Goodrich is seen as Helen Kirby, divorced from her husband, a Wall street operator, because he insists on her entertaining persons of vulgar and ill-bred manners, with whom he is associated in business deals.

Billie Rhodes appears January 1, in a Strand comedy, "Her Awful Fix." The story concerns Mary, who rejects the matrimonial advances of a young doctor, to marry Tom. On her wedding day she becomes quarantined in chum's house when the young doctor pronounces a case of prickly heat to be smallpox. The Mutual Weekly is replete with topics that are timely, covering incidents and events of international interest, keeping pace with the kaleidoscopic changes that are making world history.

Other productions completed at the Mutual studios include "The Girl and the Judge," starring Olive Tell, Ann Murdock in "My Wife," scheduled for February, and "The Richest Girl," William Russell is at work now on "Polo Jack," and Miss Minter's forthcoming play is well under way although it has not been given a title.

Theda Bara Begins 28th Fox Film

After a week's vacation Theda Bara started her twenty-eighth William Fox photodrama at the Fort Lee, N. J., studios of the Fox Film Corporation. She is working under the direction of J. Gordon Edwards.

In the new photodrama, which has not been named, Miss Bara again will be seen in a typical home-wrecking, soul destroying vampire portrayal. The action takes place in East India, later shifting to Paris. There are said to be many novel situations planned for the production.

Artcraft to Publish New Ferguson

Hart and Pickford Plays in January

The attractions for the first month of the new year were announced last week by Walter E. Greene, President of the Artcraft Pictures Corporation, starring Mary Pickford, William S. Hart and Elsie Ferguson.

As the initial film of the year Artcraft offers Elsie Ferguson in "Rose of the World," a drama from the book by Agnes and Edgerton Castles. The story has a military atmosphere and in the role of the young captain's wife, the star is said to be at her best. Supporting Miss Ferguson are Wyndham Standing in the leading male part, Percy Marmont, Ethel Mertin, Jesse Sloane, Clarence Hyndesides, Marie Bendetta, Gertrude Brant and Sloane De Mashe.

William S. Hart, in the Thomas H. Ince production, "Wolves of the Rail," is Artcraft's second offering in January. Hart appears in the role of a sheriff, upholder of law and order rather than an outlaw. The story is by Denison Clift and allows producer Ince occasion to introduce novel effects in the way of photographic effects, it is said, that assist in making "Wolves of the Rail" a notable production.

Mary Pickford in "Stella Maris," will be Artcraft's third production for the month of January. This is the screen adaptation of William J. Locke's novel of the same name. Marshall Pinckard, "Vera," Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm and "The Little Princess," has also started this new Pickford picture. The Artcraft star in her latest production plays a dual role. The supporting cast includes Conway Tearle, and Claude Gillingwater, George O'Brien, Herbert Standing, Josephine Crowell and Mrs. Cookes.

All three of Artcraft's January productions are now receiving final treatment in the laboratories of the company in California and New York, their actual production having been finished during the past two weeks.
PREDICTS 1918 “GREATEST YEAR”

By AARON J. JONES

The coming year will be the greatest the show business has ever seen. Theatrical history tells us that, during the Civil and Spanish-American wars, show business jumped with leaps and bounds, and thus I feel sure with the world struggling a like condition of affairs will prevail. This will be especially so in the lower priced houses. Those who attend the $2.00 houses, in addition to paying war tax, have found that their income tax severs their yearly annuity, but the working man still finds that the $2.00 priced theatres will not be affected, except that he will be earning more money next year than ever before in his life.

This will tend to increase the prices in the outlying theatres. Picture houses which have charged ten and fifteen cents in the past, will charge twenty cents or even higher. There will be a further combination of the manufacturers who have found the conditions too high, who will not alone combine the production expense, but also the distributing.

At present, there are over forty exchanges in the City of Chicago, where four could easily handle the business. This we endeavored to do when we formed “The First National Exhibitor’s Circuit.” There will be a closer co-operation with exhibitors. The stars will be given more time to make their features. For instance, let us take Charlie Chaplin, who is under contract with our concern. Henceforth, he has been driven to make twelve pictures in twelve months. Under his contract with The First National Exhibitor’s Circuit, he makes but eight pictures in eighteen months and can, therefore, allow his artistic temperament to run riot.

Last year I predicted a combination of manufacturers and exhibitors, which came to pass. I also said that there would be built in the outlying districts of Chicago, picture houses in excess of 3,000 seats, which would take the place of the smaller theatres. This has also come to pass. For some time manufacturers have been urging Chicago to build a big loop picture palace. I am at liberty to state that Jones, Linick & Schaeter will build the most magnificent structure in Chicago. We have the location selected and leased, but the present war conditions make the investment too great to begin work at this time, but I can say that we will take active steps to build such a theatre.

Kleine Distributes “Brown of Harvard”

Negotiations were completed last week whereby “Brown of Harvard,” William N. Selig’s latest production, will be published January 10 on the Perfection Pictures program. Trade showings of the subject are being run now at all branch offices of the George Kleine System, distributors. The picture is an adaptation in six parts of the novel and stage drama, “Brown of Harvard.” Hazel “Honey” Daly and Tom Moore are featured.

King Bee Changes Name of Film

The January 1 publication of the King-Bee Films Corporation, starring Billy West, is to be called “The Stranger” instead of “The Prospector,” as previously announced.

In this picture Billy West will be seen in scenes that will prove a genuine novelty in comedies, it is said. This is the second comedy made by the King-Bee company in California.

Swish! For That Squab Story

If Bennie Zeidman doesn’t lay off on that Spike Rovinson squab story we’re goin’ to write him up in the strongest terms at our command. We’ve received a copy of it every mail for a week.

“Hear Ye! Hear Ye!”

It may become necessary for all theatres to employ barkers or guides so that patrons can find their favorite film palaces, if this wave of economy calling for lightest Thursdays and Sundays keeps up. One Chicago theatre—the La Salle—had a town crier patrolling Madison street last Sunday night.

“A private train to be known as the ‘Petrov Special’ will be engaged to carry the star and company to Florida,” chronicles Bert Ennis. Might we suggest that they name a flag stop for that tireless P. A. en route. That’d make another good story.

What has become of that $100,000,000 J. Pierpont Morgan motion picture combine we heard so much about a fortnight ago? And that big concern that was acquiring a nation-wide chain of theatres? Can it be possible somebody was spoonin’?

Why doesn’t Hoover prohibit passing the buck on meatless days?

“Playing a Dead Man for a Whole Production” is the title of one news story which reached us last week. That’s nothing. We’ve seen actors go through several productions that were dead from the neck up and didn’t know it.
Arrangements have been consummated for the distributing of Paralta Plays to exhibitors throughout the entire civilized world, comes the announcement from Paralta Plays, Inc.

Two permanent exchanges have been established throughout the United States by the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation, which is now receiving bookings for the first two productions, "A Man's Man," in which J. Warren Kerrigan is the star, and "Madam Who," with Bessie Barriscale in the stellar role. Both of these pictures have been praised by the critics as masterworks of the cinema art. "A Man's Man," was shown at Clune's Auditorium, Los Angeles, Cal., a short time ago, there it played to capacity for an entire week, breaking all records of the house, which seats 3,000, and has played many of the greatest attractions of the season including "The Creation of a Nation," "Ramon's," and "The Eyes of the World."

"Madam Who," will be the second picture to be published by the Hodkinson Corporation, which marks Bessie Barriscale's debut as a Paralta star, promises to be one of the biggest successes of the year. In speaking of this production, Alan Dale, the dramatic critic, stated: "Madam Who is a particularly excellent picture, it is the best piece of emotional work I have seen in many years, shouldn't it be said that it is a distinct advance in the picture art, and I emphasize the word 'art.'"

Henry B. Walthall's initial Paralta Play, "His Right of Honor," will probably be selected for the third publication, but this has not been definitely settled. The picture is finished, however, and is said to present Mr. Walthall in one of the most forceful characteristics in which he has appeared.

In arranging the distribution for the United States, the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation has established exchanges in the principal railroad centers and offices are now open at 909 Hennepin avenue, Minneapolis; 343 Baronne street, New Orleans; 71 West 23rd street, New York; 1508 Howard street, Omaha; 1308 Vine street, Philadelphia; 1291 Liberty avenue, Pittsburgh; 309 Burnside street, Portland; 350 Golden Gate avenue, San Francisco; 819 Third street, Seattle; 7th and "E" streets, Washington, D. C.; 50 East Market street, Wilkes Barre, Pa.; 48 Howard street, Albany; 111 Walton street, Atlanta; 123 Franklin street, Bangor, Me.; 25 Ferdinand street, Boston; 122 Pearl street, New York; 222 Main street, Chicago; 154 Elm street, Cincinnati; 809 Prospect avenue, Cleveland; 26 N. Naughton street, Columbus; 2017 Commerce street, Dallas; 1441 Champa street, Denver; 59 E. Elizabeth street, Detroit; 192 W. New York street, Indianapolis; 921 Walnut street, Kansas City; 738 Olive street, Los Angeles, and 302 Mulberry street, Memphis.

Paralta Plays will be distributed through Canada by the Globe Films, Ltd., the exchange for which is located in Toronto, with exchanges in Montreal, Winnipeg, Calgary, Vancouver and St. John.

Countries in Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia and South America will receive Paralta Plays through the Inter-Ocean Film Corporation, the largest foreign distributing organization in the world.

Brenon-Made Films
Go Big in Montreal

Chandos Brenon, Canadian representative of the Herbert Brenon Film Corporation, reports the successful showing of three features made by Herbert Brenon now playing in Montreal at the foremost motion picture theaters.

The features, "The Lion's Wolf" at the New Grand, "The Fall of the Romanoffs" at the Regent, and "The Daughter of the Gods," which was made two years ago, the "Fall of the Romanoffs" at the St. Denis. The first mentioned productions were made at Mr. Brenon's own studios at Hudson Heights.

Miniature Zeppelins for Lobby Display

Fifty miniature Zeppelins, constructed under the supervision of a mechanic who formerly was employed in the big dirigible works at Essen, Germany, and left the factory at the outbreak of the war, because he was an Englishman, are being employed to advertise the Thomas H. Ince feature, "The Zeppelin's Last Raid," being exploited by the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation.

One of the models was used by Frank Hall to advertise "The Zeppelin's Last Raid" at his U. S. Theatre in Hoboken and was a very popular accessory. An attack on the house entertained the crowds that thronged the lobby before and after the shows by explaining the workings of the aircraft with which Germany is waging ruthless warfare on the Allies in Europe.

THIS WEEK AT DOWNTOWN CHICAGO THEATERS

BIJOU DREAM—Select, "The Honeymoon," with Cottontale Talmadge.

Popularity of Star System Rapidly Diminishing

BY HERBERT BRENNON

I have always been very much opposed to the star system. When I speak of the star system I mean the centralization of all effort and expenditure on the star to the exclusion of everything else.

In the making of pictures I am a firm believer in the story first, last and all the time. I believe that for the development of a screen story as with everything else, the very best material should be obtained, not only for the highest place, but for the most significant as well.

In selecting a cast for production, I do not look for big names. To me talent and suitability are far more important factors. I, however, an artist of world wide reputation is best fitted to a certain type of role, and his name is indisputably connected with a certain part. I waive the policy of no star and welcome the appearance of the name of that artist in connection with my production. Take, for instance, the case of John Johnston in the picture with Otis Skinner. Who can bring to mind the production of "The Passing of the Third Floor Back" without conjuring up the mental vision of Sir Johnston in his performance of the Stranger? Or again, is it possible to think of "Kismet" without thinking of Otis Skinner in the making of the beggar Haji? These two artists are part of their characters in these two dramas. They have created and developed these characters until they absolutely become essential to the presentation of the play. It is impossible to separate one from the other.

No matter how great the drawing power of the star, however, it is absolutely fatal to sacrifice the production as a whole. That to me is the great argument against the star system, and really the only one.

When the time comes that it is necessary to sacrifice the supporting company, and cut down on the sets, etc., then it is time to cut down on the star. Otherwise someone is bound to suffer and in nine cases out of ten, it is the exhibitor; and as the exhibitor is the rock upon which the whole motion picture business is founded, it is obvious that to tax him beyond his strength is disastrous.

The star system is dwindling. It is fast disappearing on the stage, and its popularity is diminishing on the screen. The great trouble at the present time is that producers are underestimating the intelligence of their audiences.

Motion picture audiences are becoming more exacting and more discriminating every day.

The tendency of to-day, far from being stars and more stars, will be towards eliminating them to a vast degree; not that a Douglas Fairbanks, a Marguerite Clark or an Elsie Ferguson will ever disappear from the realms of filmdom. Exceptional talent such as these great artists possess will ever be welcomed on the screen, but curls and baby doll faces will be relegated to the background, and the drama will come into its own.

A great artist and a great story is an unbeatable combination. But a great artist should not be expected to waste his substance on the desert air. One of the saddest sights to be seen on the screen today is that of a true artist struggling with a poor play.

Many producers think that by exploiting a big name they can afford to let the subject slip into the background. I won't take you too far, but I am realizing that this is ruining their own prospects.

How often do we hear those who should be interested in the motion picture say, "Well, I used to go all the time, but I don't any more. You see such silly pictures, and it's such a waste of time. I would rather sit at home and read a book which is really worth while than be bored to death at a moving picture theatre."

Doesn't it seem a pity? Don't these producers see the injustice that they are casting on their profession? Don't they realize the ultimate harm that they are doing to themselves and to the industry as a whole?

"Ruggles of Red Gap," Taylor Holmes' George K. Spoor special, to follow "Uneasy Money," is nearing completion. The company is "striking camp" in Phoenix, Arizona, preparatory to returning when Mr. Windom will assemble the film. The production is taken from the story by Harry Leon Wilson, that appeared in The Saturday Evening Post.

Cahill-Igoe Cut and Program Service
Meets Favor Among Theatre Owners

The Cico cut service and the "De Luxe Programs," a service for exhibitors instituted by the Cahill-Igoe Company, has taken with considerable favor although as yet in its infancy, according to reports.

A well known Chicago artist has completed pen and ink drawings of more than seventy-five of the leading film stars and these have been made into cuts in two sizes, one inch by one and one-fourth inch high and two inches wide by two and one-half inches high. These are zinc engravings and will print on any grade of stock paper.

The programs gotten out by the company are folded magazine style in three or more colors. When folded they measure 6½ by 3½ inches. These are made in twenty-four different designs and the exhibitor taking the service can have one standard design or have the use of all twenty-four.

As an added help to exhibitors in connection with the program service, Cahill-Igoe have an advertising staff devoted exclusively to writing paragraphs relating to current photoplays which can be used as advertising material.

Men Who Have Made Love to Me" Film and Holmes Feature Near Completion

"Men Who Have Made Love to Me," the George K. Spoor special feature, is a correct reflection of Mary MacLane, the noted writer, by her remarkable writings. The picture interprets the sensational, sentimental and satirical high lights of six romances in the life of Miss MacLane. Although the true names of the suitors are withheld, the stamp of sincerity and realism, it is said, is there.

It pictures six episodes in the life of a strangely magnetic woman, that might occur to any woman. The lovers are each of a different type and the players who assume their roles selected from various parts of the country, many of them taken from important roles in stage productions.

Lillian Walker to Do

Four Productions for Crest Pictures

Rights to Popular Novels Secured—Edith Day, Stage Prima Donna in Support

Lillian Walker, star of David Graham Phillips' "The Grain of Dust," now being sold on the state rights basis, has just signed a contract, by arrangement with Lester Park, with C. B. Kane, president of the Crest pictures, to make four more productions. Miss Walker will begin work as soon as the first of the four scenarios is determined upon. Several novels by well known authors are now under consideration. Miss Walker's latest starring vehicle, "The Grain of Dust," was directed by Harry Revier.

"The Grain of Dust" is a typical American story and it is said is well suited to the talents of this star. The story concerns a girl who goes into a big office and unconsciously upsets the career and fortunes of a prominent lawyer. How this insignificant little "grain of dust" got into the works of the great organization, just as a grain of dust in the wheels of a watch might do, presents some interesting and exciting situations.

The second leading part is played by Edith Day, who appeared in a prominent role last winter in Anna Held's "The Chef." At the Casino Theatre, and who is now engaged for the prima donna role in the new Cohan & Harris play, "Going Up." Miss Day proves in the "Grain of Dust" that she screens quite as well as she sings and dances.

Other members of the cast are Ralph Delmore, Corene Uzzell, George Henry, Jacques Tyrrell, Redfield Clark, Cecil Fletcher, Charles Eldridge, Richard Wagnerman and Lawrence Evart.

Fire Destroys Three Theatres
With Loss of More Than $75,000

Strand Theatre of Spokane, Wash., Gutted in Early Morning Conflagration; Jefferson City Loses Picture House

Fire during the past week entailed a loss of $75,000 and put out of commission three motion picture theaters in widely separated parts of the United States. Fortunately, none of the conflagrations occurred when the theaters had performances in progress and in no instance was even a fireman injured.

The largest loss of the week accompanied fire which broke out in the Strand Theater building, Spokane, Wash., early in the morning. The loss was estimated at $30,000.

The fire is believed to have originated in the projection room of the theater as members of the fire department declare a sharp explosion preceded the blaze.

The Palmerston Hotel, occupying the same building, was endangered for a time and guests were routed from their rooms. The hotel, however, was undamaged. The theater was practically destroyed.

In Jefferson City, Mo., the Gem Theater, owned by A. E. Longnecker, was destroyed by a fire which broke out last Sunday morning. The flames spread so quickly that the fire department was helpless and the building was totally destroyed. It was practically a new structure, having been erected five years ago. The loss has been estimated at $22,000.

Dinuba, Calif., was also the scene of a fire in a motion picture theater when fire destroyed the Music Hall at a loss of $75,000. Several buildings adjoining the photoplay house were damaged.

A fine of $100 is provided for any violation of this act.

Among the new shows are "The Public Defender," starring Frank Keenan, Robert Edeson and Alma Hanlon; "Enigma," which serves to introduce Edmund Breese in a role similar to that which made him famous as a delineator of crook characters. Anna Hanlon plays the leading feminine part in "Enigma." A drama of timely appeal by Augustus Thomas is now underway and will be ready in February or March. An all star cast will be used for this production.

Seven comedies will be issued by Mr. Raver, in which the character, "Foolshead," will appear. The modern "Foolshead," it is said, is improved by real stories and timely situations. The new comedy series will range from one to five reels each.

CENSING PICTURES FOR U. S. A.

Agitation for a change in the methods of censoring motion pictures, especially that now obtaining in Chicago, has led the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures to issue a statement concerning the activities and personnel of that body. The statement which outlines the work of the board is as follows:

"Many cities of the United States, in the regulation of motion picture exhibitions, have adopted a different plan from that now in use in Chicago. They have taken the review work of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures of New York City as the basis. The review committees of the National Board, which are made up of volunteers, men and women, especially fitted by general inclination and experience to do the work, are made up of people excluded from motion pictures, setting at different times and in different projection rooms scattered throughout Manhattan, look at approximately 99 per cent of the photoplays exhibited in this country. It is a public service, and this has an opportunity to pass judgment in advance of release.

"At the end of each week a bulletin is made up, listing the films passed without elimination, those passed with eliminations, noting the parts that are to be cut out, and those condemned, if there chance to be any. These bulletins are sent to public officials in different cities who have to do with the regulation of pictures. In this way information is gained in advance of the presentation of pictures as to whether special attention should be given to any particular film or not. It follows that if a picture has been condemned or has not been reviewed by the National Board (as occasionally happens because the maker of the film will be condemned from before it is exhibited), it will be condemned from before it is exhibited. This makes the committee of citizens enabled to determine in advance whether he himself or a committee of citizens should officially see any particular film which is brought to the city for exhibition. The character of eliminating from the film pictures which have not been condemned also serves as a guide.

Cities Using National Board's Bulletins

"In Boston, where this plan is in operation, no picture may be exhibited until it has been reviewed locally, if there be any indication on the bulletin that the picture may not be entirely satisfactory. It is seen by a representative of the magazine and the exhibition and all eliminations required by the National Board must be made. The result of this plan usually is that motion picture producers quickly learn that the requests of the National Board of Review must be acted upon before the film is sent to a given city. The public officials of some cities report to the National Board the condition of films when brought to their cities for exhibition, from which portions were to be eliminated.

"Among the cities which use this method of regulating their motion pictures in addition to Boston are Providence, Chicago, New York, Washington, and Atlanta. Among the cities employing a modification of the plan are Los Angeles, San Francisco, and San Diego. The plan is also in use in a number of small cities where the fact that it is in use is not generally known."

"Among those who are connected with its activities are Ralph Folks, commissioner of public works, New York city; Burdette G. Lewis, commissioner of correction, New York city; J. H. Hart, director of the department of recreation of the Russell Sage Foundation; Roland Hyatt, of the committee on recreation of the board of estimate and apportionment, New York city; and E. E. Jenkins, district superintendent of schools, New York city, and Edward F. Sanderson, director of the People's Institute, New York.

"In the course of the year 1916 it reviewed 4,113 different pictures and 9,180 reels. In the course of the last year it decided to pass no "white slave films" or photoplays showing negroes." This action was based on public opinion, as gathered by a questionnaire sent throughout the country, has had a marked effect upon the character of motion pictures made since that time.

Harry Raver to Publish Twenty-Five Productions in Early Months of 1918

Harry Raver has announced his plans for the opening months of the coming year. No less than twenty-five productions are scheduled for publication, all of which are in preparation or actually completed.

Among the new shows are "The Public Defender," starring Frank Keenan, Robert Edeson and Alma Hanlon; "Enigma," which serves to introduce Edmund Breese in a role similar to that which made him famous as a delineator of crook characters. Anna Hanlon plays the leading feminine part in "Enigma." A drama of timely appeal by Augustus Thomas is now underway and will be ready in February or March. An all star cast will be used for this production.

Seven comedies will be issued by Mr. Raver, in which the character, "Foolshead," will appear. The modern "Foolshead," it is said, is improved by real stories and timely situations. The new comedy series will range from one to five reels each.

Mr. Raver has also obtained a new star to play vampire roles. She is an Italian and will appear in "The Soul of a Vampire," from the book by Carlotta Murillo, and three other productions during the first six months of 1918.

"Motherland," a patriotic drama from the pen of Francis Allison West, will also reach the screen through Mr. Raver's production forces. "The Fires of Inspiration," "Father and Son," a war-time story, and several stories by well known authors are included in the list.

Halifax Theatres Hard Hit by Explosion
Slowly Recovering From Effects of Disaster

Manager of Canadian Universal Exchange Gives Detailed Description of Damage—Exchange Suffers Losses

George A. Margetts, manager of the Canadian Universal Film Company office in St. John, N. B., was in Halifax on a business trip at the time of the recent disaster and on his return to St. John, writes that the conditions in Halifax were beyond description.

Mr. Margetts reports that the Casino Theatre was the hardest hit. The entrance of this theatre was blown in and the partition separating the entrance to the auditorium was also damaged. The stage door was blown across the stage destroying scenery and musical instruments. The emergency exit on the right hand side of the auditorium was blown in and the frame work right up to the masonry was blown in also. There was damage done to the skylights and other parts of the building as well.

The next to suffer the most was the Empire Theatre. This theatre's roof and the whole rear was blown in, carrying the rear wall and stage setting with the screen across the stage. Very little damage was done to the front of the building besides the entrance doors, which were partly blown off their hinges.

The King Edward and the Orpheus Theatre came next. Looking at the King Edward from the outside, you would hardly realize it had been damaged, but on the inside back of the curtain quite a piece of the roof had been blown in and the curtain damaged. The side wall was also badly damaged. The Orpheus Theatre at one time was a church and in remodeling it into a theatre, one of the large windows in the side was boarded and bricked. This portion of the wall was blown in. The entrance doors were all blown in but sixty mirrors situated in different parts of the lobby of this theatre, in some miraculous manner escaped damage, although the glass chandeliers were broken.

Acker's Family Theatre, the Strand and the Imperial were but slightly damaged. The Imperial had the side windows blown in and the entrance damaged. The Strand Theatre had the big entrance doors blown in and the green baza doors to the auditorium ripped off their hinges.

The theatre men, however, consider themselves very lucky, as none of them or their relatives were killed or seriously injured.

All film companies will sustain a business loss owing to the fact that the theatres will be closed for at least a month or six weeks and there is not a film concern that wasn't represented in some way in Halifax. However, the Paramount and the Universal will probably suffer the most owing to the fact that they had the largest business in that city.

Mr. Margetts was to have left Halifax on Wednesday night previous to the explosion, but was held over, due to unfinished business. However, after the accident he told his best to renew the suffering, and was busy guarding a relief station, driving relief auto and helping to dig out the wounded and dead. He paid a sincere compliment to the Americans who came in on relief trains and the marines for their splendid work, stating that it was due to their organizations that conditions moved along so smoothly.

The Mutual Film Company's offices in the Hermon building, Toronto, are being redecorated. J. Travis says he is going to make the offices so attractive that exhibitors can't help but spend some of their valuable time there.

Globe Films Ltd., held a screening of "Madam Who?" a seven reel production and "A Man's Man," with J. Warren Kerrigan, on Friday, Dec. 14. The showing was well attended by local exhibitors and to quote their expressions these pictures were "Crackerjacks." For the second time during the screening of films by this company, a fire took place across the street from the theatre. The first fire was the Hydro Electric building, which was completely ruined and gutted by fire. However, the screening of these films was not held up.

Revue Theatre Manager Aids Sale of Bonds

The manager of the Revue Theatre, Toronto, M. Ball, succeeded in boosting the recent Victory Bond issue, launched in Canada in a very material way. He offered a complimentary ticket for the month of December to everyone buying a $100 Victory Bond. In one week Mr. Ball was able to turn over to the government $20,000 for Victory Bonds and gave to his patrons 150 complimentary tickets in December. Mr. Ball not only did a patriotic act, but has made his theatre extremely popular throughout his community.

During last week Mr. Ball closed his theatre for some general improvements. He is redecorating, changing his program and increasing his music repertoire.

A grand opening was held on Christmas Day. Without a doubt the Revue presents the finest and most beautiful theatre in the West End or Parkdale district of Toronto. Mr. Ball announces that as a special attraction he will have a popular singer perform at the Revue. Also in connection with the sale of Victory Bonds, Mr. Ball will extend the complimentary ticket period to the first week of January. Mr. Ball is one of the best wires in the trade in Canada and uses his motto to the adage, "If you aren't going ahead, you're going behind." Perhaps this is the reason of Mr. Ball's great success as a moving picture exhibitor.

Winnipeg Picture Theatres Start Fund to Aid Sufferers of Halifax Disaster

A fund to be subscribed to by the motion picture theatres of Winnipeg and its environs for the relief of the sufferers of the Halifax disaster has been started by H. N. Jernberg, manager of Providence theatre. The Motion Picture editor of the Free Press was named by Mr. Jernberg as trustee of this fund.

Cheques have already been received from the Province Theatre, $100; Bijou Theatre, $50. No city in Canada has ever suffered and experienced the horrors which this city has gone through. Homes were completely wrecked, while others were badly damaged and it will take years before the damage can be repaired.

The latest reports from the stricken city declare the theatres are being used as hospitals and temporary places of rescue. However, it has been difficult to get any communication through. Due to the heavy snow storms, which very seriously impeded the work of rescue, all wires have been out of order, trains are held up and news delayed.

From the little the correspondent of the Herald has been able to learn the exhibitors are doing their utmost to relieve the suffering of their fellowmen, which comes as an incentive to the rest of their brothers in the Dominion. However, Winnipeg exhibitors have the honor of being the first to start a campaign as stated above.

The Regent Theatre's policy of having a vocalist at each performance, and also an orchestra recital each afternoon, has proved a big success. The musicians under the leadership of Jack Arthur are the best playing for motion pictures in Canada. Mr. Arthur has exceptional ability for arranging musical scores and his theatre de luxe, Toronto, is filled nightly with music lovers. The Regent has recently raised its scale of prices but Mr. Mitchell, the manager, states that the increase in price has not affected business any. This theatre also issues each week a house organ called "The Screen Magazine," which is a very attractively gotten up little booklet.

NEW YORK TRADE NOTES

E. T. Paull Declares Action of Composers

E. T. Paull, the march composer, in an interview with the Herald representative, stated recently: "It seems to me that it is an infamous piece of business to make exhibitors pay for the simple privilege of playing the music which are thoroughly adapted to a particular picture. As a matter of fact, it seems to me that there are very few selections adapted solely to the screen. It must be borne in mind that composers for a particular picture costs thousands of dollars, and is, therefore, prohibitive. I am sure if the exhibitors stick together, the composers and authors will soon be a thing of the past."

"Kantskid" President Will Meet Auto Men

Chas. J. Weisstein, the inventor of "Kantskid," a device for autoists, and president of the Kantskid Mfg. company, is playing a battle for this material. At the present time the Associated Service Company is furnishing short subjects to houses on the Keith circuit.

KLINE MANAGES BAZAAR

Jack Kline, the well known motion picture producer, has been placed in charge of the Lyndhurst Bazaar. Mr. Kline intends to produce several comedy films during the coming year.

Public Schools Buy Simplex Projectors

The Erker Bros. Optical Company of St. Louis has placed a Simplex projector in the Cleveland high school, said to be the finest in school building construction in the pride of the city. This is the sixth educational institution in St. Louis to install Simplex projectors.

B. F. Porter, the Simplex distributer for Greater New York and northern New Jersey, has installed Simplex projectors in School No. 54, Bronx, and School No. 174, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Place Big Order

The Synder Music Publishing Company placed one of the largest orders ever given by a local publishing concern for slides this week.

BROSSEAU'S MUSIC FOR M. P. THEATRES

Yvon O. Brosseau, the well known music composer, has opened offices at 145 West Forty-fifth street, New York city, under the trade name of the Brosseau Music Corporation.

Mr. Brosseau is the author of a number of the big songs of the season and states that he is anxious to give motion picture exhibitors a square deal when furnishing them with suitable and untaxable music for their houses. Mr. Brosseau has well earned the title of the "maker of melodies of merit."

Arthur Gillard, the popular motion picture director, has foreseen for the time being the technical part of the game and has opened offices in the Putnam building, where he will do the casting for several picture productions.

Derry and Cobb are now making the final arrangements for the production of animated cartoons and it is expected that work will start about January 1.

The Associated Film Service, headed by Jack H. Glauber and Nat Nathanson, has become the Mecca for exhibitors seeking short subjects to fill programs. Both Messrs. Glauber and Nathanson have had several years' experience in the film industry and know the game well.

Charlie Snyder, the song writer, states that since his firm inaugurated the system of selling music via the screen method many exhibitors have reported increased box office receipts. This is one way to overcome that music tax.

Music Composers Become Publishers

L. Wolfe Gilbert and Anton Friedland, the writers of many song hits, have embarked in the music publishing business for themselves. There are few music lovers who do not know at least a score of the past successes of these two successful composers.

Messrs. Gilbert and Friedland have to their credit original songs as "Waiting for the Robert E. Lee," "My Little Dream Girl," "Lily of the Valley," "My Little Persian Rose," "My Sweet Adair," "My Own Iona," and many others.

Now, however, they have what is believed to be the greatest of all their works, a new ballad, "Are You From Heaven?" Many vaudeville artists are using this number and it is well on its way towards becoming a big favorite. It possesses unusual beauty and appeal. They have published it as a Flames record to One You're From Dixie," bids fair to become a formidable rival of any recent rag song.

Bruno Wick Made Pres.

Bruno Wick has been elected president of the K. B. H. agency, with office at 1482 Broadway. Mr. Wick is well known in the motion picture trade, having been connected with several big producers last season.

Shipman Engages A Famous Artist to Paint Designs

Ernest Shipman has engaged Gosta Carell, the noted Swedish portrait painter and illustrator, to put the real art punch into the publicity campaign for the Shorty Hamilton series of feature productions.

Mr. Carell, who is here on a visit to paint several important canvasses, is known as the "Whistler of modern Sweden," and this is the first time he has lent his brush to the needs of publicity plus art. A feature of his contract with Mr. Shipman is the fact that the artist has reserved for himself time in which to do his work without undue interference of type matter. "It is of no use for me to compose a strong, artistic design if you allow the printer to spoil it with type matter," was Mr. Carell's argument.

Ernest Shipman was quick to realize that an entirely novel effect could be obtained by co-operating with the artist along these lines, and the trade may look forward to certain art work surprises in the Shorty Hamilton series of pictures. The demand for these fine reel comedy features continues brisk, and Manager Shipman is being constantly congratulated on the high standard attained in their production by the W. H. Clifford Photoplay Company of Los Angeles, Cal.

Wyndham Standing Joins Petrova's Co.

The announcement comes from the Petrova Picture Company that Wyndham Standing, the English actor, has been added to the cast of the third Petrova production, now being made under the direction of Frank Crane. Mr. Standing comes of a long line of distinguished stage players and is a brother of Guy Standing, who recently met his death while fighting with the British forces in France.

Mr. Standing, who will be seen with Madame Petrova in "The Life Mask," this third starring vehicle, has appeared in screen productions of the Famous Players, Triangle and other prominent film companies. Thomas Holding, who played opposite Madame Petrova in the first two pictures bearing the mark of her own organization, will continue as leading man in "The Life Mask."

YOU will want to adopt this new, modern idea because it will make your theatre the most popular in town.

Projection with the new Sheck Universal Adapter and Mazda Projector Lamps has proven a success in the theatres where used on test during the past two years.

Our first announcement received the attention and interest of hundreds of progressive exhibitors.

Your theatre can be equipped with the Sheck Universal Adapter without interrupting your program schedule, and at a cost no greater than the saving in bills for electric current effected by the new equipment during the first year.

So at no extra cost you will be able to get better projection on the screen, eliminate "flicker" and eye strain, and, therefore, get the crowds in your theatre.

This is a progressive proposition for progressive exhibitors. Write for the facts, TODAY!

What America’s leading exhibitor say about “Mother”

Office of the Managing Director

December 19, 1917.

Mr. Frederick L. Collins,
The McClure’s Publications,
New York City.

My dear Mr. Collins:

I have just seen “Mother” by George Loane Tucker and, to say the least, it is a picture that will linger with me for a long, long time. Miss Risdon, who plays the character part of “Mother” gives one of the finest character performances I have ever witnessed on the screen. The refinement, the intelligence and the good taste displayed by her make her, in my opinion, one of the greatest artistes on the screen. The whole picture has an atmosphere of good taste about it and drama is so big that I don’t see how in the world it can go wrong. The musical possibilities in this picture are also great and I can assure you that if it is properly played and handled it will touch a responsive cord in everyone’s heart and is bound to be talked about.

I will let you know in the near future just what date I can give you in either The Rialto or The Rivoli and you can rest assured that I shall be glad indeed to play it.

Very sincerely yours,

Managing Director.

What the Critics Say of

MOTHER

George Loane Tucker's Beautiful Production with ELIZABETH RISDON

A picture that will make a genuine appeal to all. Elizabeth Risdon offers a characterization that is perfect."—Exhibitors Trade Review.

A healthy, moral, matchlessly staged story, done with that fine regard for realism."—Motion Picture News.

I have seen ‘Mother’ by George Loane Tucker, and to say the least, it is a picture that will linger with me for a long time."—S. L. Rothapfel (America’s Leading Exhibitor.)

The directorial genius of George Loane Tucker has lifted the photoplay ‘Mother’ far out of the classification of mediocrity and fixed its position securely as a human interest drama of rare merit. Coupled with the splendid work of Mr. Tucker there is the acting of Elizabeth Risdon, which is the final stroke in registering the production as one of the really worth-while screen dramas of the year."—Exhibitors Herald.

The production is a decidedly pleasing one and certainly one which should be joyfully welcomed, because it is human, and decidedly different in many ways. I have seen few characterizations on the screen that rank with the work done by Elizabeth Risdon.”—“Wid”

George Loane Tucker has done the screen a service by making a moving picture version of Eden Philpot’s fine novel. All that Abraham Lincoln said that he owed his mother, is shown in the love and devotion of Avisa Pomeroy for her son Ives. To realize the character of Avisa Pomeroy in all its beauty of devotion, kindly humor and shrewd insight into life is an achievement of the highest merit. Elizabeth Risdon accomplishes this with a perfection that is the more remarkable from the fact that the woman she portrays is nearly twice her own age.”—Moving Picture World.

Best Pictures Are Necessary to Maintain Attendance

PROBABLY the chief error of policy which a large number of exhibitors are succumbing to at this time is the use of inferior, cheaper pictures with a view to economical operation in the face of existing conditions.

This is the worst conceivable policy to be pursued and runs directly contrary to the right principles of merchandising and contrary to successful precedents established in other lines of commercial activity.

For various reasons attendance in certain quarters recently has not been up to standard. Many exhibitors in the face of this condition instead of exerting every effort and ingenuity to make more attractive their theatres, to strengthen the appeal of their programs, have allowed themselves to pursue a course of filling in with cheaper pictures.

The result of this has been that in many places where attendance recently has been slightly under normal, it has been reduced to the worst showing in years. The exhibitor must admit personal responsibility for this condition, because the fact is very evident that with poor attendance poor pictures will only make matters worse.

Instead of adding the discouragement of bad pictures to the various other influences that are keeping people away from picture theatres in unusual numbers, the exhibitor should make a studied effort to add unusual inducements for his regular patrons to attend.

To run a cheap picture on the ground that you do not expect good business on the particular night is a very good way of making certain that your business will not be good on that night, and probably not good on a few nights to follow.

It is the long-established practice of merchants everywhere to resort to unusual and extraordinary methods to create business when there is a general slump. In all the great merchandising establishments of the country when there is a dropping off of business you find the men responsible for the businesses resorting to bargain sales, clearance sales, "hour" sales and other American twentieth century methods of stimulating business.

If a merchant during a time when business was slack proceeded to put away his most attractive merchandise and only offer for sale odds and ends of moderate quality, it would not be long before he would be out of business.

The case of the manager of a motion picture theatre is a parallel one: When the usual tide of business recedes, special inducements should be offered. Pictures that are widely advertised should be used. Old favorites of lasting appeal should be put on. Advertising, which is a stimulator of business at all times, should be increased.

And in no case should an exhibitor for the sake of saving a few dollars offer programs of less than usual merit. Poor pictures will never maintain your patronage, and in the face of general conditions being unsatisfactory, they will drive business from your doors.

 Moore Leads the Way **

TOM MOORE, prominent exhibitor of Washington, D.C., has accomplished a real service for the benefit of every exhibitor in the United States in taking a determined stand against the autocratic methods of the Paramount-Artcraft combination.

It seems that Mr. Moore was informed that he should exhibit only such pictures as are issued by this company, at which point the Washington exhibitor informed the embryonic trust that he would seek his film elsewhere.

Mr. Moore has simply taken the logical, intelligent step of informing the distributing company that he was running his own business; that he did not consider their company, their pictures or their methods essential to the operation of his chain of theatres.

Mr. Moore’s cancellation probably is not vital to the distributing company, but it is indicative of the attitude which undoubtedly will eventually be assumed generally by exhibitors who have forced upon them unfair, unjust and inequitable contract conditions.

 Wise judgment prompts the action of the owners of that most successful film, “The Birth of a Nation,” in issuing it to exhibitors generally at this time. General conditions demand the biggest and the best in motion picture art, and the famous Griffith film will now be most effective for exhibitors. **

 Conservation **

of the coal supply is a national necessity. Exhibitors now have an added opportunity to demonstrate their patriotism by obeying willingly and fully the government orders regarding “Lightless” nights. To dim the beckoning incandescents will work a hardship here and there, but it is a necessary hardship and one which cannot be avoided.

Exhibitors Revolt Against Paramount

Tom Moore, Washington, D. C. Exhibitor Answers One Service Ultimatum With Cancellation of Ninety Contracts—William Heaney, of Chicago Also Throws Out Service

The giant Paramount-Artcraft octopus whose tentacles have spread throughout the United States encircling the throats of exhibitors, choking from them their profits by means of the advance deposit system and excessive rentals, was dealt a stunning blow last week when Tom Moore, one of America's foremost exhibitors and operator of eighteen theatres in the District of Columbia, served notice of cancellations on the embryo "trust."

To the feeling of unrest which has beset exhibitors throughout the country this combine has been one of the largest contributing agencies. By means of its advance deposit system it has gathered in its clutches more than $3,000,000 of the motion picture theatre owners' money and with this amount has fostered its autocratic policies.

Other exhibitors seeing their profits devoured by the monster with ever increasing greediness have resorted to cancellation as the only weapon with which to protect themselves from ultimate ruin. Among these is William Heaney, of Chicago, manager of the Madison Square, Crawford and Virginia theatres, three leading Chicago houses. Another is A. Dooley, of Pater-

One Service Ultimatum

As a further indication of the monopolistic tendencies of the Zukor combine.

MR. MOORE CHARGES THAT HE WAS SENT AN ULTIMATUM INFORMING HIM THAT IT WOULD BE NECESSARY FOR HIM TO SHOW ALL OF THE PICTURES OF THESE TWO COMPANIES IN ALL OF HIS THEATRES TO THE EXCLUSION OF ALL OTHER COMPANIES.

"They can't bulldoze me," said Mr. Moore, defiantly. "I have cancelled my sixty-eight contracts with the Paramount Company and twenty-two contracts with the Artcraft Company."

"I am working for Tom Moore. I have my own ideas of how my own business should be run, and, in all modesty, I think that those ideas are partially responsible for whatever success I have had. I will continue in my own way. When I can't do that I'll quit."

Profit Caused Submission

"For some time there had been a serious question in my mind as to how long existing conditions would continue. I knew I was paying extravagant prices, but, like thousands of other exhibitors, I submitted so long as I saw a profit."

"Recently I was informed it would be necessary for me to show all of the pictures of these two particular companies in all of my theatres, to the exclusion of the pictures of all other companies. I cancelled every contract."

"The motion picture business is too important and the exhibitors are too good business men to tolerate bulldozing tactics of this kind. We are too far-sighted to permit any one company to 'hog' all of the business establishing a monopoly that will place us absolutely in their control."

Green Makes Statement

To the direct statement of Mr. Moore comes in contrast the retort of President W. E. Greene of the Artcraft Company.

"Tom Moore's statement does not concern us. We cancelled Moore's contracts, so you see Moore has the cart before the horse. We only had eight star feature contracts, Paramount & Artcraft combined, and we cancelled them, and not Moore."

"However," he added, "I do not wish you to quote this as being an official statement from Paramount as I am only giving it to you as you were looking for information."

Moore Forms Company

Simultaneously with his announcement that he had cancelled the Paramount and Artcraft services, Mr. Moore gave out the information that he had formed a corporation capitalized at $2,000,000 known as the Moore's Theatres Corporation through which he will conduct the business of the theatres under his control.

J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager of Pathe, his assistant C. A. Smith and D. F. O'Donnell, manager of Pathe's Washington branch, have closed a deal with Mr. Moore, whereby Pathe pictures will be exhibited in all of the houses under his management.

Heaney's Action Significant

Added significance is attached to the cancellations of the Paramount-Artcraft service by Mr. Heaney when it is recalled that he, as manager of the Crawford Theatre, was the first exhibitor on the West Side of Chicago to align him-themselves with the companies named. Since 1914 the Crawford has been the only Chiicago theatre to use consistently the four day a week service of the companies, running each picture two days.

Mr. Heaney's action involves the cancelling of twelve contracts with the Paramount and its affiliated company and deprives the Chicago exchange of more than $15,000 yearly in revenue.

"The houses under my control can no longer use the Paramount and Artcraft service at a profit," said Mr. Heaney in commenting on his action. "This has been apparent for some time. Their excessive rental charges coupled with the unjust demand for advance deposits have made business with the companies impossible."

The action of Mr. Heaney is believed to be but the forerunner of a general protest by means of cancellations of many other exhibitors throughout Chicago against the methods employed by the concerns.

Berst Makes Statement

While no names are mentioned in his statement, Mr. Berst charges that the greatest evil in the industry today is "the high film rental being charged by certain companies for unproductive pictures."

"I was surprised," stated Mr. Berst upon his arrival in Los Angeles, "to learn the extent of the feeling of unrest among the exhibitors from coast to coast. This statement applies particularly to the large exhibitors, but I understand from my branches that the same conditions apply also to the owners of the smaller houses, the backbone of the industry."

"I do not think I exaggerate when I state that the situation is so serious, as to assume the proportions of a revolt. Everywhere I go I find the same situation. The exhibitors with whom I discussed conditions unanimously agreed that the greatest evil in the industry today is the high film rental being charged by certain companies for unproductive pictures."

"Tom Moore, whom I consider one of the greatest exhibitors in the country, offers a good illustration. Mr. Moore told me that he submitted to extravagant prices for certain stars as long as he saw a possible profit. But when an attempt was made to force him, through a contact, to show all of the pictures of one company, to the exclusion of all of the other companies, he states he cancelled in all ninety contracts for eighteen theaters. We are pleased to announce that Mr. Moore has arranged to show our forthcoming feature productions."
Allied Exhibitors Legislative Committee
Urges Theatremen to Send in Reports

Definite Plan Has Been Agreed Upon—Publicity Committee Collecting Statistics—Figures Wanted at Once

As the result of meetings which were held in New York during the past week between the Allied Exhibitors Legislative Committee and a similar committee from the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, harmony and unity was established and the two bodies agreed on a definite plan of campaign to be pursued in obtaining the necessary remedial legislation from Congress during this session.

This combined committee is to be known as the Legislative committee of the Motion Picture Industry, and is made up as follows: Walter W. Irwin, P. A. Powers, Gabriel L. Hess, Ricord Gradwell, Arthur S. Friend, Frank Rembusch, H. B. Varner, John J. O'Donnell, Ernest H. Horstmann and Lee A. Ochs. The following committee on publicity was also appointed: Walter W. Irwin, P. A. Powers, Frank Rembusch and Lee A. Ochs.

For obvious reasons the plan of activities as laid out by this permanent legislative committee cannot be announced at this time. The important fact, however, is that the two committees were enabled to comprehend that success could only be achieved by means of a united industry and after some discussion it was determined that the two committees could concentrate their efforts along the same lines, and the plan of campaign as finally decided upon was eminently satisfactory. The convention of exhibitors at Washington not only succeeded in bringing about harmony and unity of action among the exhibitors but will undoubtedly bring about harmony between the exhibitors and distributors.

The duties of the publicity committee that was appointed will be largely that of collecting and compiling information of a statistical nature for the benefit of the legislative committee. In order to bring this to the attention of the exhibitors of the country exhibitors committee has taken full pages of advertising in all of the trade papers calling upon exhibitors to supply the detailed and accurate information as to how the war taxes have affected the business of their individual theatres.

The advertisement is addressed to all motion picture exhibitors and appears on another page of this issue of the Exhibitors Herald.

In filling out the blank exhibitors are requested to be absolutely frank and honest. No attempt is being made in collecting this information to disclose business secrets in any way. At the Washington convention it was suggested that exhibitors be asked to state their gross business for the month of November in the year 1916 and 1917, but this was objected to as it was thought that many exhibitors would refuse to disclose their gross business. As a result the question was put in the form which appears in the advertisement as it was thought that no exhibitor would object to stating the amount of the decrease between the two years.

Of course, if business has increased state that fact but also explain the reason for the increase. It is desired that these blanks be filled out and returned as soon as possible to go over them and classify the information they contain before appearing before Congress.

Peggy Hyland Signs Contract With Fox to Star in Features

Peggy Hyland, the English actress who has made a name for herself in the United States within two years as a motion picture star, has become a Wilquishment's premier starring vehicle a story admirably suited to her petite beauty. The name of the director who is to have charge of Miss Hyland will be announced soon. Her pictures will be screened in the Eastern studios.

Miss Hyland was born in Worcestershire, England, and was educated there and in convents on the Continent. One of the institutions which she attended was that of Seroule, in Verviers, on the Belgian frontier. Her first appearance before the footlights was with George Edwards' company at the Gaiety, in London. Later she was a member of Sir Herbert Tree's forces. Then she entered the silent drama and a contract with a leading film corporation brought her to the United States eighteen months ago.

“THE EAGLE’S EYE”
TO HAVE SHOWING OF FIRST EPISODES

A trade showing of several of the first episodes of "The Eagle’s Eye," Secret Service Chief Flynn’s screen exposure of the Imperial German Government’s spy system in America, will be held in January, it is announced. Exhibitors who get in touch with the Foursquare Exchanges will be informed of the exact date and sent invitations.

This attraction is unique and should prove a distinct novelty because of the subject and the important public position of its sponsor, Chief Flynn, and every showman knows that any attraction, whether picture or play, founded on a subject in which everybody is interested, is quite certain to prove a sure-fire business proposition.

Everybody knows of the Imperial German Government’s spy army in America, everyone has read about its activities in the daily press and everybody talks about it. Chief Flynn and his work in checking enemy spy plots is also familiar to everyone.

The peculiarly timely interest in the subject and the personal popularity and public reputation of the man on whose story this serial is based, should make "The Eagle’s Eye" one of the biggest screen novelties of the season.

The exhibition of a picture treating of a subject so closely related to the great world war and so intimately touching every citizen, cannot but hold a most important place in current events.

Chicago Exhibitors in Comprehensive Booking Pact

Ascher Brothers and Lubliner & Trinz Align to Obtain More Diversified Program—Thirty-Four Other Theaters Form Organization

To avoid conflicting bookings, Ascher Bros. and Lubliner & Trinz, Chicago motion picture theatre men, who control twenty-three houses, have entered into an agreement whereby the former company will do the booking for both. The agreement, officials of both firms concerned, state, is merely a booking arrangement and is not to be regarded in any way as a pooling of interests.

At almost the same time that the news of this became public came the announcement of another booking combine affecting approximately thirty-four theatres. Heading this organization is Joseph Hopp, president of the local branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors’ League; H. C. Miller, William Heaney, S. W. Burford and John Bobeng are also concerned in the new venture. The Ascher-Lubliner-Trinz combine takes in many of the larger showing picture theatres in Chicago. The two companies are keen competitors in various parts of the city and the booking arrangement, it is said, was necessitated because both concerns found themselves occasionally running on a losing basis through the same pictures being booked in the same districts simultaneously.

Details of Plan

Efforts to have this evil corrected through individual appeal to the various exchanges, officials of the companies say, has proved unavailing. Beyond admitting that they would do the booking in the future for the Lubliner & Trinz houses, Ascher Bros. would make no further comment.

Joseph Trinz, while a bit more communicative than the Aschers, had little to add to the general statement concerning the booking agreement. “Ascher Bros. and Lubliner & Trinz compete in various parts of the city,” he said. “As an example, in one part of the city, within a radius of one and one-half miles, we have seven picture theatres; that is, the two companies. At various times we have had the same pictures booked in the same week, with the result that both have had to sustain losses.

Move A voids Duplication

“We have been in the position where we have had to take what the film exchanges wanted to give us and take the pictures when they sent them to us. Under the new arrangement we will avoid this duplication of the same pictures in various sections of the city and offer a more diversified program. In this way we believe our losses can be lessened to a great extent.”

Mr. Trinz was somewhat pessimistic over the general outlook in theatrical lines and intimated that it might be necessary for the larger houses to resort to a cheaper class of films if they are to continue in business.

Lubliner & Trinz, it is said, have already sent notices of cancellation to the film exchanges in connection with the booking of pictures for their houses. New contracts will be drawn up by Ascher Bros. for the twenty-three houses, the booking for which they will have charge of in the future.

“The Associated Theatres”

Of even greater size, in the point of the number of houses to be booked and in scope of territory, is the new organization to be headed by Mr. Hopp. The tentative name of the association is The Associated Theatres. William Heaney is treasurer; D. W. Burford, secretary; H. C. Miller, auditor, and John Bobeng a member of the auditing committee.

In addition to booking for nineteen Chicago theatres, their activities will extend into the state as far south as Springfield, Ill. Twenty-five theatres, outside of Chicago, in the state, it is said, have asked to be included in the booking program of the association. The Associated Theatres proposes to book its own films, selecting them from the open market or taking only the best of the program offerings, obtaining them for its members at a uniform price, which will permit a reasonable profit to both the exchanges and the exhibitors.

Combats Deposit System

The new company is now working on a forty-day booking agreement with those companies demanding advance deposits, the association putting up the deposit for its members. “We are working along the lines of the First National Exhibitors’ Circuit,” said Mr. Miller, in discussing the project. “We fully believe that there are many features to be had today through the state rights and open booking market that are superior to the one-a-week features offered by the big companies.

“I am of the opinion that the year 1918 will witness the universal adoption of the open booking plan, so that an exhibitor can shop around among the various distributors and select pictures best suited to his needs.”

William Fox Employs Exhibitor to Aid Cooperative Service Plan

J. J. Raymond Added to Executive Staff of Film Corporation —Will Solve Problems of Management and Profit Making

To make even more practical and individually serviceable the assistance now being given exhibitors in the preparation of publicity and advertising matter, and in the solution of managerial problems, William Fox has added an exhibitor to his staff. His position is said to be the first of the sort created by a film producer. J. J. Raymond of New York and Boston is the man selected, and his sole duty will be the promotion of exhibitors' interests.

Mr. Raymond has had twenty-five years' experience, covering every phase of the amusement business. He began with road attractions. Then he had a long period of service with George C. Tilyou at Coney Island. For the last ten years, most of the time as general representative, he has been associated with Gordon Brothers, New England exhibitors, who operate a chain of motion picture houses.

Not only is Mr. Raymond well known in theatrical circles of New York and New England, but he also has been widely quoted in the trade press on subjects pertaining to theatre management. He also has commented extensively on kindred topics for other publications.

"Why Exhibitors Fail" is one of the subjects on which he has written frequently.

"My endeavor as a Fox Film Corporation employee," he explains, "will be to render both general and individual service to the exhibitor. I am to be the exhibitors' representative in this office. My work will supplement that already being done by the publicity and advertising department, extending to problems of management, and especially to the important matter of profit-making. My business will be to show how to win and hold patronage."

It appears also that there is another phase of Mr. Raymond's proposed activities. He will keep the exhibitors' viewpoint constantly before the Fox corporation departments which do not come in direct contact with the theatre.

"How would that appeal to the exhibitor?" is a question constantly arising in various departments of a producer's organization," said General Manager Winfield Sheehan, in commenting on the appointment. "It will be part of Mr. Raymond's duty to answer this inquiry."

"Try as they may, men who are not constantly in touch with exhibitors, or who do not thoroughly understand exhibitors' problems, are likely at times to lose the point of view we are always striving to maintain. We do not want even occasional deviations, so we have placed at the disposal of our departmental chiefs a man who has had practical dollars and cents experience in every branch of the amusement business. He will devote his entire time to answering questions and offering suggestions within the organization and to directly helping exhibitors. His work will be of, and for, the theatre manager and owner."

Geo. Walsh to Star in "Jack Spurlock"

George Walsh is to play the title role in the William Fox film version of "Jack Spurlock—Prodigal," written by George Horace Lorimer, editor of the Saturday Evening Post. Carl Harbaugh is to direct the picture. Mr. Fox believes that Mr. Walsh and Mr. Harbaugh will put the Lorimer story on the screen in a fashion that will add to the reputation of each.

Mr. Fox announces that every exhibitor listed January 30, 1913, as having contracted for the William Fox special features, will get "Jack Spurlock—Prodigal" without extra charge. He also announces that an extraordinary publicity and advertising campaign will be conducted in its behalf.

Whatrons Guard Studio

The Whatrons have taken full precautions to guard their studio at Ithaca, N. Y., where they are producing the serial, "The Eagle's Eye," in which Chief Pym of the Secret Service exposes the machinations of the Imperial German Government's spy system in this country. No one is permitted to enter the grounds or buildings without a pass, and armed guards are posted about the premises night and day.

Extensive Additions to Big Paralta Plant

Work on the construction of additions to the Paralta Studios, made necessary by the advance demand for Paralta Plays, is now well under way at Hollywood, Los Angeles. The additions include stages, dressing room structures, property rooms.

The cement foundations for these new structures were completed some time ago and work is progressing on the buildings themselves. The completion of the new studios will enable Paralta, Inc., to increase materially its output and to add other well known Henry B. Walsh.

New Rivoli—Rothapfel Masterpiece—Opens in New York

TS Grecian front glowing as illuminating system so as its white marble from an indirect whole outline was thrown into bold relief even in Broadway, the most brilliantly lighted thoroughfare in the world, the new Rivoli, New York’s latest and greatest motion picture palace, was formally opened to the public last Friday night by S. L. Rothapfel, who will direct its destinies.

From an architectural point of view the Rivoli offers a number of novel features which will be of interest to theatre builders and to the playgoing public in general. Nothing in the way of architecture has ever called forth more admiring comments from the crowds along Broadway than the classic facade which fronts on that busy thoroughfare. Viewed from the street, it suggests an art museum or public library, rather than a theatre, and unquestionably it already has taken rank as the handsomest theatrical edifice in the city.

The most striking feature of the facade is its row of eight towering Doric columns. These extend from a point above the level of the marquee, clear up to the entablature, with nothing to relieve their severity save the leaded glass windows set into the wall behind them. Crowning the entire facade is the broad triangular pediment, adorned with sculptured figures in deep bas relief, which suggest those of the world-famed Parthenon at Athens. These figures are symbolic of music and the arts in general, as befits the nature of the entertainment offered within.

Coming to the interior construction of the Rivoli, the most novel and interesting feature is found in the elaborate precautions which have been taken to insure the expediencies handling of large crowds. Taking advantage of the fact that the building extends through the block from Broadway to Seventh, the architect designed a series of passageways of generous width which parallel the auditorium on both sides and straight through the structure from front to rear. Not only are the orchestra and mezzanine floors cared for in this manner, but each cross-axis of the balcony has its own corridors as well, so that patrons in any part of the house will find themselves but a few steps from a doorway, at which they can turn either to right or to left and pass directly to the street most convenient to them, without interference from incoming crowds.

The whole structure is built with similar ideas of spaciousness; the foyer is wide enough to give easy access to theatre which was rebuilt as a house before the artistic value of Mr. Rothapfel’s ideas on lighting had been demonstrated. Profiting by the popularity of “color symphonies,” for which the Rialto has become famous, the builders of the Rivoli took into consideration that feature from the outset, with the result that the place is equipped from floor to dome with all the wiring, the masked lamps, and other ingeniously

As an instance of the advanced ideas in the theatre equipment which have been embodied at the Rivoli, a room off the first mezzanine has been lined in with the latest equipped as an emergency hospital. There will be a trained nurse in attendance at all times to handle cases of sudden illness or accident among the guests or the employes of the theatre.

The Rivoli is extraordinarily well equipped with facilities for its musicians, individual artists, ushers and the general staff. The musicians have a large lounging room to themselves, with locker room and shower baths adjoining. The dressing rooms have showers, and there is a separate lounging room for the soloists and other individuals on the program. The ushers and the stage crew are cared for in like fashion, each in a separate portion of the building.

The executive offices will be on the second mezzanine, at the front of the theatre, excepting the office of the manager, which will be just off the orchestra floor. Mr. Rothapfel’s executive staff will consist of the following men: Hugo Riesenfeld, musical director; C. C. Stewart, manager; Halish McLaurin, director of publicity; Edwin Mocsary, treasurer; Joseph La Rose, master of effects; Charles C. Reis, superintendent; Lester Brown, chief operator; George Larbig, chief electrician, and Edward M. Berry, in command of ushers.

The theatre cost approximately half a million dollars to construct, and the job was completed in six months almost to the day. The land on which the Rivoli stands is owned by the Barney estate, executors for the late Charles T. Barney, one of the founders of the New Theatre, now known as the Century.

The general scheme of decoration is of the Italian Renaissance. The dominant colors will be dull gold, ivory and black, carpets of gray and the seats upholstered in tapestry.

A method of handling color through a system of indirect lighting permits of effects in the Rivoli which are beyond the imagining of those who have not seen them. At the Rialto Mr. Rothapfel first essayed this with results that were satisfactory, but the lighting plan there was in a measure experimental. It was used on a motion picture theatre which was rebuilt as a house before the artistic value of Mr. Rothapfel’s ideas on lighting had been demonstrated. Profiting by the popularity of “color symphonies,” for which the Rialto has become famous, the builders of the Rivoli took into consideration that feature from the outset, with the result that the place is equipped from floor to dome with all the wiring, the masked lamps, and other ingeniously

FRONT VIEW OF RIVOLI, NEW YORK’S LATEST AND GREATEST MOTION PICTURE THEATER. AT 1022 BROADWAY, AND EXTENDING BACK TO SEVENTH AVENUE.
The Opening Night at the Rivoli

A most impressive picture was presented at the opening of the Rivoli Theatre, at Forty-ninth street and Broadway, on Friday night, Dec. 28, as the crowds surveyed the classic beauty of the “Conservatory of Jewels,” and the gorgeous interior finish of the theatre. At 8:30 the curtain rose, while a soft glow descended over the audience and “The Victory of Democracy,” bursting from the Rivoli orchestra, directed by H. R. Rothapfel, of a touching oration in four episodes, picturing events from the time of the coming of the Pilgrims, to Pershing in France and ending in a tableau, of the allied countries, the trumpets of Peace and the “Star Spangled Banner.” Then came “A World of Dreams,” in ideal scenic views. A most novel Animated Pictorial was next thrown on the screen, with Miss Sturges, from the Rivoli orchestra, a large and entertaining features Douglas Fairbanks, in “A Modern Musketeer” was shown, the picture drawing enthusiastic applause.

The opening marked a new era in the history of the silent drama in New York and the invited guests were unanimous in their praise of the new house and its tireless sponsor, S. L. Rothapfel.—J. B.

It is equipped with every attachment known to the organ builder’s art, and will supply adequate musical atmosphere for those performances at which the orchestra is not present.

Herbert Brenon to Film “False Faces” Sequel Play to “Lone Wolf” Production

Bert Lytell Chosen for Leading Role With Rest of Cast to Be Selected—Story by Louis Joseph Vance

With “The Passing of the Third Floor Back” completed, Herbert Brenon will soon start work on a sequel picture to “Lone Wolf,” entitled “False Faces.” The story, by Louis Joseph Vance, has just been completed in serial form in the Saturday Evening Post.

Bert Lytell will again be seen in the title role. Announcement is not as yet made of the remainder of the cast, though it is more than probable that many of those who took part in the former production will be seen again in their old roles.

In the sequel, the action is transferred to the battlefields of Europe. With the war and the war’s spectacular setting as a background, it contains many exciting incidents and hair-breadth escapes. The Lone Wolf has forsaken his life of crime, but not his love of adventure. He meets old friends and old enemies and makes new ones. He becomes entangled in a network of thrilling events.

HIS wife and child are dead. But that by no means puts an end to his romance. He is young, and life has only just begun for him. While those who have seen the Lone Wolf will be doubly interested in his return, those who are unfamiliar with his previous escapades will have no difficulty in following his career, Louis Joseph Vance, bearing in mind the needs of the screen, has made his continuation a complete sequence.

Gott Strafe “Dough”

If the oversubscription of two liberty loans and the rapid strides made by the United States government in preparing for war now had the desired result perhaps this will strike terror to the heart of one William Von Hohenzollern: Douglas Fairbanks has intimated that he will join the United States aviation corps. He made known his intention during his preparation to appear at a Christmas benefit.

“For the first time since I went into pictures,” he said, “I shall appear in a dramatic production on the stage. It will probably be my farewell to the dramatic stage for some time as I expect to go to war early in the New Year and will probably be flying ‘Somewhere in France’ before I have another chance to face an audience over the footlights.”

“The House of Glass” Latest Vehicle for Clara Kimball Young

The filming of “The House of Glass” was begun this week in the Clara Kimball Young, studio in New Rochelle. This will be the next Select Picture produced by Miss Young and her own company, and follows her most recently completed offer, “The House of Glass.” It is being directed by Emile Chautard.

Only a portion of the casts has been accomplished. Corliss Giles, who was Miss Young’s leading man in “Shirley Kaye,” has been chosen to support her in the present production, and her father, Edward Kimball, has been given a strong part. The role of Burke, the chauffeur-cook, which is one of the most important in the play, had been planned for Nigel Barrie, but his enlistment last year led to minor changes in the casting, and the part has not as yet been filled. His wife has been cast as Nellie, the maid.

“The House of Glass” can be purchased after spirited bidding from rival film concerns is and one of the most important of the year. It is a melodrama, written by Max Marx and the screen adaptation has been made by Charles F. Whittaker. This will be the third of the Select Star picture made by Clara Kimball Young and her own company, and when finished will be distributed through Select Exchanges.

In furtherance of his policy of direct recognition of effective work in World Pictures, Director General William A. Brady has arranged to feature George MacQuarrie with little Madge Evans in “Gates of Gladness.”

The first engagement of Mr. MacQuarrie by Mr. Brady was as leading man for the principal traveling company playing “Bought and Paid For” as a spoken drama. Under Mr. Brady’s direction in World Pictures, Mr. MacQuarrie has acquired a reputation as one of the most dependable of actors for the screen, appearing successfully in a very wide range of roles of varying requirements.

He has invested prominent roles also in “Diamonds and Pearls,” with Kitty Gordon; “The Tenth Case,” with June Elvidge; “Her Hour,” with Miss Gordon; “A Maid of Belgium,” with Miss Brady, and many of the other notable plays published by the World Film Corporation.

Chicago Branch A. E. A. Names Beatty to Head Organization for Next Year

South Side Man Nominated for Office of Presidency Without Opposition—Louis H. Frank Chosen Unanimously for Treasurer

E. Thomas Beatty, whose individual aggressiveness and whole-hearted devotion to the interests of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners Association, Chicago branch of the American Exhibitors Association, has stamped him as a leader for membership rewarding the presidency of that body for the ensuing year. Mr. Beatty was nominated for the office unopposed.

A. J. Krug, the retiring head of the organization, has proved himself capable executive. Following the nomination of Mr. Beatty, by Louis H. Frank, present treasurer of the body, Mr. Krug asked that he be not named for the office. He told the members that his theatrical interests had become so much more of his time would be required in his own interests and that he felt that he could not do the association justice in retaining the office. Mr. Krug succeeded Herman Schoenstadt when the latter resigned.

Mr. Beatty, who is owner of a number of south side motion picture theatres, has been the prime mover in practically every action taken by the local association during the trying times of the past months. It was at his suggestion that action was taken against the various film exchanges who sought to impose the 13 cents per reel per day tax.

Paralta Press Book for “Madam Who” Film

Paralta Plays, Inc., has issued an attractive press book for the exploitation of “Madam Who,” in which Bessie Bariscale will make her debut as a star in Paralta Plays.

The cover, which is done in three colors on the cover itself with the cover off, together with a most attractive picture of the star.

Realizing that practically all exhibitors prefer to make up their own advertising copy, the stock advertisements have been omitted and in their place is a page devoted to catch lines to be used as an assistance in laying out display advertising copy.

On the next pages are cuts of the billing paper and stock cuts to be used in newspapers and programs. Then follows a series of press stories arranged for the requirements of the theatres showing the production. In preparing these pages the fact has been taken into consideration that most of the newspapers throughout the country have a regular schedule for the handling of motion picture copy.

The price of the press book is so arranged as to supply the exhibitor with advance notices, Sunday notices, mid-week readers and special stories for the exploitation of “Madam Who,” written in such a manner as to save the exhibitor the time and effort to prepare them to suit his local needs. On the final page of the book is printed music cues for the picture.

American Films Are Gaining Favor Among Brazilian Exhibitors

Although recently there has been evident in the Brazilian film territory a marked preference for Italian made photo productions, owing to the increased cost of American films, Miss Edna Williams, special representative of the Robertson-Cole Company, to which concern has been allotted the foreign distributing rights to the productions of the U. S. Exhibitors’ Booking Corporation, believes that the early future will see a change in favor of the American products.

A survey of the Brazilian field, declared Miss Williams, “has impressed me with the fact that American films have been advancing rapidly in popularity in that territory, and that as soon as the prices of the productions made in the United States are regulated to the satisfaction of the exhibitors of Brazil, they will probably use our pictures to the exclusion of all others.”

Miss Williams has announced the sale of exhibition rights to “The Zeppelin’s Last Raid,” the Thomas H. Ince spectacle, for Brazil.
War-Time America Craves Pictures of Emotional Type, Claims Goldfish

Prediction That Only Pictures of Light and Frivolous Character Would Suffer to Meet Situation Not Bore Out by Facts, Asserts Goldwyn Head

The impression gained by the motion picture industry that with the entrance of the United States into the war there would be little or no demand for plays other than comedies and light dramas has been found to be false, according to Samuel Goldwyn, chairman of the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation. On the other hand, the Goldwyn executive asserts, there is a demand throughout the country for screen entertainment which gives emotional satisfaction.

"There is a decided trend," Mr. Goldfish states, "toward sturdy, upstanding, heart-interesting films. Nowhere have I seen the people of the whole world been living, feeling and thinking so seriously. Many thought that America's entrance into the war's success would put a damper on light, frothy comedy as a relief from the war's cares. The experience of the whole industry has shown the contrary. America is starved of deep, emotional pictures. America is aroused emotionally as it has not been in half a century. The reflection of this is a tremendous and constantly growing demand for screen entertainment that gives emotional satisfaction, that expresses the stress of the moment and its optimism. America is ready to meet any problem, any situation, tremendous though it may be and tragic in its potentials, and America is ready to solve it with confident heroism.

Nation's Mood Reflected

"It is a virtual demand on us, the motion picture industry, to see the democratic screen so truly a reflector of the nation's mood. As to any general prophesy, I feel most confident that in a fundamental respect, Goldwyn's policy and experience will rule in the industry during the course of events. This will be a demand for better pictures. By this I mean that more and more producers will come to realize that the making of quality pictures will profit them. The making of a good quality product, takes time. No organization on earth can turn out splendid productions at the rate of two a week.

Goldwyn is accomplishing good stories, good actors and good direction, sufficient for a new production every fortnight. Frankly, it has not been the simplest thing in the world. In the present state of the industry even such a schedule strains an organization to its very highest efficiency. I think that Goldwyn is doing it, working on this basis, and the paucity of really outstanding pictures produced on any hurry-call-system of production in the past year, will determine the competition to slower and better work. The public, as well as the exhibitor, will unquestionably profit by this.

Rosalie's Year's Work

"To me this New Year is more significant than any I have hitherto passed in the motion picture industry, because it also marks the completion of the first year of activity of the new company with which I have aligned myself, the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation. I am therefore looking back upon a year spent not alone in the making and selling of pictures, but also in the working out of organization problems. Goldwyn Pictures have been before the public for only four months; for the balance of the year I have been absorbed with the more fundamental matter of gathering associates and laying the basis upon which better pictures might be safely and sanely built.

"Frankly, I place a great deal of store by the factors in Goldwyn. They express, to my mind, the things needed most keenly in motion picture progress—story and production. From Edgar Selwyn and Alva Strong, Miss Margaret Mayo, who gave up stage work to devote her whole time to the Goldwyn studio, has derived notable contribution in quality of story and in dramatic values developed. Miss Mayo has done big things for Goldwyn. She will do bigger things still. She took hold of this new art of the screen with great and serious enthusiasm, and she has mastered it as she mastered the problem of writing and producing big Broadway successes. I advise every one interested in the progress of the screen to watch most closely the work that Miss Mayo will do for us during the coming year.

"As for the technical side of production, there Goldwyn has been singularly fortunate in the work contributed by one of the leading artists of America who has supervised settings, lighting and costuming—Hugo Ballin."

Two More Dressler Comedies Ready Soon

Production activities of the Dressler Producing Corporation grow apace in California. Word comes from the Hollywood studios that Marie Dressler has on the Pacific Coast by the King Bee, making four finished and ready for exhibitors. Two of these, "Fired" and "The Scrub Lady," are now being shown throughout the United States.

Neither of the new comedies has been titled, but it is said that one of them has to do with a subject closely akin to the war and that it has been developed in a manner slightly different from the usual Dressler comedy pattern. This story has a real plot, pathetic interests, intense and deep sentiment and pathos, and is said to give Miss Dressler an unusual opportunity for real acting. The new comedies are of two reels each.

Comedy Sans Subtitles

The latest production of the King Bee Films is a remarkable example of novelty, in that it contains no subtitles. It is entitled "The Slave" and stars Billy West. The comedy, the first to be filmed big Broadway success, the King Bee Company, told its story so plainly, it is said, that subtitles were found unnecessary.

MINERVA DISARMED

An interesting incident occurred while the prints for "New York's newest motion picture theatre, were still under consideration and the drawings were being inspected in the street, Russell B. Smith and R. E. Hall, the engineers who put up this building. The central figure in the drawing of the pediment was a Miss Margaret Mayo, like woman, with helmet, breastplate and sword. A young lady who chanced to come into the office and was looking at the drawings, remarked to Mr. Hall: "I don't think it is very good taste to have a figure of war put up there just at this time. Why remind people of the war?"

Though Mr. Hall knew that the sculptor had meant the figure merely as a Miss Margaret Mayo Goddess and not necessarily a daughter of Mars, he saw the young woman's point immediately and realized that what was probably hundreds of others would feel the same. Therefore the helmet came off the statue altogether, the breastplate was placed by soft draperies, and the sword was converted into a torch. Thus was Minerva transformed into a gentle figure representing Culture (not the German kind), Progress and Enlightenment.

Military Officers Say Zeppelin Model Accurate in Detail

Frank G. Hall, president and general manager of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, is receiving congratulations for the accuracy with which the inner workings of the Zeppelin are depicted in the Thomas H. Ince spectacle "The Zeppelin's Last Raid," which the company is distributing throughout the world.

American and Canadian military officers have sent congratulatory messages to Mr. Hall concerning the Zeppelin production. The staff at Camp Dix, Wrightstown, N. J., viewed "The Zeppelin's Last Raid" when shown by the R. M. C. A. at the New Jersey encampment a few weeks ago and were strongly impressed by the accuracy of its construction and the striking realism of the bombardment scenes.

Mayer Cartoon to Allies

George C. Creel, director of public information, has selected one of Hy Mayer's cartoons, originally appearing in the Universal Current Events, as fitting propaganda to go abroad to the nations allied with the United States in the world war. "The Eagle's Brood" is the title of the cartoon, and nine copies have been sent to the Allies for exhibition on the screen as an officially authorized action in support of the war.

The opening of the Rivoli Theatre was the cause of many a domestic wrangle in the homes of a few of our B’way scribes. When some of the boys reached home they found to their dismay that the good wife had neglected to send the “boiled” shirt to the laundry, and since its previous festive appearance it had turned to that beautiful shade of cream which makes ivory so valuable. The guests at the Rivoli were surprised at the snow effects in the lobby of the theatre and some of the more curious of the visitors examined closely this white floor covering only to find it was marble dust and corn starch. The boys got there just the same and made a fine appearance as they lined up behind their “purity fronts” to review an epoch-making event in the history of cinema presentation.

The week’s best laugh is caused by the subtle humor of Walter E. Greene, who said, “We cancelled Tom Moore’s contracts.” Which causes us to wonder what a picture contract is for if one, or both of the signers can “Kaiserize” the “scrap of paper” when they see fit.

We must record that the alcoholic content of beer has been reduced to 2½ per cent, but there has been no reduction in the size of the collar. We also observe that the average press agent, taking this into consideration has reduced the solid contents of his effusions, and added more pages to his “Edition de Luxe” bound in kid, and since they arrive short of postage that is where we have the buck passed to us.

Julian Eltinge, one of our foremost actors, who paid close attention to “The Clever Mrs. Carfax,” is now dividing his attention with another, equally attractive.

Herbert Brenon’s “Empty Pockets” Completed and Turned Over to First National Circuit

Production Said to Be Well Up to Producers Standard—Notable Cast Interprets Various Roles of Rupert Hughes Novel

“Empty Pockets.” Herbert Brenon’s latest production, is soon to be published. The film has been assembled, cut to six reels, titled and turned over to the First National Exhibitors’ Circuit. In every way, it is said the picture comes up to the high standard that Mr. Brenon has always maintained.

For his first production as an independent producer, he has chosen a well known author, Rupert Hughes, and a notable cast.

Practically every one who takes part in this production has had stage experience as well as having been tried and found worthy on the screen. Barbara Castleton’s advent into screendom took place a little over a year ago. Her first experience was gained in small roles for Herbert Brenon in “A Daughter of the Gods.” From that time on Miss Castleton devoted all her time to screen work. She appeared in “God’s Man.” “On Trial,” “Parentage,” and more recently “For the Freedom of the World.” Her part in this production is that of a wealthy girl with a leaning towards slumming and a desire to lessen the misery of those in the lower walks of life. Bert Lytell, who made so successful a debut in “The Lone Wolf,” takes the part of the young doctor.

Ketty Galanta made her debut under the Brenon banner as Anna in “The Fall of the Romanoffs.” In “Empty Pockets,” she plays the role of Maryla. Susanne Willa, who will be seen as Red in her has appeared in many of the productions, her latest work being with Mrs. Castle. Peggy Betts has made successful appearances both on the screen and on the stage. Betty has made no introduction. He has long been a favorite throughout the country. He will be seen in the role of Perry Meri-thew.

Two Clune Features Offered by N. Y. Firm

State Rights Mart

Clune’s cinema attractions, “The Eyes of the World” and “Ramona,” which have been taken over by Shallenberger’s Pictures and are being sold on the state rights market, are creating considerable interest among buyers, it is said.

A number of inquiries have been received, both from buyers and exhibitors all over the country, and Mr. Shallenberger predicts unparalleled success for both productions when they are published.

The firm is about to launch an advertising and publicity campaign, when the interest already manifested will be greatly increased. W. H. Clune stands without a peer as producer of sure-fire features.

Quality, Not Quantity, Will Be Aim of Producing Concerns, Says Hoffman

Exhibitors Insisting Upon Better Films Buying in Open Market Specially Produced Pictures, Asserts Foursquare Representative

“A satisfied customer is the next best thing to a fat bank account,” said M. H. Hoffman in a recent interview. “I never had that fact impressed on me so strongly as during my recent trip which gave me the opportunity of personal talks with many of the most progressive exhibitors in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Missouri and Iowa.

“The best undivided surplus a distributing organization can have in these times is a host of exhibitor patrons who have faith in it; who are confident quality will be maintained in the product it offers, and that the prices will be kept down to a reasonable point.”

“The hour has struck for the exhibitor. Frederick has been making ever since Foursquare Pictures was organized last spring are coming true. These men who are the sources of the producers’ and distributors’ bread and butter now see that certain things are due them, and are beginning to insist upon having these things.

“One of them is the wisdom of increasing the amount of ‘open bookings,’ where a contract is made deliberately, without hurry, on a basis wherein economy has been judiciously exercised. The ‘specially produced’ feature, independently distributed, is gaining headway, with significant rapidity.

“Exhibitors who have been booking pictures with concerns that turn out a vast number each year have awakened to the fact that no single organization, no matter how great, can hit the bull’s eye with each production.

“That the large producing firms have likewise made this discovery is indicated in the plans now being shaped to reduce the quantity of their annual output. It is quality that is now in demand, and the exhibitor, in order to satisfy his patrons’ growing taste for unriveting good pictures, is choosing with greater care than ever before.

“Foursquare Pictures is beginning the New Year with full cognizance of changing conditions, which were foreseen when it was organized. An independent distributing concern, it will strictly adhere to the utmost care and acquire only that which the exhibitor will regard as a good buy, at prices that are right.”

It is said a record price was paid for the feature and it will be present as a special attraction through the Metro exchanges of Manhattan and its branches throughout the state.

"My Unmarried Wife" does not make a very promising start, but when it gets into the story about the second reel it becomes more enjoyable and at the end of the six reels it proves itself to be very entertaining. Carmel Myers' work in this picture is surprising. She works as though she enjoyed it a great deal, and when she sees he is about to commit suicide, she marries him. Her love for Phillip deepens and when she learns he has regained his sight, she determines to win his love. In the guise of an Italian girl she forces herself upon him and becomes his servant. Phillip soon learns to love the girl and is jealous of Tono, the ball boy in his apartment. While riding with Marion, who is jealous of Mary, Phillip is injured and taken to a hospital. Believing that Phillip no longer cares for her, Mary goes back to her regular work, leaving the ring which he gave her when they were married. When Phillip recovers and learns that the little Italian girl whom he loves is really his wife, he is happy. He rushes to her office and finds her waiting.

"THE BRIDE" AND "THE SCREEN FAN"

Edison-Perfection comedies; one reel; published Jan. 2 and 16

If "The Bride" and "The Screen Fan" can be taken as criteria, James Montgomery Flagg's series of twelve one-reel comedies entitled "Girls You Know" are destined to take the foremost rank in productions of this nature. Briskly filled with mirth-producing subtitles and carrying cleverly concocted satires on types of American girls, these comedies furnish entertainment of the highest sort. The artistry and deep sense of humor of "Blonde" Flagg are apparent throughout.

"The Bride" concerns a girl who, believing that her parents are opposed to her marriage, agrees to an elopement. Her father intercepts the prospective groom with the query "Why not get married in the usual way?" Advertise it well and they count the presents. In another part of the picture, following the wedding, Flagg's humor is apparent when the officiating clergyman after thumbing the ten spot handed him by the groom says, "The cheap piker. I hope they get him in the next draft."

"The Screen Fan" tells the story of a girl, Beulah Huggins, who is anxious to break into the movies. She is cured when finally given a chance, she is ordered into the lion's cage by the director. "You go in there and pray," he says. "I'll be right outside and everything." But Beulah runs home to her mother and washboard, saying: "It may be classier to be a movie queen, but a washboard won't jump at you and bite off your hind leg."

The highest tribute we can pay to this—the film version of the play, "Brown of Harvard," in which the late Henry Woodruff starred, is: "Give us more pictures like 'Brown of Harvard.'" Seldom has a better or more evenly balanced cast been seen in a picture, and congratulations are forthcoming to William N. Selig, who produced, and Harry Beumont, who directed the production. Tom Moore made an inimitable Tom Brown and Hazel Daly's characterization of Evelyn Ames, "the one and only," was above reproach. The college atmosphere so essential to the telling of the story, was amply reflected, and in passing a mention of Walter Hiers, who as 'Tubby,' was responsible for a vein of happiness running through the play, is necessary.

The story: Tom Brown, a student at Harvard University, is engaged to Evelyn Ames. Her brother has become desperately involved with Marion Thorne. In an effort to protect his fiancé's brother, the stigma surrounding Marion Thorne rests upon Tom. Evelyn breaks her engagement. Wilton Ames crowns his borrowing of money from Brown by stealing a blank check and forging it for three hundred dollars to get Marion out of the city, that her condition may not become known. Gerald Thorne, brother of Marion, who is stroke on the Harvard crew, refuses to enter the race when he is given a spurious note from his sister saying that she is about to leave the city and wants to see him. Brown is put in his place and the race is won. Following the race Thorne confronts him with the check and charges him with being responsible for his sister's downfall. Evelyn demands that he marry Marion when Wilton finally confesses that he is the man involved. With Brown shown in his true light a happy reconciliation follows.

While there is a certain interest about "When Men Are Tempted," the story is very poorly constructed. There is too much detail in the parts which have not been played up. Aside from a rambling story, there is some good acting and Mary Anderson and her supporting cast handle their roles well. The costumes worn by the players are of a type in vogue probably some time in the nineteenth century and give the production a quaint charm.

The Story: John Burt and Morris quarrel because Morris has insulted Jesse Carden. John believes he has killed Morris and goes west where he strikes a rich mine. Having heard nothing from Jesse he and not knowing whether or not he killed Morris John sends his partner, Jimmy Blake, back to find out. Blake finds Morris still living and planning to compel Jessie to marry him, by ruining her father. Blake falls in love with Jessie and does not communicate with John. Also longer John goes east and learns the true state of affairs. Through a manipulation of the stock market he restores Carden's fortune and ruins Morris. Morris attempts to kill him but Blake interferes and they kill each other. John and Jessie come to an understanding and there is a happy ending.

"The Avenging Trail" possesses a hackneyed, mediocredit plot and yet contains enough action to hold one's interest. There are a couple of thrilling fights that have been well staged, and the poem which plays a part in the action takes place in the open and the snow scenes are beautiful. Mr. Lockwood plays the hero as well as ever and his supporting cast is a capable one. Walter Lewis, Sally Crute, William Clifford, Louis Wolheim and Joseph Daly appear in support. The direction is by Francis Ford, supervised by Fred Balshoffler.

The Story: Young Carstairs returns from college to learn that his father has been shot and robbed of some treasure options. He becomes a lumberjack hoping to get vengeance. In the west he saves Rose Haven from the insults of Lefty Red. He disables Red and becomes superintendent to Taggart, taking charge of the lumber which Taggart is having cut. When he learns that Taggart is stealing the lumber from Rose, he refuses to allow it to be removed until assured by Rose that she has been duly paid. In order to get the money back, Taggart has one of his men rob Rose's safe. Carstairs enters the contest and in a struggle the thief is wounded. Dying, the thief confesses to the murder of Carstairs' father, saying he did it for Taggart. Carstairs beats Taggart up and then gives him to the raging crowd, while he and Rose fight their traitor. "Nan of Music Mountain" is a story of Western life with plenty of action, good direction, wonderful sets and a well balanced cast. The story is interesting and attracts attention from the first. Wallace Reid has a hard role in the part of Henry De Spain, which he handles well. Anna Little, Theodore Roberts, James Cruze and Charles Ogle have important roles. There are a couple of well photographed rainstorms and a snow and sleet storm which is most realistic; a stirring fight and a thrilling escape over high cliffs and narrow passageways are the outstanding features. This proved an entertaining subject to patrons at the Orpheum Theatre, Chicago, where it was shown last week.

The story: Henry De Spain is determined to find the man who murdered his father. He becomes a sort of outsider with Morgan's gang, cattlemen and outlaws. Nan, daughter of the head of the clan, secretly loves Henry and when he is wounded in a fight with the Morgan clan, she helps him to escape. This angers her father and he declares that she shall marry his cousin. Nan dispatches a message to Henry for assistance and he brings her safely to his clan. Nan then learns that her father was the murderer of Henry's father. She returns to her faith to learn the truth and together they return to Henry to tell him the name of the real murderers. After a thorough understanding and forgiving, Henry and Nan are married.

“His Robe of Honor” With Walthall to Be the Third Paralta Feature

Paralta Plays, Inc., announces that the third Paralta play to be distributed to exhibitors through the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation will be “His Robe of Honor,” in which Henry B. Walthall stars.

“His Robe of Honor” was written by Ethel and James Dorrance, a story dealing with conditions of politics, the bar and the bench. Mr. Walthall, who makes his debut as a Paralta star, plays a lawyer who is called to try the case of embezzlement which gives him a chance to take his life. In the midst of the struggle he awakens to find that Hulda, the girl he really loves, is calling for help. He goes to her rescue and brings her to safety.

“The Eternal Tempress,” in which Lina Cavalieri makes her screen debut under the Paramount banner, is well acted amid impressive settings and the production won critical as well as public favor. Elliott Dexter is particularly praiseworthy in his role of the hero, Harry, and his acting is strong and forceful. It is a good story, well made and touched with romance in the story of the girl, Florence, who is in love with a prince who is called back to his father’s throne. The prince does not want to go and so Donald goes in his stead. He has a hard time getting there, but is readily received as the rightful prince. He falls in love with a young girl and finds that this girl is the princess he is to marry. He urges the king to listen to the ceremony and after the wedding revolutionists endeavor to take his life. In the midst of the struggle he awakens to find that Hulda, the girl he really loves, is calling for help. He goes to her rescue and brings her to safety.

“The Gown of Destiny” is of very slight texture and taxes ones credulity over much. There is some interesting material, but it is not enough, and the manner in which it is presented falls to convince.

Alma Rubens is the featured star, but her charming personality and hispanic ability are denied opportunity of expression, her place in the story, and the manner in which it is presented fails to convince.

Hazel Daly and Tom Moore Co-Stars in Selig’s Film “Brown of Harvard”

Filming of “Brown of Harvard” has been completed at the Selig studios. The screen version of the popular novel and stage drama co-stars Hazel Daly and Tom Moore, with Sydney Ainsworth heading the supporting cast.

Miss Daly appears as Evelyn Ames, a typical daughter of a poor but proud New England family; Tom Moore portrays the leading Harvard athlete, and Ainsworth is afforded ample opportunity as Colton, the unscrupulous gambler, in the forthcoming production.

Practically all the exterior scenes were filmed at Cambridge and the several scenes of college life, including the Harvard rowing race are shown. Several hundred students took part in the scenes, showing Harvard defeating Yale. Incidentally, Tom Moore, who pulls the stroke oar in the pictured event, needed no rehearsals. He was a member of his college eight. The film version is in six parts.

Four publications for January have thus far been announced by the Fox Film Corporation, with the certainty of at least one more by the time of publication.

Three of these productions, and a fourth to come, are Fox Special features. The first, January 6, is “Stolen Honor,” in which Miss Virginia Pearson is starred. This involves the theft of a painting, the smuggling of the painting out of the country and the subsequent efforts of the thieves to avoid imprisonment by fragmenting the blame on an artist who copies the painting for them.

Tom Mix, whose activities here tofore have been confined to comedies, will make his debut January 13 as a star in Western dramas. “Cupid’s Round Up,” in which he will be seen, is reported to be a stirring story of ranch life, involving cattle rustling by a band of which a woman is the head and numerous battles between cowboys.

Madame Sonia Markova will make her second appearance as a star this month, her play, “A Heart’s Revenge,” being on the calendar of special features for January 20. Madame Markova takes the part of a Russian girl who is loved by both a Russian nobleman and an officer of the United States navy. The nobleman temporarily gets rid of his rival by using a Chinese poison which paralyzes his victims. The story tells of the girl’s discovery of this fact and of her manner of revenging herself.

Announcement has not been made of the Fox Special feature for January 27, the understanding being that if the “Jack Sparlock-Prodigal” story, now being made in the East by George Walsh under the direction of Carl Harbaugh, is not finished in time it will be set down for that date. The probabilities, however, are said to be that this picture will not be ready before February.

This month’s program includes two Fox-Lehman Sunshine Comedies, “Shadows of Her Past” and “Are Married Policemen Safe?” The first of these will be published January 6 and the other January 13.
Bogus Count and Family Money Bags

in "Molly Go Get 'Em" Mutual Film

Margurita Fischer, the versatile comedienne, who specializes in tomboy characterizations, has an unusual role in her latest production, "Molly Go Get 'Em," the Mutual-American star production scheduled for the week of January 7, made under the direction of Lloyd Ingraham.

In this comedy Miss Fischer convinces a bogus count that she is the daughter of an Indian squaw and the inheritor of a tendency to throw aboriginal fits on the least provocation. The "Count" has his eye on the moneybags and other valuable assets of her father, but his plans are frustrated by Margaret, who catches him red-handed with the family jewels in his possession.

Supporting Miss Fischer are Margaret Allen, Emme Kluge, Jack Mower, Hal Clements, True Boardman and David Howard.

Billie Rhodes, in the Strand comedy, "A Peach and a Pill," which is published January 5, gives her sweetheart a pill to cure his headache, and believes she is an involuntary murderess when her mother tells her it was a bichloride of mercury tablet. Jack hasn't taken the dose, but is compelled to undergo strenuous treatment in order to disguise the fact that he has been philanthropic with another girl. Jack pays the piper for his lapse of faithfulness, but Billie doesn't learn the truth.

The Mutual Weekly, published January 7, features the recent "scope" of the Halifax disaster scenes, engineered by James Barr O'Neill, Gaumont-Mutual cameraman, who arrived in New York twenty-four hours ahead of any competitor with his film covering this holocaust.

A Fillum Tragedy in One Reel

B. S. Bank, the demon Press Agent, breezed into the office of the official Faulkfinder of Films and conghed gently.

"Ahem!" replied Col. Bunkhouser, cordially, without getting up. "I'm representing the Plainfillum Co." said the P.A., look-ing the Colonel straight in the eye, and "I want to get a pink permit for our Fillum, 'The Bow-Legged Ghostess.'"

"Sorry, young fellah, but we haven't any permits left. We have a big consignment of Aweful Fillums last week and need up every last one o' them. We can give you a nice white permit."

"Don't want a white permit," said the P. A. angrily. "You can't get 'em in to see 'The Bow-Legged Ghostess' (for adults only) on a white permit."

"Nothing doing: get onto my office," said the colonel, turning the fire hose on him.

"Pooled!" cursed B. S. Bank as he stumbled down the stairs. "We're lost!"

Bertram Grashby, who plays in William Fox's "For Liberty," had to stuff coffee into his mouth to make his jaws square for the character he represents in the play. What would he do for a pointed jaw—eat razor blades?

Ain't It the Truth, Kid

Helen Rowland, the N. Y. Evening World's sob colurn writer, says: "While one girl may pray to be made a man's 'good angel,' there are ninety-nine devoutly praying to be made Theda Baras."

The descent of music composers from the ranks of the Society of Authors and Composers have almost reached the proportions of a stampede. They'll have to collone another draft a week.

For Exchange—Adv.

A nice, quiet red tie, 6 lavender handkerchiefs, 3 boxes of cigarettes (Home Runs); 2 pairs socks, size 11. Will take $1 U. S. currency, or what have you?

After what censor Funkhouser did to Cleopatra film we can see where the bathing costumes on Chicago beaches next summer are coming in for an awful hard season.

Latest M. P. News

The Flicker Film Company has consolidated with the Broken Sprocket Corporation and opened offices on Broadway. They have secured the world rights to the entire output of the O. B. Scure Pictures, made somewhere in the West.

We can look for speed in Metro films now. They've hired an ex-chaffeur as cameraman for forthcoming productions.

Now That's Settled

To pronounce "Les Miserables," when speaking of the m.o.l. w.k. novel by Victor Hugo and the equally w.k. Wm. Fox production, say "Le-Mice-Ray-Babb." The first "e" is sounded like "e" in the English word "let" and the "s" is silent. There is no accent on any syllable. "Mice" in "rabbit" is blended in the syllable and is not a full sound.
BETTER FILMS, LOWER RENTALS, CRYING NEED

By Frank G. Hall*

One of the most important developments in the moving picture industry during the next year will be the increasing popularity and specialization of production. As an exhibitor of long experience and as a distributor of motion pictures, I have found that the special production, by which I mean a subject above the accepted program standard of merit, has become a vital necessity, especially in the larger picture theatres.

The special production is the picture of the future. In order to vary the monotony of program pictures in my theatres I have found it imperative to book special productions such as "The Ziegfeld's Last Raid," "Those Who Pay," "The Belgian" and "Today" and others that not only provide extra footage but exceptional exploitation qualities. The cupidity of the price of such productions in the larger picture theatres in all sections of the country have been compelled to show two reel features, and educational and comedy films and in some cases vaudeville on a single bill to stimulate business.

The novelty of the five reel has long since vanished. In the case of the Rialto and Strand in New York and other theatres of similar size the exhibitor is able to augment his program with vocal and instrumental music and one five reeler may be sufficient. But many of the smaller exhibitors who depend entirely upon pictures to fill his house will tell you that now his patrons demand two or three reelers for the same admission fee they paid a year ago.

The theatre-going public is ever seeking something new and bigger. There has developed a tremendous demand for special productions of from six to eight reels in length. Hundreds of exhibitors are booking special attractions every two or three weeks this new life into box offices that have been dying from the dry rot of mediocre program material.

The crying needs of the hour are better conditions and lower rental prices and the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation has pledged itself to those purposes. We do not want program pictures. We have set a high standard in our first three films and intend to maintain it. Some of the exhibitors who have felt the pre-holiday depression have informed us that they have made money with our productions. One of them was Nathan Gordon of New England. He has booked them for his chain of theatres in that territory.

Despite the pessimism of certain individuals who have given way to violent calamity howling, I do not fear for the future of the industry. The producer who makes good pictures and markets his product at prices that enable the exhibitor to realize a fair profit will have no cause for complaint.

The next year will see the exhibitor come into his own. He will become the big factor in the industry and deserves so. The day of exhibitors in a locality bidding against each other to obtain a certain attraction is over. The exhibitor understands another need and is to be co-operating for their mutual welfare.

The slump in business is but temporary. After the holidays there will come a reaction that will carry business back to flood tide.

Paralta Completes New Open Air Stages

The new open-air stages that are part of the extensive enlargements which are being built at the Paralta Studios in Los Angeles and were put into practical use last week, when Bessie Barriscale and her company made a number of interior sets for her forthcoming "Baralta" player.

About two months ago the Paralta organization purchased a large tract of land adjoining their studios for the purpose of enlarging their facilities. Besides the open-air stages which are now being used, are a number of glass-enclosed stages which will be used during the rainy season, buildings containing tiers of dressing rooms together with additional buildings to house the various departments, including the carpenter shops, wardrobe, property departments, scenic departments, etc.

Southern Exhibitor Praises "Bar Sinister"

That "The Bar Sinister" is one of the greatest features of the year, as well as Edgar Lewis' best production, is demonstrated by the following letter received from C. N. Garing, manager of the Garing Theatre, Greensville, S. C., by the direction of the Strand Corporation.

"I wish to state that we have played almost all large productions, but will say that 'The Bar Sinister' is one of the greatest plays we have ever had the pleasure of playing and was a pronounced hit. The photography and directing are great and the film in fine condition. It was a pleasure to play this beautiful play."

The "Wife He Bought" brings Carmel Myers to star among Bluebirds for the third time February 11, when she appears in a screen version of a story by Larry Evans that appeared in a popular magazine under the title of "One Clear Call."

"Cupid's Round Up" With Fox Star, Tom Mix, Finished

"Cupid's Round Up" has been completed by Mix, his picture as a star in Western dramas. The story deals with the result of the betrothals of a girl and a boy because of the desire of their parents, who are old friends, to unite the two families.

Most of the scenes are laid on a ranch where the young woman, posing as a maid, meets the young man after weeks prior to the date set for their marriage. Industry’s Greatest Year Ahead — Hutchinson

To my mind, the greatest opportunity of the motion picture industry lies at hand. Not essentially an opportunity to make an immense profit, but to make for that which will last long in the annals of the history of the film business—the establishment of a future that will never again be subject to the erratic fluctuations of the past three or four years.

In the past the motion picture men have been their own undoing, as they went along. They have been forced to grope for a sure footing, a footing which I am certain has been found and which will be rendered permanent by the persistent efforts of the earnest and indefatigable workers who think less of an immediate profit than of an enduring glory. In many instances the film industry of past has been an invariable variable—a variety of slap-dash business—now you’re here and now you’re there, sort of process. As such it could never attract a solid following of a participation in its commercial affairs of men of established security in other lines of business. The moment it sought to become a dignified industry this was changed, and since it has become the fifth industry of the world the foundation has been built for a permanent commercial future.

The motion picture has become more than an entertainment for the masses. It is a medium through which knowledge and culture may be disseminated, and therefore is equally important in the affairs of the community as well as the nation, as the newspaper or the telegraph.

The last year, to my mind, has been the most crucial year in the history of the film industry. Questions we had refused to seriously consider—perhaps we want to have taken the time to consider—have been put before us with a demand, not alone for consideration, but for immediate consideration. We have had to handle these questions and to offer solutions for them, and have thus bound ourselves together in a common interest as well as a common industry. We have found ourselves, as an industry, brought into national importance. And it is our paramount duty to maintain that importance through a concerted dignity of action in all public questions that pertain to our business.

In the year to come no company can afford to live as did one of the characters I have ever witnessed on the screens. The refinement, the intelligence, and the good taste displayed by her make her, in my opinion, one of the greatest artists on the screen. The whole picture has an atmosphere of good taste about it, and the drama is so big that I don’t see how in the world it can go wrong. The musical possibilities in this picture are also great, and one hopes that if it is properly played and handled it will touch a responsive chord in everyone’s heart and is bound to be talked about.

Mme. Olga Petrova Outlines 1918 Plans in Brief Interview

In “A Daughter of Destiny,” the first of a series of eight special features which will present Madame Olga Petrova, the Princess of her own organization during the forthcoming year, the noted Polish actress essayed the type of role which it has long been the ambition of Madame Petrova to afford her to carry out her own ideas, by the recent formation of the Petrova Picture Company, has been quickly taken up. The name of the star in her initial picture. Speaking recently on the subject, Madame Petrova had the following to say:

“When I signed this new contract with Frederick C. Collins it was with the hope of accomplishing three things. In the first place, I want to make high-class dramatic pictures that will please the public, and at the same time the public is pleased, I can repay my backers who have had such faith in me. Then, thirdly, I want to put a feminist note into my pictures, as I am a great believer in women and everything that tends to their advancement and development. Of course, I intend to do this in such a way that the pictures will be as good as at all with the value of my pictures as entertainment. They are by no means to be regarded as propaganda.”

What do these pictures mean to me? What do pictures mean to me? In what way? Why, picture dramas that show what women are doing and what the women have done, plays that are base—ones that I do not mean to think, and no what they imagine they think. There is real, vital drama in this subject, and I am willing to fight to develop these dramatic possibilities, because I have great faith in the influence of the screen. In these days of disrespect it is one of the few influences that the people large really believe in.”

World Pictures to Keep First Title of Hamilton-Burr Film

"The Beautiful Mrs. Reynolds" will be re-neged as the title of the historical romance of Alexander Hamilton and Aaron Burr to be published in January by World-Pictures Brady-Made. There was some discussion among World executives regarding the advisability of this choice lest it conceal the full identity of the story and characters.

In the final conclusion, however, it was decided to bring out the Hamilton-Burr value by supplying a suitable subtitle in the printing and newspaper advertising, while still holding the large association which attaches to a renowned woman of beauty such as Mrs. Reynolds, whose fascinations played havoc with the lives of great statesmen of colonial times.

The story follows not only the heart affairs of Hamilton and Burr, but the political struggles between them by which their already bitter rivalry was intensified to the point of hatred.

The cast of the "Beautiful Mrs. Reynolds," is headed by Carlyle Blackwell as Hamilton, June Elvidge as Mrs. Reynolds, Evelyn Grecley as Margaret Moncrief, and Arthur Ash as Burr.

This is the third in a series of romantic historical dramas fostered by World-Pictures Brady-Made. The other two were "First-Officers Hero" (Nathan Hale) and "Betsy Ross."

National Board Review Passes Petrova Film

"Daughter of Destiny," the first of the eight pictures in which Madame Olga Petrova will star during the year, has been passed in toto by the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures. The first Petrova vehicle has been made the subject of a special report by one of the review committees as follows:

"We wish to advise you that the majority comment on your photoplay "Daughter of Destiny," reviewed by the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures, was on December 17, 1917, was as follows: Entertain- ment value, good; artistic value, dramatic interest of story, good; coherence and narrative, clear; acting, good; costuming, excellent; atmospheric quality of scene setting, good; historic value, good; moral effect, good.

"General Comment:—In this romance of the present war, Madame Petrova as an American woman enmeshed in the intrigue of foreign powers, finds the sympathy that the audience will starve for in the audience, and lastly fires the patriotism of her audience."

Distinctive Tickets Made Necessary by New Revenue Ruling

Order Also Provides That Admissions Must Bear “Tax Paid” Stamp

Through new rulings by the collector of internal revenue governing the admission tax to theatres, exhibitors are confronted with the necessity of providing themselves with at least two distinct-tive types of tickets—one type for children under 12 years of age and another for adults. If more than one admission price is asked it will be necessary to have distinctive tickets for each price as well as for children and adults.

In addition to this the new order prodvides that no person shall be admitted to any place to which admission is charged unless the ticket, card or pass by which he is admitted bears evidence that the tax due in respect of the admission covered by it has been paid. It is also ordered that the ticket or form of admission be stamped “tax paid” at the place where it is issued.

It is also provided—there shall be kept in each box or ticket office of every theatre, place of amusement, or other place to which admissions subject to the tax are charged, a daily record of the number and kind of tickets sold and the tax collected thereon. This record must also show the number of passes used for admission each day and the tax collected thereon, and the number of admissions of children under twelve years of age and the tax collected thereon.

Kidnapping Trial Film Forbidden by Censors

Kansas City, Mo. — Motion pictures showing the scenes in the court room during the trial of Charles Pierson, convicted of complicity in the kidnapping of Baby Lloyd Keal, will not be exhibited in Kansas City. The board of censors has ordered that the films be barred.

The pictures were to have been shown at the Columbia Theatre, 15 West Tenth street, but the management received word from the censors demanding that no attempt be made to exhibit the film.
The management of the theatre has announced that no action is contemplated against the ruling of the censors.

Mutual Won’t Stand for Critic’s Roast
on “New York Luck”

When N. E. Thatcher, photoplay critic of the Times-Picayune, New Orleans, in reviewing the latest Mutual picture, “New York Luck,” starring William Russell, said that it is about the most senseless screen story that Mutual has issued, he started something.

Now Mutual is of the opinion that

“New York Luck” is about the best thing William Russell has done and this opinion seems to have been shared by a number of trade and newspaper critics.
Feeling that an injury and an injustice had been done the film corporation, Terry Ramsaye, advertising manager, prepared an advertisement and ordered its publication in the December 25 issue of the Times-Picayune.

The advertisement was captioned “Somebody is Wrong,” and was headed by Mr. Thatcher’s criticism. Following this came the opinions of four expert critics all lauding the production.

“William Russell is soon to appear in another picture of the same calibre, under the title of ‘In Bad,’” the advertisement concludes, “What will Mr. Thatcher say about it?”

FOUR-MINUTE MEN OPPOSE INDIVIDUAL THEATRE CAMPAIGNS

Newark, N. J.—William McCorkick, national director of the Four-Minute men organization, has asked that the local motion picture theatre owners cease their individual efforts to assist various fund campaigns and membership drives.
Mr. McCormick made known his stand in a recent letter to Ernest A. Reed, a Four-Minute man, and asked that a meeting be called of the motion picture men and his feelings made known.

Recently of their own volition, mangers of several Newark theatres prevented pictures of work being accomplished by the Red Cross and provided men to speak in behalf of that society’s efforts to increase the annual income of $1,000,000 in New Jersey. Mr. McCormick declared that inasmuch as his organization was in close touch with every department of the government, it is in a better position to say when each campaign should be pushed through the instrumentality of the theatres.

Unorganized effort, he pointed out, will have the effect of wearying audi-cences of continuous appeals for help, and it is for the best interests of the mangers to allow the campaigns in their theatres to be planned by the Four-Minute men.

Five Theatre Owners Fined for Violation
Penna. Censor Law

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—Charged with vi-olaing the state law governing the exhibition of motion pictures, five managers of motion picture theatres here were assessed fines ranging from $5 to $10 before Alderman Ricketts recently. The charges were preferred by Joseph A.
Barrier of Harrisburg, attached to the office of the state board of censors, who claimed that the local men showed films which did not bear the seal of approval of the censors.

The exhibitors involved were T. J.
Reilly, of the Bijou Dream, Public Square; Everett Tracey, of the Alhambra, Public Square; Herman Pryor, Sterling Theatre, Hazel street; Ray Silvers, whose theatre is in Hazel street, and J. H. Van Laven, of the Bohemian Theatre, Pitt-son.

Second Permit Sought To Install Theatre
In Banned District

St. Paul, Minn.—Heilbron and Weiskopf have renewed their fight before the city council to obtain a permit to operate a motion picture theatre at 1501 Grand avenue in this city. This section of the city is known as the Ward and Avens District” and contains a number of churches.
This is the second application of the motion picture men for a permit.

After their first application had been granted petitions were circulated among the churchgoers of the district and when a petition bearing 1,400 names of persons purported to be opposed to the granting of the permit was presented to the council, that body rescinded its first action.

H. D. Frankel, attorney for the petitioners, asked that another hearing be granted, which was set for January 5. He said that he is prepared to show that most of the people in the vicinity of the proposed theatre are in favor of it.

King-Bees Holds Showing

A special trade showing of two King-Bees two-reel comedies was held this week at the Miles projection rooms, 220 West Forty-second street, New York. The comedies were entitled "The Candy Kid" and "The Slave." Considerable interest was manifested in the latter picture, as it was published without using any subtitles. This is the first film of this nature to be attempted.
Wurra! Wurra! He has done it, so he hav. Freddie McMillan, one of Chi's illumino's spawners, and who has been appointed as special subscription getter for EXHIBITORS HERALD in these environs, so sweat, you fellers with your money inv'ly! He's a gatin' gun from W. W., and positively will refuse to accept Nayo any approch he sees fit to make. On yer good, min he's a wee bit of a man, out talking Crosse, Yiddish, Polish, Swedish and Turkish fluently. Notice the variety of "isba"—that's what he do.

They tell us Paul Smith, editor of Screen Opinions, was caught toting a W. W. around with him last week, acquiring same with the trade. Nix, boys, not so fast. "W. W." means Willie Weaver, who works right from Boone, loway, by heck! And from what Smitty slips up, he's a wizard on that stuff stuff! Used to run a show back ter home, so he did.

Did it HAPPEN? Who shall give it in "awks"? Listen, December 25, in one of Hotel Bismarck's private dining rooms, the hull of Chi's illumino gang was assembled to tender a congratulatory past to Floyd M. Brockell, Paramount's new manager. Sure, there was all of it, a professional vaudeville program of quips, gags and songs by the original Band, those stories, and armfuls of Yacka-a-Hula babies, the variety that swing a cruel—well, at any rate, the food and liquid refreshments were to the abundance, the party bustin' up as the azure rays of Old Sol were seen creeping up over the eastern horizon. We understand some of the boys arrived at their offices a few hours late the following day; none the worse, though.

Last Thursday a private screening of "The Bull's Eye" was given to the trade, with such a crowd of exhibitors in attendence to give the film a fair trial. Notice: the Universal, ordered a second screening held that afternoon to accommodate the "rafts overflow" who were unable to witness the morning session. We don't question it for a moment.

L. C. Mann, who recently enlisted with the "Dandy First" of Chicago, later being transferred to the aero forces at Ft. Sill to be trained as an observer with Uncle Sam's fast growing flock of birds, was given an honorable discharge, owing to ill health. He is now associated with the Owl Features, handling their output in the Illinois territory. We all are sorry, Lumie, old scout, that it didn't break right for you, but glad to see you back with us safe and sound.

The entire staff of salesmen and managers of the Universal, including Bluebird and Jewel, were in attendance, December 20, a luncheon given in the States restaurant, speeding a "bon voyage" to the departing guest, Arthur S. Dowd, who left for New York to assume his new duties for 1918 as general sales representative for Universal output.

The management of the Morse Theatre surrendered a percentage of their entire receipts for the week of December 24, to be turned over to the various units at Camp Grant, which are composed of sons of Rogers Park, to aid in the purchase of comforts of various sorts.

M. J. "Sears-Roebuck" Weisfeld, of the Wholesome Food Corporation, is all set up with pleasurable excitement as 1918 breaks into history. They're about to announce a new one to the trade. Gosh, we'll wager Uncle Sam gathers a juicy wad of greenbacks from old M. J. for mailing purposes, if the record of the local postoffice was permitted to testify, by heck!

"The Eternal Temptress" was shown to a specially invited audience at the Ziegfeld Theatre last week, at which the noted diva, Linda Cavalieri, her husband, and most of the members of his opera company were present. Mme. Cavalieri had difficulty in watching her screen self and carrying on an animated conversation with her many admirers.

To avoid juggling a lot of pennies, most of the loop theatres and quite a few of the outlying houses are charging even money (15 or 10 cents) for admissions.

"Winnie" Sheehan, the G. M. of the Fox Film Corporation, is in our midst. Welcome to the Windy City. Winnie. Sounds like a song, doesn't it.

Lost! Strayed! or Stolen! Where, oh where is my wandering boy? Has any one seen Millie Simon, erstwhile Triangle illumino seller? Will "Elgin, La Crosse or Englewood" film columns please copy?

Talking about variety—you should give the Plough-Leeserman-I. Van Ronkel sales roster the O. O. Have added another, this time one Edw. C. Newman, formerly of Newman & Ullman, cigar manufacturers of Peory, Ill. "Tis said E. C. N. was a big factor in marketing of the famous, "La Azora" seagar. Well, wot of it? Cigarettes is wot we crave.

H. M. Berman, sales manager for the Jewel Productions, is making a national-wide trip, stopping off at Chicago for a few weeks to determine conditions here and holding heart to heart talks with the exhibitors of this section in regard to general trade conditions. Slip us the dope, Berman; it should make some interesting reading.

W. H. Engelman, of the Doll-Van camp, is right in the swim these days with the exhibits. Those three features are just gobbling bookings up right and left, and all W. H. E. has to do is gather in the "geld." Gee, some of us have it hard, don't we?

By "Mac."

"Dick" Nehls Will Go O'er the Top Jan. 5

Richard R. Nehls, general manager of the American Film Company, Inc., is looking forward to next Saturday night with a somewhat mixed emotion. All of his English friends expect to be present at Birchwood Lodge, Birchwood Hall, corner of Lunt and Clark streets, Rogers Park, Chicago, on Saturday night, January 5, to welcome him into the third degree of Masonry. And from all accounts they are going to make the welcome a momentous one.

Mr. Nehls was president of the Reel Fellows Club of Chicago, during the time it was a flourishing organization and has a large circle of acquaintances in the film trade.

Better News Reels Is Plan of Gaumont

Plans which have been carefully worked out during the past few months, it is said, will enable the Gaumont Company to give its patrons an even better class news-reel service during 1918 than heretofore.

The Gaumont Company has co-operative branches in all of the principal countries, and news camera men throughout the entire world and 1918 will witness big things, it is predicted. The newspapers state this week that the kaiser is planning another bid for peace, but the allied democratic nations will undoubtedly refuse this profier unless it means the disarmament of Germany and her accomplies, and preparation for all the horrors committed.

It looks as though the war will continue until the United States takes its proper place with all of its fighting and material resources, and the Gaumont Mutual Weekly is preparing to chronicle these important historical events as they occur.

For three years the Gaumont-Mutual Weekly has contributed an broken series of numbers, the year 1917 terminating with No. 156. For convenience, however, it has been decided to start a new series of numbers, and the issue for the first week of the new year will be No. 1.
With New Year's day the second anniversary of the Christie Film Company, an interesting story of achievement is unfolded by Al. E. Christie, director of Christie Comedies and the pioneer studio builder in Hollywood, California.

On New Year's day, 1915, Al Christie entered the producing field under his own name. He selected the same location at Sunset and Gower streets, where four years before he had established the old Nestor Film Company that later merged into the Universal. Christie comedies sought and attracted the attention of exhibitors through their individuality of staging, lighting and in particular, their costume and the story of the picture.

Today the Christie Film Company ranks among the best known film producing organizations in the United States. Its executive personnel consists of Al. E. Christie, president and producing director; C. H. Christie, general manager and Fred L. Porter, vice-president and secretary.

In discussing the two years of development at his studio, Al. E. Christie said: "On New Year's Day we will shoot the first scenes in a new covered stage just completed, and we will be equipped with a modern $25,000 lighting system.

Entered Business 1911

"I came out from New York in 1911 and established the Nestor Film Company on this corner in what was then the abandoned Club House Roadhouse. We had three companies with a total of 32 people. I was general manager, comedy director, and scenario editor and incidentally, swept the stage along with other minor duties.

"Two years ago my brothers and I became convinced that slapstick, custard pie throwing and suggestive sex scenes were doomed in the same way that in evolution in the spoken comedy we had seen the funny man with the chin whiskers pass from the high class theatre to the kerosene circuit. We decided to produce comedies of a higher order revolving around plausible stories that either have happened or can happen. "I do not believe a comedy to be funny must depend upon the antics of a grotesque character or plots resembling an iner."

"Furthermore, I believe in small casts in comedies. To make it appear funny to see one man fall down a flight of steps, but it would not be ten times funnier to see ten men do the fall."

"The Impossible Comedy"

"The comedy of the future must be plausible. It must give the viewer an opportunity to think along with the action, to surmise, to anticipate, to rejoice or to suffer with the story and where possible—to be fooled."

"The production of a Christie Comedy does not end with the final viewing of the pictures in the studio projection room. One of Al. Christie's pet hobbies is to select a seat at the back of a theatre in which a Christie comedy is being shown and from this vantage point watch the effect of scenes on the people who have paid good money to be entertained."

"When a picture has gone over," said Mr. Christie, "when I see two old people nudge one another when they see some action that brings them back to foro Massay, I am satisfied that two young people press hands in understanding of a true to life predicament."

Margaret Fischer

Grows in Popularity in Wholesome Plays

The steady growth in public favor of the Margaret Fischer productions has created a vogue for this charming little screen actress, and the favorable reports from exhibitors who have booked the previous Fischer pictures, such as "The Girl Who Couldn't Grow Up," "Miss Jackie of the Army," etc., augur well for the forthcoming Fischer comedy, "Molly Nut Get 'Em," which is on the Mutual schedule of January 7.

This production was made by the American, under the direction of Lloyd Lagrange and produced by Miss Fischer with a role in which she is seen at her best, it is said, cutting up high-jinks in her own inimitable way in a comedy which is wholesome and free from any objectionable suggestion.

The consensus of opinion of the exhibitor is expressed in the terse report from J. J. Chriseis of the Queen and Isis Theatre, Chicago, on "The Girl Who Couldn't Grow Up," which says: "Splendid. Was well liked and brought good business."

Miller of the Boston and Alcazar theatres, Chicago, reports on "Miss Jackie of the Army" as follows: "A very clever comedy drama."

Tom Moore Buys Five New Theatres

in Washington D. C.

Washington, D. C.—As the first of the year's activities, Tom Moore, one of the largest exhibitors here, and head of the Moore Theatre Corporation, has negotiated a deal whereby his concern absorbs the Metropolitan Theatre Corporation.

The consolidation adds five large motion picture houses to the seventeen his company already controls. These are in the downtown district of the capital and considered well-paying theatres.

Mr. Moore owns $1,200,000 of the capital stock of the new concern. Messrs. Tucker K. Sands, Fred S. Swindell and Albert Mushonson control the balance. It is planned to operate the newly acquired houses on a circuit, thereby reducing operating expenses, improve the quality of the performances and reduce the admission charge to the minimum.

CENSORSHIP CREATES FILM DEMAND

The Tokyo metropolitan police have established new regulations governing motion picture theaters in the city to inaugurate a censorship of films. Through these regulations do not apply outside of Tokyo, the police of the other cities of Japan are usually prompt in following the lead of the Tokyo department in such matters. The strict censorship will affect the marketability of certain classes of films. It will eliminate practically all of the X-called pictures which have theretofore occupied a disproportionate share of Japanese programs.

Love Scenes Barred

It will also bar pictures in which the love scenes go beyond the bounds of the most chaste reserve, or which play certain social problems in a way that might seem to smack of socialism, and those in which persons in authority, as policemen and teachers, are exposed to ridicule. It is said that the spirit of frontier society is seriously disturbed. All films, as censored and passed, are divided into two classes, A and B. Those of Class A may be shown to any person who passes over 15 years of age, while those of Class B may be shown also to children. The censorship for Class B will follow the lines already indicated, and in addition, will exclude all love scenes, all scenes in which anger, hate, cruelty, etc., are too vividly portrayed, those showing wrongful transmission of crime, and comic pictures in which there is a wanton destruction of property.

Official Given Broad Powers

There are no fixed rules governing the censor. His discretion is absolute. Until a film has been passed by him there is no certainty whether it will be satisfactory or not.

As few of the motion pictures now in Japan will be passed under the requirements for Class B, there will be an acute demand for some time to come for films to exhibit to children. While meeting the strict requirements, they must nevertheless be sufficiently interesting to attract children. A few educational productions could be used, but comic subjects and stories of adventure with the usual moral bound will be refused, if it is said. A rule requiring men and women to sit in different parts of the theatre has resulted in a considerable falling off in patronage, but this fact, which doubtless will have an effect on the class of pictures desired for the Japanese market.

Universal Making 4 Special Features for March Schedule

The production forces at Universal City, under the direction of Louis B. Mayer, are to be distributed in March to follow the regular schedule that Universal has announced for the first two months of the year. These productions will be directed by Elsie Jane Wilson, Edgar Jones, Jack Ford and Elmer Clifton.

The Jack Ford production will engage half a dozen stars, while Molly Malone as leading lady, in "Lin McLean," from the story of the same title by Owen Wister. George Hively prepared the scenario.

Ella Hall and Emory Johnson are playing the featured roles in "Donna Perfecta," the Spanish story, written by B. Perez Galdos. Ruby LaFayette, Grace MacLennan, and William Vinton are also in the supporting company.

Director Edgar Jones has at Louise Lovely as his star in "The Quill of Jo," and Herbert Rawlinson is to be the star of "More Power to Him," now being created by Elmer Clifton. Philo McCullough is a new leading man for the Miss Lovely stargirl, with her for the first time in James Oliver Curwood's story, Gertrude Aster and Charles Hill Mailes will also be prominent in Miss Lovely's support.

"The Belgian" Film Shown Theatre Club Hotel Astor Dec. 26

So great has been the demand for the use of "The Belgian" film at charity bazaars and patriotic entertainments that the U. S. Exhibitors Booking Corporation, by which the production is being distributed throughout the world, has been compelled to devote one print exclusively to that particular number of requests already received by the organization. It marks a tribute to the drawing powers of the photoplay.

"The most recent presentation of "The Belgian" was given under the joint auspices of Frank G. Hall, president of the U. S. Exhibitors Booking Corporation, and Mr. Olcott at the Hotel Astor, where the Theatre Club on December 26. More than 500 women viewed the production.

At the conclusion of the exhibition Mrs. John H. Parker, president, expressed on behalf of the organization her deep appreciation of the photo production and paid a tribute to the art of Mr. Whiteside and Miss Grant. Then she introduced Miss Grant as the principal speaker of the occasion, who spoke on "The Silent Drama."

"A Man's Man" and "Madam Who?" Booked by Long-Run Houses

The demand for the first Paralala plays to be distributed through the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation—J. Warren Kerrigan in Peter B. Kenne's "A Man's Man" and Bessie Barrs in Harold McGrath's "Madam Who?"—has been very heavy and is continuing to such an extent that Paralala Plays, Inc., has ordered a large increase in the number of positive prints.

Many exhibitors went to the exchanges after they had booked "A Man's Man" and stated that they wished to book at once "Madam Who?" as well. Among the houses which have contracted for the first two Paralala plays, "A Man's Man" and "Madam Who?" are houses of the order that maintain large orchestras and present photoplays for long runs. These houses were pleased with the music scores, which are a feature of the plays. They declared that the music was not only highly appropriate and atmospheric but that it seemed especially suited to their orchestras. This latter quality was brought about by the fact that those who arranged the musical setting of the Paralala plays had the requirements of orchestras well in mind.
George T. Backer Sees Big Reduction in Future Salaries Paid to Stars

Actors and Actresses Without Histrionic Ability Who Have Become a Habit With the Public Due for a Rude Awakening

The faults of the present star system threaten its very existence in the opinion of George Backer, president of Fourquare Pictures and an established business man of New York City. Mr. Backer declared that the public has grown weary of the one-time favorites of the screen for reason that their lack of genuine dramatic capacity has at last been discovered. Mr. Backer, of course, makes exceptions in his general criticism.

"The trouble," said Mr. Backer, "has originated through the greediness of players who failed to estimate their popularity at its accurate value. They have, at the outset, misinterpreted the meaning of the word 'star.' Instead, as they believe, of representing ability as well as drawing power with the public, it has been the practice to attribute to them the drawing power alone—a quality most of them have grossly exaggerated.

"Now, if we scrutinize the subject impartially, we will discover that there are two classes of so-called stars: those in fact, and those in name only. The former are artists; the latter, without exception, are players.

"The time is near when the public will not designate as a 'star' any actor or actress who is not finished in his or her profession. Actors of these latter make up a comparatively new with the people of this country, they have come to regard the player frequently seen as an old acquaintance. In the absence of a large number of truly capable players, these actors and actresses of mediocre abilities have gone on appearing in pictures after picture, until they acquired a certain vogue which they—and producers, distributors and exhibitors also—mistook for stardom.

"Public Grows Weary

"Within the past year a change has been gradually taking place. The public has grown weary of seeing favorites for the reason that their lack of genuine dramatic capacity has at last been discovered. Offered in roles for which they obviously were unsuited, and often in photoplays that were not strong in story and production, these 'stars' have shot downward with a vengeance. Naturally the public has weared of seeing them.

"During this same period of time the producers, who have suffered insistent demands for still more outrageous salaries, have made a discovery. This has been that even the admitted half dozen stars who possess a box-office value (and with it some acting capacity) are receiving salaries that financially cripple their companies, even temporarily, and it has been said as a result, that one cannot make any appreciable profit, even in those pictures which will bring in a profit. The public does not seem to notice these inflated salaries.

"The experienced man of business does not need to be reminded that when he exceeds the limit of monetary safety in overhaul his stability is endangered. That time has now arrived with respect to stars who each receive several thousand dollars weekly—which, in practical every instance, is from two to four times what they are really worth.

Extravagant Days Numbered

"It needs no prophet to predict that the days of extravagance in this respect are numbered. Even the producers who foolishly bid against each other for the services of a reputed star see the

Fox Has Option on Services of Walsh; Can't Join Goldwyn

R. A. Walsh, the director, who recently signed a long-term contract with Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, will be unable to join that company because of the discovery that his contract with the Fox Film Corporation gives the organization a further option on his services.

This discovery was made by Mr. Walsh upon his arrival in New York from his Los Angeles home, and it caused him quite as much surprise as it did Goldwyn, which had entered into an agreement with him upon Mr. Walsh's assurance that he was free to deal with whomever he pleased with regard to his services.

Mr. Walsh, immediately upon the discovery of his dilemma, frankly laid the matter before Samuel Goldfish, president of Goldwyn, and following a fixed rule of the organization not to interfere with any person holding a contract with another organization gave Mr. Walsh his written release from his Goldwyn contract.

The above mentioned officers are the board of five directors of the executive board is composed of Messrs. Gates, Greene and Hamlin. They are going to open one large central film exchange in Minneapolis, 'star' manager Hamlin, 'where a master booking sheet will be used in conjunction with a system of distribution in connection with all theatres throughout the four states.'

"Operations will start about Jan 28, just one month ahead of our previous plans. We are interested in the recently published articles in the leading national film papers, the present system of marketing and distribution is in all wrong and a miserable waste.'

"When they study our simplified efficient plan, I predict that they will it a thorough trial in this zone. In the meantime we will send our organizing out to organize another zone.

handwriting on the wall. And quite a number of these leaders now will wake up some fine morning, when their contracts have expired, to find that the next ones they sign will have to be for amounts greatly below what they now unjustly get.

"In a few words; the 'stars,' by their unreasonable demands, has killed the goose that has been laying their golden eggs. Soon, I am sure, the situation will be readjusted on an equitable basis. For the star, to appear as such, must have in addition to an absolutely determined box-office value, exceptional dramatic qualifications and be presented in a suitable role in a strong production, surrounded by relatively efficient players in all other characters.

"Then we have the star in, his, or her, adequate setting. When this is accomplished, and the compensation is neither too large nor too small, the conditions are those which make for satisfaction artistically; for the commercial success of producer, distributor and exhibitor; and for the public, which is being catered to."

"Ruggles of Red Gap" Nearing Completion

Preparations for the publication of "Ruggles of Red Gap," the George J. Spoor special, are now being completed. The advertising of the production has been given careful consideration, it being Mr. Spoor's aim to help exhibitors on all of his features.

"Uneasy Money," featuring Taylor Holmes, an adaptation of the story by W. B. and H. H. Blyden, is first of Mr. Spoor's specials. "Uneasy Money" shows the famous comedian in the role of an amusing English lord in America. Mr. Spoor is also presenting a series of pictures featuring Mary MacLane, the authors is already receiving quizzes from exhibitors in all parts of the country who are saying that the popularity of the write will net them unusual box office receipts.

There are reasons—
Come and see them.
The Curse of Currency

Exhibitors should immediately forget that pictures are issued on any particular date. Producers and distributors should cease dating their "releases."

The fact that this is not now being done, that the film trade and consequently the public is accustomed to look for the "latest" pictures is entailing a tremendous waste of money and is robbing exhibitors of the opportunity of showing consistently pictures of higher merit—and at less cost.

In last week's issue the Exhibitors' Herald printed a list of fifty of the best pictures of 1917. At least twenty-five of these pictures are now considered "old releases" and for that reason alone exhibitors generally will pass them by and pay a big price for some film just issued, simply because it is "new."

If a picture is once good it remains good for each theatre until each theatre has exhibited it.

In the list referred to there are many pictures of splendid merit which can be booked at the price charged for the cheapest picture of current issue, and the entertainment value of any one of them is almost infinitely superior to that of the average current release.

The plan of dating pictures has a great many disadvantageous features and each one is very costly. The producer who makes a really meritorious picture is prevented from receiving his proper revenue from it because it comes to be considered "old" before it has been used by all the theatres that should use it.

Along the same line every theatre that misses playing the really good picture is suffering a consequent loss of revenue and prestige.

There are certain pictures that are necessarily dated because they are based on themes of timely interest. But the vast number are not; they are simply founded on entertaining and diverting themes that are as "timely" six months and six years hence as they are today.

It is generally recognized among producers that under the present scheme of operation they do not receive adequate gross returns in a great number of cases from their best pictures. It is to the best interest of exhibitors that these returns be increased because it will mean lower booking rates. With the volume increased it is possible and practicable for the producer to accept lower rates and improve the condition of his business.

The program scheme of distribution is one of the big obstacles in the way of the best pictures earning their proper reward because the exhibitor receiving his regular weekly quota of reels is kept fed-up on film whether it be good, bad or indifferent. Here again the open market points the way to better business.

But considering conditions as they are, there are few of the bigger houses which do not have their "open dates" which leaves them free from the program entanglements. These "open dates" can mean big business and increased prestige if the exhibitor will run the really excellent pictures of six months and a year ago.

Joint Booking Plan

A significant development of recent months is the number of "exhibitors circuits" and booking clubs that have come into the field.

The basic idea of all these arrangements is consolidation and merging of buying powers, whether it be the buying of rights by big exhibitors with the idea of subsequent issue to other houses after initial exhibition in the members' house, as is the case with the First National Exhibitors Circuit, or merely the joint booking of pictures for the use of the individual exhibitors comprising the organization.

The booking club arrangement is meeting with keen opposition from certain of the large distributing companies that seem to see in the plan a concerted effort to beat down rental prices. Where the idea of the booking club is simply this, it is practically certain to meet with failure because it will only be able to beat down the rental price below a fair level in the case of mediocre films where the distributor is not sufficiently convinced of quality that he will stand firm for his price.

On the other hand the booking club can offer a plan of economic advantage, not only for its members but also for distributors.

As has been repeatedly stated, there is a tremendous waste in the current method of distributing motion pictures. A booking club, properly managed, can assist in cutting down this waste and at the same time obtain film for its members at a somewhat reduced rate, simply because by closing with a distributor at probably a single meeting for a large number of bookings it is enabling the distributor to cut down his sales expense by giving him a short cut to covering his territory.

The "exhibitors circuit" plan is akin to the state rights idea and is an addition to the territorial distribution scheme which gives indication of growing constantly in importance.

SINCE the first of the year several of the larger corporations that operated with various subsidiary companies have announced that they will bring their various activities together in one company, thereby eliminating considerable lost motion and expensive duplications of offices, staffs, etc.

This plan apparently is a short cut to the elimination of useless expenditures, and eventually its benefit will be felt by every branch of the industry. "Big business" generally long since has recognized the economic efficiency of merging small units into larger ones to obtain great results at a smaller cost. Several of the film companies that have needlessly brought the evil of the small unit upon themselves apparently have learned their lesson.

THE tactlessness of Major Funkhouser, Chicago's censor czar, is again trotted out to view. This time Funkhouser involves himself in a lawsuit with Theda Bara over criticisms which he is alleged to have made while censoring the "Cleopatra" picture.

Whether or not Miss Bara is sustained by the courts, she is obviously taking the proper course in the matter by stopping the major short in his wild career of criticizing and censoring. The famous player and the company with which she is associated probably do not give a hoo-rah what Funkhouser thinks or what he says, except in his official capacity as censor chief.

But the importance that is attached by so many—unwittingly—to the conduct and conversation of the Chicago censor requires that he be answered publicly and in a court of record.

‘Free and Equal’ Picture Controversy Starts Censorship Agitation in Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 7—“Free and equal,” a film dealing with the negro question in a graphic manner, was withdrawn from the screen in Los Angeles this week.

Following the initial showing of the picture, a great storm of protest was raised and the police ordered the picture to be stopped. The owners of the film then sought an injunction to restrain the municipal authorities from interfering with the exhibition.

Before any action had been taken on the injunctions, various civic societies came to the front and laid plans to back up the police authorities in the effort to restrain picture-house owners from showing the film.

Hardly before the film people of Los Angeles knew what was transpiring a movement had been started to create a crusade against the line of the Fun-kasse, or Film, in Los Angeles.

At this point Harry Leonhardt, western manager for the Goldwyn Pictures, ordered the film re-issued and the managers of the various big film men, including Thomas H. Ince, D. W. Griffith and Mack Sennett, to a conference, and it was arranged that the showing of the picture was bringing about the menace of a general censorship board for Los Angeles.

In a letter to a herald reporter, Mr. Ince, who is half-owner of the picture, agreed to have “Free and Equal” removed from the screen. A. H. Woods, theatrical magnate, is associated with Mr. Ince in the ownership of the film.

Worst Snow Storm Stops Delivery of Film to Theatres

One of the worst snow storms in a quarter of a century, which practically furred all means of transportation to Seattle, stopped more than twenty-four hours, and laid havoc with exhibitors in eastern Iowa, southern Wisconsin, western Indiana and northern and central Illinois.

It was the snow that proved their films. Frantic telephone calls by worried managers to the Chicago exchanges brought the response that due to an almost complete stoppage of traffic, it was impossible for them to get their films. A .

Some of the exhibitors nearer to Chicago pressed their traveling friends to the service and received a ready sentiment to their request. One in instance, however, the operator, though willing to go, failed to arrive in a town thirty-seven miles west of the “windy” city until nine o’clock in the evening, although he left Chicago before 6 o’clock.

Many of the more foresighted theatre managers held onto their Sunday hours and ran them again Monday night through their inability to obtain new shows from Chicago.

Government Orders War Tax Money Deposited in Separate Account

New Ruling Only Effective in New York District

Thus far But Belief Is That Application Will Soon Become General

Exhibitors of the district greater New York have been notified by Deputy Collector Mark Eisner that it will be necessary for them in the future to deposit funds collected for the government, by means of the war tax on tickets, in a separate account instead of in a joint account with that of the theatre funds, as has been the case in the past. While to the managers as yet become general, it is believed that the action taken by the New York district will soon be applied to the various internal revenue districts throughout the country. However, the Chicago district had not been notified that such a ruling was in effect.

Back of the order, it is said, is a feeling obtains among government officials that the step will tend to eliminate any chance of complications in collecting the tax which might arise from the fact that funds due the government have been credited to the same account as the proceeds from the sale of theatre tickets.

Order Protects Government

The new order, according to Collector Eisner, will prove particularly effective in the case of a theatre owner becoming insolvent. He pointed out that if the money due the government is in a separate fund, it could not be considered the money of the defunct showman.

Another advantage to the government, and one which, if effective of some proportion, is the interest accruing to money on deposit. Under the new order, if it is necessary that the money stay on deposit some little time the gain will be the government's, inasmuch as the interest on the separate account will be credited to it.

The whole order of the department of internal revenue applying to tickets of admission and requiring that the words "tax paid" must be stamped or printed on such, follows in full.

Must Stamp Tickets

"On and after December 13 no person shall be admitted to any place to which admission is charged, unless the ticket, card or pass by which he is admitted bears evidence that the tax due, in respect of admission thereto, has been paid. This evidence shall consist of the printing or stamping upon the ticket, card, pass, or other evidence of the right to admission, the words "tax paid.""

"Each proprietor of any place to which admission is charged, not specifically exempted from the duty of secured by the fact that the same shall be paid, shall cause himself with such a stamp as may be necessary for this purpose. Such stamp shall be applied to the ticket, card, pass, or other evidence of the right to admission, at the place where it is issued. In case of all tickets, passes, cards, or other evidence of the right to admission, issued before November 1, but used after November 1, the correct, card, pass, or other evidence of the right to admission, shall, before the same is used, be "validated" in respect to the tax by collecting the proper tax in respect thereof and stamping the same in accordance with the above requirement.

There shall be kept in each box office of every theatre, place of amusement, or other place to which admissions subject to the tax are charged, a box of stamps which shall be issued as specified of tickets sold and the tax collected thereon. Such record shall show the number of passes used for admission each week, and the place of issue, and the number of admissions of children under 12 years of age and the tax collected thereon.

No separate class of tickets sold must be so distinctly indicated as to be capable of ready verification by the internal revenue department. A separate record shall be kept of the number and kind of tickets, cards, passes, or other evidence of right to admission, on or after November 1, 1917, paid for or issued prior to November 1, and of the tax collected in respect thereof. The monthly returns required to be filed by proprietors of all places to which admission is charged, not expressly exempted from taxation, shall include and cover amounts collected on validation of tickets, passes, cards, or other evidence of the right to admission."

A representative of the internal revenue department was in Chicago last week, calling at the various film exchanges, explaining to the managers of each the views of the government as outlined in the above. The exchanges will, in turn, familiarize the exhibitors with their duties under the act.

Government Bureau of Explosives Amends Ruling on Film Shipments

Will Become Effective February 1 and Containers Bought Subsequent Must Comply With New Regulations — Action Necessitated by War Conditions

The sub-committee of the transportation committee of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, working in conjunction with the bureau of explosives of the United States, have effected a revision of the proposed amended specifications for the shipment of motion picture films. The two bodies have been working together for several months in an effort to reach standardized methods so as to properly protect film in transit and safeguard the public as well.

Radical changes in the specifications were found to be necessary owing to the scarcity of tin and sheet-iron occasioned by war. It was stated the revised regulations shall take effect until February 1 and all containers purchased subsequent to that time must comply with the new requirements, but the present supply of shipping containers may be used until September 1, providing they are in good condition.

The bureau of explosives through W. S. Topping, assistant chief inspector, suggests that any criticisms or objections to the proposed rule be filed at the office of the bureau of explosives, 30 Vesey street, New York City, not later than January 15.

Amend Paragraph 43

The changes as applied to paragraph 43, captioned "Proposed amended paragraph 43 and specification for motion picture film containers" reads:

"(a) Motion picture films must be packed in spark-proof metal boxes or cans complying with Specification No. 32. Not more than eight reels (approximately 1,000 feet each) may be packed in one such outside container.

(b) Motion picture films may also be packed in outside wooden boxes complying with Specification 39, provided each reel is placed in a tightly closed inside metal container. The gross weight of such a package must not exceed 400 pounds."

Specification No. 32

In reference to "shipping container specification No. 32, the amended ruling reads:

"(1) Cans or cases must be made of sheet iron not less than 0.02 inch thick. These cans or cases must be lined throughout with hard tiber board at least 3/8 inch thick, or with some other equivalent insulating material approved for this purpose by the Bureau of Explosives.

(2) Covers may be permanently attached to metal boxes, cases or can by not less than two hinges which must be securely riveted, or they may be slip covers, closely fitting. The covers must be lined with insulating material of the same character and thickness as required for the body of the container.

(3) Hinged covers must fit tightly against the shoulder of the body, and lay over or inside the body not less than 3/8 inch on all sides. A strong metal hasp must fit over staple or eye bolt, and must be provided with a permanent non-detachable catch to engage in staple or eye bolt.

Requirements for Telescopes

"4. Telescope or slip covers must fit tightly against the shoulder of the body and lap down over or inside the body not less than 3 inches (except that for a 1-reel box the lap may be 2 inches). Telescope or slip covers must be secured to cans or cases by a strong, positive, mechanical device, made of metal. This device must be approved by the Bureau of Explosives, both as to design and construction.

"5. Each outside metal container must be plainly marked "Complies with U. C. C. Specification 32," or if desired this marking may be indicated by a symbol consisting of a rectangle. The letters and figures in this symbol must be at least 1/2 inch high.

"When offered for shipment the package must also be plainly marked "Motion Picture Films," as required by the U. C. C. Regulations for the particular article contained therein.

"Note—Shipping containers complying with Rule 43 (a) effective October 1914, and purchased prior to February 1, 1918, may be used for the shipment of motion picture films until September 1, 1918, provided they are securely closed and in good condition, and provided further, that if fitted with telescopic covers, the covers fit tightly against the shoulder of the box body. Leather or web straps, if used, must be in good condition and tightly fastened—string or rope must not be used."

The sub-committee of the transportation committee which has had this matter under consideration is composed of A. E. Siegel, chairman, Greater Vitagraph; Herbert S. Clark, Paramount Pictures; Allan Rock, Paramount Pictures Corporation; W. E. Atkinson, Metro Pictures Corporation; J. C. Clark, Wm. L. Sherry Feature Film; A. E. Rousseau, Pathe Exchange, Inc.; J. H. Silston, Paramount Pictures Corporation, and G. J. Schaefer, World Film Corporation.

Charlie Chaplin Gives New Year's Party at Hotel Alexandria

Los Angeles, Cal.—With the assistance of the heads of the various departments of his organization, Charlie Chaplin ushered in the new year with a banquet at the Alexandria Hotel here.

"There were ten in the comedian's party, which was a stag affair. The Chaplin party attracted considerable attention because of the popularity of the host and the absence of feminine beauty about the festive board. A color scheme of red and white was conspicuous in floral decorations.

Shortly after the arrival of the new year the star was escorted to the platform and called upon for a speech. The comedian spoke briefly and then introduced one of the new acquisitions to his studio staff, Charles Reisner, author of the patriotic song, "Good Bye Broadway—Hello France."

Those present besides the star and Mr. Reisner were John Jasper, manager; Charles Lapworth; Melville Brown, scenario department; Roland Totheroh, chief camera department; Frank Crompton, technical director; Henry Bergman and Albert Austin, character comedians, and Carlyle R. Robinson, director of publicity.

New Head of Local Body Is Ill in Hot Springs, Ark. - A. Zilligen Re-elected to Sergeant-at-Arms Post

E. Thomas Beatty was the unanimous voice for president of the Motion Picture Theater Owners' Association, on the slate of the American Exhibitors Association, at the annual election of hat body held last Friday. Mr. Beatty was not present. He is in Hot Springs, Ark., recuperating from a recent attack of diphtheria.

The retention of Louis H. Frank in the position of treasurer was the popular will of the members. H. A. Gundling, who had been nominated to oppose the present incumbent, withdrew his name just before the ballot was taken. He paid a high tribute to Mr. Frank and asked that his re-election be made unanimous.

The treasurer himself cast the only dissenting vote against his retention.

A. J. Krug, retiring president of the association, explained in a short address that it would be impossible for him to continue in the office. He thanked the members for their support in making his tenure of the office successful and added that his increased business cares—he had acquired another theatre—would prevent him from devoting the time necessary to the office of president.

Other Officers Elected

George Henry was elected vice-president, by vote of Powell, secretary, and Vma M. Kesner, financial-secretary. August Zilligen was returned to the post of sergeant-at-arms.

A. J. Krug, H. A. Gundling, J. Cooper and W. J. Mulligan are the new members of the executive committee and were elected to membership of the finance committee are A. Chenkki, A. Ostrowsky and S. Abrahams.

Phillip Bannovitz, L. M. Hale and George Paul were made members of the legal aid committee.

Mr. Beatty has won his place at the head of the organization by his untiring efforts and unflagging zeal in its behalf. That he was the popular choice of the body is evidenced by the fact that he was unopposed for the office.

Hear Rembusch Plea

In a communication to the association, rank J. Rembusch, national secretary, urged the exhibitors to prepare at once to strengthen their organization. He pointed out the number of theatres throughout the country which were compelled to close their doors as the result of evils now existing in the industry. Organization is the only relief in sight, he declared.

"Your, the disorganized exhibitors," is letter reads in part, "are to blame for the present inequitable tax law, for the advance deposit system, the high salaries paid by the bookers, the lack of business and all the ills of the industry. Let us see if it is true. View our present economic conditions by the concrete example that follows on an entirely different angle. Let every exhibitor make his own deduction from this actual statement of facts and then answer. If all the exhibitors were together in one great fraternity, would the present evils exist? Are you, Mr. Exhibitor, ready to do your best to solve this problem?"

At this point Mr. Rembusch narrated a conversation he had with a prominent producer in which the latter blamed the exhibitor for existing conditions. The producer declared that the exhibitor had constantly encouraged the unfair producer; that he wanted to be humbugged and that he would not take cooperation when it was offered to him.

Producers Want Organization

"There are a dozen producers who are almost bugged to death by the fact that the exhibitors will organize into the right kind of cooperative action," Mr. Rembusch's epistle continued. There are a dozen big producers who want to play the game absolutely fair and square, who want a chance to live and let live; who are against paying unlimited salaries; who are against the advance deposit system and favor a cash method of trade; who are as interested in the welfare of the exhibitor as any exhibitor is in his own welfare because they know the exhibitor must prosper if the producer prospers, but they are helpless. Their hands are tied by one thing—the disorganization.

Following the reading of the Rembusch letter, plans of the city council for the new seat tax to be levied against motion picture theatres were presented to the association. No action was taken and the document was filed.

Resolutions were adopted assuring President Beatty of the wish of the organization for his speedy recovery and quick return to Chicago.

$5,000 Film Theft

Still Proves Enigma to New York Police

Thieves in Bold Swoop Steal Motor Car and Thirty-Nine Reels of Film

Police of New York City have, as yet, been unable to find any trace of thieves who, about a week ago appropriated a truck load of films belonging to live exchanges and made a successful get away. Thirty-nine reels of film were obtained in the haul, valued at $5,000.

The robbery, in addition to being one of the largest, was probably the boldest in the history of the industry. The motor car was in charge of Harlan P. Ross, who was returning the films to exchanges. He stopped the machine in front of the Mecca building, Broadway and Forty-eighth street, and took two films into an exchange close by.

When he returned to the street the machine as well as the films were gone. He reported his loss to the police and some time later the abandoned automobile was found, but the films had been removed.

A list of the missing films is as follows: Triangle Film Corporation - Keystone comedy, in two reels; "The Ten of Diamonds," in five reels; "A Fallen Star," in the World's Magazine; "The Divorce Game," in five reels; George Kleine Exchanges, "The Truant Lord," in eight reels; Famous Players Exchange, "The voices of Ann," in five reels; "Silks and Satins," in six reels; one-reel comedy and the seventh episode of "Who Is Number One?" in two reels; the New Jersey Metro Exchange, "The Patriot," in one reel. There was also missing a one-reel picture showing the recent carnival at Keyport, N. J.

Fox Film Corporation and Theda Bara

Sue Funkhouser Charging Slander

Company Suit Based on Chicago Censor's Criticism of "The Rose of Blood"—Miss Bara's Action Hinges on "Cleopatra" Film

Second Deputy Superintendent of Police M. L. C. Funkhouser, Chicago's famous film censor, became the target of the Fox Film Corporation again last week, when the company filed a suit against him for $25,000 through its attorney charging slander.

"Slander," said Attorney Schwartz, in explaining the case. "The major made some uncomplimentary remarks about the film 'The Rose of Blood.' He said it wasn't patriotic, I believe, but he's wrong."

The action is the latest step in a long standing feud between the film company and Major Funkhouser. When the film in question was first presented to the censor for a permit, it is said that the cutouts demanded were sufficient to make the picture not acceptable.

Following this the Fox company appealed to the Federal courts and the case was heard by Federal Judge George A. Carpenter who, after viewing the picture and hearing evidence for two days, refused to interfere with the censor.

During the trial before Judge Carpenter, a proposition was made by the defendant chairman of the committee on public information, was introduced in which he placed the stamp of approval of that body on "The Rose of Blood."

Later in the week Theda Bara, star in the disputed film, also filed suit for $100,000 against Major Funkhouser in the Superior court. Attorney Schwartz who also has charge of this action explained that the censor slandered Miss Bara when he censured the "Cleopatra" film.
Wholesome Films Corporation Plans to Open Eastern Office in New York

First Company to Inaugurate Mail Order Methods in Picture Distribution—Shows Big Increase in Volume of Business

Increased volume of business of the Wholesome Films Corporation, the first film company to inaugurate mail order methods to the distribution of pictures, has necessitated the opening of an eastern distribution office, which will be installed in New York City in the near future. The new office will take care of the business in the New England and eastern states. The Chicago office will handle the balance of the country.

M. J. Weisfeldt, manager of the company, said, 'will shortly make a business trip to New York City in the interests of the company. Mr. Weisfeldt states that the experimental stage of distributing films by mail has passed and that the company now has full confidence in the practicability of the methods.

The Wholesome Films Corporation came into being less than a year ago. Thus far it has produced two features, "The Penny Philanthropist," and "Cinderella and the Magic Slipper," and a one-reel comedy, "His Awful Downfall." Under the mail order system, it is said, these three productions have not only paid the overhead expenses of the company, but have shown a profit. This is the more remarkable when it is taken into consideration that the company claims to rent films at 40 cents a week under other companies, charges no extra tax, and pays the express both ways.

When questioned as to what the effect upon his company would be were the other companies to adopt similar means of distribution, Mr. Weisfeldt became enthusiastic.

"Beneficial," he exclaimed. "We would welcome competition in this line. It would do good all around and be of assistance to the Wholesome Film Corporation.

Mr. Weisfeldt refused to divulge the details of the mail order plan used by his company. Miltown Daily and A. M. Allen, president of the company, were in conference in an adjoining office and while nothing definite could be learned it is believed that the company will soon seek more space in Chicago.

Exhibitors Look for Better Business; Slump Only Temporary General Belief

Frank Hall Makes Canvass of Middle West and Is Convinced There is No Foundation for Uneasiness Over Future

Having returned from a holiday trip through the middle west during which he obtained first hand information as to conditions among exhibitors in that territory, Frank Hall, president and general manager of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, is convinced there is no foundation for the uneasiness over the future of the motion picture industry which has been expressed by skeptics of the trade during the last several weeks.

"To be sure," asserted Mr. Hall, "conditions are not of the best. But the consensus of exhibitor opinion, so far as I have been able to ascertain, is that the existing slump in certain quarters is but temporary and that the early spring will see a general boom through the trade.

"A majority of the exhibitors with whom I talked have little complaint to make concerning present conditions. A few have found that the rise in prices occasioned by the war tax has affected their patronage, but none was so pessimistic as to believe that the spring would not see a big improvement in conditions everywhere.

"The demand for big pictures, however, appears to be more insistent than ever before. Exhibitors desire productions that will have the desired effect of exceptional exploitation, pictures they can 'bill like a circus' for in these times the amusement-going public ever is seeking the unusual. Commercial productions that might have filled a theatre several months ago are of little value now.

"In view of the calamity bowing to which certain individuals in the East have lately given way, I undertook to sound exhibitor opinion myself and the result has been most gratifying."

Spring Outlook Bright

District representatives of the Booking Corporation also have submitted reports as to conditions during the last few days in which they set forth their belief that next spring there will be a boom in the theatrical and moving picture fields that will carry business back to flood tide.

Joseph Partridge, who has been assembling the United States sales forces beyond the Rockies, has forwarded an especially optimistic report in which he declares that exhibitors on the coast have not felt any depression thus far and that none with whom he has come in contact expect any.

"If there is any depression in the East," wrote Mr. Partridge, "it has not yet been felt out here. I find few exhibitors who are not making money. Competition is keen and the demand for big productions is strong. Exhibitors want extraordinary productions to keep interest stimulated.

"There has been a heavy demand for the U. S. subjects, 'The Zeppelin's Last Flight,' 'Trotter's War,' 'Raven,' 'The Canadian,' and the engagement of the first named production at the Sennett Theatre in San Francisco was a running success. Most of the coast exhibitors report that the recent holiday period was one of the most prosperous they have experienced in recent years."

Pictures in Bagdad

Bagdad has one public motion-picture theatre. The building is about 100 feet long, 60 feet wide, and 20 feet high, and is furnished with electric lights and fans, power for which is supplied by a small motor.

The films shown are similar to those ordinarily exhibited in America. There is usually one long film featuring some prominent French or English actor, followed by a short comedy. Numerous American films also are shown here.

Until recently films were imported chiefly from Smyrna, where there is an agency, but that source of supply has been cut off since the occupation of Bagdad by the British on March 11, 1917. The British have taken over the firm of Pathé Frères, of Paris, France. The theatre opens every night at 8 o'clock, and continues from 10:30 to 1:00 for exhibitions during the day at present. The pictures are changed twice a week. The attendance is good.

There has been a motion-picture plant conducted by the military authorities exclusively for the British officers and soldiers here, but a British firm conducted a first-class film theatre in Bagdad. It was very popular, and was attended by the best class of the population. Undoubtedly such enterprises will prosper here in the future, when normal conditions are restored, because the city has a population of about 200,000, and this form of amusement appeals to them.

Army Claims Goldwyn's Photography Director

Goldwyn has lost his director of photography. He is George Hill, now of the U. S. Army Signal Corps. With a first lieutenant's commission in his in side pocket, he made a trip to Hollywood, Cal., to spend a day with his parents, following which he reported a Washington for further orders.

Few men have worked in so many studios than Lieutenant Hill, and his achievements since joining Goldwyn have been many. Besides assuming responsibility for the photography of the huge big organization at Fort Leb, Hill applied his talents in the actual filming of productions. His work in "Poll of the Circus," "The House of the Seven Gables," and "The Road" stand as evidence of his skill as cinematographer.

New Mather Building at Washington
Will House Capital City Exchange

Arthur H. Sawyer, of General Enterprises, Inc., who returned to New York from Washington, D. C., last week states that the project of erecting a new film structure to be known as the Mather building in that city, has reached a successful conclusion. To Mr. Sawyer goes the credit for promoting and successfully closing the deal whereby the city of Washington will have a special building exclusively devoted to the needs of the exchanges now located in various parts of the city. Mr. Sawyer, on his return from the Capital city, gave out the following information regarding the deal of the project:

"The uncertainties regarding the housing of film exchanges under one roof in Washington were removed this week and despite numerous rumors and newspaper articles, the work will be carried on uninterrupted. It has been stated that the United States Government intended taking over the new Mather building to be located on G street, near 9th, in Washington, for war offices. This matter was definitely settled at a meeting attended by exchange managers of Washington, A. C. Mather of Chicago, Mr. H. T. St. John, and myself, representing General Enterprises, Inc., which organization promoted the scheme.

"The new building regulations in Washington stated that practically every film exchange in the city would have to move out of its present quarters on or before January 1, 1918, but this order was formally suspended two weeks ago, and the date set for April 1, 1918. At a conference between the city authorities, Mr. Mather and myself, arrangements were made whereby the exchanges may remain in their present quarters until the new Mather building is completed, it being proven conclusively to the fire authorities that the structure will be a model of safety and convenience for the exchanges."

Will Cost $400,000

The new Mather building is being built on the site of the old Washington Rifles Armory at 916 G street, N.W. The former building has been torn down, excavating is now in progress, and the new building will be ready late in the spring. The structure will be ten stories high with a terra cotta and tile front, and will be a handsome addition to Washington’s business edifices. It will cost about $400,000.

There are two separate entrances on G street,—one to be used exclusively for the film exchanges with elevator service, telegraph offices in the lobby and other conveniences. The other entrance on the west side of the building will be used exclusively for the first two floors, to be utilized as bowling alleys and billiard rooms.

The Mather building will be particularly well suited for film exchange business, as there is a twenty foot passage way on the east side of the building,—a thirty foot area away in the back, and on the west side, the adjoining buildings are only three stories high, leaving the upper seven stories of the Mather building with all outside rooms.

Fire Protection System

A new system of fire protection in the vaults will be installed, the vaults being placed against the outside walls of the building and arranged in series, each holding about five hundred reels. Direct outside ventilation will be installed, having an inlet of outside air at the lower part of the vault, and large screened openings at the top to allow the egress of air. For the exchanges wishing to have their own projections, a large flue is being installed, running from the basement to the roof, which will provide ventilation for the booths.

The basement is being laid out to provide many conveniences for the exchanges. A separate large projection theatre, capable of seating three hundred people will be installed at one end and at the back of the basement communicating with the freight elevators will be quarters for the express companies. Additional vaults provided in the basement will be rented to the exchanges at a nominal charge per month. These vaults can be used for storage of films that are but seldom issued.

U. S. Exhibitors Corp. to Produce Features
From Books and Plays

Frank Hall, president and general manager of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, does not intend to be caught napping should there develop a shortage of big productions such as the concern is exploiting and is now negotiating with four prominent directors to make a series of features for his concern.

For obvious reasons, the names of the directors with whom Mr. Hall is dickering will be withheld pending the signing of contracts.

Having acquired three special productions with which to launch his organization, embracing "The Zeppelin's Last Raid," "Those Who Pay," and "The Belgian," Mr. Hall is casting about for other attractions of equal merit. While he does not anticipate difficulty in finding suitable productions for a few months, he feels that owing to war conditions, which may affect the independent market, it would be advisable to fortify his concern against such a contingency by engaging directors to make productions exclusively for the U. S.

"It is our intention to produce only productions founded upon successful plays or popular books," declared Mr. Hall, "and a star of genuine box, office value will be featured in every subject. We shall exercise the utmost care in the selection of both the star and the vehicle and will co-operate step by step with the directors in the making of the production."

Film Exchanges Sales Forces Boost
February Motion Picture Exposition

J. A. Berst of Pathe Styles Coming Show Official "At Home"
Week of the Industry—Triangle Salesmen Active in Its Behalf

Cooperation from many sources is making the outlook for the forthcoming motion picture exposition most encouraging. This exhibition, which is to be held in Grand Central Palace, Feb. 3 to 10, under the auspices of the National Association of Primitive Picture Industry and the Motion Picture Exhibitors’ League and these associations are receiving the support of entire sales organizations of all large film companies who are to exhibit. These sales staffs have been set to work boosting the show systematically. Triangle, Pathe and others are doing their utmost, the Triangle salesmen being active with a “see us at the show” campaign. C. B. Rice, manager of the Triangle New York Exchange, said this week in referring to the matter:

“I am very much in sympathy with the idea of holding an annual motion picture exposition in New York City. I know it is the custom of other large industries to hold each year a convention and exposition where the views of the various elements in the business can be expressed and where an interchange of ideas can be made. It seems to me that an exposition of this kind is very beneficial to the producers, distributors and exhibitors, and I am very glad to offer the help of my sales force in furthering the usefulness of this annual affair. I have asked R. D. Burdige, my assistant, as well as my salesmen, to urge all exhibitors with whom they come in contact to attend the convention and also to use their efforts in turn in advising the public in general of the exposition and to encourage a large attendance.”

Berst Commends Show
J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager of Pathe Exchange, Inc., says that this meeting of the public, the exhibitor and the manufacturer, will be conducive to benefit to the entire industry.

“Pathe will be properly represented at the exposition,” said Mr. Berst, “because close association with the public brings about a better understanding and consequently better business and better working conditions. The motion picture business, like any other industry, is stimulated by personal touch and to meet and greet the people with whom we do business both directly and indirectly, goes a long way toward cementing friendships that are of the greatest importance in modern commercial methods.

“The people that patronize our art are too vast in number for us to visit them individually, in accord with our large business usage, express our appreciation of their support. Therefore the next best thing is to have an ‘at home’ and in attendance. I am sure that this week the salesmen and officials will be there to receive the public and exhibitors and acknowledge our appreciation of the handsome support the exhibitors have given us doing the past year and our gratification at the approval the public has bestowed upon our efforts to entertain.”

Actors to Attend
“Al of the Pathe pictures now in the course of production are being made with the cooperation of various companies in the Eastern studios. All of these artists have expressed their intention to be present at the exposition and every effort will be made to fittingly present them to the public. I anticipate that the coming exposition will be the greatest the industry has ever known. In it we are presenting a solidly united front and with all branches working for its success it cannot fail to be a great event in motion picture history.”

Frederick H. Elliott, general manager of the exposition, has accepted the offer of Manager Harold Edel of the Strand Theatre to have the Strand Symphony orchestra entertain during the week of the exposition.

“We consider Charlotte a very accomplished and pleasing attraction," the Central Film Company wrote in making the purchase, "and when you couple this to the excellent story that you have interwoven, we believe that you have an attraction that will get top money at all houses.”

With less than eight per cent of the territory for their film spectacle, "The Warrior," undisposed of, announcement was made this week by Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin of an additional name to the already long list of buyers. The transaction in question involves the disposal of the seven part feature starring the hero of "Cabiria," to the Midwest Civilization Company of Denver, Colorado.

The buyers were represented by James W. Burke, president of the Midwest Civilization Company, and Max Schulbach, general manager. The sale entails the states of Colorado, Utah, New Mexico and Wyoming, and Messrs. Burke and Schulbach reported immediately after their acquisition of "The Warrior" that several road companies would be toured over the four states. They are two of the most prominent territorial distributors in the far west country and have already acquired considerable reputation through their handling of Thomas H. Ince’s spectacular "Civilization." "The Warrior," of Sawyer and Herbert Lubin, has just been accepted for General Enterprises, Inc., the sale of their feature and reports the territory now left unsold to be follows: Mississippi, Louisiana, Kentucky, California, Nevada and Arizona. It is expected that these few states will be disposed of within the next week and thus establishing a remarkable record in the disposition of "The Warrior."

Mastercraft Photo-Play Corporation
Formed to Film Thomas Dixon Novels

E. Eugene Farnsworth Is President and Director General of New Corporation—E. R. Sherburne, Treasurer and I. Wolper, Director

One of the important announcements of the past week is the formation of the Mastercraft Photo-Play Corporation, headed by Dr. E. Eugene Farnsworth as president and director general, and having Thomas Dixon, Jr., from whose novel, "The Clansman," came "The Birth of a Nation." Ever since the making of that famous silent picture, it is said, efforts on the part of producers to secure other works of Mr. Dixon for the screen have proved futile until the formation of Mastercraft Photo-Play Corporation.

Land has already been purchased by the company for the erection of studios both in the east and on the west coast. Mr. Farnsworth has been in New York last week, and will devote his energies to arranging the details of the western studios. Work on the first production of the company is expected to begin within four or five weeks. The western studios will be located near Hollywood, Cal.

The name of the first production has not yet been announced except that it will be a picturization of one of Mr. Dixon's novels. Before leaving the east Mr. Farnsworth announced that he had been informed by Mr. Dixon, Jr., that the western studios were expected to be ready for production within four or five weeks. The name of the novel has not yet been agreed upon, as that agreement had been consummated.

W. H. Productions Co.
Handle Independent
Production of Merit

In line with the expansion of its business, the W. H. Productions Company, is now prepared to handle the exploitation of any independent production of merit.

A statement emanating from the W. H. office says: "We are prepared now to handle world rights either on percentage or on an advance with a minimum guarantee. We will only consider the highest class of productions and will give every production we handle an individual and complete campaign that will do justice to it. We wish to impress on independent producers, however, that we will not misrepresent to exchange men or exhibitors; that our selling prices will be gauged upon a basis that must assure profit to the independent exchanger and a reasonable rental price to the exhibitor. We are doing this with our own product and will not deviate from this course. However, the independent producer will be assured of a reasonable profit on every production." W. H. Productions, today, is one of the leading companies in the independent field of distribution, and they intend to not only maintain the prestige they have established, but will give any reputable independent producer the advantage of its foundation work.

E. R. Sherburne, known in the world of finance as one of the biggest money men in the country, who has always been interested in the manufacture of pictures for some time, will be treasurer of the new corporation, while Isaac Wolper, also a large member of the board of directors.

The corporation has purchased a large tract of land covering a little over fifty acres, which is located on the Fellsway, a natural park at Medford, Mass., just outside of Boston, which will be known as Film Land City. The building of the eastern studios has been under way for some time and the buildings as nearly complete will large executive building, laboratories, an administration building, and close to large studio building with every modern equipment for the production of pictures.

Seven Films Annual Yearly

It is the intention of the new company to make not less nor more than seven productions a year. The productions will be of moderate proportions, suitable to furnish an entire evening's entertainment, it is said.

The president and director general of the company, since he has been associated with the industry ever since the first motion pictures were presented. In the early days, after a great deal of effort, Mr. Farnsworth obtained a motion picture camera from the Patents Company. With this he toured the world making pictures which he used for lecture purposes.

Two New Companies and Additional Stars Planned by Pathe Co.

J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager of Pathe, recently took a trip to Los Angeles in connection with the expansion of its western offices. During his absence from the studio, it is stated that the general program of Pathe Plays will occupy Mr. Berst's principal attention. Stars and studios, it is reported, are both scheduled for consideration and many important developments are expected as a result of Mr. Berst's visit.

Mr. Berst is planning the addition of several new names to the list of Pathe stars and also a new serial producing company and a new comedy producing company.

Pathe Gold Rooster plays, starring Baby Marie Osborne, Gladys Hulett and Creighton Hale will continue to be presented at intervals, in addition to the new star series of Pathe Plays with Besie Love, Fannie Warde, Frank Keenan and Bryant Washburn.

Fox Film Corp. Enlarges Studios
Prepares for Biggest Year in 1918

William Fox Predicts Coming Year Will Show Great Progress and Achievement in Film Production—Possibilities Unlimited, He Says

Preparing for what he believes will be one of the biggest years in the history of the motion picture industry, William Fox has enlarged his studios in the east and west.

A little over two years ago, in December, 1915, Mr. Fox sent his first company of motion picture players to Los Angeles. William Farnum headed the pioneer organization of about thirty persons. Now the Fox Film Corporation has expanded in California from a concern originally covering less than an acre of ground to one owning five acres in Hollywood, fifteen on Western avenue, and ten acres on location at Silver Lake, Fernando Valley and Chatsworth. Where there were at first only two stages, Mr. Fox now has eight in constant use, and will, it is said, have to build more within the near future if the present rate of expansion continues. To reach this high state of development, the Fox Film Corporation spent more than $1,000,000 during the first year following its invasion of the coast.

Mr. Fox also has expanded in the east. He has taken over the former Victor studio at 629 West Forty-third street, New York City, and has added a company working there. The acquisition was necessitated by crowded conditions at the five studios in New Jersey which have been operated during the past year.

"The surface hasn't yet been scratched," declared Mr. Fox, when asked for his view of moving picture activities in the year to come. "At the beginning of 1917, I said the possibilities to me of film expansion were unlimited; at the beginning of 1918, I say it again with even more conviction. I expect 1918 to show great progress and achievement in film production. I will never be satisfied until every woman and child who has legs to carry him, becomes a regular patron of moving pictures."

Paralta Announces
Publication Dates of First Three Films

Since the announcement that arrangements had been consummated between Carl Anderson, of Anderson Paralta Plays, Inc., and the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation for the distribution of Paralta Plays, through the Hodkinson Corporation, exhibitors throughout the country have been booking these productions, it is said.

Realizing that exhibitors would in many cases be compelled to rearrange their booking schedules to make room for the presentation of Paralta Plays on their program, Mr. Anderson announces that the first two productions, "A Man's Man," with Warren Kerridge and Bessie Barriscale's starring vehicle, "Madam Who," will be placed on the market without a regular publication date, in order to give the exhibitors time to arrange their bookings.

In practically all of the larger cities throughout the country, and in a great number of the smaller towns, contracts have now been closed for the presentation of these productions, and the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation is now able to announce definite dates for future offerings.

The third production to be presented will be "The Ranch of Honor," written by two pen of Ethel and James Dorrance, in which Henry B. Walthall will be seen as the star. This production will be issued on January 15 and in the future one Paralta Play will be published every two weeks.

called on Mr. Brant to take up a more important work than he has ever had before.

"Mr. Goldstein and Mr. MacGowan are also given recognition for splendid and faithful service. Both have been with the company a number of years, working their way up from minor positions to positions of trust and importance.

Neighborhood House Seeking Its Thrills Books "Lost Express"

The theory that the motion picture serial is in demand only at the downtown and transit houses has been disproved to be without foundation by the bookings on "The Lost Express," the Mutual-Signal photo-novel starring Hoot Gibson.

Neighborhood houses in big and small cities have shown "The Lost Express" and exhibitors have found that the neighborhood crowd wants its screens thrills as much as it ever did and there is little difference, so far as the demand is concerned, between them and the downtown house and the theatre which draws its patrons from a quiet neighborhood.

Goldwyn Moves Office

Following the resignation of Adol Klauber as casting director, Goldwyn Pictures has moved from the New York offices at 16 E. Norma Talmadge Begins "By Right of Purchase"

Norma Talmadge has commenced work on her new photoplay, "By Right of Purchase," in which she is presented by Joseph M. Schenck. This will be the fourth of her Select Pictures, and follows that of "Ghost of Yesterday." "By Right of Purchase" is a society drama with a New York setting. Among its interiors will be a gorgeous reproduction of Hero Land, the bazaar conducted this year for war charities in New York. Miss Talmadge plays the part of a motherly woman who spends her time flitting from one bit of frivolity to another, and the role affords her opportunity for the wearing of an array of beautiful gowns. The picture will be directed by Charles Miller and Eugene O'Brien has been chosen as leading man.

"Public Defender" in Book Form Now

"The Public Defender," in book form, which was written by Mayer C. Goldman, a well-known attorney of New York City, and which furnished the theme for Harry Raver's photodramatic production of the same name, has been added to the files of the New York Public Library.

Mr. Goldman's work, which has been inscribed by upwards of one thousand newspapers and magazines, is said to have reached circulation running well over the two-hundred-thousand mark.

"MOTHER" FILM FORMS INITIAL BOOKING FOR ASSOCIATED THEATRES, INCORPORATED

"Mother," the George Loane Tucker production featuring Elizabeth Risdon, which is being distributed in the Middle West by the Allen Film Corporation, is the initial film to be booked for the theatres of the members of the new Associated Theatres, Inc.

This announcement was made this week by James R. Grainger, general manager of the Allen company, who closed with the Associated Theatres, Inc., after considering offers from important groups of Chicago theatres.

Mr. Grainger, who acted in behalf of the booking organization in closing for the picture, was enthusiastic in his praise of the production, declaring it to be one of the finest pictures that he has ever approved in his capacity as manager. He is confident that the film will be a success with the public, and is prepared to meet the demand for the picture with the assurance of adequate supplies.

"Mother" was produced by the Chicago organization and is one of the most popular pictures ever made. The production has been a great success on the stage and is expected to be equally successful on the screen.

The booking of the "Mother" picture by the Chicago organization was influenced by the fact that the picture has been approved by the Motion Pictures of the States and is expected to be a success with the public.

N. Y. High Court to Decide Sunday M. P. Performances

Effect of Decision Will Be State-Wide Including New York City

Albany, N. Y.—(Special to Exhibitors Herald).—Final decision in the matter of the legality of public Sunday performances in the state of New York is expected late next month when the case of Vincent Bergessrom, former proprietor of the Majestic Theatre, a motion picture house in Schenectady, is heard before the New York State Court of Appeals.

While the case to be heard is only that of an individual, the decision of the court will be state-wide in its effect, including New York City with its eight hundred or more motion picture and vaudeville theatres.

The case has been fought successively through the lower courts and because of its criminal nature has been given preference over civil matters, and is now near the top on the court calendar.

This will be the first case of its kind to be argued before New York state's highest court. District Attorney John R. Parker of Schenectady will prosecute and Attorney Mitchell of Kohn will act in the interests of Mr. Bergessrom.

PICTURE PRODUCED; AUTHOR'S NAME LOST BY UNIVERSAL CO.

Payment for Story Will Be Decided by Committee of Play-Brokers

Because one of the staff of the production department at Universal City has a good memory for stories and a poor one for the names of authors, Herbert Rawlinson will soon appear in a five-reel production, "The Flash of Fate," that has been created on a chance of its original writer turning up at some subsequent date to claim his recompense.

The announcement is made by Universal's publicity department that the amount to be paid, when the author of the story shall bring proof of his work, will be decided by a committee of play-brokers, one to be chosen by each of the principals, and a third to be nominated by the two referees thus selected.

"The Flash of Fate" will reach the screen under unusual circumstances. While Col. Jasper E. Brady, of Universal's scenario department, was in conversation with one of the members of the staff, the plot of the story was revealed. Production Director Henry McRae, when questioned, remembered the story, but he failed to recall the author's name or whether he had read it in a book or magazine. Diligent inquiry failed to shed further light upon the matter or source of the plot.

The completed scenario arrived in New York, Jan. 2, and was shown to the executives of Universal. It is a feature that promises to become a valuable asset to the man who wrote the original story will be entitled to a tidy sum when he shall have established his claim to authorship.

Universal believes that its plans for compensating the original writer of the story is the only fair plan that may be adopted. Having frankly declared that it has no such writer, it now feels qualified to place a fair valuation on the story. Play brokers have actual knowledge of values, because they deal with manufacturers of all kinds of goods. By judging the quality of the story, from its presentation on the screen, their expert knowledge is likely to work justice both to the author, who is at present unknown, and to the producers of the feature.

"Fall of Romanoffs"

Brenon's Feature Playing to "S. R. O."

Following the announcement of the successful launching of Herbert Brenon's "Fall of the Romanoffs" at the new Forest Hill Theatre in Newark, N. J., comes the news that the feature was received at the Loew Theatre in Greater New York with great interest.

"The Fall of the Romanoffs" has begun its big drive throughout the East. All the Marcus Loew Theatres in Greater New York exhibited the film beginning Jan. 2, and the film played at each performance to packed houses. "Standing Room Only" have been familiar words at all the Loew Theatres for many days.

A wide spread advertising campaign preceded the showing of the picture on the circuit. Special 32-sheets bearing the figures of the world's biggest stars, the charlatan Rasputin, around whom the drama centers, were exhibited throughout New York City.

"The Fall of the Romanoffs" was first exhibited at the Ritz Carlton Hotel, in New York City. The private showing was followed by a run at the Broadway Theatre, where orders were smashed and the original run was extended an extra week.

Lucille Laverne to Appear in Support of Madam Petrova

Lucille Laverne is cast for a prominent part in Madame Olga Petrova's latest picture, "The Life Mask." Miss Laverne is a well known actress of the legitimate stage, having appeared with Fanny Davenport and Effie Ellsler and her re-appearance on the screen awakens memories of the days of Barrett, Booth and other celebrities who held forth in the theatre of by-gone days. Following the trend of the current feature, "The Art Goodwin, Miss Laverne was secured for the part she is now playing in "The Life Mask."

Miss Laverne began her screen career with Paula Blackton, the wife of J. Stuart Blackton, and since then has played with Maxine Elliot in "The Eternal Magdalen" and with Mary Garden in the Goldwyn production of "Thais." In the Petrova production Miss Laverne will play the character of "Sarah," a character which gives her many scenes with Mrs. Petrova, and the opportunity to display her peculiar talents.

Radical Change in Production
To Eliminate Waste Predicted

H. H. Hoffman Forecasts Abolition of Over-Production, Extravagance and Unbusinesslike Methods During Coming Year

Important happenings in the motion picture industry during the present year which will serve to clarify, somewhat, a muggy atmosphere and make for better conditions generally, are predicted by H. H. Hoffman, of Foursquare Pic-tes, in a recent interview concerning outlook for 1918.

“I hope I am right when I say that a few of the over-production, extrava-ganze and unbusiness-like methods will vanish during the year to come,” said Mr. Hoffman.

he became assistant manager of the Riverview Theatre. He then joined the Inter-Continent Film Co., as assistant manager, and later joined the University Film Co. He also helped to establish the New England exchange for the Sawyer products in 1914. He helped to expand the National Film Corporation exploit “The Fall of a Nation,” and in 1917 became affiliated with the Mammoth Film derartment. Mr. Usoskin will assist the Wolfberg Salesmen Attend Banquet Jan. 1

At the convention of the salesmen and sales managers of the Harris P. Wolf-berg Attractions, held at Pittsburgh on New Year’s Day, Harris P. Wolfberg predicted one of the biggest years for the amusement business. He was of the opinion that the quest for recreation would be stimulated instead of lessened by the war.

Plans for the coming year were discussed at the convention and in the evening a dinner was held at the Willam Penn Hotel at which Harris P.
Wolfberg acted as toastmaster.

MUSIC PUBLISHER
FLAYS COMPOSERS
FOR STAND ON TAX

Likens Their Position to Making Salesmen Pay for Selling Goods

Mark L. Morris of the Joe Morris Music Company is unalterably opposed to the imposition of the music tax and in a recent interview flayed the Authors and Composers’ Association for the stand it has taken.

“I have always been heartily opposed to this association,” said Mr. Morris.
“It strikes me as being one of the most unfair propositions ever entered into.
The idea of the publisher, author and composer making the very people who depend on popularizing songs, pay for them into the bargain never appealed to me.

It’s like making a salesman pay you for selling your own goods. A certain man who has been writing and publishing songs for the past twenty-five years recently resigned from the association for the same reason that I never joined it.
He considered it unjust and it certainly is unjust to the cabaret people and doubly so to the motion picture houses.

“The Movie’ has done more to help the popularity of songs than any other branch of entertainment and yet a few mercenary music publishers want to slip them the pay, pay, pay stuff. Can you beat it?”

Mr. Morris closed his interview by ordering orchestrations of his latest song hit, “Who Said Dixie,” sent to all motion picture houses.

Interest Manifested in Brenon’s Sequel to “The Lone Wolf”

Since the announcement was made that Bert Lytell was to appear in a sequel to “The Lone Wolf,” the Herbert Brenon Film Corporation, which controls the rights of distribution of this new Lytell vehicle, has received letters from various parts of the country, asking for option on the rights, and information concerning the probable publication date of the picture.

Letters have come from exhibitors all over the country, as well as from Canada —in many instances from exhibitors whose booking of the first installment was successful. Judging from these com-communications, the thought of a sequel to Louis Joseph Vance’s popular novel has been met with favor throughout the United States.

Mr. Lytell took his place as a moving picture star when he first appeared under Herbert Brenon’s direction in “The Lone Wolf.” He will play a continuation of the same role in Mr. Vance’s sequel, which is now running as a serial in the Saturday Evening Post.

W. H. Productions Plan Unique Subtitles to Bring Out Dramatic Force of Pictures

Adaptability is the slogan adopted by W. H. Productions Company in its administration of its various departments. The title department has succeeded in making an exemplary application of it in the new method of titling all of their productions.

In titling photoplays, it is necessary to know the functions and purposes of the titles. They should convey their meaning clearly to the audience. The composition of an audience is rarely of a particular class. In fact, it is generally composed of many different classes. The treatment of language, understandable and clear to the college bred mind means absolutely nothing to others who do not possess such advantages. For example, W. H. Productions Company makes the titles a living part of every one of their pictures. All superfluous and unnecessary titles are eliminated. The composition is to be paid to conciseness. There will be very few illustrations, the dramatic construction and the psychological effect of each title will be brought out in the different styles and size of type. For instance, every title of a forceful nature will be illustrated by a strong, heavy, bold-faced type, spread, stating the entire screen. The titles explanatory of emotion and art, etc., will be depicted by a type that will conform with the expressions themselves. The purpose can readily be seen that these titles will have a harmonious effect upon the human emotions of the audience.

Paramount above all, the language will be simple, so that they will be understandable by every type of audience.

Four New Exchanges Added by Foursquare to Present System

With the establishment of exchanges in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Dallas and Minneapolis, the Foursquare Exchanges have completed their organization and are now in a position to serve the entire United States and Canadian territory.

Edwardo Gainsborgh, who takes charge of the San Francisco Foursquare Exchange is a graduate of Columbia University and gave up a successful civil engineering career because pictures interested him, and because he believed the Foursquare method one which is founded upon a proper economic foundation.

W. W. Drum, who will direct the business of the Los Angeles exchanges, was for some time an executive in the World Film Corporation.

John C. Ezell, the Dallas Foursquare manager, is well known to Southern exhibitors. C. A. Maberry, who succeeds Sidney J. Baker, who moved on up to the Kansas City post, is a former exhibitor.

George F. Law, manager of the Minneapolis Foursquare exchange, although still a young man, is one of the pioneers in the exchange business. He began his film career with the old Dominion Film Exchange in Toronto, Canada.

"Foursquare managers, in every corner of the land, extend a hearty greeting to the traffic offices of Foursquare to producers and distributors as well as exhibitors. It is our combined hearty wish that 19% will bring prosperity to those who earn it and serve to advance the industry as a whole."

Spain Presents Big Opportunity to Market Motion Picture Films Reports Frank Mason

United States Cinema Commissioner Cadles Geo. Cree, Chairman Public Information Committee, of Conditions—Latter Makes Information Public

Unlimited possibilities for the sale and rental of motion picture films is presented in Spain is the official information committee, George Cree, chairman of the committee on public information, from Frank J. Marion, a member of the National Cinema Commission, who has come to be known to that country. Chairman Cree has referred the matter to President Brady, of the National Association of the Motion Picture industry.

Commissioner Marion is very enthusiastic over the opportunity which if afforded for the showing of motion pictures in Spain, would include the fact that agencies or branches directly owned and controlled in certain centers would make big returns, and is willing to assist any individual or company which desire to enter this field.

The commissioner recommends that only film men speaking Spanish should be assigned by these branches, and that films should be shipped by Spanish liners sailing from either New York or Havana. Any film companies desiring to open up negotiations should communicate direct with Frank J. Marion, Commissioner of the National Cinema Commission, care Captain Decker, U. S. Army Headquar ters, Madrid, Spain.

The text of Commissioner Marion’s cablegram to Chairman Cree on the Committee of Public Information follows:

"Cree Committee, Public Information:

Progress favorable. Naval attaché, Espana, Company operating. Going Barcelona for today, but return headquarters with Captain Decker. Se gest following information be given you to trade papers or procuring firm. Marion says at this time that sale and rental of motion picture films in Spain for leading film features like sensational drama, big spectacles and lively comedies, also Western life. He well films now distributed by agents in Barcelona, but think directly owned and controlled agencies at Coruna, Madrid, Barcelona, would make big money and stocks could be shipped by Spanish liner from New York or Havana. Exchange should he be in charge of film speaking Spanish. I will gladly act and personally according to request. "Marion—Decker"

Essanay’s Scenic Has Water Power Subject

Essanay’s scenic publication for January 19 is “Water Powers of Eastern Canada,” showing the harnessing of the waters of Niagara which generates 2,000,000 horse power and the sluice gates in Ontario and Quebec provinces capable of generating 190,000 horse power.

The scenes are building up a fairly solid clientele among the exhibitors, it is said, as they are distinctive from the general run of such class of pictures.

"King Coal" abdicated in favor of Jack cost on December 29, and since the listening icy crown was placed on his ad he has given us a "Reign of Terror," ever largely gained through sales, and now he has been forced to crawl under the front of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company's educational department to take up the Y. M. C. A. picture work.

Some hustling for Chester Beeneo, after he was notified at the eleventh hour, to speak, to have 500,000 feet of film examined in twenty-four hours, but with the aid of five projection rooms, and a corps of C. S. inspectors from the Custom House, he accomplished the task and all the film was loaded aboard ship Sunday and away she went.

The Long Island Railroad has abandoned the regular train schedule for a catch-as-catch-can system, as a result of which our frost-bitten folks from the Island have been reaching their refrigerating plants very late in the morning. And the worst of it is they have to rely on the "animal heat" in the train for warmth, and on reaching their offices they are compelled to burn red lanterns in the stores to kid themselves into being warm.

Folk's would laugh, were they to read that Charlie Chaplin had signed up with the Metropolitan Opera Company to sing in Grand Opera, but the public are so accustomed to laughing at Charlie that they don't know when to take him seriously. However, the opera stars have furnished some good laughs to the movie fans, so the score is even.

"How would a bill like this go at the Opera?" Charlie Chaplin, Mary Garden, W. S. Hart, Geraldine Farrar, Sidney Drew and Theda Bara in the sextet from "Lucia." Mr. Gatti should look into this. The test of the screen artist is what they are able to do.

Margaret Campbell has just signed up with the Wharton's to play a leading part in "The Eagle's Eye." The test of the screen artist is what they are able to do.

An elderly screen actress remarked to-day that she couldn't get jobs any more because she was growing old. However, she remarked, that producers should remember "that no matter how young a prune may be it has wrinkles just the same" and peaches have whiskers.

"THE SEVEN SWANS"
Paramount fantasy; five parts; published December 24
As a whole: Artistic Story: Fairy tale
Star: Charming
Support: Excellent Settings: Quaint
Photography: Good
Marguerite Clark scores in "The Seven Swans." No present-day screen artiste can equal this diminutive little star’s work when it comes to portraying convincingly the parts such as is demanded in this fairy story. Miss Clark also displays her terpsichorean abilities in the little dances interpolated and these help wonderfully well to carry out the spirit of the whole story. "The Seven Swans" is an artistic production throughout and will win the plaudits of the youngsters as well as their elders.

J. Searle Dawley, who directed "Snow White," Miss Clark’s vehicle of a year ago, has done equally as good work in "The Seven Swans." Careful attention has been paid to staging the production, the dialogue, the acting, the music, costumes, sets, and the whole operation is sound throughout. The story: Queen Olga wants to betroth her son, the prince, to the princess of the Seven Dials kingdom, in order to replenish her fast diminishing kingdom. She has seven brothers of the little princess turned to swans. The little princess located her brothers and keeps house for them. Here she meets the Prince Charming, who declares his love, but the princess has been told that by waving a mat of seven squares and throwing it over her brothers she will restore them to their original form. During the weaving, however, he must not speak a word. Therefore, she finds it difficult to restrain from telling the prince too much about his brothers and they part. She is thrown into a dungeon, but not being able to talk she cannot tell her identity. However, the mat is early finished when she is taken away to her doom. She has her seven brothers notified, also the Prince Charming. And her brothers restored to their natural form and she restored to her lover’s arms, all ends well. The feature pleased large audiences at the Ziegfeld Theatre, Chicago, where it was shown last week.

Admirers of Emily Stevens will have an opportunity of seeing her in a role that is quite befitting. However, the story is mediocre, intensely melodramatic and not of the most cheerful trend as produced by Metro. It was taken from the stage play.支持 Miss Stevens are Julian L'Estrange, Herman Leib and Augustus Phillips. The direction is by Albert Capellani and is commendable. Many of the interior sets are artistic and luxurious.

The story: Edith Frome finds it impossible to live with her husband, Arthur, who overindulges in liquor and finally leaves him. After a separation of four years, Edith returns each evening she goes out and returns late. This arouses the suspicion of her husband. He has his secretary follow her and learns that she visits a child. Because of her friendliness with a Doctor Brett, he believes the worst and instigates divorce proceedings. Edith tells David the truth concerning the child and realizing the folly of his debauches he swears off and they are happily reunited. The production pleased at the Boston Theater, Chicago, last week.

Margaret Fischer gives an enjoyable interpretation of a harum scarum sub-deb in "Molly Go Get 'Em." Her antics and tricks are done with fervor, minus the fear of spoiling her make-up or clothes, the result of which is a great deal more realism than is found in many productions of a similar nature. There isn’t much of a plot to the story, but it has been worked up in such an entertaining fashion that the lack of plot is not felt. Supporting Miss Fischer are Jack Mower, Hal Clemens, Margaret Allen, David Howard, True Boardman and Emma Kluge. The direction is by Lloyd Ingraham.

"The Kingdom of Love" marks the debut of Jewel Carmen as a star and for her initial stellar appearance she is well cast as Violet Carson, kidnaped in childhood by her father—when her mother seeks a divorce and taken into the gold mining fields of Alaska. The story, while not altogether new, is interesting. The settings, representing the town of Purden, are faithful, the dance hall and other typical western scenes are well depicted and the exteriors have been well chosen. The direction is very good. Miss Carmen's supporting cast includes L. C. Shumway, Genevieve Bihin, Fred Milton, Nancy Tasswell, Ernest Wade, Joseph Manning and G. Raymond Nye.

The story: Henry Carson, upon learning that his wife is about to divorce him, kidnaps their daughter Violet and takes her to the Alaskan town of Purden. After fifteen years Carson meets his death in a fight over cards and Violet becomes a dancer at Buck's Palace. To the town of Purden comes Parson David Cromwell and Frank Carson. Frank falls in love with Violet and only when she shows her a photograph of his mother does Violet realize he is her brother. It is necessary to have an operation performed on Mrs. Carson and Cromwell borrows the money from Buck, gives it to Frank and he is sent to his mother. Cromwell declares his love for Violet, but will not marry her until he has cleared himself of his debt. He takes up a chant, strikes gold and soon accumulates a tidy sum. Buck learns of his good fortune and, desiring to outwit him, sends one of his henchmen to "get" Cromwell. Violet overhears the plot and goes to warn Cromwell. There is a struggle, but Cromwell kills his assailant and, badly wounded, returns to Buck to pay him back the money. And Violet and Cromwell find happiness in the kingdom of love. The picture was enjoyed by patrons at the Alcazar Theater, Chicago.

"The Wolf and His Mate" comes under the head of a fair production with an average story. The picture will please some and bore others. The players do not display sufficient personality to develop any amount of interest and with a story that lacks human appeal the entire production will be lost on the average spectator. A small amount of suspense has been worked into the production where the "Wolf" comes to take the cabin away from Bess and again when the villain comes to kidnap little Rose, Bess' niece. There are some good western scenes.

The story: Nolan and the "Wolf" fight over a claim which each believes he owns. The "Wolf" goes on a short expedition and during his absence Nolan dies and leaves the cabin to his niece, Bess. In order to protect her niece, Rose, from the people who would exploit her, Bess takes Rose to Nolan's cabin. The "Wolf" returns and when he finds that Bess refuses to leave he summons a minister and marries Bess. This angers so much that Bess, so she has to leave, she stays. The "Wolf" camps a short distance from the cabin, but gradually they become better friends. Finally when the "Wolf" is preparing to leave Bess and the cabin forever, she begs him to stay.

"The Cross Bearer" is another interesting story of stricken Belgium. It is religious in theme but gains in interest rather than loses it through the settings of the piece correct in every way. The story is thoughtfully preserved and gives us the more phase of the greatness of the Belgian make-up. The psychology of the story is perfect, the direction excellent and no expense has been spared in making the settings of the piece correct in every way. Jeanne Eagles as Liane, his ward, was a charming heroine. Anthony Merlo portrays the character of Maurice Lambeaux in a manner that makes his work stand out above the rest of the field. Eloise Clement, Alec Francis and George Morgan are other members of the capable cast.

The story: Laine, the Cardinal's ward, returns from the convent where she is being educated and is courted by Maurice Lambeaux, a Belgian, and Gaston, the son of a German sympathizer. She, however, favors Maurice. The Germans move against Belgium and destroy the church where the Cardinal is holding services. The Cardinal goes to Rome to ask help of the Pope, who tells him to have patience and faith, that a will be well. The convent where Liane is working is enter and deserted. Through a fortunate escape to a soldier with some strength of character she escapes and finally reaches her beloved Maurice. Meanwhile, the Cardinal has expressed a desire to know Liane and Gaston plans to bring her there. She and Maurice have arranged to meet late that night. On her way to the meeting place Gaston waits and gives her a note from Maurice. Maurice himself and comes through the German lines to see her in the dead of night. She meets Maurice and takes him to the spot where she sees Maurice in earnest conversation with Gaston and German soldiers. Maurice is excited that he goes to kill the Cardinal and Liane hurrying in safety. The Cardinal clears up the situation for the young people who love the Germans at the own game by smuggling the couple across the borders in safety.

The quaint customs and home life of the Irish peasantry cleverly portrayed in "His Own People." Dealing, as it does, with the counter emotions of a blacksmith who is forced to depart himself aligned with either the aristocracy or his own people, it presents a forceful story and makes an interesting production.

Harry Morey, as Hugh O'Donnell, the blacksmith, gives strong character portrayal and the work of Gladys Leslie, as Lolly Conway, is a tribute to her genius. This is her initial appearance with Vitagraph and augurs well for future productions. Although his name does not appear in the cast, a half-fuzzy-faced Irish terrier has a prominent role in the picture and is worthy of mention.

The story: Hugh O'Donnell, the village blacksmith of onomama on Lough Corrib, is in love with Mollie Conway, a lass whom renders his heartstrings by her indifference and the ranks she plays on him. Lady Mary Thorne, who has stopped the shop to have her horse shod, invites the blacksmith to sit Cheltenham manor, where she is the guest of Lord Perivale Cheltenham at a house party. He goes to the manor and followed by Molly. The girl, while looking through a window, is discovered by Lord Percy, who drags her into his room and locks the door. In the meantime the villagers, aroused through the killing of one of their number by Lord Percy's menkeeps, arrive at the manor bent on hanging Percy. O'Donnell calms the mob, seeks the Lord and finds Molly in a room. After turning Lord Percy over to the police, the blacksmith returns to his home, where Molly's purity is finally impressed upon him and they are reconciled.

"Face Value" is Robert Leonard and Mae Murray's first attempt at story writing, the reviewer believes, and, let us hope, their last if succeeding efforts are as poorly done as this. It is a "horrible example" of what a photoplay should be and it is doubtful if it will please even "average" audiences.

The plot is old stuff and the whole far below the Bluebird standard of plays. In the supporting cast appear Clarissa Dawkins, Florence Oakman, and Casson Ferguson. Miss Murray's work is satisfying in a weak character role. The picture was directed by Robert Leonard. Deddy not a picture for discriminating, intelligent audiences.

"LOVE LETTERS"
Paramount drama; five parts; published December 24

As a whole: Uninteresting Story: Hackneyed
Star: Poorly cast
Support: Sufficient
Settings: Good
Photography: Beautiful

Even the beautiful settings, excellent photography and the fact that Thomas H. Ince supervised the direction, fails to lift "Love Letters" from the class of the commonplace. It is the story of a wife who becomes involved in a foolish love affair and then endeavors to reclaim her love letters. The man in the case is killed and because she struck him in order to free herself, the wife believes herself guilty and goes about with the burden of guilt weighing her down, which is lifted when it is learned that some one else, out of revenge, killed the victim. Dorothy Dalton is unable to register the various emotions necessary to the success of her part, and though a sympathetic one, her interpretation of the role invites no sympathy. William Conklin, in support of his very fine work and readily wins his audience. The direction is by R. William Neil.

The story: Eleanor Dare is in love with Raymond Moreland, a lecturer who favors the mating of souls without the usual conventional ceremony, and when Eleanor learns of his true convictions she is disgusted and accepts the proposal of her guardian, John Hampton. After they are married Eleanor meets Moreland and asks for the return of her love letters. He invites her to his home. When she gets there he forges his attentions upon her. In self-defense she strikes him and, believing him dead, rushes from the house. A half crazed gardener confuses to the killing and, with the knowledge that she is blameless, Eleanor confesses everything to her husband regarding her affair with Moreland.

Mutual to Publish “The Imposter” Starring Ann Murdock January 14

Ann Murdock, the Mutual star, has completed "The Imposter," a five-reel comedy-drama, scheduled for January 14. This production, made by the Empire All-Star Corporation under the direction of Dell Henderson, is a screen adaptaof the play of the same name, first produced at the Garrick Theatre, New York, by Charles Frohman. After an extended run there it was produced in London, where it repeated its New York success.

The play is based on a story by Leonard Merrick and the action is built around the vicissitudes of Mary Fenton, a young lady of refinement, who, through unfortunate circumstances, finds herself married to a young man, she accepts the hospitality of his hotel apartments, where embarrassing complications ensue, from which she is finally extricated and placed on the road to happiness by Owen. The hotel scenes in "The Imposter" were taken in the Hotel Plaza, New York.

Miss Murdock in Pathetic Role

Miss Murdock, who did such convincing work in "Outcast," "The Beautiful Adventure" and "Please Help Emily," is said to excel in a role demanding subtle and sprightly comedy as well as the pathetic appeal of an emotional act.

The cast includes David Powell, who has appeared with Miss Murdock in many stage successes; Lionel Adams, Richie Ling, Charlotte Grauville, Eleanor Seybold, Edyth Latimer, Charles Mussett and Anita Rolfe.

"Burglars" is the title of the Strand comedy starring Billie Rhodes, for January 15. Billie and her cousin, an adventuryoung chap, mistake each other for burglars when they both try to break into their uncle's house at night. They're both arrested, but uncle arrives in time to prevent their spending the night in a dark cell. The Mutual Weekly, published January 14, is up to the minute and contains the usual quota of exclusive subjects. An instance of an exclusive picture is shown in the Weekly issued December 31, showing the landing in the Presidio, San Francisco, of Miss Katherine Sinsson, the daring aviatrix, who set a new American record in flying without stop the 610 miles between San Diego and San Francisco.

Six Standard Pictures Scheduled by Fox for Three Months Production

Six new Standard Pictures, some of which are now in process of production, have been announced by William Fox for release during the first two and one-half months of 1918. Two pictures will be available in each January and February and the same number in March, the schedule, however, being completed at present only to March 15. The January 30 picture will be "Cheating the Public," the William Fox 1918 cinemodrama with an all star cast. The production is being advertised as of the same class of melodramatic pictures as "The Honor System." The "From the Depths," temporary title of a picture which was recently completed, will be published January 27. This is the story of a young woman who becomes an outcast in consequence of having put too much trust in a man, but who rises again after she has avenged herself. Part of the scenes were taken in the Bohemian quarter of Greenwich Village.

Jane and Katherine Lee's third picture is scheduled for February 15. Like the others, it is styled a comedy-drama, the fun developing along with the pathos during scenes representing life in a foundling asylum.

William Farnum's next production will probably be title "Rough and Ready" and the present intention is to publish February 22. This will be followed by a propaganda production under the direction of Frank Lloyd and to be entitled "The Divorce System." No star, it is announced, will be featured, but the company now at work in Hollywood include Rhea Mitchell, Bertram Grassly, Marc Robbins, Willa-Levis, Charles Clary and a number of other equally well known motion picture actors. March 3 is the date when it is expected that "The Divorce System" will be available for exhibition.

Work is in progress in one of the William Fox New Jersey studios on a picture temporarily titled "The Soul of Buddha," which will probably be published about March 15.

Taylor Holmes Begins "Pair of Sixes;" "Ruggles of Red Gap" Is Complete

George K. Spoor has begun production of Taylor Holmes' next picture, a "Pair of Sixes," by Edward Peple. The story concerns the farcical outcome of a game of cards as a result of which T. Boggs Johns, an illusory pill manufacturer, comes to the valet of his business partner. There is opportunity for Mr. Holmes' inimitable fun and dramatic genius, it is said with a strong love element and a surprise finish.

This vehicle gives Mr. Holmes a distinctive characterisation, though here again, as in "Ruggles of Red Gap," he is innocent masquerader.

"Let's Go" Charles Ray's Next Film

"Let's Go" will be the title of Charles Ray's fourth Paramount picture, and "His Majesty, Bunker Bean," will be the next photoplay starring Jack Pickford, to be published in March. The play is an adaptation of "Bunker Bean," the Hay Leon Wilson's novel, and has already been produced on the stage.
World Completes List to March 18;
"The Beautiful Mrs. Reynolds" at Head

The World Film Corporation's new publication sheet announces the publication of World-Pictures Brute at the regular rate of one each week up to and including March 18.

The list is headed by "The Beautiful Mrs. Reynolds," the story of Alexander Hamilton and Aaron Burr, written by Samuel M. Gross and directed by early scenes in New York and Washington, D.C., and a cast including Carlyle Blackwell, June Elvidge, Evelyn Greetley and Arthur Ashley. Among the subordinate players are Hubert Wilke, Finnis Nesbit, Lionel Belmore, Justine Cutting, George MacQuarrie, Tose Tapley, Albert Hart, Jack Drummer and Alexander Fraser. The picture was directed by Arthur Ashley.

On January 25 Madge Evans, in "Gates of Gladness," will end her tour in the West, and "The Musicians," with Dilly Malone and Leslie Howard as the stars, will be featured with her. Parts of this picture play are laid in the art colony round Washington Square, and other parts in Georgian Court, a superb estate of George Gould at Lakewood. In the cast with Miss Evans and Mr. MacQuarrie are Niles Weich, Josina Henley, Gerda Holmes and Miss Stuart Robson.

On February 4 Kitty Gordon, in "The Divine Sacrifice," will make her latest appearance upon the World program. This play concerns the measures of justification falling on a husband who seeks the human weakness of his wife elsewhere when she refuses to assume the responsibility of bearing children. Miss Gordon plays the self-sacrificing mother, her youngsters, Vera Bohns and the others are Jean Angelo, Selene Johnson, Charles Ullman and George Archambault directed.

"Whims of Society," with Ethel Clayton as its star, will be published February 11. The story of a factory owner who is about to disinherit his son for honorable attention in a factory, but before he can sign the document a disgruntled employee blows up the structure. Others in the cast are Pinna Nesbit, Katherine Johnston, Frank Taysi, Jack Drummer and others.

June Elvidge and Arthur Ashley in "Broken Ties" will be seen February 15; Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greetley in "Leap to Fame" (in which Mr. Blackwell performed a startling and dangerous stunt) February 28; Alice Brady in a new comedy drama, "The Spurs of Sybil," March 4; Kitty Gordon in "The Wasp" March 11; and Madge Evans in "Wanted, a Mother." March 16.

THE PERISCOPE

BY FULLER PEP

How are those New Year's resolutions?

Metro's publicist says Christmas always finds Geo. Baker, Metro director, either broke or away from home. Well, Metro has nothing on a lot of us as regards the first complaint.

Oh What's the Use?

From the Emory News we clip this correction: "Typosgraphical Error Jewell Advertisement page 118."

Many a manager can take a tip on the little announcement in S.L. Rothapel's Rivoli program reading: "We never tried to give the public what it wanted. In the first place we didn't know what it wanted."

My, what a lot of brain power could be saved by the making of fewer New Year's resolutions.

Fashion Note

Reports from the coast state that Charles Chaplin is wearing his hair plastered down on his dome and has discarded the Pete Milne wave he was wont to affect. They want to steal Bill Ritchie's stuff, Charlie?

Universal has a suit on its hands for $15,000 brought by one Florence Lawrence. Miss Lawrence was a film star it seems and it was advertised to have received $500 a week for her services. Seems to us we do remember such a girl; away back in 1912, wasn't it? My how time flies.

Remember Florence Lawrence, a famous movie star?

If you don't, admit it.

Or people'll think you're an octogenarian and will commence to humor you and help you down steps and maybe give you a seat in a crowded car.

Making a Bumm Outa Bunn

According to the Clipper "Ralph Proctor has been appointed head of the Pathe's Chicago office and succeeds C.W. Bunn, who becomes special representative."

Enid Bennett having kicked off the ties that bound her to Triangle is working on her first Paramount picture. It seems to us there was a loophole in her contract, through which little Enid crawled.

Ernie's Going to War

"I don't want Ernie to ask for exemption. I can support myself," Betty Schade is said to have said when it came time for her husband to declare himself. And inasmuch as Betty pulls down more dough probably than Ernie, we think it was a wise and patriotic thing to do.

Major Funkhouser is getting awfully tired of breakfast food. "It looks apparently. At least he ordered the first two portions of a recent serial off the Chicago bill of fare, so 'tis said."

Those Sweeney's Sure Can Fight

Arthur James announces that Metro's Sweeney brothers are now in the service and the Kaiser might just as well curl up and die. If they give a repetition of that first street studio housecleaning party that was pulled off about a year ago, "over there" there's no hope for the Kaiser's army, believe me.

W.W. Hodkinson not only "comes back" with a new distributing organization, but he also announces an innovation in the way of a wider and higher film to be manufactured by concerns doing business with his company:

Once again the herald suffers an awful scoop. The "W.G.N. Chi. Tribune" in its "Right off the reel" news of Jan. 6 states: "Mrs. Nazimova will eat her Christmas dinner in St. Augustine, Fla."

There wasn't a great deal done in the film world last week. Only six new companies started and two star's lawsuits, Ennis following the holidays probably the cause.
“Cheating the Public” Will Be Second of William Fox’s “Cinemelodramas”

“Stronger, bigger, more gripping than ‘The Honor System’,” is William Fox’s description of “Cheating the Public,” the second in his series of one-a-year, all star productions which he calls “cinemelodramas” and which he promised at the time of their inauguration would surpass even the stirring spectacles which have made the Drury Lane Theatre-world famous.

“The Honor System,” which, according to the Fox management, is one of the biggest money makers it has ever put on the market, was the first of this series and the prediction is made that the new production will surpass its predecessor from a box office standpoint. Exhibitors who have been invited to see pre-release showings are quoted by the Fox publicity department as being enthusiastic over the picture.

“Cheating the Public,” says Mr. Fox, “not only has a great deal in common with ‘The Honor System,’ but decidedly surpasses it in quality and quantity of high grade thrills and in strong, compelling, vital heart interest. It is melodrama of the highest order. It expresses exactly what I mean when I coined the word ‘cinemelodrama.’ Food pilfering and child labor conditions in factories are phases of the story, and furnish the underlying theme of the plot, but it is by no means dependent on these factors either for its remarkable appeal or for success.”

The production, it is announced, is to be released January 20 as a Standard Picture and will be the first release of the year in that series. The cast includes Edna May, Wanda Pets, Frankie Lee, Ralph Lewis, Bertram Grassby, Tom Wilson and others. It was directed by Richard Stanton, who made “The Spell” in 1914, but it is said that a record-breaking price was paid for the story and that the cost of the production was in excess of $350,000.

Mary Pickford’s Next Artcraft Film

“Amarily of Clothes Line Alley”

Mary Pickford’s next picture for Artcraft is entitled “Amarily of Clothes Line Alley,” in which the little actress appears in the part of a typical “fresh kid” of the slums. The photoplay by Frances Marion, is based on Belle K. Maniates’ novel of the same name.

In the role of Amarily, Miss Pickford portrays a little scrub who is living in a tenement home with her jolly, tender hearted, Irish washerwoman mother and a family of brothers who are messengers and newsboys. Amarily becomes quite a distinguished person in the little world in which she lives, and before she realizes it, finds herself in the midst of a triangle love affair which involves many complications.

Work on the picture has been commenced under the direction of the distinguished French director, Nino Rota. The major role is played by the veteran who was seen in the last picture directed by Miss Pickford, “Fascination,” and who recently died in a auto accident, had already appeared in several scenes for “Amarily,” prior to his death. These scenes were retaken with Thomas H. H. Wilson, filling the part to have been played by Mr. Campbell. “Amarily of Clothes Line Alley” will be published after “Stella Maris,” which will be Mary’s next Artcraft offering.

START PATHE COMEDY

Gladys Hulette andCreighton Hale have started work under the direction of Albert Parker in their Pathe comedy, “Annapolis,” a reworking of an adaptation from Edgar Franklin’s story published in Munsey’s magazine. In the cast supporting the stars will be seen Marguerite Green, Marc Smith, Helen Tracey, Saxon King and Frank Nelson.

Four Drew Comedies in January

“Highest Card” and “Hungry Eyes” End July Fox Bluebird Productions

“The Highest Card” and “Hungry Eyes,” the last of Rupert Julian’s productions for the Bluebird series, with Ruth Clifford the star and Monroe Salish as her leading man, have been released jointly and have had spectacular success. The screen management of Miss Clifford and Mr. Salisbury. “The Highest Card” has not been definitely dated up for publication, but “Hungry Eyes” has been set for distribution Feb. 18.

Elliet J. Clowson’s story, “His Wife in Arizona,” formed the basis of the Julian production, “Hungry Eyes.” The picture was filmed at Seven Oaks, Calif, where the company remained only one day for filming. Julian, besides directing, played an important role in support of Miss Cliff- ord. Others in the company included W. H. Bainbridge, H. W. Barrows, Arthur Travers, Gretchen Lederer and Retta Pickering.

Wilfred Lucas is now engaged in filming “The Heart of the Desert,” with Miss Clifford and Mr. Salisbury leading the cast. Best Meredith furnished the scenario, basing her work on Honore Willsie’s book of the same title, depicting a romance of Indian life, in which a girl is taken from the wilds to recover her health through living like the Indians do, close to nature, Val Paul, Gretchen Lederer, Monte Blue, Al Sears, Princess Neola and Dark Cloud will comprise the supporting cast.

NEW FOX STAR SOON TO APPEAR

Peggy Hyland, the English actress whose acquisition William Fox has just announced, is soon to go before the motion picture camera for her initial Fox production. The picture plays a near-suspenion which has its incidents as the initial step in a series, the story suited to Miss Hyland’s historicion ability. The team of the director who is to direct Miss Hyland will be mad public shortly. She will be starred in Fox special features.

Gaumont Mutual Weekly Features

Jack-tar Training and War Scene

The Gaumont-Mutual Weekly issued Sunday, January shows the making of a jack-tar at the Mare Island Navy Yard California. A review of the tars, a physical drill, and a number of different athletic stunts are interestingly pictured.

This issue of the magazine also contains a few striking pictures from the European battle fields. These scenes are undertaken by French engineers to restore the territorially occupied in the battle of the Aisne are graphically portrayed. Bad roads are being rebuilt with timber, barbed wire being mounted in places of advantage, and anti-aircraft guns mounted on motor trucks to be shifted to-positions where needed. There are also some pictures showing the empty shell cases which will be reloaded and again used against the enemy. The destructiveness of the heavy firing during the battle of the Aisne is well illustrated in scenes which show all that remains of the village of Alleman—a broken-down walls and piles of debris, and the Fort of Man- nainz, now reduced to few standing walls and empty caves.

From Sacramento, California, comes a picture of the Guat- inatulian Mansion which shows the corner destroyed by dynamite in an attempt to kill Governor Stephens.

In San Diego, Mme. Schumann-Heink, world famous prima donna, for a long time a resident of the United States, presented a flag to a regiment of infantry which she has adopted as “boys.” This great contralto has several sons who are fighting for the United States.

THIS WEEK AT DOWNTOWN CHICAGO THEATERS
The Open Market—The Exhibitor’s Salvation

By H. J. SHEPARD

A short time ago a distributor summoned one of his producers and criticized him on the quality of a certain production. The director is said to have answered: "What do you care? You'll get yours. It will go into the program and they (the exhibitors) will have to take it."

Because of this general attitude among some of the program distributors, the exhibitor must take, on their contract, what is parcelled out to them, whether good or bad, helpful or detrimental. It is loudly said that the program system is not sympathetic for the exhibitor.

There is a relief from this situation. It is the Independent Field, and the live exhibitors throughout the country are today taking advantage of it. A very recent example is that of "Tom Moore, of Washington." His action speaks for itself. He has the guts to fight, and he will win out, because he is fighting for Independence in the Film Industry.

Every exhibitor who is in business for himself, and wants to remain in business for himself, must cultivate and help develop the Independent Market, by booking Independent productions from the reliable and efficient Independent Exchanges in their respective territories.

The large percentage of the best productions are being released on the Open Market. Even some of the program companies resort to a camouflage, by taking a fairly good picture and selling their program every once in a while and releasing it under a different brand on the Open Market, in order to get the extra revenue—thus taking advantage of the exhibitor. It is all wrong, and the solution, Mr. Exhibitor, lies with you. You should keep in touch with the Independent Market through the trade papers and the Independent exchanges in your territory. Select your own pictures when and as you like them. Get what your patrons desire. There is at least one Independent exhibing each in every territory, who is considered reliable, and if there are two, so much the better for you. It means that competition for your business will be keener.

The Independent exhibing as a whole, are capable businessmen, and select their pictures with the utmost discrimination. You naturally demand the best from them. The will, in turn, demand the best from the Independent producer. By your efforts a better product will be created.

How long would that inefficient producer with his careless methods survive if he continued to make inferior productions in the Independent Field? The termination of his care would be ultimate, thus eliminating this calibre of producer.

In the Independent Field of the film industry, like in the shoe, automobile and other industries manufacturing articles of universal use, the greatest amount of attention is paid every detail—no matter how small or seemingly unimportant. This is absolutely necessary because a field for its disposable once found, must be maintained; to be sold it must possess salable features, and that means efficiency in every respect.

Declare Your Independence by looking up all Independent productions and getting in touch with your Independent exchanges. If you can't get the information you want, address your inquiries to the State Rights Department of the Trade Papers, and they will help you.

Finally, Book All Good Independent Productions.

Big Production for "The Blue Bird"

Maurice Maeterlinck’s "The Blue Bird," which has international fame as a classic of the stage, is now being produced for the screen by Artcraft Pictures, under the direction of Maurice Tourneur. All other work at the big Fort Lee studios has been set aside in order to handle this production which it is promised will present a stupendous film disclosing a more effective visualization than was possible on the stage. Over a thousand real actors appear in this picture exclusive of the extras and goonkets occupying the entire stage of the big glass studio in New Jersey are being filmed for this production.

Yale Professor Praises "Les Miserables" as of "Inestimable Educational Value"

Among the notable results that have attended the presentation of the William Farnum de luxe production, "Les Miserables," at the Lyric Theatre in New York City, is the attracting of further attention to the possibilities of motion pictures and the arousing of the interest of persons who seldom express themselves publicly, except perhaps in criticism, on the subject of cinema achievements.

Among a number of such comments which William Fox reports having received recently is one from William Lyon Phelps, Lampson professor of English Literature at Yale University.

"I was deeply affected by "Les Miserables,"" Mr. Phelps wrote to William Fox. "The artistic and spiritual values of the great novel are both preserved to a remarkable degree in the adaptation, and the acting is excellent. I wish every one in America could see this picture."

Professor Phelps pronounced "Les Miserables" one of the greatest, if not the greatest photodrama he had ever seen and said it was to be regretted that other producers did not devote themselves to picturizing works of similar merit.

"The educational value of such pictures as "Les Miserables" is inestimable," he wrote.

The Fox management announces that the production has been playing to capacity houses ever since it was on at the Lyric Theatre. Mr. Maurice Fox has been cordial that Mr. Fox has decided to put it out as a star attraction, as was done in the case of "Cleopatra." It is also be shown throughout the country during the next year. The length of the run at the Lyric still is in the classifications of indefinite.

McAlister Films Well Received

Newspaper critics give favor able comment on little McAlister's newest Essanay picture, "Sadie Goes to Heaven." Kitty Kelly, photoplay critic of the Chicago Examen, declares that "youngsters can't help liking this picture and grownups who have youth in their hearts can't help enjoying it either." In this vehicle Miss McAlister has been successful in her collections of screen portraits the best she has made.

Similar opinions come in from other portions of the country where this Essanay Perfection picture has been seen. "Sadie Goes to Heaven" is reaping the rewards of the little actress' past successes and exhibitors are seeming to receive judging from the booking reports, that this child actress makes an appeal to the hearts of their patrons whom she has pleased in the past.

Other Essanay Perfection pictures, released prior to "Sadie Goes to Heaven," are reported to be reliable attractions.

"Many a Slip" Coming Christie Film

Bette Compson and "Smiling" Billy Mason are once more co-stars in "Many A Slip," a comedy revolving around the mysterious disappearance of a diamond butterfly pin. It is supported by Ethel Lynne and Harry Edwards, the latter cast as high grade crooks in the play.

Rhea Berger Engaged
By Universal for Zoe Rae Production

Rhea Berger has been engaged to direct a special Universal company headed by Zoe Rae, the child actress. At present he is preparing to screen a story entitled "Little Miss Sherlock" by Norris Shannon, which has been put into screen form by Frank Howard Clark. The cast so far selected includes Gretchen Lederer, William Carroll and W. Paul.

Mr. Berger is well known as a director of Cinema features and in former times his name was familiar in the theatrical world as one of the foremost stage directors. The ground-work of his success as a photoplay producer was laid at the Western Essanay studios. Later, during and immediately after the war with the American company, he staged a number of Mutual's most notable successes. Prior to joining the Universal, Mr. Berger had just completed a season on the vaudeville stage, touring the western states.

Pathe Man Praises
Work of Red Cross in Halifax Disaster

The work of the American Red Cross in lending succor to the stricken inhabitants of Halifax was a marvel of efficiency and organization according to L. Earnest Ouimet, Canadian representative of Pathe and an eye witness of the disaster.

"The American Red Cross was there with the flag and with the goods, too," said Mr. Ouimet, who has just returned from a visit to the stricken city, where he assisted in taking Pathe motion pictures of the devastation caused by the explosion.

"Before Canadian cities and organizations realized that the people of Halifax needed help, the American Red Cross train, filled with the needs of 100 patients, was on its way, fighting a passage through the storm, and reached the city even before a relief train could come from St. Johns, New Brunswick, the Canadian city nearest to Halifax."

How Canada Solved
Farm Labor Shortage
Told in New Film

Louis Kon, Commissioner of Immigration and Colonization for the Province of Manitoba, has been engaged recently in Chicago in the production of a film for which he drafted the story, showing how Canada and particularly Manitoba, went about solving the labor shortage problem at harvest time.

"Do Your Bit on the Farm" is a thousand foot reel partly produced in Winnipeg, fully by the Rothbury studios in Chicago, appealing to city people to spend their vacations on farms.

In Winnipeg, last year, one of the large detachments of Fred Girls' Brigade, composed of young women clerks who volunteered to go into the harvest fields from 4:30 p.m. until dark every day during the收获ing season, and help stack grain. They were allowed to leave the store an hour early, were taken by the motor brigade to farm not too far out from the city, where they worked in their jeans like soldiers, and had a good time besides.

The film will be published by Mr. Kon at the cost of the State Councils of Defense in the United States to be used in solving the labor shortage problem here.

Mother-Love vs. Duty
the Dominant Note of Petrova Feature

The dominant appeal of mother-love is strongly typified in the role essayed by Madame Olga Petrova in her forthcoming production. The part in question gives the Polish actress a chance to display the full scope of the emotional qualities of her art, it is said.

The part of Laurel Carlisle, famous woman surgeon and mother of four-year-old Donald, her idolized son, brings out sharply the individual characteristics of the professional woman and the mother. In the sharp conflict precipitated between these two factors of duty against the mother's devotion, Madame Petrova has contributed, it is believed, a most realistic bit of acting.

The story was written by Mrs. L. C. Ayes, herself, who adapted the play from her novel, "Laurel Carlisle, M. D." It has been directed by Larry Trumble, responsible for the Goldwyn production, "Avon of Night," and is enacted by a notable cast, including Thomas Holding, Lumund Hare, Fredi Verdi and the famous Vitagraph collee, "Jean."

Two Exhibitors Have Big Success With
"The Cinderella Man"

S. Barret McCormick, managing director of the Circle Theatre, Indianapolis, and an exhibitor of repute in the middle west, is enthusiastic over the way "The Cinderella Man" was received at his playhouse. Mr. McCormick is not given to promiscuous praise of pictures, but his remark that the film's success was as pretty as the Mae Marsh production prompted the following message to the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation:

"Sincerely and heartiest congratulations to yourself, Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, Mae Marsh, George Loan Tucker, the director, and supporting players on the picture, "The Cinderella Man." It is an artistic triumph and deserves a niche in the gallery of screen classics. With 'The Cinderella Man' Ms. Marsh has found the door to the heart of youth and carried the magic of Christmas to the shadows."

Philadelphia, which "The Cinderella Man" to its heart just as strongly as did Indianapolis. The Stanley Theatre i the Quaker City played to packed house all through the run of the picture. 'This High Quality Film all connect with it," was Manager Stanley V. Mansbaum's comment.

"Brown of Harvard"
a Perfection Film
Ready January 1

The widespread popularity of "Brown of Harvard," both in book form and stage play should prove strong sales arguments for the film version which George Kleine System is to publish January 10. The stage version enjoyed long runs in Chicago and New York, and toured the country playing to large audiences. The interest thus aroused, it pointed out, can be coaxed by exhibiting the booking this film, because the millions who have read the book or seen the drama, will be interested in seeing pictures for the same story. Trade showings of the film, which is produced by William N. Selig, have been held at all Kleine branch offices.

Hazel Daly, co-star with Bryant Washburn in "Skinner's Dress Suit" and old "Skinner" pictures, plays the lead in feminine role. Tom Moore plays opposite her. The photodrama is in six parts, and is being distributed on the Perfection Pictures Program.
Theatrical Tangle
May Cause Arrest of New Haven’s Mayor

New Haven, Conn.—If Manager Poli of the Palace Theatre, who was recently arrested for operating his motion picture theatre without a license, it is also possible that Mayor Comper of this city may be taken into custody as the result of a peculiar situation.

The day prior to the opening of the theatre Manager Poli was notified that his lobby construction violated the building code of the city and that reason a license for its operation could not be issued. Rather than disappoint the great number of people who had planned to be present, Mayor Comper issued a temporary permit.

It is now pointed out that if Mr. Poli, who is operating his theatre without a license, is arrested, the mayor of the city would be equally reprehensible from the standpoint of aiding and abetting a misdemeanor when he allowed the theatre to open the first night.

Phila. Film Exchange
Suffers Loss by Fire

Philadelphia, Pa.—A family of five narrowly escaped injury and one fireman was injured in a fire which followed an explosion in the plant of the Ideal Film Company, 235 North Thirteenth street, this city, which ruined the three-story building and caused a loss estimated at $200,000.

Three persons were in the offices of the film company at the time, Eva E. Baker and Helen Fairland, employees, and Albert Teitel, part owner. When the explosion occurred, the three who were in the store part on the first floor of the building managed to escape without injury.

Panes from the burning films entered the building at 237 North Thirteenth street and filled the attic room occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Winchester and three children. They were assisted to safety by firemen. Ladderman Lou Conney was seriously injured by flying glass.

Albert Teitel is a cousin of Abe Teitel, well known Chicago film renovator.

Fire Totally Destroys Evanston, Ill. Theatre

Evanston, Ill.—Fire, believed to have been of incendiary origin, last week totally destroyed the Strand Theatre in this city entailing a loss of more than $42,000. There is no furnace in the building and the manager of the theatre, John Bokkin, was unable to advance any theory as to the cause of the fire.

The blaze was discovered by a janitor who was passing the building on his way to work. The rapidity with which the flames spread has led the police to believe that a “firebug” was concerned in the destruction of the playhouse.

Exchangemen Charged With Violation of Minneapolis Law

Minneapolis, Minn.—The first complaints under a fire ordinance involving the storage of motion picture films, passed by the city council in 1915, were issued last week by Arthur C. Price, city fire marshal. They charge four film exchange managers with violating that section of the ordinance which requires film exchanges with more than ten films to keep each film in a separate metal container and the containers in a fireproof vault.

According to Mr. Price, the films are kept in a vault at each place according to the law, but are not put in separate containers. Warrants were issued for Jack Corbett, manager of the Triangle Film Producing Corporation; W. E. Kaofeldt, exchange manager of the Pathé Company; E. H. Holmes of the Vitagraph Exchange; and Daniel Donnelan of the Mutual Film Corporation.

Reformers Beaten
When Police Refuse to Close M. P. Show

Nashville, Tenn.—Reformers protested here Sunday when four of the local motion picture houses gave special performances for the poor. The agitation was laughed down, however, the police refusing to close the houses in spite of their clamor. Capacity business was done at all the theatres, the Strand, Fifth Avenue, Crystal and Knickerbocker, managed respectively by Tony Sudkin, Wiley Williams, Carson Bradford and William Wassman. These managers obtained the gross receipts to the fund for helping the Nashville poor. The entire working forces also donated their services.

FIREPROOF BOOTH
PREVENTS BIG BLAZE

Elwood, Ind.—The value of all-steel, fireproof booths in moving picture theatres was shown here recently when a film which was being run in the Alhambra theatre caught fire. Instantly the whole interior of the booth in which the machines are operated was a mass of flames, but Otis Blair, the operator, escaped uninjured.

Two thousand feet of film were destroyed and one projection machine ruined. The loss, Manager Mossman stated, will amount to about $500. The auditorium was not damaged to any extent and, although persons in the audience were somewhat frightened, none was injured and there was no panic.

Los Angeles Creates Film Commissioner

The city council of Los Angeles has passed an ordinance creating the office of Film Commissioner, without whose approval no film may be exhibited in Los Angeles. This action re-establishes film censorship in Los Angeles. The new commissioner will receive $175 a month. A license fee of $25 cents is to be charged for each film inspected, the money to be used in defraying the expenses of the new department.

Exhibitors Want 2c Coin

St. Louis, Mo.—Managers of the St. Louis motion picture theatres are preparing a petition to Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, requesting that two-cent pieces be returned to circulation. The war tax on amusements, which is being paid by the public in pennies caused the action.
Pro-German Creates Small Sized Riot
in Hammond Theatre

Hammond, Ind.—A small-size riot orcurred and violence was narrowly verted in the Columbia Theatre here when W. C. Shaff, a German, rose from his seat and upbraided the Italian government during the showing of the official films of the fall of Gorizia.
Shaff had already been surrounded by a group of enraged Italians when Manger W. C. Cullen arrived on the scene.
Mr. Cullen called the police and Shaff was saved from violence at the hands of the Italians by his arrival. He was turned over to the federal authorities.
The man under arrest is 33 years old.
He became sullen during his examineation and would give no further information concerning himself. He is believed to live at Seventy-fifth street and State Line.

The much-heralded feature "Mickey," which Mabel Normand stars, has been completed and the world rights sold to the Western Import Company of 145 Broadway, New York.

The picture has been over two years in the making and an official of the Impor-to Compriany, who says he is not exploring "Mickey" will be far reaching.
"Our plan will be as epoch-making in its distribution field as Mickey" will b another "foot-length" of the "big pictures," asserts the official. We it tend to create a new standard and a "Mickey" will help us. We will go on ward now to the effect that when we have said or will say as to the merit of "Mickey" will be backed up by an genral consensus of opinion of the ent

C. W. Eckhardt is surely displaying some excellent footwork these frosty days, romping back and forth from the newly established Fox Film Corp. branch in the City Hall Square Building, the headquarters of the Malters Building. Well, wot's the diff? Exercise in limited quantities never killed human mortal. Info note: In the future all the big Fox films, such as "Les Misérables," "Cleopatra," etc., will be handled from the new branch.

The annual ball of the employees and their friends of the Rothacker Film Mfg. Co. was held at the Rothacker studio, Dec. 29. About one hundred and fifty folks danced to the merry jazz selections purveyed by the justly famed Benson Orchestra especially engagd for the fete.

E. H. Hibben, stage manager of the Rothacker studio, certainly spread himself in the clever manner in which the deception was had, and the entertainment committee, consisting of Messrs. Arthur Miller, Al Peterson and Jack Byrne, merit especial comment, for they had "everything" and were very much to the fore doing the honors at the buffet repast which was served and thoroughly enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Adele De Berri, of the De Berri Scenic Co., recently returned home from Washington, D. C., after spending the holidays with her Chicago husband, now 1st Lieutenant Ed De Berri, of the U. S. Signal Corps. All is well with the Lieut. and he is enjoying his new calling immensely, although that "stiff" Uncle Sam shoots in their arms makes a chap feel as though he were out for the count.

Harry Leonhardt, western general manager for Goldwyn Pictures, whiled away a few fleeting moments in "The Loop" with us, Jan. 5, en route to lil' old New York. Full of pep and optimism, in fact the same old Harry, always a pleasure to greet.

Edgar Lewis was a long way from home last Saturday afternoon, Jan. 5, if the official snapshot Used stationed in the Hotel Sherman lobby had his camera in focus. Well, we'll take a chance and give the negative the O. K. They tell us he hopped a train back East some time that evening.

Cresson O. Smith, formerly manager of the Metro, has switched berths, moving upstairs in the Malters building to handle the Fox Film Corp. products, from the Met’s present spot, for the territory. Go to it, Cress. old top, up and at ’em!

Here, boy, page Mr. Hoover! We have discovered a fillum "mag" wot's too busy to eat, even though his almanac curves seem to belie the statement. But here it is, wot's other than J. "Rapid" Grainger, of the Allen Film Corp., handling the "Garden of Allah," "The Warrior" and "Mother" features in the Metro circuit. Yep, arrives at the City Hall Square building early a. m., departing homeward late p. m., the same day.

Other than eating breakfast and supper, has nothing to do but work. Ain't it orful, sum peepel?

I. Van Ronkel, manager of Jewel Productions, announces "The Price of a Good Time" will occupy the screen of the Pastime Theatre, on Madison street, for an indefinite run.

Ha, another budding sales exploit has been added to the Jewel lists, in the person of Roger Lewis, well-known song scribe, creator of "The Ocean Roll," "Floating Down the River," etc. Gosh, with player Jack Meredith, E. C. Newman of seagae fame, and melody Rogah—watch yer steps, fellow competitors.

After a mad dash through the snow-drifts waist-high, L. A. Rozelle, manager of the World Film Chicago exchange, arrived at the office “on time” Jan. 7, arising to remark that the huge piles of snow reminded him of the World booking sheets. From where we sit looks like a big get-away for World films.

Lee Mitchel, who has been on the Universal payroll for the past ten years in all sorts of capacities, has been appointed manager of the supply department. All right, Lee, let it go at that.

C. L. Stiles, who will be remembered as a representative of the local Universal office, is now manager of the Malters Chicago branch, having been transferred from the Escanaba, Mich., branch.

W. A. Bach, general service manager of the Universal, passed through the city on his way to New York.

Eli Van Ronkel, of the Chicago Jewel offices, arrived home after an extended visit, reporting a flock of Wisconsin contracts.

The Motion Picture Exhibitors League, at a recent meeting, banded together on a co-operative move to support the fuel administration in every possible way, by enforcing the "lightless nights" at their theatres. A committee of ten was appointed, those serving being: Prexy Joe Hopp, C. G. Stuart, W. D. Burford, Harry C. Miller, Max Hyman, R. K. Levy, Alf. Hamburg, I. S. Berkson, Billy Heaney, Geo. M. Laing, John Bobeng and H. E. Newell. That's the stuff, boys. Tis always a pleasure to record moves backed up with such spirit.

Ye Gods, did you pinc the military leggings on one C. W. Brown of the Mutual publicity staff as he strayed into the Union depot on the west side of the Metropolis some time last Monday forenoon, Jan. 7, following the big show "By Jibbo Crissy." them Eleva-drifts was putty tolerable, eh Brownie?"

after resigning the position of general manager of Goldwyn pictures.

In addition to Mr. Brockell, those attending the dinner were C. W. Leist, Goldwyn pictures; C. E. Elliott, president Chicago Circuit; Lewis A. Dreher, Paramount pictures; S. Keely, Central Film Co.; Albert Kimmel, Goldwyn pictures; Harry J. Corbett, manager Harper Theatre; Frank S. Lucder, Paramount pictures; Clift Almy, Metro pictures; Harry S. Manning, Paramount pictures; H. J. Wienold, Chicago Cinema Circuit; A. J. Egan, Paramount pictures, and Patrick J. Garvey, Cahlilge Co.

Essanay's Comedies
Gain in Popularity

Essanay has struck a popular vein of humor in the productions by Arthur D. Hotaling, as evidenced by reports from exhibitors and the General Film booking records.

The comedy for January 12 is "One Night," depicting complications arising from the innocent efforts of a "gentleman drunk" to regain his hat, which falls to the sidewalk from his hotel window.

In a comedy now in the making, Mr. Hotaling has achieved a picture that requires but two subtitles, thus indicative of the liability of the picture to tell its own story.

Essanay's General Film one-reel scene for January 12 is "Agricultural Opportunities in Western Canada," showing the picturesque and commercial attractions of the country to our north.
Publicity Campaign Brings Cleveland Girl To New York For Try-Out as Film Actress

William Fox conducts Contest in Two Newspapers in Ohio City, Which Results in Stimulating Business and May Develop New Star

Continuous daily publicity for nearly two months has been obtained for William Fox, who through a contest conducted under Mr. Fox’s auspices in the Cleveland News and Sunday Leader. Pictures of all the principal Fox players and a great variety of information regarding the Fox organization have been published in the two newspapers, resulting it is reported, in an appreciable increase in the business which Cleveland exhibitors of Fox productions have been doing.

The newspapers, through an arrangement with the producer, agreed to furnish free trips to and from New York for the winner of the contest and the chaperon selected by her. In addition, the successful young woman was guaranteed a try-out of at least one week in the Fox Eastern studios and that the picture in which she appeared would be shown in Cleveland. The contest which ended December 1st, attracted a great deal of attention, several hundred young women ranging in age from up wards of sixteen years, having entered their photographs.

The winner was to be the one who, on tests, proved best suited for film work. Selections of ten were made on the basis of photographs and personal appearance. Film was taken featuring the ten and from inspection of this the committee chose Miss Iry Deibel, of 10201 Olivet avenue. The successful young woman came to New York the latter part of December and now is taking an important role in a picture being made at Fort Lee.

Mr. Fox is reported to be enthusiastic over the result of the contest, and says the plan will be continued. Not only does he find the idea productive of extensive publicity and of increased business for Fox exhibitors, but he also considers that it justifies itself solely from the standpoint of the Fox majors.

It is recalled in this connection that June Caprice was discovered through a similar contest conducted in Boston and that her subsequent rise to stardom has been exceptionally rapid.

New U. S. Hart Play is “Wolves of the Rail”

Artcraft’s next offering is William S. Hart in his newest little play, “Wolves of the Rail,” in which the noted “bad man” appears as an upholder of law and order, rather than as an outlaw as in the past. What is expected to be regarded as Hart’s greatest stunt is presented in this picture when the popular cowboy leaps from the saddle of a racing pony into the cab of an on-coming locomotive.

In his next character, Hart is said to be just as fearless and as daring as when he was opposed to law and order and he makes short work of ridding the railroad of outlaws. Vola Vale, as Faith Lawson, daughter of the switchman, appears opposite Hart, the balance of the cast including C. Norman Hammond, Billy Elmer, and Melbourne MacDowell. The playphoto will be released by Artcraft on January 14th.

W. H. Productions Will Omit Story From All Heralds

The W. H. Productions Company in announcing its sales methods says: “We have deviated from the regular channel in the make-up of our heralds. One of the most illogical things in the heralds that are gotten up today by the various organizations, is a synopsis of the picture. The purpose of a herald primarily is to help sell seats for the exhibitor. It is one of the exhibitor’s salesmen. As there isn’t any particular type of story that will appeal to every movie fan and again, in most cases the interest of the reader wanes by telling the story of a production beforehand, so we are, therefore, eliminating the synopsis from our heralds and are preparing our copy and lay-out to conform to the idea of creating interest in the picture and a desire to see it. In other words sales talk on each production that will create the desired effect upon the reader. We believe exhibitors should be given every assistance possible to secure maximum results.”

Douglas Fairbanks Entertains Writer

Douglas Fairbanks was honored with a visit at the Artcraft studios in California by Captain Peter Kyne, the writer recently, now at Camp Kearney. By way of entertainment the energetic Douglas showed Capt. Kyne just how easy it was to climb the church steeple in “A Modern Musketeer” and invited the visitor to accompany him on the climb. Douglas was already half way up the steeple, however, when Captain Kyne announced he had forgotten his swagger stick and could not possibly think of making such a trip without it. An impromptu rodeo was then held in honor of the visitor in which the Fairbanks cowboys presented their talents.

Stanley Booking Co. Signs For Output of U. S., Optimistic on General Situation

Following the announcement that a majority of the picture theatre circuits of Greater New York had availed themselves of the special attractions published by the U. S. Exhibitors’ Booking Corporation, comes the news that the Stanley Booking Company, controlled by Stanley V. Maithbaum has contracted for the first three subjects embracing “The Zeppelin’s Last Raid,” “Those Who Pay,” both Ince productions, and the Sidney Olcott spectacle “The Belguan.”

Lynn S. Card, general sales manager of the U. S., obtained the bookings while on a trip to Philadelphia last week, and it is understood that the negotiations included the entire output of the booking corporation, with each picture subject to screen examination by representatives of the Stanley Company. The U. S. productions will be shown at all of the Market Street theatres in Philadelphia, the bookings of which are handled by the Stanley Company.

Although many theatres in the Eastern Pennsylvania district have encountered trying difficulties as a result of the severe weather recently, Mr. Card found conditions generally satisfactory.

The demand for special productions appears to be more insistent than ever in Eastern Pennsylvania and our sale forces in that district are keeping busy filling orders for our first three productions.”

Jane and Katherine Lee, William Fox “Baby Grand” stars left New York for Jacksonville, Fla., during the recent hot weather. In the station, before the train started, Jane caused more or less interest when she paraded through the waiting rooms with an opened, baby bbl parasol over her head.

On her pudgy little wrist there was tied a fan and she wore a white sunbonnet trimmed with summer flowers. The thermometer outside at that moment registered 13 below zero.

The final scenes in the new picture which the “Baby Grands” are starring will be filmed in Jacksonville, Fla.

A Burden the Business Cannot Carry

Almost at regular intervals we hear a great howl of protest against the unwholesome picture. And almost before the echo of this howl has had a chance to subside, there is a new avalanche of filth films put forth to ensnare the greedy exhibitor and pander to the tastes of that small part of the public that welcomes risque amusement.

The picture that is unclean and sordid is a real menace to the entire business. The blame for the existence of the costly censorship is due directly to the activities of that, fortunately, small band of producers whose only instructions to their directors is to “see that it will get by.” These producers regard that it is an enviable achievement to make a picture that borders foot by foot on the extreme limit permitted by the American public.

The motion picture as big and as powerful as it is today cannot carry indefinitely the load of pictures that are morally filthy. Every time a picture of that nature is exhibited the ultimate fulfillment of the great promise of film art is put farther away; new antagonists are created and the entire business is held up as a shining target for the assaults of professional reformers.

The columns of this trade paper are in no way concerned with the moral aspect of this matter; it is the financial significance of the risque film that we are directing attention to.

The sordid picture is not a financial success and this rule applies almost generally. There may be and probably are isolated cases of a little quick profit snatched from pictures of this type, yet the general public time after time has made plain its abhorrence of unwholesome amusement. Even the burlesque stage which was long regarded as a “privileged” branch of amusement activities has found through bitter and costly experience that the vulgar does not pay. And the burlesque theater not even in a wild flight of imagination ever dreamed it was catering to a neighborhood patronage.

There is nothing more trite under the sun than iniquity, yet many producers seem to be under the impression that the outraged heroine or the delinquent wife are themes of perennial newness. There can hardly be an adult patron of motion pictures in the country that has not seen these themes worked over and over again until they come now stripped entirely of any newness or originality and stand bare in their true guise of morbid sensuality.

Look over the successful pictures of the last two or three years and it will be seen that the public is not in accord with the pet belief of many producers that its favorite theme is degraded womanhood.

The film public in this regard is not setting a precedent, it is simply following the lead of the generations of amusement patrons that preceded it in giving their patronage wholeheartedly only to plays that are mentally and morally inspiring and essentially clean.

This is a matter that is not merely of interest and concern to some particular branch of the motion picture business, but to the entire industry, to every exhibitor, producer and distributor who has sufficient foresight to carry him beyond the record of this week’s business.

The responsibility for the obscene and unwholesome picture can be laid at the doors of but a few producers yet every producer, no matter how far-sighted or how determined he may be to make only clean pictures, bears his share of the evil influence.

The problem of the unclean picture and the unscrupulous producer must be met and mastered or its ultimate cost will stagger the business.
Assist Tax Committee

EXHIBITORS of both political factions, both those of the American Exhibitors’ Association and those connected with the old league have never before shown that they were more worthy of the confidence placed in them than at the recent Washington meeting.

While the differences keeping the factions apart has at times seemed unsurmountable there is now a tremendous need for a conciliatory policy being pursued by both parties with a view to enabling the exhibitors to speak with a single voice against taxation inequalities at Washington.

That the exhibitors have realized this necessity and have promptly met it is evidenced by the results of the Washington conference.

The committee which was appointed at this conference consisting of representative men of both factions have called upon the exhibitors of the country to supply them with accurate data as to how the tax has been affecting their business. It seems obvious indeed and should be realized by every exhibitor that without these statistics the committee is powerless to obtain a readjustment of the tax measure before the committees of Congress.

Yet in spite of this very obvious necessity exhibitors generally have been very negligent in sending in this information. If this neglect is not corrected the excellent plan of the Allied Legislative Committee will go to no avail and the negligent exhibitors will be entirely to blame for the failure.

The Distributor’s Merger

THE first big amalgamation of distribution activities for the New Year seems to be at hand. After many weeks of “close-up” negotiations a number of distributors have signified their intention of participating in a distribution merger.

While no authoritative announcement has been made it is reliably reported that all papers for an agreement which will bring together a number of distributors have been drawn up and now only await the signatures of the various principals.

The exhibitor’s interest in this merger which now seems greatly assured, is that it will mean better film and at lower prices. According to the plan there is to be no actual merging of the various companies but simply a distribution agreement which will cut down the cost of issuing film through the elimination of the great expense of a number of distributing units operating individually.

Several Exchanges Consider Big Distributing Merger

Negotiations Which Have Been in Progress Many Weeks Near Completion—Amalgamation Sought to Eliminate Waste and Improve Service to Exhibitors

The long-awaited consolidation of various distributing units was practically consummated last week.

After several weeks of negotiations between a number of the large distributing companies, announcement comes from New York that the final papers on the amalgamation have been drawn and await acceptance by the officials of the companies involved to participate.

According to information that has leaked out the new arrangement aims to merge the distributing activities of a number of the important exchange companies with a view to the elimination of activities which could be carried on by a single organization in the various exchange centers.

Plan "Clearing House"

While no details of the scheme of operation are obtainable at this time it is understood that the plan contemplates the operation of a single "clearing house" for motion pictures in various distributing centers.

The clearing house will be represented by various distributors with their individual managers and salesmen.

The shipping and inspection work and clerical work, however, will be carried on by a single staff as if there was one big organization represented.

Among the companies which, it is understood, have been participating in the negotiations are the following:

- MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION
- METRO PICTURES CORPORATION
- WORLD FILM CORPORATION
- GOLDWYN PICTURES CORPORATION
- FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS
- TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION
- VITAGRAPH COMPANY OF MERICA

Triangle and Vitagraph were among the first companies that became interested in the plan, but persons in close touch with the situation state that both these companies at the close of last week ceded to withdraw from the plan.

At the executive offices of the Mutual Film Corporation in Chicago no information as to whether or not Mutual would participate in the merger was volunteered.

John R. Freuler, president of Universal, has been in New York for several days and it was stated that Mutual's position in relation to the negotiations would not be defined until Mr. Freuler's return to Chicago.

Pathé Is Out

Pathé Exchange, Inc., which had been considered in the negotiations definitely, withdrew when J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager, began his trip to the Coast a few weeks ago.

Massachusetts Fuel Administrator

Issues 10 O'clock Closing Order

Bay State Exhibitors First in Country to Have Business Hours Cut—Ruling Became Effective January 14

Looking toward the conservation of coal, the fuel administrator of Massachusetts has issued an order closing all motion picture theaters in the state at 10 p.m. The order became effective Monday, January 14.

Although such measures have been agitated in various parts of the country for some time past, the exhibitors of the New England states are the first to suffer by having an hour, and in some instances two hours, cut from their business day.

Whether the same plan will be adopted by fuel administrators of other states is, of course, problematical. The move in Massachusetts has caused considerable uneasiness among exhibitors who are already carrying a large burden in the shape of war taxes and decreased attendance.

The shortage of fuel is the cause of the order, Massachusetts, like many of the other states, finding it difficult to obtain sufficient coal for the purposes needed. The light problem has given the administration considerable trouble and it is believed by the fuel administrator that the 10 o'clock closing law will effect a considerable saving of fuel.

The administration has voiced no objection to the motion picture theaters, which do not run a continuous show, opening earlier in the evening, but has announced its intention of compelling exhibitors to conform with the 10 o'clock closing rule.

Daylight Saving Bill

Again Up in Congress

Washington—(Special to EXHIBITORS HERALD)—President Wilson is about to urge the passage of the daylight saving bill, which has been pending in the house committee since last June. Chairman Sims and Representative Borland, the chief advocate of the bill in the house, are arranging a tentative program for its promotion.

Exhibitors throughout the country did not favor the measure when it was brought up last summer and concerted action is to be brought to bear to defeat the measure should it again come up. While it might mean a saving in light and fuel to some it undoubtedly would work a considerable hardship to motion picture theatre owners, inasmuch as it would cut down their performances to one show a night in most cases. It is pointed out that it had this effect when tried out in England.

"The proposed legislation would add one hour of daylight to the business day of all the people in the United States by the simple process of turning the hands of the clock forward one hour," said Representative Borland last Sunday.

Blizzard Paralyzes

Shipments of Films

With thousands of orders for films unshipped because of total paralysis of shipping facilities due to one of the worst blizzards that has engulfed Chicago and the surrounding territory in years, Chicago film exchanges this week made gigantic efforts to regain normal conditions.

Some of the companies sent to the express offices early in the week, gathered up all films that had been deposited there the last Thursday and resorted to the parcels post in an effort to clear up the congestion.

The full force of the blizzard struck Chicago on Friday night and tied up all forms of transportation completely. Many exchanges had sent out films on Thursday and while points close to Chicago received the shipments many had not been delivered up to Monday night. A canvass of the Chicago exchanges where records had been kept of the number of films held up because of storm conditions gave the following figures: Mutual Film Corporation, 170 shows; Universal Film Corporation, 25; Fox Film Corporation, 15; Triangle Film Corporation, 500, and World Film Corporation, 400.

Investigation Into Origin of Blaze

Fire, the origin of which is now under investigation by city and state officials, resulted in the death of four firemen, the probable fatal injury of two more, and completely destroyed the Chicago Avenue Theatre, a motion picture house at 2120 West Chicago avenue, January 9. The firemen were crushed to death when the front wall of the building collapsed and fell into the street.

The dead are Lieut. Charles G. Anderson, 31 years old, 836 North Lored avenue, in command of squad 2; Pipeman James G. Kerr, 39 years old, 643 North Sandburg avenue; and Pipeman Frederick Stoll, 42 years old, 1470 Bryant Place, engine company 20, and Pipeman Peter J. Horan, 38 years old 5510 West Monroe street, engine company 24.

The building in which the theatre was housed was a three-story brick affair, the two upper stories of which were devoted to lodgings and opera halls. It was a landmark of the west side of the city.

Manager Inspected Theatre
Durke Kemp, 1610 Park avenue, the manager of the theatre, was unable to explain the origin of the blaze. He told the authorities that prior to leaving the house, some time before midnight, he had carefully inspected the place and found everything in good order.

Damage to the building and its contents was estimated at $100,000. Mr. Kemp asserted that although he had insurance of only $1,000, his loss would reach $200,000.

"I thought I heard a noise in the basement and opened the door leading to it but found nothing so I left," said the manager of the motion picture house when questioned concerning the blaze. "The building is an old one and its foundations are heavy posts and I am not surprised that it collapsed so quickly. Doors in the vacant part of the building rattled at times and children spread rumors of ghosts in the building which greatly reduced my patronage."

Paints and Oils Stored
From information thus far obtained it is believed the fire started in the store of the National Fixture company which occupies the first floor of the building. The police were informed that a quantity of paints and oils were always kept stored in the company's store.

The blaze broke out about 1 o'clock. Huge snow drifts hindered firemen from connecting hose with water pumps and the帮忙 Detachment of apparatus arrived, had enveloped the structure and burst through the roof by the time streams of water could be played upon it.

About fifty firemen were on the sidewalk in front of the burning structure when the wall collapsed. Those who escaped probably owe their lives to the snow banks which at first impeded them. The first warning came when a huge electric sign of the theatre crashed to the ground. Spectators yielded warnings and firemen who saw the danger shouted to their mates.

Snow Saves Lives
A small pathway dug into the high snowdrift by firemen offered a means of escape to more than a score of the fire fighters. Lieut. Anderson was killed as he tried to climb over the embankment. His men, who were with him, were caught in the downpour of bricks.

Horan's consideration for his comrade, Pipeman John Davie, cost him his life. Davie, just before the crash, was holding a standpipe when Horan approached.

"Too bad, Jack, let me have that pipe a while so you can get a little rest," pleaded Horan.

Davie gave it up and he had just crossed the car track when the wall fell behind him.

Official Describes Scene
At first word was flashed to police stations that the theatre had perished. This report was attributed to the statements of spectators who saw the wall topple over on more than that number of fire-fighters. Fourth Assistant Fire Marshal Seyferlich described how he and many others narrowly escaped death.

"If it hadn't been for those snow piles that at first hindered us in our work, I believe all of us would have been buried," he said. "We darted through the pathway dug in the snowdrift and many of us were buried when a section of the wall struck the hard snowdrift which reached above our heads. I was not hurt and others had miraculous escapes. Some suffered bruises when hit by some of the falling bricks. Those killed and severely injured were struck by the falling bricks while trying to climb over the heap of snow."

Rear Wall Collapses
Simultaneously with the caving in of the front wall, the rear one collapsed, endangering the lives of a score or more of firemen who were working under the direction of First Assistant Fire Marshal Patrick J. Donahoe and Second Assistant Marshal Edward J. Buckley. Warned when the wall was tottering, every man succeeded in escaping in safety.

Horan's body was lying across that of his superior, Lieut. Anderson, when found. On top of both was the large electric sign of the theatre.

Spectators, including thousands of street car conductors and motorists, who saw the wall crumble and fall, were appealed to by Assistant Chief Seyferlich. There was prompt response to his plea, the men hastening with firemen to extricate the victims.

What the Pictures Did for Clarence
Boy auto bandits have many times, when apprehended for their acts, willingly and cheerfully given the motion pictures credit as their chief inspiration for the profession they had chosen.

But now we have a brand new one. One Clarence Payne of New York recently was made the involuntary object of an involuntary petition in bankruptcy. With most of the race tracks converted into golf links and wheat fields, and the buckethops a standstill, Clarence was pressed to explain his predicament. He was reputed to have been at one time worth $20,000, a very original thought struck him.

"I lost it in motion pictures," he said.

Films for Export
Must Receive O. K. Of U. S. Censor
Subtitles to Be Closely Scanned for Indication of Code Messages to Entente Allies

Censorship of motion picture films for export, to assure that anti-American propaganda will not be sent to the world was begun in Chicago last week. Rive McNeill, collector of customs, under orders from Washington, inspected 600 feet of movie pictures to be shipped South America.

The object is to halt any film offensive to the United States government's allies, or which might give away secrets or other information which could be of use to the enemy. Whenever it is to be shipped from Chicago, Mr. McNeill will sit as censor with an army board of army and navy officers.

Affidavits will have to be signed by the shipper as a guarantee that the film will not reach Germany or its allies as it is a combustible and can be made over by process of reduction, into war materials. The government has also set notice that it will keep track of the film until they are destroyed.

It is claimed that certain films hitherto exported to South America have eventually fallen into hostile hands. The object is not to let this happen again. The weight of each picture will be known into and the film will be inspected closely to ascertain whether there is any coded meaning in the pictures or anything in the subtitles which might contain a secret code by which messages could be conveyed by enemy spies.
Exhibitors and Producers Complete Direct Booking Plan

Special Committee Appointed at Allied Exhibitors' Convention Arranges With Five Independent Producers for Films to Be Distributed by Theatremen

Through a special committee appointed at the allied exhibitors' convention held in Washington, D. C., December 11 and 12, plans are being formulated for what is known as the "exhibitor direct" means of distributing feature film productions. Five independent producers who were present at the convention put the matter before the delegates and it was seen in such a favorable light that the committee was appointed to inquire into what arrangements could be made.

First information of the activities of the committee was received in a circular letter to exhibitors throughout the United States, outlining the plan and asking for the views of the various motion picture theatre owners and state and local organizations.

C. C. Pettitjohn, who signified the correspondence, makes it clear that the five reducing companies mentioned will not malgamate, but will operate on a purely competitive basis.

Price of Productions

The pictures to be produced, it has been agreed, shall cost not less than $25,000, nor more than $50,000. To this amount the producer may add 22 per cent, which will be considered the minimum profit on the production. On the basis of this, the cost of a $25,000 production would be put at $30,500, and that of a $50,000 feature at $62,500.

The five independent producers concerned are the Frohman Amusement Company of New York, the Ivan Company and the Triumph Film Company of which Joseph A. Golden is president.

The letter from Mr. Pettitjohn, which can be seen below, setting forth the sales of productions direct to the exhibitors, in part, as follows:

Pettitjohn Outlines Plan

"A convention of the Allied Exhibitors' Organizations of practically every state and large city in the Union was held in Washington, D. C., December 11 and 12, 1917. That convention considered and passed many constructive measures which will permanently benefit the entire industry. That convention heard a new plan from five independent producers for marketing films direct to the exhibitors. The plan is as follows:"

"The convention unanimously agreed that the principle of direct dealing between producer and exhibitor is correct, and a committee was appointed there to consider details and work out a plan with these five producers. The undersigned was requested to send telegrams into the various states where the addresses of prominent exhibitors and various officers of the Exhibitors' Organizations were known by the committee."

"Over seventy favorable answers were received and many suggestions and ideas which have been invaluable in working out the details heretofore offered."

"Exhibitors to Explain"

"These five producers will pay the expenses of two or more prominent exhibitors to attend meetings called by exhibitors for the purpose of taking up this plan and to explain details and to represent both the exhibitors and producers in the closing of contracts to put this new plan to effect at the earliest possible moment."

"These same five independent producers, whose proposition was approved, realized throughout the country from communications thus far received from prominent exhibitors that they must make special feature attractions, based upon stories with box office values."

"As a matter of fact, these same men have made and are making some of the greatest special features ever distributed and exhibitors have been buying them at very high prices through present distributing methods. Under this plan, these five companies will compete with each other for distribution of their profits and be divided, and the company making a highly successful feature will enjoy the producer's profits therefrom. These men can and they have pledged themselves to make pictures with box office values and drawing powers under this direct sales plan."

Letter of Agreement

"I desire to here outline in greater detail exactly what these producers have in mind and those elements which in my opinion should appeal to the bodies of exhibitors throughout the United States."

"These manufacturers propose to manufacture and release fifty-two pictures a year—one each week."

"The manufacturers are ready and willing to enter into direct business relations with the exhibitors, to the end that the large cost and profit incident to distributing special feature films may be eliminated, and they offer to the exhibitors their combined product upon terms which are as follows:"

"The pictures shall cost, together with prints, not less than $25,000 and not more than $50,000, the cost to be certified to by the manufacturer in a sworn statement."

To Pro-Rate Cost

"To the gross cost the manufacturer shall add a sum equal to 25 per cent, which shall be his guaranteed minimum profit. This will make the gross cost of the pictures range from $31,250 to $62,500. This gross cost shall be taken up by all the forty-eight states in proportion to a just division based upon its number of theatres, number of cities, population, and all other data that goes to make up a fair distribution of the pictures. Each state will have its allotment based upon this fair division and the exhibitors of each state shall absorb the quota assigned to it."

"All revenue derived from distribution in excess of the minimum quota in each state shall be divided between the manufacturers and the exhibitors in each individual state, using that picture—that is, 50 per cent to the manufacturer and 50 per cent to the exhibitors in rebates."

"In order to make up the gross allotment, there must be secured in the United States 2,700 days of bookings per picture."

"You can readily see that all the receipts above the minimum quota," the letter continues, "would tend to reduce still further the cost to each exhibitor for the service, by reason of the rebates and the profits contemplated."

Urge Early Attention

"I suggest to you that this matter is of sufficient importance to exhibitors to warrant their earliest attention and that the proper way to bring it before them would be at an exhibitors' meeting, either through the state organization or through any organization you might suggest."

"These producers have the necessary financial stability and organizations to push the proposition over and furnish exhibitors permanent relief for one release each week for a beginning and as many additional releases as are required through future developments of this plan. Exhibitors will be consulted as to the plans of production, class of stories, directors, etc. All that is now asked of the exhibitors is for them to arrange, with the assistance and direction of this office, for their own distributing channels, and to select themselves an exhibitor or distributor to route film for them, a man who (Continued on page 14, column 3)
Calamity Howlers Arraigned
By Selznick in Acrid Statement

Select Pictures Head Declares Chief Afflictions Of Industry Are Producers “Who Blame General Conditions for Own Stupidity”

“The calamity howlers are loose again.”

Beginning with this short, terse statement, LEWIS J. SELZNICK, president of Select Pictures Corporation, issued a bitter indictment of men prominent in the motion picture industry who in the past few weeks have aired their views concerning the necessary remedy for what they considered a “sick business.”

The chief targets of Mr. Selznick’s attack were producers whose recent sensational statements concerning the financial condition of the Universal Manufacturing Company are still the subject of comment, and SAMUEL GOLDFISH of the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation.

Mr. Selznick denies that the industry is in its infancy. Neither will he admit that it is on its deathbed. He does say that the business is afflicted with a number of minor ailments “one of the worst of which is the presence in its midst of men who blame general conditions for their own stupidity.” To the sick, he states, all are sick.

“Certain producers who kept telling us not long ago that moving pictures were in their infancy, now say that they are on their deathbed,” said Mr. Selznick. “Is the disease infantile paralysis or old age? Do these gentlemen know that to the sick all men are sick, to the insane all men are crazy, to the dying man the world is coming to an end?”

Laemmle’s Statement

Mr. LAEMMLE believes that Universal has “close to a million dollars’ tied up in short pictures that they can sell only at a loss. Therefore, he wails, the picture business faces disaster. Everyone, producers, distributors and exhibitors, will become ripe for the receiver.”

The only salvation he can see is for some one to pay him more for his dead stock pictures than he ever asked for them.

“Mr. Laemmle doesn’t seem to figure that brains are of much use in his business. He says that even after they found eighteen months ago that they could not sell his kind of pictures at a profit they went on and made a million dollars worth more. If he were in the clothing business and found there was no money in a certain style, would he turn out a million dollars worth more of the same style, and tell the retailer the only thing to do was raise the price on them? Not if he wanted to keep out of Bloomingdale. Yet this is what he did in the picture business.”

Makes Inincerity Charge

Mr. Selznick then recalled Mr. Laemmle’s solution for the present troubled condition of the industry—increased admission prices—and promptly charged him with insincerity. He followed this by accusing the Goldwyn head of practicing an evil which he (Goldfish) had charged in a public statement was making for the death of the industry—the paying of high salaries to stars.

“Mr. Laemmle’s cure for the condition to stars. And yet he has paid some of the highest salaries in the history of the industry. Is this the condition that he bunked himself? If not, what is it?”

Public Wants Stars

“I violate no confidence when I tell Mr. Laemmle that there are no Fairbanks, Clara Kimball Young, Pickford or Talmadge pictures stored on shelves waiting for business to regain its health. And everyone who has common business brains knows that the high salaries for stars will cease the minute the public ceases to pay those salaries at the box office. We have stars because the public wants them!”

“The industry is not in its infancy. Neither is it on its deathbed. But it is afflicted with several minor ailments. One of the worst of these is the presence in its midst of men who blame general conditions for their own stupidity. If a soldier deliberately stands in full view of the enemy and is shot, it does not mean the whole army is defeated.

“When the war tax was imposed I said it was a good thing, as it would force out of business the producers of bad pictures. I do not know what corpses we are about to find scattered along the roadside, but I do know that there will be few mourners.”

Progress Being Made

On “The Eagle’s Eye”

At Wharton Plant

Leopold Wharton, of the Wharton Brothers, producers of Chief Flynn’s secret service exposure of Germany’s spy system in this country, “The Eagle’s Eye,” with Courtne Rayley Cooper, who is working the screen for three weeks, has been completed and is being made ready at the Wharton studios at Ithaca last week, assisting in making ready the first three episodes for the trade show which will be held in a few days.

Leo Wharton’s activities in connection with this production so far has been confined to the filming of special scenes and locations in New York, Washington, and other large cities which has greatly expedited the progress of the production. The work at the studios has been directed by Theodor Wharton.

Leo Wharton expressed his gratification, on his return to New York, on the progress that had been made at the results attained in the first three episodes, both in photography, dramatic effect and distinct novelty of story.

Rothacker Gets Film

By Special Messenger

For reasons of safety, and to avoid possible delay in transit, Bobby North, the Petrova Pictures Corporation, dispatched a special messenger, Mr. Graham, from New York with the same film and a second set of Petrova pictures the delivery at the Rothacker Laboratory, Chicago, where all Petrova subjects published through the First National Exhibitors’ Circuit are manufactured and issued.

Mr. Graham stayed in Chicago long enough to accomplish his mission and then hurried back to New York.
Chicago Film Men in Protest; Photoplay Criticism Is Cause resent Style Used by Critic of Chicago Tribune —Seek to Have Reviews Handled in Manner Befitting Importance of Industry

Considerable resentment has arisen among exhibitors, producers and distributors alike against the manner in which criticisms of motion picture productions are handled by the Chicago Tribune. A number of the theatre owners have under consideration the withdrawal of their announcements from the paper until such time as the column is conducted in a manner more consistent with the importance of the subject.

The motion picture men contend that the industry is the size of the film business entitled to something more than the censure, almost childish, "Oh, Girls" manner in which the critic of the Tribune proceeds to review pictures. These have not, this is clearly the slightest intention to dictate to the newspaper to anyone how pictures shall be reviewed and only ask for a fair and dignified criticism of a picture whether it be good or bad.

Ridiculous Reviewers
It is pointed out that many productions costing thousands of dollars, are viewed in such a ridiculous manner in Chicago in the thinking newspaper as to set against them, sometimes unjustly, a large share of the feminine theatregoing public. They limit it to the feminine element because they say that no one of the male sex would read the chatter, designed it, to reach young girls of romantic inclinations.

The dignified and well-worded criticisms of productions of the speaking age as conducted in the same paper as held up in contrast to the same service now furnished in reference to films. The page the column is on, sandwiched as it is between "Antoinette onnelly's" hints to the obese, and "Jane Diddington's" dissertations on how to remove smoked fish and stewed prunes, another source of annoyance to the motion picture men. They contend that the motion picture industry is not a feminine institution. While admitting that women, for the most part, do furnish their chief attendance at matinees, men are well represented in the attendance at evening, Monday, and holiday performances.

Column Not Distinctive
Under the present system of conducting the reviews, it is contended, the motion picture column has little to distinguish it from "Bright Sayings of the children" or "Real Love Stories," and, is said, many readers pass up the entire page thinking it is for women only. The motion picture industry has been neglected to be the fifth greatest in the United States. It has received the commendation of President Woodrow Wilson for its hearty co-operation and unmitigated means of spreading patriotic propaganda, as well as food-saving information throughout the length and breadth of the United States. It is believed by men prominent in the industry in Chicago that when the matter is placed before the editors of the Tribune in the proper light that these officials will take steps to put motion picture news before the public in its proper guise.

One of the most flagrant cases of how not to review a motion picture is pointed out in the edition of the Tribune for January 9. In this edition the critic conducting the column printed what purported to be a criticism of "The Strong Way" produced by the World Film Corporation at a cost of many thousands of dollars.

"Strong Way" Review
She preludes her remarks by denouncing the picture as that the storm that she has indulgences from over-indulgence in turkey. Her vein of humor, not to be denied, then leads her on to describe the male participants in the production as "made up to look like illustrations clipped from a patent medicine pamphlet."

The whole thing is a living, breathing defiance to the readers to understand what she is driving at. The review is printed in full below:

AND WE HAVEN'T A GROUCH ON N'R ANYTHIN'!

"THE STRONG WAY"
By Mae Tinee
We haven't a grouch on, and the storm didn't give us a cold, neither.

Have we indigestion from eating too much turkey:
But, NEVERTHELESS
We think "The Strong Way" is a weak picture BECAUSE
There is no idea behind it— to begin with.
In choosing the cast consideration was given to just one person—the star.

The male characters are all made up to look like illustrations clipped from a patent medicine pamphlet. Thusly: (The Husband she married for money.)

INDIGESTION—Before Taking.
(The Villain.)
SEE THIS MUSTACHE?—He raised it in thirty days After Taking.

(Hero.)
HOW HIS MOTHER WOULD LOVE TO SEE HIM NOW.
The situations are stupid and far fetched.

June Elvidge is entirely too pretty and talented to be so wasted.

Remarks:
The only reason a producer has for putting out pictures such as this is the fact that he would like the money. "The Strong Way" is not worth anything to a discerning public.

When obviously up against it for raw material the sensible thing is to fall back on books and stories that have been proven worth while or popular. Certainly the original idea market seems low at the present time.

BILLY RHODES IS STARRED IN THIS ONE-REEL PRODUCTION FOR PUBLICATION JAN. 22.

In New York Plan Several New Features

Separate Organization to Produce Special Films at American Plant on Coast for Mutual Program

Negotiations preliminary to the production of a number of big special feature pictures are being conducted in New York by Samuel S. Hutchinson and John R. Freuler.

According to present plans it is said that the special features will be made by a separate organization working on the west coast with the Santa Barbara studios of the American Film Company, and the headquarters. It is to be assumed that these special features will be made available to exhibitors through the exchanges of the Mutual Film Corporation, although no official announcements to that effect have been made.

"We have found certain market tendencies assure us that, to a considerable proportion of theaters, a series of big special productions will have particular value in the coming year," said Mr. Freuler. "There are basic reasons for this trend, representing an evolution in the business of presenting pictures. This will not affect our handling of star productions featuring 'big stars only,' including Mary Miles Minter, Margarita Fischer, William Russell, Edna Goodrich, the Charles Frohman plays and others.

"Mr. Hutchinson is conferring with a number of available authors and stars who will be at liberty for contracts at the periods planned for the special features.

"We are starting amply in advance to insure careful preparation for every aspect of these pictures. I am not just now in a position to make any announcements regarding the stars and casts of these special features, but I can say most assuredly that these pictures will, unlike those of today, present both a real star and a real story.""

"Crucible of Life"
To Be Shown Press

Coincidental with announcement of the acquisition of "The Crucible of Life," the seven-part film version of Bartley Campbell's stage play, "Fairfax," Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin state that a special screening of the feature, starring Grace D'Armond, Jack Sherrill and Frank O'Connor, will be given soon. It is the intention of the two State Rights Distributors, who have recently completed a successful sales campaign for "The Warrior" and "Mother," to hold a private showing of "The Crucible of Life" in one of New York's large hotel ball rooms.

Invitations will be sent to the leading photoplay journals and magazines, together with the dramatic critics of the leading daily newspapers, and Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin promise a surprise for the assembled guests in the way of a personage high in governmental work who will also be present.

"Les Miserables"
Big Fox Feature
Published Feb. 10

"Les Miserables," the Fox production will be issued to exhibitors on February 10, according to an announcement made by William Fox.

The production concluded a run of five weeks at the Lyric Theatre, New York, on Saturday, January 12, it having been necessary to take it off in order to make way for the showing of "Cheating the Public," the Fox 1918 cinemelodrama which is the second of the series beginning with "The Honor System," "Cheating the Public" is to be published January 20.

Reports from the Fox Film Corporation offices are to the effect that "Les Miserables" did a capacity business during practically the entire time it was shown at the Lyric. On the second Sunday night of the run it broke all records at the Lyric for attendance. During the holiday season it drew big houses, exceeding, it is said, the showing of some of the most popular of this season's spoken drama productions. Top price of $1 were obtained.

Clara Kimball Young Barely Escapes Injury
In Auto Accider

Clara Kimball Young had a narrow escape from death last week when the automobile in which she was riding collided with a street car at Nineteenth st. and Broadway, New York.

Miss Young was trying out a new machine and was on her way to the studio in New Rochelle. As the chauffeur turned into Broadway the auto skidded onto the tracks directly in front of street car.

The street car tore a hole in the body of the machine, barely missing M. Young. The actress was showered with falling glass and splinters, but she escaped without a scratch.
Features for Coming M. P. Exposition Being Arranged by Committee in Charge

At a meeting of the show committee the Motion Picture Exposition held January 12, at the offices of the National association of the Motion Picture Industry and the Motion Picture Exhibitors League, undesirable features were discussed. The exposition is scheduled for the period February 18-21 in Grand Central Palace, New York, and judging from the array of prominent film producers and equipment available, a big production will be made; furthermore these scenes will not beacted upon a new empty box with a blank bang, but the realistic lights will be used. A special feature of the exposition will be the display of light scenes and these sections of film will be developed, printed and shown at the exposition the following day.

Arrangements are now being made to produce a modern film studio in one section of the Palace, and each day the prominent producing companies will shoot interior scenes of some big production. Special scenery and interior locations for these will be brought into the building for the occasion and the most effective feature of the work will appeal. Furthermore these scenes are not to be acted before a mere empty box with a blank bang, but the realistic lights will be used. A special feature of the exposition will be the display of light scenes and these sections of film will be developed, printed and shown at the exposition the following day.

Another "stunt" will be to permit amateur motion picture career aspirants to secure a try-out before the camera in a scenario especially written for the purpose. Ten would be Mary Pickfords and ten youths who have yearnings to outdo Fairbanks and Chaplin will be selected at sight by a prominent director. Of course these aspirants after having been "made up" for their respective parts will have to undergo the ordeal not only of facing a director but also to bear the somewhat cynical gaze of a large audience of show visitors. Embryonic screen stars who possess sufficient nerve to do this may find themselves under contract with a big motion picture concern shortly thereafter.

Various exhibitors will have special days at the show. Sunday, February 3, will be Pathé Day; Tuesday, February 5, is to be Universal Day, and other dates are to be selected by the other big companies.

Frederick H. Elliott, general manager of the Exposition, made a trip to Washington, D. C., last week and conferred with Howard E. Coffin of the Aircraft Board and the Council of National Defense, and secured one of the big army airplanes from which motion pictures have been taken at the front. This scouting plane will have mounted on it an observer's motion picture camera, as well as a Lewis machine gun, and it will be in charge of army officers from the Aviation Section of the Signal Corps.

Operators to Hold Ball

The Moving Picture Machine Operators, Local No. 244, of Newark, N. J., will hold their fourth annual reception and ball in Newark on February 18. Their new slogan, according to Ed Rosenbaum, Jr., publicity director of the King-Bee Films Corporation, is "Invaluable Assistance to Successful Exhibitors."

Stars Punch Clock
And Register Anger

Under a new rule which went into effect January 1 every motion picture actress, director and exhibiting company in the various Los Angeles studios must punch a time clock. Heretofore directors worked when the spirit moved them and the stars when they felt like it. Now these people, whether they get $750 a week or $1,500, are required to register the actual hours that they are in the studio.

Another regulation specifies that actors while engaged in studio subjects shall not receive any compensation on the telephone or receive calls.

Producers in the past have been very lenient with "temperamental" employees, but increased cost of production has necessitated cutting out the waste in lost time. Hence the time clock. They do not take kindly to the thing, 'tis said.

To U. S. Corp. Output

Charles Stevens Concludes Deal—Firm Has Exploited Many Big Features Successfully

Charles Stevens, president of the Super Features, Ltd., one of the largest of the Canadian independent distributing concerns, has returned to Toronto after his U. S. visit. Joseph Ball, president of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, New York, the franchise for the Canadian distributing privilege to all subjects published by his organization.

Mr. Stevens' concern was selected by the U. S. executive from among a number of other Canadian companies that were bidding for the territorial marketing rights, because it specializes in the distribution of important productions exclusively, and has, perhaps, the most efficient system of any of the Canadian independent enterprises.

Charles Stevens, while yet a young man, is one of the best known operators in the film field of the Dominion. He has handled such important subjects as "Civilization," "The Crisis," "The Barrier," "On Trial," "The Lone Wolf," "The Whip," "I Believe," "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea" and "Paid in Full."

He has established offices in Montreal, Toronto and St. John's, which, through the Maritime provinces are covered. J. C. Crosby is in charge of the Toronto office, J. M. Rockefeller of Montreal, while M. J. Brown handles the bookings in the maritime exchange.

It is the intention of Mr. Stevens to establish offices in other large cities in middle and western Canada for the express purpose of exploiting the U. S. subjects which have been mostly confined to the more lucrative eastern field.

Launches Campaign For “Natural Law”

Seven-Reel Feature Stars
Marguerite Courtot—M.
G. Watkins Joins
Company

“Service After Sales” is the slogan adopted by France Films, Inc., of New York City, in its state rights selling campaign on the seven-reel production, “The Natural Law.” The company states that its interest in the buyer will not end with the sale of the territory to him but will continue after he starts exploitation in his individual territory.

Several weeks have been spent preparing a selling campaign for its initial production and a most complete line of advertising helps for both the state rights man and the exhibitor have been prepared, it is announced. Included in its lobby and billboard display is a comprehensive series of posters ranging from one, three and six-sheet lithographs to a twenty-four sheet stand. Lobby photos are also available as well as colored photographs. In addition to this there are the usual slides and heralds.

“The Natural Law,” which treats of the great problem of life, was directed by Charles H. France, Marguerite Courtot enacts the leading role, and is ably supported by Howard Hall and George Larkin.

M. G. Watkins, secretary of France Films, Inc., who was formerly connected with film interests in the central west, has left Chicago for New York to give his exclusive time to the selling campaign of “The Natural Law.”

A. I. Smith Finishes
Big Alaskan Feature
At Rothacker Plant

A. I. Smith, manager of the Smith Films, who produced “Alaska Wonders in Motion” for the Educational Films Corporation, New York, has been in Chicago for the past week putting the finishing touches to the continuity and assembling of a new Alaska feature, at the Rothacker studios.

It is said that the production possesses unusual scenic value and general interest inasmuch as it not only shows the natural beauty of Alaska but also gives the public a general insight to the real character known as the “sourdough.”

Lottie Kruse, formerly a member of the Fine Arts Company, and Henry Bolton, late of the Balboa Company, play leading roles. Miss Kruse has appeared in such productions as “The Birth of a Nation,” “Intolerance,” “The Half Breed” and “The Plumber.”

One of the features of the new Smith picture is a northern dance hall scene in which an exciting fight was staged between Mr. Bolton and the notorious Young Viking. Three hundred fifty true northern characters were selected to appear in this scene, many of them old-time gamblers and famous gunners who crossed the Chilkoot Pass during the gold rush in '98. The feature is in six reels and as soon as the finishing touches on the sample print have been made Mr.
Smith will leave for New York city with a sample print to give a special trade showing.

Ask Sunday Dates for Benefit Picture Shows

Because of the unusual demand upon the local contingent of the film industry for pictures during the week that are used in benefit performances, due to the war, a concerted movement is afoot to supplant this present custom by transferring the showing of such pictures from week days to Sundays. The reason for the planned launching of this policy is due, it is stated, to present conditions in the motion picture business.

Performances of such nature, it is declared, have been given with a loss to exhibitors and the Sunday opening is presented as a solution of the problem. The fact that several motion picture houses in the outlying districts of Pittsburgh have asked their doors during the last 10 days is held up as an argument.

Al W. Cross, one of the men behind the movement and an officer of the F. I.
L. M. club, when asked if the step was preliminary toward ultimate opening of picture houses in the state, declared that the matter pertained only to charitable institutions raising funds for charitable purposes which, it is claimed, have been held on Sundays where no admissions were charged and voluntary offerings were made.

Felix Malitz Taken On Smuggling Charge

Charged with having smuggled rubber into Germany in 1916 under the name of Adolph Engler, Felix Malitz, for many years connected with the motion picture business in New York, was arrested on January 3 and held under bonds of $5,000.

Malitz is, at the present time, general manager of the Piedmont Pictures Corporation and was at one time vice-president and general manager of Pathé. He was relieved of this position shortly after the war began by Charles Pathé.
Since that time, until his connection with the Piedmont company, he has been allied with numerous film ventures.

Garson Buys “Parentage”
For Michigan and Ohio

Harry J. Garson, of Detroit, has closed with “Wild” Gunning for the feature, “Parentage,” for the states of Michigan and Ohio, and will present the picture simultaneously in both states. It is planned to carry on a big advertising campaign.

“Parentage” has been doing some exceptional business in New England, playing to 60,000 admissions in Boston, and breaking all records in Springfield, Mass., and Holyoke.

“The Light Within”
Will Be the Title
Next Petrova Film

“The Light Within” is the title that has been chosen for the second photo-drama starring Olga Petrova. The story was scenarioized by Mrs. L. C.
Russell from her original story entitled “Laurel Carlisle, M. D.” and was directed by Larry Trimble. Mr. Trimble also selected the title.

Madam Petrova, Frederick L. Collin president of the Petrova Picture Company, and the members of the Fi-national Exhibitors Circuit, have ad-endorsed the title selected as the most appropriate.

The play presents the Polish actor in a role entirely different from any one which she has heretofore essayed.
In the part of Laurel Carlisle, fian-to a woman surgeon and mother of five-ye-old Donald, her idolized son, she picts a character calling for emotional qualities of the highest order.
“The Light Within,” presenting Madame Petrova, will be announced shortly to the exchanges of the First National Exhibitors Circuit, who are distributing eight pictures in which the actress appear during the year 1918.

feature, “Daughter of Destiny,” star

Iutual to Issue Twice a Week News Reel Of New Type Entitled "Screen Telegram" will Be Available March 4 Announces John R. Freuler—To Supplant the Mutual Weekly

"The Screen Telegram," a twice-a-week news reel, of a new type, is announced by John R. Freuler of the Mutual Film Corporation and various allied film enterprises.

This will be available at Mutual exchanges beginning the week of March according to Mr. Freuler's announced plans. It will follow up and supplant the Mutual Weekly, which is one of the best news reels in the film trade.

"We have laid elaborate and promising plans for the production and assembling of the Screen Telegram," said Mr. Freuler, discussing the matter at his New York offices. "We have arranged for an extensive system of foreign correspondents and are negotiating for new angles, which we hope we will give an unusual attractiveness to the reel.

"Meets Theatres' Demands"

"I have been giving the news reels artistic attention for a long period and have come to the conclusion that it has been a rather neglected field among the film producers. Improvements in this end have been very slow to come. Yet the end of success on the Mutual Weekly and some of its better competitors, and their obvious value to the film trade, prove the permanence of demand."

"Metro Corp. Buys "Lest We Forget" Film"

Metro Pictures Corporation announces the acquisition of "Lest We Forget," the big war spectacle in which Rita Jolivet starred. The deal, which was consummated some weeks ago between the original producers, Count de Gippico and J. L. Kempton, and Richard A. Rowland and W. E. Atkinson, of Metro, gives Metro the entire right to the photodrama.

Metro regards the picture as the most powerful that has yet been made around the world war, and intends to present it soon at a large Broadway theatre as a special production. Before this presentation, however, the picture will be rearranged and many new scenes taken of important events that had not come to light at the time of the original filming. This work will be in the hands of Charles L. Taylor.

"Interesting Scenes from the Secret Service Play, "The Eagle's Eye" Rental Prices Must Be Standardized

BY HERBERT BRENON.

Beyond a doubt rental prices must be standardized. Unless some agreement is reached whereby the exhibitor is not obliged to pay more than the true value of a picture, disaster will come upon the industry. As it is, dissatisfaction is rife among exhibitors.

I realize more fully today, and I think every manufacturer should realize it now if he hasn’t before, that unless the exhibitor gets a square deal, the entire motion picture industry must collapse. Huge intermediate profits must cease.

The time has come when the manufacturer must come in contact directly with the exhibitor. After all, it is the exhibitor who reflects the real pulse of the public. His bank book contains the true statement of facts as they really are. Words mean nothing to him. If the business at the box office is slow, he knows the reason, and it is useless to try and disguise the true state of affairs to him. During the coming year a marked difference will be seen in the relations between the producer and exhibitor. The man who makes the picture and the man who buys it for the public will come closer together.

Book Pictures on Merits

The time has come when exhibitors will cease to pay the same price for a short, inferior production that they are compelled to pay for a Fairbanks picture. Pictures henceforth will have to stand on their own merits, and not depend on a few of the higher type pictures to boost their sale for them.

An exhibitor wrote to me not long ago complaining bitterly of the prices that are asked for pictures. "A certain concern," he says, "last fall attempted to raise their rentals from $720 to $800 a week, upon which basis it was an easy matter to figure a loss before we started, even though we had advanced our admission prices and played to the same number of people under the new price as under the old. We, therefore, refused to sign the new contracts."

"Now, then, here comes along the independent producer and smaller distributers. They know, of course, that we must have goods of a certain standard, and instead of co-operating and selling their goods at a price at which we can make a profit, and be a real competitor of the other program, they take advantage of a situation to get all the money they can get, regardless of whether the house can stand it or cannot stand it.

Survival of Fittest

"The manufacturers have brought about a condition locally that is going to mean the survival of the house that has the most money to lose, and it will simply be a question as to what house can hold out the longest."

The comments of this exhibitor came unsolicited. They are the straightforward statements from a man who speaks from experience, a man who knows. His remarks speak for themselves.

The sooner the man who makes the picture and the exhibitor come to a direct understanding, the sooner will these disadvantages cease to exist.

Co-operation of producer and exhibitor will mean the standardization of rental prices.

Bill West Completes Comedy "His Day Out"

The second two-reel comedy made at Hollywood, Cal., by the King-Beep Film Corporation, starring Billy West, titled "His Day Out," has been completed.

Billy escapes from an asylum, and through a flirtation with a manicurist is led to a barber shop, where he is induced to take the barber's place, who has a date to buy a "chicken" dinner.

Many ludicrous events follow, in which Billy plays the star part. Later he takes the manicurist to the Barbers' Ball, where the asylum keepsers trace him. He evades them and runs back to the asylum. Arriving there, he heaves a sigh of contentment and locks the asylum guards out for the night.

"His Day Out" is said to be replete with action and humor. It will be published February 1.

FILM MEN PROTEST NEWSPAPER REVIEWS

of the Essanay production "Uneasy Money," featuring Taylor Holmes. The heading slapped on this one, they say, might lead a reader to believe that some ardent Socialist had been given sway in the "World's Greatest Newspaper" to air his views. It follows in part:

"UNEASY MONEY"

By Mae Tince

Heavy, they say, lies the head that wears a crown. So, apparently, reposes the conscience whose owner accepts a legacy which really shouldn't have been left with him. So, at least, did the conscience of one Lord Dawlish, who in real life is Taylor Holmes.

"Because," as Lord Dawlish would say, "I played a jolly good game of gawf was no reason at all for wishing all the money in the world on me. I take it——What——"

Now, the rich man had a nephew and niece, who had hoped to be his heirs. Thus, as a nice sort of girl, devoted to raising chickens, born up bravely, however, under the shock of discovery.

"Uneasy money" makes a fairly interesting routine picture and undoubtedly has its moments chiefly when Mr. Holmes and a monkey named Joe—are in evidence. And you spell the feminine of nephew n-i-e-c-e. **

Jim Milligan is growing whiskers so he can wear his Christmas necktie. This is one of a man being driven to the hair-um.

Billy West is writing music, but the center point and thoroughpass of the incident is that he wonders whether his hand is not being held by Ed Rosensun, Jr., when he does it. He writes a sad hand anyway.

How the press agent would love to wea a still, or something, of Braunsteinrotzky, as he appeared as a "super" in Official Wife, with Clara Kimball young. How the press agent at known at Trolzy was a racer, and would throw his speed to the Boshevik?

Now that Arthur James is a lieutenant in the 7th Regiment Machine Gun Corps, it is able to prove to be the same bushmen who may be prowling about our bridges and reservoirs. And the same token it is Capt. Merriman, award of the same battalion who "amps" the boys on the review. Guide ght.

There seems to be something very active about the number seven for the public producer. We have had The Seven Deadly Sins, "The Seventh Tour," "The Seven Pearls," "Seven Eyes to Baldpate," "The Seven Swans" and "The Street of Seven Stars." We say yet have "The Seven Sodders Sis-"; the exhibitors want to work seven eyes per week; "Seven Come Eleven." So are there seven new combines re-ported on the street today. "Big Dick, Me Am Natural!"

Antonio Spaghetti, a barber, writes that he has sold out his shop owing to the lack of patronage, and desires to get into the film game. Well Tony would do very well as an actor. Barbers are men of many parts.

William Russell gave a most delightful entertainment to the press on Jan. at the Hotel Claridge. "The best of all" were provided and everyone had good time. The luncheon was a sort of prelude to the formation of the William Russell Pictures Company, and while Mr. Russell didn’t mention the set, is generally understood that Bill ad started to paddle his own canoe as producer. Much credit is due to Mabel London, who acted as hostess at the luncheon, not only for the splendid menu, but for her foresight in inviting some most attractive ladies to the feast. There was a dusky orchestra which layed often and well, and between the soup and the cake, Miss Edna Earl, of the Pathe Company, assisted by Messrs. Russell and Milne, gave a perfect terry-chicon interpretation of "Spring." Miss Earl is both graceful and attractive. Those who feasted the eye, ear and tomach were: George Cooper Dick-son, Gwen Watts, Patrick Reddy, Telegraph; Robert R. Howe, Margaret McDonald, M. P. World; Edna Earl, Lynde Denig, Mirror; Jim Hoff, World; Alice Glenister, of Saucy Stories; Peter Milne, M. P. News; Jim Beecroft, Exhibitors Herald; Edwin M. LaRoche, M. P. Magazine; Jessie Miles Burness, Film Fun; L. M. Reid, N. Y. Review; Chas. R. Condon, Photoplay; J. E. Oliphant, Evening Mail; H. H. Case, Miss Normand, William F. Russell, Leslye Mason, E. T. Restoe, Richard Gradwel, and Felix Feist, of the World Film.

It is quite evident that some Chica-goans do not like to shovel snow and rather than do so have come to New York. This week we have some distin-guished visitors from the "Windy City" with us, among them being John Freuler, president Mutual Film Manufacturing Company; Sam Hutchison of the American Film Company; Cuthbert Glass of Coburn Organ Company, and some lesser lights.

David Gally, S. M. Lobch and the Pan-American in general, seem to have taken Philadelphia by storm. Their idea, which has been approved by the Phila- delphia Board of Trade, to establish a film library for the use of schools and others who may require them for industrial reference, has made a big hit with the people of Quaker Town. The Phila-delphia Board of Trade is going to build the library building for the Pan-American, and that is going some. Bring home the "Scrapglass" essays.

When visited in his office last week, by the war correspondent of The Exhibitors Herald, George Ames, general manager of the Goldwyn Philadelphia Exchange, was in high dudgeon owing to the fact that by dint of hard work and a lot of scouting around, he had suc-cceeded in purchasing three-quarters of a pound of coal with which to heat the entire exchange. George evidently likes his job, and is going to "freeze on to it."

Ever since one of the producing companies announced that they were going to use Houdini in pictures the entire trade seems to be "tired up."

Lisle D. Bell, of Ohio, is now stirring up the "dust" in the press department of the Crest Pictures Company. Bell’s letters are rather well known.

The National Enterprises Company has thrown out a hint or two and the hungry film reviewers and advertising hustlers are snapping their lips in anticipation. Well they might, for when Arthur Sawyer gets a "Jazz" idea he makes things hum, and everybody has a good time.

"Well if you don’t believe I’m popular," remarked the irate actress as Lewis J. Selznick refused her a job at a million a minute, "I had a brand of cigars named after me."

"Well, I don’t think it is correct," remarked Lewis, "I hope they draw better than you do."

"Tony" Modena
His Little Iron Bar
Wreck Kaiser Photo

A large portrait of Kaiser Wilhelm, which was being used by the Whartons in their production of Chief Flynn’s serial photodrama, "The Eagle’s Eye," at their studios in Ithaca, was destroyed last week.

Director Lessey, entering the studio early in the morning, caught "Tony" Modena, one of the night watchmen, standing in front of the ruined portrait, admiring the wreck he had caused with one blow of an iron rod, muttering curses on the head of the German War Lord. The canvas of the portrait was torn from top to bottom, cutting the figure into two ragged parts.

Modena is an old man who served in the Italian army in his younger days. He has taken great interest in the filming of "The Eagle’s Eye," especially in the parts showing Imperial German spy defeats.

The sight of the portrait of the Kaiser, on several occasions, caused him to break into violent imprecations against the Central Powers.

The Trend of 1918 in Motion Pictures

By M. H. Hoffman

The trend of 1918 in motion pictures is very clear to whomever will read what is written indubitably upon the signboard of progress in the film industry.

For months past the forerunners of changes that are to better the industry have been rumbling, each week marking substantial progress, which has been as inevitable as the tide.

Metaphorically speaking, tomorrow will usher in another departure; the day after that will bring another change, and so on until the industry is a series of alterations, each one more significant than the last, and all giving the impression of a gradual improvement.

In fine, there is a change that is inevitable. Some are dependent upon the pictures, but others are not. It is a change that is bound to come, and with its coming will bring benefits. So let them come, for the industry is in sore need of a lifting to bring many in to their senses.

For the concern that they will lose, there will be some excellent profits for 1918. And in these the sagacious exhibitor who moves with the advancing tide will share.

But let us not deceive ourselves. We will all profit most, and build more enduringly, by squelching the calamity which is spreading, and setting to work to right wrong conditions. So buck up, buckle down and get at the task which shall make 1918 the most memorable year in the industry.

"Eyes of the World"

Cut to Seven Reels

The big Clune production, "The Eyes of the World," which was recently acquired by the Arrow Film Corporation of New York, for the open market, and which originally was published in twelve reels, has been re-edited and cut to a seven reel length to meet the popular demand for features of this length.

Messrs. Shallenberger & Priest are preparing for the revised version of "The Eyes of the World" for States Rights buyers.

Carmel Myers, Ruth Clifford, Mae Murray
Stars in Forthcoming Bluebird Photoplay

Definite arrangements for the Bluebird program carry the schedule into the middle of April and provide for two appearances for nearly every Bluebird star within that period. Carmel Myers, in "The Wife He Bought," with Kenneth Harlan featured as her leading man, Feb. 4, and Monroe Salisbury and Ruth Clifford, in "Hungry Eyes," Feb. 11, have already been referred to and the new announcements are listed below.

Mae Murray will make her third appearance as a Bluebird star next week starting Feb. 1st, offering H. Sheridan Bicker's "The Eternal Columbine," prepared for the screen and directed by Robert Leonard. Miss Murray is again scheduled for March 25 to be seen in Mr. Leonard's production of "The Eleventh Commandment," a story by F. Mc- Grew Willis.

"Breeze Bolton Blows In," starring Franklyn Farnum, will be the Bluebird feature for Feb. 25, with Juanita Hansen and Fred Eason featured in the support. Joseph F. Poland furnished the story and Joseph De Grasse, who has lately directed all of Mr. Farnum's features, made the production. Charles A. Kenyon, the author of "Kindling," furnished the scenario.

Features for Carmel Myers

Features starring Carmel Myers will offer March 4 and April 5, in the program "Bona." The first named feature from Charles Edmund Walk's store is a story which will introduce Ashton Dearholt as Miss Myers' leading man, exhibitor "Bona" will.

Kenneth Harlan playing opposite Miss Myers personally confirmed with Mr. Rothacker concerning special tint and double-tone effects which characters his productions. The Educational Film Corporation reports a gratifying list of advance bookings for the Newman pictures.

Community of Film

E. M. Newman, the lecturer, spent several days last week at the Rothacker Laboratory, Chicago, arranging negative continuity for his series of travel pictures which will be made at the Rothacker plant and published through the Educational Films Corporation.

Mr. Newman personally conferred with Mr. Rothacker concerning special tint and double-tone effects which characters his productions. The Educational Film Corporation reports a gratifying list of advance bookings for the Newman pictures.

is satisfactory to them. This constitutes the exhibitor's part of this plan to eliminate waste and unnecessary expense.

"This is a sincere plan to bridge the gap between the two permanent branches of the industry. The producers are ready. Let the exhibitors in each state unite on this plan and wipe out the present system of abusing big, waste, advance depot, unnatural competition, inflated rentals, lack of variety of productions, mad scramble of manufacturers to thrust out other film rather than finished product, and repeat the process."

In closing, Mr. Pettijohn invites suggestions and asks for any criticisms of the plan which he is offering as a possible of what action had been taken.

THE “HERALD’S” REVIEW SERVICE

The dominant aim of the reviewers on the staff of the EXHIBITORS HERALD is to supply the exhibitor with the information necessary to enable him to appreciate intelligently the production under consideration—to know if the picture is exceptional, if it is of standard quality, if it is suitable in theme and treatment to his requirements. The review department is absolutely essential to every person who books pictures. Its independence, strict impartiality and fairness guarantees an accurate estimation of every important production published.

"BETTY TAKES A HAND"
Triangle comedy-drama; five parts; published Jan. 6

Story ... Good

This slender little story, which won second prize in a recent photoplay contest, is saved from mediocrity by the gracious presence of Olive Thomas. The play is well acted; Miss Thomas is surrounded by an excellent cast and each character is well drawn, but the story lacks "punch" and sincerity. The idea of a little country girl taking possession of her wealthy aunt's home and conducting a fashionable boarding house is one around which a good two-reel play might be woven. It was necessary, however, to pad the story overmuch to make it regulation five-reel length. Charles Gunn, a likeable screen actor, is well cast as Tom Bartlett; George Hernandez makes an astute, convincing Bartlett, Sr., while Frederick Vroom as Betty's father, handles well a small role. Olive Thomas, however, as Betty, is the whole show. The play was directed by Jack Dillon.

The Story: Betty Marshall learns from her father that James Bartlett, his former partner, bailed him out of a gold mine. She receives an invitation to visit an aunt in Los Angeles and while there meets Tom Bartlett, the wealthy mine owner's sister. During the absence of her aunt, she conceived the idea of conducting a boarding house. Tom becomes her first boarder and three days later proposes. By a chance encounter Betty meets the elder Bartlett, who becomes captivated and wishes to marry his son. Betty and Tom secure a license and are married while Bartlett and his detectives are searching for Tom. A letter to her father brings him to Los Angeles and the final reconciliation takes place in Bartlett's office.

The film drew fair audiences at the Lake Shore Theatre, Chicago, where it was presented last week.

All of the interest, suspense, thrill and entertainment which made Earl Derr Biggers' "Saturday Evening Post" story, "The Agony Column," the success it was has been faithfully reflected in "The Blind Adventure," the screen version produced by the Vitagraph Company. Edward Earle's interpretation of the role of Geoffrey West, the adventerous American in London, is flawless and Betty Howe, as Marion Larned, the romantic daughter of an American Congressman, was all that could be desired. The Vitagraph Company has set a high standard to maintain for 1918 by making "The Blind Adventure" its first publication of the year. The direction is by Wesley Ruggles.

The story: Geoffrey West, while breakfasting in the Carlton in London, is attracted to Marion Larned, who is reading the personals in the London Times to her father. The following day Geoffrey inserts a "personal" in the paper which announces that the "strawberry" man would like to meet the "grapefruit" lady through a mutual friend. She replies that he must write seven letters, one a day, to prove his nature. In the letters Geoffrey weaves a thrilling story of mystery, with himself as the leading character. Each adventure is enacted and include the murder of an English captain, a confession by the captain's brother, a second confession of guilt by a constant, the arrest of an adventurer and an interview of a British secret service who is accused of being a German agent and finally his own confession as being guilty of the murder. At the end of the sixth letter Marion and her father leave for America, fearin the the risks of the war would prevent this departure. She communicates with West, who hurriedly packs and catches ship just as it is leaving the docks. He admits to her that his story is a fabrication and when led away by an officer of the ship he insists that he expects to be court-martialed. He notifies Marion that he will continue his courtship in New York. Her parting look is not dissuading.

While there are entertaining points about "The Imposter," the story is not as good as some of the previous ones starring the inimitable Ann Murdock, and she is cast in a part which does not provide that carelessness, a la Murdock, which has characterized some of her other roles. The story works itself up to an exciting climax and then ends in a "they lived happily ever after" fashion. Supporting Ann Murdock are David Powell, Lionel Adams, Richie Ling, Charlotte Granville, Edwin Latimer, Anita Rothe and George Abbott. The direction is by Dell Henderson.

The story: Mary Fenton goes to New York to surprise the citizens of that city with her voice, but finds it is a harder proposition than she had anticipated, and when her money is all gone she accepts the hospitality of Charles Owen. Meeting some friends, he is forced to introduce Mary as his wife's sister, and she is invited to the home of the Walford's who consider her a good "match" for their son Blake. While Blake loves Mary, he will not propose to her because of his parents' scheming, but when he learns from Mary that she is an impostor he declares his love. And though she hasn't as much money as the Walford's had anticipated they gladly receive her as their daughter.

In "Jules of the Strong Heart" George Beban gives a other of his famous Italian characterizations which have come familiar to many theatre-goers. The scenes of the production are laid in the lumbering district and possess marked beauty. The photography throughout is fine. There are number of stirring fights pictured. Probably one object to the picture will be the scene where George Beban and Oliver, on a deserted island, are seen fighting, where Oliver has Mr. Beban down and is torturing him with a long pole. The close-ups of the bleeding wounds are unpleasant and unnecessary.

The direction is by Donald Crisp. The cast includes Hilda Joy, H. B. Carpenter, Edward Martin, and a six months' infant, who added much to the interest of the story.

The story: Jules LeMaire comes to the lumbering country with a young infant. He secures a position logging and wins the interest of Joy Farnsworth, daughter of the forest.
in Burgess becomes jealous of Jules and spreads false stories garding Jules’ baby. A storm prevents the foreman from leaving after the pay. This arouses the men and they are about to attack Farnsworth. Jules offers to go for the money and rags the men along. He leads him astray and demands the ite for the money, but Jules refuses to give it up. Burgess igns to torture Jules, but is interrupted by Joy and Herbert ommerville, the latter having come for his baby. Burgess captured, money unsecured, the trio arrive last in men. Sommerville takes this baby back with him and Joy as Fairbanks has done for the screen. The story contains plenty of thrills and interest and humor, and the role Ned Thacker is one well suited to Mr. Fairbanks’ particular abilities and every member of the cast lends the star excellent support.

The excellence of the camera and laboratory work, as well as the pleasure of watching the performance, is entertaining. Difering from the recent Fairbanks’ productions the humor of the story does not rely upon the subtitles. There is real humor and comedy in the situations and the acting. The production promises to be among the best of the season. The story was written by Allan A. Dwan and is the play of the Ziegfeld Theater, Chicago, where it was shown last week.

There is a prologue picturing the exciting days of D’Artagnan of old; a cyclone that carries with it the treachery of a real

Norma Talmadge has attained another triumph in “Ghosts of Yesterday.” Her work contains remarkable variety and this dual role affords her a special opportunity to display a unique understanding of characterization. From the simplicity of the little dressmaker she plunges into the immoralities of the cabaret star with a grip that is most convincing. She is one of the few whose talent justifies her stardom.

The story is a very interesting one made from the play “Two Women” by Rupert Hughes. Much of the credit is due to the direction of Charles Miller. The delicacy with which the love scenes between Miss Talmadge and Eugene O’Brien were played is a joy. O’Brien expressed the height of passion with perfect freedom from lust. He indeed was the lover purified by fire. The settings were elaborate to the extreme, the cabaret scene being something to remember. The Palais Royale cabaret was transplanted to the studio and some remarkable scenes recorded.

The Story: Ruth Graham, a young seamstress, is in poor health but works steadily to support her aged father and herself. Howard Marston, a waster, has become so involved in dissipation that he resolves to commit suicide. Ruth finds him in the park about to shoot himself and prevents him. She listens sympathetically to his story and takes him to her home.
He accepts and they are later married. Her father dies and her life is bound up in the joys of her married life. Her health does not improve and Howard cannot make enough money to take her South. Too late one of his inventions is recognized and paid for. When the money reaches him his young wife has died from exhaustion and fever for a portrait he is trying to finish. He goes to Paris to try to forget his sorrow.
There he meets Jeanne, the toast of the hour, who is so like Ruth that he begs her to sit for the unfinished portrait. She consents and her reformation begins. She tries to learn to be like Ruth, whose purity has held his love all these years. Howard loves her passionately but is seized by a revulsion of feeling and throws her from him. Count Pascal persuades her to return to her old life and thoroughly dishonored by Howard’s treatment of her, she goes. Howard realizes that he must save her and goes to Pascal’s rooms for her. A fight takes place and Howard’s eyes are injured. Jeanne nurses him and they learn to truly love each other. In his blindness he learns to see the beauty in Jeanne’s nature and they find happiness.

"Over the Hill" is five reels of average screen entertainment. It is a newspaper story carrying with it the fascination which these stories seem to hold for spectators. While not altogether new, there are a number of diversions from the beaten track and it should prove a good subject for the average audience. Gladys Hulette is pleasing as Esther Neal and Chesty Barnett affords her a good partner. J. H. Gilmour, Daniel Mason, Wm. Parke, Jr., and Richard Thornton. The direction is by William Parke.

The story: Upon the death of his grandfather Esther becomes an assistant in a newspaper office and is promoted to society editor. Allan Stone, her fiancé, and advertising manager, is anxious to secure an advertising contract from the lawyer. The enforcement of the contract means the permanency of his position. The editors print a "spite" story about Rose Lawler, and Esther, knowing that this will injure Allan's opportunities for securing the contract, burns the entire edition. "Rose of the World" is done with that finesse that lifts it out of the class of average productions and sets it on a pedestal. It has been beautifully produced from the book by Agnes and Edgerson Castle.

There are some well staged battle scenes depicting a fight between natives in India and some excellent night photography. There is a host of quaint situations. Elise Ferguson does excellent work and wins the sympathy of her spectators from the start. Wyndham Standing enacts the role of Capt. Harry English in an admirable manner. Other members of the cast are Claire Harlow, Jane Sloan, Percy Martin, Ethel Martin and Sloan De Mashe. The splendid direction reflects much credit on the efforts of Maurice Tourneur.

The story: Harry English, it is reported, has been killed in a battle between natives, and his wife, Rosamond, marries again. As time passes her love for her dead husband mounts. Her love for the man she has married. She goes to live in a far off home and breaks the news to her husband the truth. She becomes ill and in her ravings asks for Harry. The unusualness of "Men Who Have Made Love to Me" and the popularity of the story as a book augurs well for the screen version. In addition to the production being interesting and well produced, exhibitors have the eccentricities of the star to aid them in advertising the feature, since Mary MacLane has been a subject of both curiosity and interest for a number of years, and there is every reason to believe that it will prove a profitable attraction.

Miss MacLane relates the stories of her six love affairs and each episode of life she introduces are pictured upon the screen, Miss MacLane playing the leading part. She does this in a manner which makes one forget that this is her first appearance before the camera. Each of the six men selected for the respective lovers is well cast and handles his role satisfactorily. Arthur Berthelet is responsible for the direction.

The story: Mary MacLane tells of a callow youth who came to her life and fancied himself in love with her, but after a time he bored her and she sent him on to his fate. The next was a literary man who dominated her and ruled her until she was in misery. He, too, grew tiresome and her engagement was broken. The younger son of a charmer followed on the heels of the literary man, to be outdone by a prizefighter. A note from the prizefighter's sweetheart solved Mary's heart and she sent him on his way. The next was a bank clerk, and the sketches he drew of a bright future gave Mary something to look forward to, but when he learnt that Mary used cigarettes, this romance ended. Mary's latest lover was a married man, whom Mary abhorred and feared, and of whom she was finally able to rid herself.

The most interesting thing in "The Winding Trail" is the dancing of Viola Dana. In these scenes she is dainty, capricious and charming. The story is but an average one, however, with many things left unexplained, and constantly felt. It is of a very melodramatic type and undoubtedly will make its strongest appeal to audiences who admire the work of Miss Dana, whose role is not the bit star has had her bit. Members of the cast are Claire Harlow, Bruce, Mabel Van Buren and Hayward Mack. The direction is by John H. Collins.

The story: Audrey Graham is anxious to get revenge on Dan Steele, whom she considers responsible for the death of her sister. She goes to the mining fields of Alaska as a prospector. They are stopped by a band of outlaws, and intend to leave them to starve. In the garb of a child, Audrey goes to Jim Wando, the leader who, hears to her plea as she gives the prospectors food and water. Pedro, an undisciplined lover of Audrey's, tells Jim how he has been fooled and intends to keep Audrey. She tells him her reason for being there, however, he promises to leave her go if she will bring Steele to him. ECONOMY IN LOBBY DISPLAYS

By Parke Vawter

In these days of war and taxation the exhibitor is compelled to look for the most for his money. Every motion picture theatre must have a lobby, one of inviting appearance; therefore, the posters must have the same appearance or the effect of the lobby is lost and its effect on the public and picture fans is reflected in the receipts.

There are a great many theatres with their own art departments, and in those instances the poster service is much better and less expensive than ordering from the local sign painters and show card writers. The theatre with its own poster department need not worry about the lobby advertising in case a feature fails to show up at the proper time, as the emergency posters can be made in a short time for the substituted film.

The poster as a rule is made on mat board, and it is this that makes it expensive. Mat boards at this time are at low price, even when bought in thousands. It is a hard matter to buy the 30x40 mats of ordinary quality for less than 10 cents each, and the novelty boards and class I mats are almost prohibitive in price. The theatre using thirty mats each week at a cost of 25 cents each, will spend $390 during the year for mat boards alone, and after they are once used they are virtually scrap paper.

It has been demonstrated that the mat boards waste can be greatly reduced by using wall board, such as a Wallboard, Cornwell board, or any of the heavy boards used in place of plaster.

The wall board is cut to fit the lobby display frames. The artist in charge of the poster department coats them in either the color wall color wood coatings on the market (Alabastine, Muresco, Cal-o-tint or Whiting), and dry colors to give the desired tint can be used very successfully. After the wall board has been coated, lettered and washed off read to be lettered. The water color coating dries with a sati dull finish, making a very attractive, good reading poster, an easy thing with the use of glass over the poster, eliminating the glass breakage, which in the course of a year will run into considerable money.

As stated above, mat boards for one year, at 30 cents each, cost $390. Sixty wall boards, 30x40, will cost $30. Two wall boards can be coated, lettered and washed off again, and every time a wall board is laundered the house saves the price of a mat board that would be of no value at all. It had been once used. A great many poster artists cut openings in the mat boards to insert photos. With the wall board it is the better plan to fasten the photo on the mat with sma thumb or push tacks, which gives a very good effect, is a tin saver, and does not destroy the surface of the board. The thirty times, equivalent to 1,800 mat boards, and the approximate cost material to coat one wall board is 1 cent, or $18 for the year. Deducting that from the cost of 1,800 mat boards and you readily see the saving is worth while.

Using water colors, a handy man with a lettering brush can get any effect he desires—pictorial backgrounds, and the momentary backgrounds, grained, stippled, mottled, and he is acquainted with the relief bulb he can get all the emboss effects desired. There is no limit to the medium at hand—limit is with the man doing the work.

The exhibitor, looking over three houses, the wall board question is a thing to be looked into seriously, because the expenditure for mat boards is considerable. Therefore, he can get something to substitute at a saving, and at the same time something that is more effective than highly colored and highly priced mat boards, for his lobby display posters, naturally will want anything to stop the talking. T above is written with this end in view.

She war plunges the little family into sorrow just when America has begun to smile upon them. How the heroine wins happiness at last, after the French boy and the German have met on the battlefield, supplies the climax to the story.

In the cast will be seen Vernon Steele and Marguerite Marsh, who has acted already in a number of Goldwyn Pictures. The rector is Ralph Ince.

EXHIBITORS HERALD

THE PERISCOPE

By Fuller Pep

Good morning! Have you sent your figures, compiled since the war tax became effective, to the Allied Exhibitors’ Legislative Committee? They need them to fight your case before Congress.

Tea and Pictures

New York has a movie theatre manageress—Miss Katherine Russell Bleeker, former society photoplay producer. She has swept out the manager’s office, thrown out the cuspidors and pictures of ladies in tights and decorated the office chairs with chintz at the Broadway Theatre, Forty-first and Broadway, and now serves tea to patrons from 4 to 6 each afternoon.

There’s enough forecastin’ being done these days to make one’s head spin.

Pretty soft for George Arliss, collecting $20,000 on a contract to act before the camera, and never working a day.

Mother’s a Chaplin Devotee

A want ad in a Michigan paper reads:

Wanted—A kind and gentle lady to take care of my baby next Friday night while I go to the Temple Theatre to see Charlie Chaplin. Phone 220.

Thomas H. Ince says the public loudly demands but never pays to see allegorical, symmetrical and diabolical picture plays. Here’s T. H. Ince, the public confused with a few high-brows who seldom attend motion picture theatres.

The Reviews Will Suffer

With the decline of luncheons at private showings due to the war it behooves the Hooverizing trade paper critics to pull in their belts. This won’t add beauty to the reviews of these special super-features, however.

If some of those P. A.’s who object to the gentle art of kidding indulged in by a few reviewers could overhear the remarks of some of the prospective buyers, they’d lay off on that “It’s another ‘Birth of a Nation’” stuff and tip the boss off that he has a punk picture.

Speaking of camouflage (a popular word these days), it is not new to the film trade. How about “he’s in conference.”

New York’s six lightless nights a week brings out the crowds on Saturday evening in droves and makes the once-a-week-Great-White-Way look like Main street back home.

That General Entertaining P. A.

The energetic, indefatigable Bert Ennis stops at no expense apparently when he sees a chance to entertain the reviewing squad, remembering, no doubt, the days when he was wont to line and smoke as one of the number. Hence he hires one of Uncle Sam’s fighters, one Fred Rath (a former reviewer) and a specially hand-picked quartet to sing Rath’s “international famous war song” entitled “When the Moon Is Shining Somewhere in France” at a showing of “The Crucible of Life.” Bert should follow this up with “How I Shot Maciste on the Italian Battle Front.”

Exhibes, who are kicking at lightless nights should be glad they’re not doing business in Switzerland where motion picture theatres are compelled to close down twelve nights a month as a measure of economy.

Bennie’s a Actor Now

At last he’s went and done it. Bennie Ziedman. We mean. He’s busted into pictures. Herefore he was content to let his light shine under Doug’s bushel, but nay, no more. Bennie plays the role of a reporter in “A Modern Musketeer,” and a darn good one, we’ll say.

California officials apparently do not appreciate that “Spirit of ’76” film that Robert Goldberg spent so much time and thought to produce. He’s still languishing in jail in Los Angeles.

Eight Powers 6B Machines Furnish Entertainment for Four Audiences

One of the most unique screen entertainments ever held was given recently by the Kansas City Star, in the Convention Hall, Kansas City, when the fairy tale, "The Seven Swans," featuring Marguerite Clark, was presented in quadruplicate on a four-sided screen to thousands of people.

Three performances were given on Saturday and Sunday, December 29 and 30, respectively, at which the immense hall was filled to capacity.

To project the picture eight Powers 6B cameragraphs were used. These were installed under the supervision of William W. Lewis of the Nicholas Power Company.

A novel feature of the entertainment was the projection of the same scene on all four sides of the immense screen simultaneously. The synchronization was perfect throughout.

The operators in charge of the eight machines, furnished by the local union, were: F. R. Cessna, W. H. Weston, R. R. Ransdell, Lee Sargent, A. W. Lee, Charles F. Mehling, W. C. Kress and W. L. Wagner. They were under the charge of Mr. Lewis and their able work called forth much praise.

Stand Firm and Don’t “Grouse”

SAMUEL S. HUTCHINSON.

There has been everything but wisdom and foresight in the manner in which some of the film trade went forth gaily to meet conditions of which they knew nothing or cared less. As long as the revenues continued to roll in, they jubilantly continued on their way, secure in the thought that the goose that laid the golden egg would hang around the premises permanently.

But when the revenues began to slow down, they stopped short in their tracks. They betrayed considerable resentful bewilderment and began to blame everybody, but themselves for a condition which they created in their own wilful ignorance.

They have blamed the present situation in the film industry on the war, on taxes, on the apathy of the people, on the misunderstanding of the legislators, on everything but the right thing.

They are in a situation that they have created for themselves and they are tangled in a web of their own weaving. For, to paraphrase a well known quotation, “where there is no vision the pictures must perish.”

Some of us who have been in the film business since it was started; who have learned to read the signs ahead and to look after our engines and see that we will carry us through in bad weather; who have sought to make the merit of our pictures speak for itself and who have tried to do business on the principle that there are still plenty of people in the country who like to be entertained with a wholesome picture of a tonic quality and a clean atmosphere; those of us who have learned this, are more ready to do our share in helping to adjust the interests of the film industry to the changed conditions of today.

We are loyal to the motion picture.

We have been depending too largely on emergency action, as I view it. But before us there is a creative period in which we may utilize the apparent dullness of the industry to gather momentum for a future balance of prosperity and sincerity. There may be deflated values here and there; but such film producers as have had the vision to prepare for the reaction that we know must follow the first swift flights of fancy in the business, may hope to come through this crucial period with greater financial security than before.

That is, if we eliminate the non-essentials and get down to brass tacks and WORK.

There is no great demand for pessimists in the picture business and the sooner they “grouse” themselves out of the industry the better for the industry itself.

UNIVERSAL PLANS ANOTHER SERIAL

It is announced that Universal will keep sera overlapping serials throughout the forthcoming year.

DATE OF WALSH FILM CHANGED

Bad weather conditions having interfered with some takes which Director Carl Harbaugh desired to make in "Ja Spurlock-Prodigal," featuring George Walsh, the date of issue of this Fox feature has been changed from January 27 to February 3. The January 27 picture will be June Caprice in "T Heart of Romance."

"The House of Glass" Well Under Way Shows Famous New York Landmarks

A number of familiar New York landmarks will appear in the screen version of "The House of Glass," the new Select production now being filmed by Clara Kimball Young and her own company. Jefferson Market and the Pennsylvania railroad station, Blackwell's Island and the Tombs all figure prominently in the action of the play and several scenes have been taken at each location.

"The House of Glass," which is now well under way, promises to eclipse all of Miss Young's former screen plays. As Margaret Case, former Blackwell Island inmate, she has a role at once appealing and with unusual opportunities for emotional interolation. She is assisted by a cast which includes Corliss Giles, Edward Kimball, Pelli Trenton, James T. Laffey, Josie Sadler, Norman Selby, Kid McCoy, William Waltman, Peggy Burke and Doris Field. The picture is being directed by Emile Chautard and will be the next of the star's Select offerings.

Isaac Wolper Outlines Proposed Activities of Mastercraft Corporation

Isaac Wolper, vice-president and general manager of the newly formed Mastercraft Photo-Play Corporation, while in New York last week arranging details for the new company, in a short interview outlined briefly the proposed activities of the company. For a number of years Mr. Wolper has been prominent in financial affairs in Boston and it was less than a year ago that he became interested in the motion picture industry.

"After spending a great deal of time and money in carefully investigating the motion picture industry," Mr. Wolper said, "I am thoroughly convinced that there is ample room for a picture organization operating on purely business lines making productions of exceptional magnitude. The men who are my associates in Mastercraft Photo-Play Corporation are men of not only sound financial standing, but men who have really achieved distinction in large business enterprises and who are now going to devote their entire energies to the development of this enterprise upon which we are launched.

"In all of our departments, strictly business principles will be followed out. It is our intention to make no less than four nor more than seven productions a year, but in making these productions we will spare neither effort nor expense in securing the best talent obtainable to make photographs that are really superior in all that the term implies."

"In addition to our studios in Boston, which when completed will cover over fifty acres of ground, we will also have large studios in California. Eugene Farnsworth, president of our company, is in California at the present time looking into these details and as soon as they are completed he will return to New York where we will arrange the final details for the filming of the first production.

"Thomas Dixon, Jr., whose 'Birth of a Nation' is without exception the finest offering the screen has borne, will be a member of the new organization, and I believe our first production will be a picturization of one of his works. Ever since the making of 'The Birth of a Nation' producers have been making Mr. Dixon flattering offers for his other works, but up to the forming of the Mastercraft Photo-Play Corporation he has steadfastly refused these offers as he wanted to be assured that the visualization of his stories would be of such magnitude as not to depreciate his work, after the making of his initial photoplay spectacle.

"I hope to be able to announce within the near future the names of other writers who have won a high place in the world's literature, whose stories will be visualized by Mastercraft, but I want to assure the exhibitors and the general public throughout the world that we are not boasting when we predict that Mastercraft Photo-Play productions are going to mark an epoch in the history of the silent drama."

Wholesome Films Move To Larger Accommodations

Wholesome Films Corporation removed this week to larger quarters in the Shops Buildings, 17 North Wabash Ave. The new location gives Wholesome increased space, which is required through the expansion of the business and will house the executive offices of the company.

"The enlarged quarters has been made necessary through the growth of our business," said M. J. Weisfield, general manager. "The volume of our business has been steadily increasing and in order to keep up our standard of service it has become necessary to take on additional facilities."

The new offices also will be the distribution center for serving the Middle West territory.

Stockholders Elect Rothacker Directors

Those elected were Watterson R. Rothacker, David Beaton, Jr., A. A. Rothacker, H. J. Aldous and John Hahn.

War Tax in New Castle

New Castle, Pa.—Patrons of motion picture theatres in this city will pay approximately $5,000 monthly in war tax to the government. At this figure the average contribution of each motion picture theatre in the city is $500.

Many of the theatres are still absorbing the war tax in the admission price, but a number have increased the ticket fee by five cents, this to include the war tax.

George Backer Buys Ince's "The Cast Off"

"The Cast-Off," a Thomas H. Ince production with Bessie Barriscale as the star, has been purchased by George Backer for distribution through Four Square Pictures. The photoplay is in six reels and was directed by Raymond E. West, under Mr. Ince's supervision.

The story is by C. Gardner Sullivan and is not alone gripping in its drama an pathetic but has bits of appropriate comedy and human touches that are very rea

Universal Exchanges Begin Distribution of Finley Series

The pictures will be carried in one-reel form whenever the length will permit, and other instances the reel will be split into a selection.

William L. Finley, supervisor of Oregon State Fish and Game Commission, has been for three years raising these animals in his natural life. It is declared that nothing intimate and authoritative on animal life, fish pictures in animated form, has been attempted until it was only through the opportunities Finley's occupation afforded that "close-ups" of wild life became possible.

Mayor of Stillwater Defends Sunday Shows

Stillwater, Minn.—Mayor J. R. Kolle of this city, told a meeting of the ministerial association recently that under present conditions he favored the daily motion picture shows. The occasion of his talk was the meeting of the clergy to look into Sunday closing.

He expressed the belief that this would increase the Sunday evening church attendance.

“I am of the opinion that motion pictures here in Stillwater,” said the city’s executive, “if they are closed in Stillwater on Sunday night it will only be a means of attracting a large number of young people to St. Paul and Minneapolis for the purpose of attendance to the picture shows there. If that were the greater harm than ever would come to our young people as it would be necessary to keep later hours while the number of temptations would be greatly increased.”

COAL SHORTAGE MAY CLOSE ELGIN THEATRES

Elgin, Ill.—(Special to Exhibitors Herald)—Spurred on by an acute coal shortage in Elgin, Benjamin S. Pearsall, local fuel administrator, will undoubtedly within a few days ask the motion picture theatres of this city to close down for two nights each week. The administrator is also arranging a schedule which will provide for stores being open but eight hours a day, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., and for the closing of lodge halls, billiard parlors and bowling alleys at 9 p.m.

There are four motion picture theatres in Elgin which will be affected if the demand of the administrator is complied with. They are the Grand, managed by William Newman; The Star, directed by Ralph Crocker; the Orpheum and the Temple, owned by Henry Rong and Frank Vanston, respectively.

Rail Tie-Up Delays Shipment of Films

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—Because of cold weather and the recent heavy snow, theatres in the city have been severely handicapped through inability to receive their films regularly. Exhibitors have at times been forced to forego morning performances and have frequently been compelled to wait until evening before their shows arrived.

Theatre in the outlying portions of the city who make no attempt to give forenoon performances, have not so keenly felt the interrupted schedules of the railroads. They have, however, not infrequently, had to dispense with afternoon performances.

Bijou Theatre Razed; Operator Escapes Death

Kaukauna, Wis.—The Bijou theatre, a motion picture house, of this city, was completely destroyed recently in a fire, which is believed to have originated from crossed electrical wires in the projection booth. The loss is more than $3,000, over half of which is covered by insurance.

The theatre had a seating capacity of 500 but was only partially filled when the fire broke out. The patrons made an orderly escape to the street. The machine operator narrowly escaped injury.

Alliance Man Leases Lorain Picture House

Lorain, Ohio—Peter Tender, of Alliance, owner of a large chain of moving picture theatres in the state of Ohio, has leased the Majestic Theatre in this city and has announced that the playhouse will, in the future, be devoted exclusively to the showing of photoplays.

Mr. Tender will completely remodel the present structure as well as have it rewired to obtain better electrical effects. It is believed that the theatre will be ready for formal opening before the end of this month. A new seating machine will be installed and a new booth built.

Metro Gets Rights to “The House of Mirth”

Motion picture rights to Edith Wharton’s novel, “The House of Mirth,” have been acquired by Metro Pictures Corporation for the use of Emmy Wehlen, and the screen version will be placed in the presentation of a condenscd version of Albert Capellani. June Mathis and Albert Capellani have prepared the screen version, which will be given a careful and elaborate setting it is announced.

Strand Theatre, N. Y. Presents “Carmen” As Added Feature

The combination of screen and operatic entertainment has proved a big success at the Strand Theatre, New York, according to an announcement from Harold Edel, managing director. For the first time in the history of the photograph theatre, such an entertainment was presented at the Strand last week and record attendance was the result. Special scenery and costumes were prepared for the presentation of a condensed version of “Carmen,” and the ovations accorded this offering at every performance are said to indicate that this form of entertainment will become more frequent.

Oscar Spirencu, who conducts the Strand orchestra, collaborated with Director Edel in the preparation of the music and presentation of this novelty. The famous opera was condensed so that it could be shown in thirty minutes, with four people. The opera was presented in conjunction with appropriate scenery and lighting effects and took the place on the bill of the usual vocal solos.

The complete bill in the order of its presentation included: The Star Spangled Banner,” as the opener by the entire orchestra with special visualization on the stage disclosing an artistic drop showing Fort Sumter in the distance being fired upon; number two was the overture offering “Tales of the Vienna Woods,” with a Zither solo; number three, zoological pictures; number four, Strand Typical Review, number five, violin solo; number six, Pauline Frederick in “Mrs. Dane’s Defense”; number seven, “Carmen,” with four people and special scenery: number eight, scenic and educational pictures; number nine, a James Montgomery Flagg Edison-Perfection comedy, and number ten an organ solo.

“The introduction of opera into the photoplay theatre in conjunction with a bill of screen entertainment, has proved a big success,” said Mr. Edel. “The presentation of ‘Carmen’ in thirty minutes, was no small task, but the result is more than gratifying.”
Producer Appears Before Chicago's Censorship Board

Herbert Brenon Asks That He Be Allowed to Make Changes Suggested for Pictures

Herbert Brenon, the producer, appeared before Major M. L. C. Funkhouser and the Chicago Censorship board last Monday and addressed the body concerning his production of "Empty Pockets," which will soon be shown to the board. Mr. Brenon arrived in Chicago on Sunday morning on the Twentieth Century Limited, which was delayed twenty-three hours by a blizzard. Mr. Brenon visited the office of the second deputy of police in company with Ralph Kettering and Roeo Stryer. His address to the censorship board was followed by an hour's consultation with Mr. Funkhouser.

"I am here for one reason only," said the producer. "No longer do I wish myself to be but a printed title to you. I want you to think of me as a sincere man with an avowed purpose. I have not come here toUpbayd you as other producers have done, and I am content that you view my picture, 'Empty Pockets,' with a conviction that I have been sincere in producing it. I am not going to go to court to force you to pass this picture, but I am going to ask you to give me an opportunity, personally, to make changes that you deem necessary.

"I have just come from producing 'The Third Floor Back,' in which the spiritual reincarnation of the Lord visits a lodg- ing house beset with bigotry and malice and brings sunshine and contentment to those within. It cost me $110,000 to produce that picture and I shall probably sell it at a loss. 'Empty Pockets' was produced for much less money and was sold with 10,0000 to have the service I put it into production. Thus, the profits of one melodrama are used to produce the more artistic ventures which I sincerely hope to produce.

"No longer think of me as a printed bit of celluloid, but remember always in viewing my productions that I am not adverse to criticism. It is right sense, and that I will always be open to the right kind of advice, and am sincere in my efforts to make the motion picture industry my most worthy achievement.

Can't Donate Services

Friends of Captain Robert Warwick, who have been engaged in working out a proposition whereby the former stage and screen star would appear in a film feature dealing with some phase of the war, to be made for the benefit of the Red Cross, have been informed that it would be impossible to have the services of Captain Warwick for such a picture.

Joseph Santley and "Oh Boy" Co. Make Comedy for Titan Pictures

Joseph Santley and the members of the "Oh Boy" company are busy at the present time making a one-reel comedy for the Titan Pictures Corporation under the auspices of the American Military Relief Association. Mr. Santley and the members of his company volunteered their services when they learned that a fund realized from the sale of the films goes to the boys over there. It is the intention of the musical comedy star, after the picture has been produced and his company is on tour, to carry a print with him and to use it in connection with the sales in support of the next Liberty Loan. The picture is being produced under the direction of Rex Weber, director of the Titan Pictures Corporation, and will be released by Giant. The lights, camer- a, scenery, and all the services of the Titan Pictures Corporation are at the disposal of the project.

The American Military Relief Association is showing this week a one-reel comedy at the Ziegfeld Theatre and at the Ziegfeld Theatre, Chicago, in which Ernest Truex and his family play the principal roles," said Mr. Clark. "This is another case where a star of the legitimate drama has volunteered his services for the benefit of Uncle Sam's boys. These patriotic and loyal citizens have found time with all of other duties to donate and contribute their services for the benefit of the soldiers. The least a patriotic citizen can do, who is going to patronize a theatre is to patronize one of the theatres in which Mr. Clark's show is showing under the auspices of the American Military Relief Association are shown."

Among the other pictures soon to be distributed featuring "Oh Boy" is Grape- win, who has also contributed his services. Mr. Grapewin is widely known as a member of the team of "Grapewin & Lillian" and also as the producer of the Great "Vaudeville Headline" attraction. The feature in which Mr. Grapewin appears is "The Hawaiian" and is a "treasure of the Hawaiian Hula Huk and the Ukulele craze.

EXHIBITOR IS KEY TO FILM INDUSTRY SAYS CARLE CARLTON

Crest President Asserts Producer Who Keeps Best Interest of Theatremen in Mind Gains in End

The exhibitor is the real key to the present situation of the motion picture industry, in the opinion of Carle E. Carlton, president of the Crest pictures.

"The producer who keeps the best interests of the individual exhibitor and theater manager in mind every minute of the time is the one who is bound to gain the recognition which goes with patronage," Mr. Carlton said.

"In the production of features that are as big as 'The Grain of Dust,' the exhibitor ought to be made to feel that the maker of the picture is as keenly inten- ded on his success in booking it as if he himself were the exhibitor.

"It is for this reason that we emphasize the point that exhibitors who deal with us direct will be assured the exclusive rights to the feature, whether or not the state rights privileges are subse- quently disposed of.

"This is why an exhibitor contracts for 'The Grain of Dust,' or any Crest feature, for that matter, he knows what to expect. If the state rights territory is not ac- quired before the picture is finished, the film will be supplied to him direct.

"This method is based on simple equity, and a policy which means that we hold back all our output the way down the line."

Hotaling Completes 700th Original Comedy

Arthur D. Hotaling has just completed his 700th comedy: "The Soup and Fish Ball." And this means 700 comedies without one written line of script. Mr. Hotaling is one of the pioneers of the comedy-producing field and his long applied knowledge of what makes screen- play laughter laugh to advantage is his Essanay productions.

"The Soup and Fish Ball," to be pub- lished January 26, deals with the amusing and exciting results of an argument between two "hod-carrying" gentlemen, clash that is brought to a climax during a grand ball. In this picture the largest group of comedy players yet employed in Mr. Hotaling's Essanay comedies con- tribute the fun.

General Film reports continued an encouraging popular trend of the year's one-reel comedies, as well as the one-a-week scenes. For January 26 on the scene program is offered "A Romance of Rai-

Declares Dividend
Plans Big Extensions

At a recent meeting of the Board of Directors of the Rothacker Film Manu- facturing Company held at Chicago, a cash dividend of 7 per cent was declared on the preferred stock for the fiscal year of 1917.

General plans for a large extension of business activities were outlined by Pres- ident Rothacker and approved by the board.

While the details of these plans will not be divulged to the trade until later, it is understood that they embrace spe- cial operations in New York and on the Pacific Coast, as well as some new ven- tures of magnitude at the Rothacker Studios.

A vote of thanks was given to the members of the First National Exhibiti- tors' Circuit for their expressions of praise for the work done on First Na- tional films by the Rothacker Laboratory.

Halifax Motion Pictuemmen Start Fund
To Aid Sufferers in Recent Big Disaster

Great praise has been bestowed upon the motion picture theatre managers in the stricken city of Halifax for the splendid manner in which they responded to the appeals for aid for the sufferers. Various organized and unorganized schemes were evolved and carried through to good effect.

The theatre managers, as a whole, did everything in their power to help the sufferers secure food, shelter and clothing. Theatres were thrown open where first aid measures were given to those unfortunate who were injured.

While none of the theatrical fraternity, as far as can be learned was killed outright, some suffered wounds, while others lost their homes and everything they had in the way of worldly goods.

J. T. Malone has moved his offices from the Rialto Theatre building, Montreal, to the building formerly occupied by the Regal Films, 337 Bleury street, Montreal.

Announcement has been made that the Regal Films, Limited, will take over the distribution rights for the Dominion of all subjects of the Globe Films Limited. This includes the new Paralia Plays, which are to be issued in Canada, starting the first of the year.

Globe Films, Limited, was organized six months ago by Arthur S. Cohen. Phil Kaufman, a well known figure in Canadian film circles, was elected vice-president of the new arrangement which has just become effective. Mr. Kaufman goes over to the Regal Films as general sales manager. Mr. Cohen will continue to act as president of Globe Films, Limited.

A Blessing in Disguise

The amendment to the sensational order of the fuel administrator which will permit motion pictures to remain open on Mondays during the weeks until March 25 when practically all the workers of the country east of the Mississippi River are away from their employment is an opportunity that will greatly compensate the motion picture industry not only for the theatres being closed on Tuesdays but also for the many other adverse conditions that have been at hand during the last few weeks.

The top-notch of popularity for the motion picture theatre in the entire district east of the Mississippi undoubtedly will be attained on Mondays for the next nine weeks. With practically the entire industry of the country at a standstill and nearly all stores and shops closed, the public will turn in great numbers to the motion picture theatre for amusement and diversion.

Exhibitors are particularly fortunate to have the benefit of this amendment which was arrived at following the initial promulgation of the fuel order. Washington made a wise decision in acceding to the requests of the theatre men who importuned that theatres be allowed to remain open during the coming nine Mondays in order that the public may have access to some desirable form of amusement and diversion during the days that it is kept away from its customary employment.

It is the opinion of many experts that the majority of theatres will receive a larger gross income during the next nine weeks under the open-Monday arrangement than they have been receiving during the last few months. In view of the necessary loss which practically every business of the country must sustain under the provisions of the fuel order the film trade is particularly fortunate.

The fuel order as originally promulgated would have been a tremendous blow to the film industry, but the open-Monday amendment gives indication of working a distinct advantage to the exhibitor and consequently to every branch of the business.

In recognition of this advantage the film trade may now redouble its efforts in further co-operation with the government in the various ways in which it is able because of its position which calls into intimate contact with it millions of citizens daily.

Elimination of Unfit

The reputation of several film men as capable executives have been blasted during the past few weeks because of their determination to attribute unsatisfactory conditions in their own companies to the general status of the business.

The prophet of calamity cannot be a prophet with honor, especially when the talk of adverse conditions is due to a localized and not a general condition. Every business has its periods of comparative depression—no commercial activity can maintain a steady standard of activity.

Recently in the film trade certain adverse conditions which should have been mastered months and years ago, together with the general conditions incident to the national crisis have created a comparatively unfavorable situation. But in spite of this the companies that have been properly managed, that have measured the volume of their output and the nature of it to the market requirements have been making steady progress.

The inevitable evolution of the industry would have eventually accomplished the same in the cases of those companies that have been hard hit.
Test for Exhibitors

THE lighting situation which is actually an important factor in the coal shortage is particularly an exhibitor’s problem. The lure of the incandescents is recognized as an effective stimulus to business, but one which exhibitors perform of circumstances will be compelled to curtail largely during the next few months.

There is no recourse from this situation; it is simply a part of the burden which exhibitors must shoulder for the cause of national defense. For some it will be a great sacrifice, for others it will be of small importance but for all it is an at-hand opportunity to give graphic proof of patriotism and to demonstrate that the men in the profession of exhibitors have the foresight to be able to think beyond the limitations of the box office.

A Patriotic Move

OVERLOOKING the underlying causes which may or may not have been responsible for the postponement of the exposition scheduled to open in New York next week, those in charge are entitled to a measure of credit for the good judgment evidenced in not holding an exposition during a time such as the present when a great national crisis exists.

In certain fields an exposition is necessary at which jobbers and middlemen are brought together to view products which they are called upon to retail to the public. But such a condition does not exist in the motion picture business and an exposition, no matter how viewed, is not essential to the welfare of the business.

Therefore the managers of the exposition, from reports at hand, took the one reasonable course possible in postponing the event thereby diverting from the film industry considerable criticism which undoubtedly would have been heaped upon it and allowing the industry to take its position in the ranks of those businesses which are obviously aware that the country is at war, and are showing a willingness to aid the cause.

Fuel Administration Order Boon to Exhibitors

Eleventh Hour Exemption of Motion Picture Theatres From Monday Closing Hailed With Joy—Exchanges Remain Principal Sufferers

Yielding to the representations of various committees of theatrical men, both to the motion picture industry and the spoken drama, Fuel Administrator Harry A. Garfield, late last Saturday night modified his seeking "heatless" day order and gave permission for these amusements as well as a number of others to remain open on the Mondays mentioned in his edict, providing they close Tuesday.

Never was the adage "it's an ill wind that blows nobody good" better illustrated than in the fuel administrator's eleventh hour ruling. This was one thing sought by the film industry to make a blessing out of what first appeared to be one of the worst evils confronting the business.

When it is taken into consideration that the entire country is practically at a standstill on that day; that the millions of persons made idle will naturally seek entertainment, the full force of the new order can be readily realized.

Tuesday Closing Popular

The conclusion of Administrator Garfield to make Tuesday the "fuelless" day for the theatres meets with the hearty approval of the exhibitors. This was the day most frequently mentioned by various organizations in their meetings as being the action taken by the government.

Monday has always been considered a dull day by most of the motion picture theatre owners. Under the new arrangement it will become the big day of the week, exceeding, it is believed, even Sunday point of financial return.

It is also a master stroke for the government, exhibitors point out, in the matter of increasing war revenue. Because of the fact that each emission sold to a place of amusement must be accompanied by the payment of a war tax, it is asserted that the government will be a large beneficiary in the action of its fuel minister.

Order Issued Abruptly

Mr. Garfield's resolution to permit the theatres to remain open on Tuesday came with nearly the same raptness as his original ruling. He had prior to this time refused to entertain this suggestion from various delegations of film men.

George M. Cohan, theatrical magnate and connected in various ways with the motion picture industry, added a committee to Washington to seek a measure of this nature. He told the authorities that in view of war conditions it would not be well for the public morale to deprive the people of all sources of entertainment.

Mr. Cohan was unsuccessful in his quest. He was told that there would be no exceptions to the order put in force by Mr. Garfield. He was given to understand that to exempt one industry would bring a deluge of similar requests.

Novel Reason Advanced

One of the novel reasons advanced to the lawmakers at Washington by a committee of New York theatre men was that the "psychological effect" upon the people of having a holiday on Monday and no place to go except home would be demoralizing upon the public. They suggested that the closing night be Tuesday.

Coming, as it did, with the suddenness of a seismic shock, Fuel Administrator Garfield's order, which at one stroke closed practically every industry in the United States east of the Mississippi River for a period of five days and, following that, every Monday for ten weeks, shook the film industry to its very foundation.

Dazed by the blow producers, distributors and exhibitors all sought an interpretation of one of the most drastic rulings known since the organization of governments. Various city and state organizations of exhibitors met in response to hurried calls, discussed the matter, decided they could do nothing and adjourned.

Exhibitors Hold Back

Due to the fact that the order was so worded as to make an appeal to the individual patriotism of those affected many of the men connected with the film industry were loath to have any criticism or seek in any way a modification of the rule.

The storm center following the Washington order, which will close every theatre in the United States one day each week for ten weeks, as far as the exhibitors were concerned, was the offices of the allied legislative committee in the nation's capital. The committee is composed of H. B. Varner, of North Carolina, chairman; Lee Ochs, of New York, Ernest H. Horstman, of Massachusetts; Judge O'Donnell, of Pennsylvania, and Frank J. Rembusch, of Indiana.

This office was literally assailed with interrogatory telegrams from exhibitors' organizations asking what steps could be taken to relieve the situation. The main request was in the nature of obtaining permission for the theatres to remain open on Mondays and close some other day in the week.

Endangers Tax Regulation

Many of the motion picture theatre owners in the country voiced the opinion that the exhibitors were taking the wrong attitude in seeking to have the law changed relative to their business. They pointed out that the industry now has before Congress information seeking for a revision of the theatre war tax.

This measure they stated was so important, that the hardship imposed by Administrator Garfield's order sank into insignificance in comparison with it. It would be fatal, they argued, to even risk the chance of prejudicing the government lawmakers against the exhibitors.

While the burden placed upon the exhibitor through the order is a great one, the full force of the blow struck the film exchanges. This end of the industry, it has been estimated, will be deprived of one-ninth of its gross business during the period of the ten weeks covered by the fuel administration's edict. Grave concern is felt for the welfare of the weaker film distributors and it is declared to be doubtful if all can survive the reduction in income.

Exchangemen Suffer

The exchangemen point out that the theatre owners have the chance to make up in the six days, through increased attendance, what they may have lost in the one day of idleness. It is pointed out that de-
J. R. Freuler Sees Efficiency Test
In Fuel Administration's Order
Mutual Head Expresses Gratification for Permit to Theatres
To Remain Open Mondays—Commends Industry
For Stand on Ruling

In the order of Fuel Administrator
Harry A. Garfield John R. Freuler, president of the Mutual Film Corporation, sees an efficiency test for all industries and es-specially for the motion picture industry.

"The federal order for a cessation of general business to meet the fuel emergency," said President Freuler, "provided a test of efficiency for all industry and particularly for the motion picture industry, which has stood accused of all the disorders of the category and a total lack of twentieth century efficiency.

"Coming so closely after a period of almost complete paralysis in the great middle west as the result of extraordinary climatic conditions, the fuel administrator's order created a situation doubly difficult for the distributor as well as the exhibitor.

Mutual Meets Emergency
"Reports from all branch offices of the Mutual Film Corporation affected alike by the fuel order and storm condition indicate that the emergency has been met.
Mutual has long been developing a real service to exhibitors and the crisis found our organization prepared for the emergency.

"The situation presented a serious aspect to both shipping and booking departments, but the men in all our offices ably met the situation and a new emergency was created when the government changed the closing of theatres from Monday to Tuesday.

"It was gratifying indeed that the fuel administration recognized the public need of entertainment and amusement and issued permission for theatres to be heated on Mondays. The alteration in the order was official recognition of the theatre, particularly the motion picture theatre, as an essential institution in time of war. Threatened with a day of enforced idleness the people realized hur-rriedly and emphatically what the motion picture means to them and the authorities at Washington were quick to sec that point of view.

Must Make Sacrifices
"The government is demanding that everyone of us must make sacrifices to help win this war. The motion picture industry must make what sacrifices seem wise to the men who are administering the affairs of the nation. The attitude of the industry on the fuel administration order was splendid.

"This is a day of crises. Extraordinary things are demanded. Service in time of emergency is something more than a mere word. Greater emergencies may arise before victory comes to our country and its allies. We must prepare for them and meet them when they come without grumbling.

"Ten consecutive or more, ten theatre-less days, form an unpleasant prospect, but virtually every other industry has a similar dose, and in the absence of facts to prove that the order was unnecessary we must accept the verdict of the administration, drastic, unexpected and unpleasant as it is."

France Tobacco Fund
To Have Smoke Week

Exhibitors are invited to co-operate in exploiting the "Our Boys in France Tobacco Fund," which is planning a "Smoke Week" throughout the country from February 13 to 25. The plan is to raise $5,000,000 for the purpose of supplying tobacco to the American soldiers in France, and the week of Washington's birthday has been chosen for the campaign.

The Fund is endorsed by the Secretary of War and Secretary of the Navy, and the organization, which is a volunteer body, will distribute the tobacco through the Red Cross.

Every 25 cents contributed sends a week's supply of "smokes" to the American boys in the trenches; $1 a month's supply. There is a crying need to supply the wants of our increasing army over there, and as the men behind the movement are devoting their time, without compensation, to this worthy fund, everyone is urged to do his utmost to advance the cause of Smoke Week in every possible way.

Harry Hall, brother of Frank Hall,

U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation and himself a film man of long experi-

Wrightstown, N. J., where he has been

Committee Will Help Small Exhibitors
Who Help Themselves

A small exhibitor a few days ago said to Frank Rembusch, secretary of the Allied Exhibitors Legislative Committee: "I wish I had the money I gave the government last month and let them take the profits. I gave the government $170 and I didn't take a lick as for myself out of the business. I am running the best pictures with the biggest stars, best music, advertisings and book. I never did in my ten years of experience and I am making the least money." Mr. Rembusch asked him why he did not send in his report.
He said he thought nobody paid any attention to him.

Many small exhibitors feel that it is not worth while to answer the ad, because nobody cares. The committee can get relief for the small exhibitor before Congress and this is the right way. For the large exhibitor, for the reason that the small exhibitor is not able to help himself as well and therefore the law makers will be more inclined to protect the little man.

Exhibitors must help themselves if they expect help and must take advantage of the splendid situation that is offered to them by a letter sent by a member of the Allied Exhibitors Legislative Committee at once.

"War Tax Paid"
Not Necessary
On Admission

Applies Only to Tickets $d
Before Tax Became Effective; Rules Official

Some misunderstanding which ar-rounded an early ruling of the intag-revenue department, which was interpreted to mean that all tickets at the box office of motion picture centres must be stamped "war tax paid" has been cleared up through the effort of E. B. Bowman, secretary of the Automatic Ticket Selling and Cash Register Company.

In a letter received from B. C. En-department commissioner, treasury department, that official ruled that this sense of the ruling applied only to tickets before the date under which the tax went into effect. His explanation of stant to Mr. Bowman follows in part:
"Moving picture exhibitors will not be required to have printed on tickets the legend 'War Tax Paid' for the reason that this applied only to those ad-sale tickets purchased prior to November 1, upon which the war tax had been paid.

"Where automatic ticket selling machines are used, the cashier can stamp this legend on the tickets at the time of sale as he can handle the tickets at all, said tickets being delivered directly to the purchase from the machine."
Uniform Ruling on Fuel Saving Sought by Whole of Industry

Producers and Distributors in Telegram to Administrator Garfield Point to Conditions in Various Cities

Probably the next concerted effort on the part of the motion picture exhibitors of the United States will be to obtain a uniform ruling from the federal administrator applicable to all photoplay houses in the country.

Considerable evil is said to exist in the cities, where, because of fuel stringency, local fuel administrators had taken action against the picture theatres prior to the recent ruling of Administrator Garfield.

When this order was made public, it is charged, these local officials said that this day was to be in addition to the closing order applied by themselves.

One of the most deplorable cases cited was that of the photoplay houses in Indianapolis, Ind., in which city, by order of the county fuel administrator, the theatres have been closed absolutely and yet, no time has been set for reopening.

Other Cities Affected

In Detroit and Atlanta exhibitors have been forced to close on Monday and Tuesday and are permitted to open for five hours on other days. In St. Louis they have been prohibited from doing business on Monday and Tuesday and on other days must close at 10 p.m., while in Buffalo the houses are closed at 11 o'clock every night.

Frederick H. Elliott, secretary of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, issued a statement on the situation, in which he declared that the mined application of federal and state reservation orders was creating havoc for the ranks of exhibitors.

"Motion pictures do not want any moratorium," said Mr. Elliott, "nor do they expect to stay open where other businesses close. But the industry would have an established ruling throughout the country, so that we can find out what must be done.

"A uniform law is almost a necessity to the existence of the motion picture business, inasmuch as exchanges and shipments must be made. No system of accounting could keep track of how the law stands in each separate town at the moment and deliver film accordingly.

At a meeting of prominent motion picture men held in the offices of the National Association and presided over by President William A. Brady, a telegram was sent to Dr. Garfield, pledging the support of the industry. It was brought to the attention of the fuel administrator in this wire, however, that territorial fuel representatives in various parts of the country, notably Detroit, Atlanta, Indianapolis, St. Louis and Buffalo, are demanding or have demanded one or more coalescent days in addition to the ten-Tuesdays.

"Such interpretation," the telegram concluded, "the industry does not believe authorized by the Washington orders, and asks for a ruling in this regard to restrain state officials from working additional hardship with local orders."

Indianapolis Houses Closed

Indianapolis is still confronted with a grave shortage of coal, is the latest announcement of Dr. Henry Jameson, fuel administrator for Marion county. An order issued by him last week Tuesday, closing all theatres, remains unmodified.

At a conference held between the managers of the theatres and the administrator, the latter directed that they keep their places of amusement closed for the remainder of this week, with the understanding that possibly on Friday an order may be issued permitting performances next Saturday.

Such action, however, the administrator declared, depends upon the ability of the motion picture theatre managers to give written facts and statistics to show that there will be no material waste of fuel in keeping their places open.

Paramount Grabs Mid-West Exchange

Paramount Pictures Corporation has purchased a substantial interest in the Central Film Company, an important independent distributing concern of Chicago, headed by Aaron J. Jones and Nathan Ascher.

It is understood that this is the initial step in a plan to dominate the independent exchange business in Chicago and further strengthen the grip of the corporation's program on the exhibitor.

It has been previously reported that Paramount, through Adolph Zukor, acquired a large financial interest in the Ascher Brothers' chain of large first-run theatres throughout Chicago.

In Paramount's efforts to annex a chain of first-run theatres from coast to coast, it is understood, they have acquired control of eighty-five houses up to the present time.

Paralta Establishes Eastern Script Dept.

Carl Anderson, president of Paralta Plays, Inc., has established an Eastern scenario department of that organization in New York.

Harry Chandlee has been placed in charge of the department and has as his assistants Helen Christene Hoerle and Elizabeth Peterson, both of whom have contributed many stories for screen productions.

The eastern office for handling scripts has been established in addition to the scenario department at its western studios to expedite the handling of material submitted to Paralta. The company is in the market for original material and Mr. Chandlee has been given a free hand in the handling of scenarios and with his staff of readers is prepared to return unavailable matter to writers promptly.

Michigan Exhibitors Place Ban
On High Salaried Star Pictures
Agree in Resolution to Not Show Productions the Stars of Which Receive More Than $1,000 Per Week

Declaring that the present high salaries paid to some of the motion picture stars are out of reason and are driving photoplays out of the class of low-priced entertainments, the Michigan Exhibitors' League at its annual meeting held in Jackson, Mich., went on record in resolutions as putting the ban on all producers who pay their stars more than $1,000 per week.

Frank J. Rembusch, national secretary of the American Exhibitors Association, introduced the resolutions which resulted in the drastic action. It will have the effect of barring from the state of Michigan practically all of the productions of one of the foremost film-producing companies of the country.

This is the first move of the kind to be undertaken by any state organization. It was preceded by much discussion in which nearly all of those present took a more or less prominent part.

Whether or not the action of the Wolverine exhibitors will be followed by other state organizations cannot, of course, at this time be stated, but it is the wish of the Michigan theatre owners that others take similar steps.

Following the passage of the resolutions they voted to send copies of the document to every other organization in the country.

That Mr. Rembusch was the one to introduce the motion did not come as a surprise to exhibitors familiar with his sentiments on the subject of high-salaried stars. He has repeatedly in meetings and in personal discussions with exhibitors assailed this evil as the greatest one confronting the film industry.

Motion picture theatre owners are not alone in their demand that the overhead cost of producing motion pictures be reduced to where there is a reasonable profit for both the exhibitor and the producer. Many of the latter have from time to time during the past few months predicted that the high salaried star must go.

It was declared at the meeting that high salaries are paid to stars which is out of all proportion to the amount of services these film actors and actresses perform. It was stated that this meant a tremendous burden of expense to the exhibitor and that it was driving the photoplay out of the class of low-priced entertainments.

Plans for an amalgamation of the Michigan league with the Detroit exhibitors will be completed at a meeting of the two bodies in the near future.

Crandall Circuit
Completed Through New Organization
With Barry and R. W. Bulkley, of Washington, Buy Theatre Co.

One of the most important deals in Washington motion picture circles was consummated this week when Harry M. Crandall, Barry Bulkley and R. W. Bulkley purchased all rights and title to the Crandall Theatre Company, controlling the Metropolitan Theatre now in the course of construction at F and Tenth streets, N. W.

Through the new arrangement Tucker K. Sands, cashier of the Commercial National bank, Fred S. Swindell, attorney, and A. Mischleisen withdraw permanently from the Crandall organization. The new order of things also sets at rest any speculations concerning the final ownership of the new photoplay house.

The company has also purchased the recently opened Knickerbocker Theat at Columbia road and Eighteenth street. Messrs. Sands, Swindell and Mischleisen were also forced to retire from the corporation.

With the addition of the Knickerbocker and the Metropolitan the Crandall chain of houses in Washington present an imposing array. It includes the two named photoplay houses the Crandall company controls, Savoy, the Avenue Grand, the Apollo and the American. The theatres have aggregate seating capacity of 8,500 and are located in the residential and business sections of Washington.

SCENES FROM THE WORLD PRODUCTION, "HIS ROYAL HIGNESS."
New York Exposition Abandoned; F. H. Elliott Gives Out Statement

General Manager Attributes Action to Patriotic Motives "and Other Important Matters Which Have Arisen From War Conditions"

The motion picture exposition which was to have been held in the Grand Central Palace, New York, February 2 to 19, under the auspices of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry and the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, has been definitely abandoned. This information was telegraphed to parties who had contracted for space at last week by Frederick H. Elliott, general manager of the exposition. The notice for the eleventh hour action, according to Mr. Elliott's telegram, was based on "patriotic grounds." The telegram reads: "At a meeting of the motion picture producers and distributors, Representative, at last week, it was voted as the sense of the meeting, that upon patriotic grounds the exposition scheduled for February 2 to 10 should not be held, that a meeting of the exposition company directors and all parties who have contracted for space be held to take all action." Despite the fact that a report made at the meeting, described in Mr. Elliott's telegram, indicated that the exposition would be a financial success, it was the consensus of opinion, it is said, that aside from patriotic motives other conditions made it impractical to hold the show.

"Fuel, food and transportation," reads the official explanation from the general manager, "and the other relatively important matters which have arisen owing to the war, would make it inadvisable and undesirable to hold the show at this time."

Final action, it was announced, will be taken at a special meeting to be held at the offices of the National Association, 805 Times Building, New York.

Persistent rumors, as yet unverified, have it that considerable friction arose among those prominent in directing the destinies of the exposition and that this was a governing factor in the unexpected action.

Vitagraph Not Concerned in Proposed Merger

Exception is taken to a story which appeared in the January 26 issue of The Exhibitors Herald concerning the proposed merger of seven large distributing companies. Through its General Manager, Walter W. Irwin, the Vitagraph Company has issued a statement that it has at any time entertained such a proposition and therefore has taken no part in any such negotiations. The statement reads:

"My attention has been called to the teleentitled 'Several Exchanges Consider Big Distributing Merger' in The Exhibitors Herald under date of January 26. Therein it is stated that Vitagraph is among the first companies that became interested in the plan, but withdrew from it later part of last week. Your information is in error so far Vitagraph is concerned. Permit me inform you that Vitagraph has not at any time entertained such proposition, and therefore has taken no part in any such negotiations."

Army Officers Enjoy "Zeppelin's Last Raid"

United States Army officers stationed at the Government piers in Hoboken, N. J., attended the showing of "The Zeppelin's Last Raid" at Frank Hall's U. S. Theatre, Hoboken, last week and expressed enthusiasm over the scenes in which Thomas H. Ince, producer of the spectacle, depicts the advance of democracy in the German Empire.

Mr. Hall has arranged for showings of the production at Camp Dix, Camp Upton and Camp Devens.

SCENES FROM TWO GOLDWYN PRODUCTIONS

Aubrey M. Kennedy Resigns Position With Goldwyn Corp.

Aubrey M. Kennedy has resigned as manager of productions of Goldwyn Pictures Corporation and is understood to have completed plans to assume the personal direction of Sessue Hayakawa, the Japanese screen star in an organization of his own to be known as the Master Picture Corporation. No plans are announced for the distribution of the Hayakawa pictures.

Mr. Kennedy has been with Goldwyn almost from its inception, having first been manager of the Fort Lee studios and later advanced to manager of productions. In addition to his executive activities he has at different times taken personal charge of the editing, cutting and titling of several of the company's productions. He is also co-author with Edgar Selwyn of "Dodging a Million," Mabel Normand's first Goldwyn production.

Wharton Predicts Great Success
For Flynn German Expose Serial

Four Directors Are Engaged in Completing "The Eagle's Eye"—Plans for Booking About Completed and Publication Date Will Be Announced Soon

Leopold Wharton returned to New York from the Wharton Studios at Ithaca last Thursday morning, where he had spent a week in connection with the production of this firm's serial photo-drama, "The Eagle's Eye," founded on Chief Flynn's story exposing the Imperial German Government's spy system in this country.

"We have made several very successful serials in the past, but 'The Eagle's Eye' is by far the best work we have ever done and I am confident that it will prove the greatest success of any serial we have ever produced," said Mr. Wharton in commenting on the work.

"With the material we have, we can make 'The Eagle's Eye' run a hundred episodes, if we so desire.

"This serial differs very materially from anything ever before produced for the screen, or on the stage, for that matter. It really may be classed as news reels, for we show actual events in the investigations of the secret service framed in a fictional dramatic setting. In this way we gain the force of fact coincident with the interest that an intensely dramatic romantic story always carries. We not only show what Imperial Germany's spies plotted to do, and the incidents of their conspiracies, but we show what would have happened had not Chief Flynn and his operatives succeeded in frustrating these plots.

"In this connection the fictional characters are utilized to sustain the romantic interest and in carrying out to their intended conclusions the plots discovered and balked by the secret service. The actual news interest of the serial are carried by the impersonations of von Bernstorff, von Papen, Boy-Ed and Dr. Albert, who are shown in picturizations of their real acts as they were observed by Chief Flynn and his operatives.

"A very interesting point in this connection is that these four notable characters are played by artists selected because of their very close resemblance to the Imperial German officials whom they impersonate. We make an entirely new departure in this picture in presenting these plotters by name, as well as in impersonating them so convincingly that they would be readily recognized were their names not used.

"To speed up the production involving, as consistent with the best results in dramatic action and photography, we now have four directors at work on the picture, my brother, Theodore, Welling-ton Player, George Lessey and myself. I will continue to make the special scenes in New York and other city the story requires, while the other three directors work at our studios at Ithaca. In this way we will be able to gain much time.

"We have made such excellent progress as consistent with the best results in dramatic action and photography, we now have four directors at work on the picture, my brother, Theodore, Welling-ton Player, George Lessey and myself. I will continue to make the special scenes in New York and other city the story requires, while the other three directors work at our studios at Ithaca. Thomas P. Kelly Joins Harris P. Wolfberg

Thomas P. Kelly is now associated with the Harris P. Wolfberg Attractions in Pittsburgh, as the Pennsylvania representative for that state rights concerns. Mr. Kelly was formerly connected with the Paramount-Artcraft pictures and was well acquainted through Pennsylvania territory and will continue to work within that section of state.

G. K. Spoor Offers U. S. Novel War Invention

George K. Spoor, president of Essanay, has offered a new war invention to Uncle Sam. This invention, termed a "mechanical ferret," is capable of digging fifty feet of tunneling per hour, according to P. J. Bringen, the inventor, an employe of Mr. Spoor, known as the man who perfected the adaptation of stereoscopic photography to motion pictures. The offer was made to the war department recently through Representative Juel of the Seventh District, Chicago. It is reported that a German offer of $1,000,000 for the invention was thwarted in 1915.

New York City, Jan. 22, 1918.
Sunrise 7:19 a. m. High water of attendance at the Rialto 2:30 p. m. and, as usual, the picture barometer is rising. The temperature for the past week has been both mean and low, otherwise the water and steam pipes of the Central Film Plant wouldn't have frozen, thereby causing no end of anguish to the "gink" who has to face the plumber. In "behind every dark cloud there is silver lining" and exhibitors hereout report that the flock of dimes which pass through the box office are greater than the "Pipes of Pan" and wondrous to behold. One of the opier signs of the times is the acquisition of Earl Hudson by the Wharton, c. Earl is turning out some splendid pictures, is an indefatigable worker, and Ernest Glendenning would say, "He really rests every 'Seventh Moon.'"

11 a.m. January 26 is the date set for the opening of the Picture Directors' Association ill at the Hotel Biltmore. All signs point to the most brilliant affair in the history of the cinema. If you don't get a bid, don't be sore, just envy the lads who do. As the poet would say it will be "Le circe de fine!"

The time-honored Motion Picture Exhibition has been relegated to the scrap heap. Sanity is returning.

From an authentic source we learn that women make the best reviewers because they are clean minded. Probably because they change them so often. Oh, Mortimer, that's big time stuff.

Colonel William Fox, whose team leads all others in the drive of the Federation for the support of the Jewish Philanthropic Societies for an increased membership, and a fund of $5,000,000, for home relief, states that he hopes to enroll 20,000 Masons in the organization. The announcement was made at a meeting in the Biltmore Hotel of the local workers in the cause.

Charles Condon has joined the Seventh Regiment Machine Gun Corps. There'll be no photoplay about this job.

Four big state rights showings in a week and business among the state rights men is brisk. The signs of the times are looming bright.

Maggie Govers has written a new song entitled "When the Blummer Breaks Your Bank for Busted Pipes," to be played on a frozen waterback with a soldering iron.

Lillian Walker's work in the last picture is fine, but owing to the "Dust" the reviewers say the picture is la Gripping. Why not make it pneumonia-cocci grippus?

The boys along the line are wondering what the matter is with that feller Fuller Pep. Bert Ennis called at the office and demanded a retraction, and suggests that we send Pep a few of the crumbs which fall from the table at the "Crucible of Life" blow-out. How "Periscope" would love to slide his number eights under the board at that banquet, but he can't, so he throws cold water on the honest, hard-working girls and boys who are slated to enjoy it. Bert says "Ain't he awful!"

Boost "Smoke Week"

In another part of the Herald is an announcement of "Smoke Week" to be held throughout the United States under the auspices of "Our Boys In France Tobacco Fund," for the purpose of supplying much-needed smokes to American soldiers in the trenches of France.

The amount sought is $5,000,000, and the week allotted to obtain it is that which includes Washington's birthday, February 15 to February 25.

Handling the publicity for the occasion, in addition to his work for the Petrova Picture Company and McClure Pictures, is Bert Ennis. The manager of the fund is A. Blaikie Dick. These men are volunteering their time and services.

You've dug deep. But you can always dig just a little bit deeper. Swear off if you've got to. But by all means support this project and see that the boys "over there" get the smokes so sorely needed.

Mme. Petrova's Plays

A complete short story of "Daughter of Destiny," the first production in which Madame Petrova has appeared under the banner of her own organization, will appear in the March issue of Photoplay Journal. The scenario, which is from the pen of the Polish star herself, has been novelized by Blair Nelson. The story will be profusely illustrated from photographs of Madame Petrova for which she especially posed.

Novelized by Beulah Livingstone, the story of "The Light Within," which follows "Daughter of Destiny" will appear in the April issue of Photoplay Magazine. The scenario from "The Light Within" was written by Mrs. L. Case Russell as an adaptation of her own original story, "Laurel Carlisle, M. D."

THREE SCENES FROM "THE LIGHT WITHIN" Louise Glaum Signs
With Paralta Plays;
To Have Own Company

Paralta Plays, Inc., announces that arrangements have been consummated by Carl Anderson, under the terms of which Miss Louise Glaum becomes a Paralta star. The closing of this contract adds another important member to the galaxy of stars appearing in Paralta Plays.

Miss Glaum has been appearing in photo-plays for little more than four years, but during that time her popularity as a delineator of intense types has increased materially until she is today regarded as one of the screen's greatest artists.

Miss Glaum made her debut on the stage as a member of a stock company in Chicago. She later appeared in support of Nat Goodwin in his Los Angeles stock company, after which she spent several seasons on the road in dramatic productions. She then went to California where she appeared before the motion picture camera under the direction of Thomas H. Ince. Her screen successes include "The Aryan," "Honor Thy Name," "The Wolf Woman," "The Weaker Sex," "The Return of 'Draw' Egan," "The Sweetheart of the Doomed," and other well-known screen successes.

Several stories are now being written for Miss Glaum, which will bring forth, it is said, the charm of acting with a far broader scope of emotional work than were possible in vampirous roles.

With Paralta Plays Miss Glaum will have her own producing company. Just who her director will be has not as yet been announced, nor the title of her first Paralta play, but the consummation of the contract with Miss Glaum adds another illustrious star to the Paralta organization, which now includes Bessie Barriscale, Lois Wilson, Henry B. Walthall and J. Warren Kerrigan.

FUEL ORDER IS BOON

prived of a day, it is absolutely impossible for the exchanges to recoup. It means one less show day and inability to dispose of the films.

Back of the exchange men the producers are facing a serious situation. Many of the larger companies have been making pictures on the seven-day consuming basis. Programs have been prepared for advance along this line of endeavor and curtailment means the pocketing of heavy losses.

Chicago Meetings Held

Chicago exhibitors and exchange men held three consecutive meetings on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week. The sessions were presided over by Joseph Hopp, president of the Chicago chapter of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League, but were open in character and all interested were invited to attend.

After a discussion involving every phase of the order, telegrams were sent to the individual members of the allied exhibitors' committee as well as to William A. Brady, president of the National Association of Motion Pictures asking for their assistance in getting light on the situation.

It was the belief of the majority of those in attendance that Tuesday would be a better day for the theatres to close, owing to the fact that Monday will be a holiday and the war revenue greatly increased by the larger attendance at the theatres.

Employees Lose Pay

Agreement was reached not to pay moving picture operators, musicians and other employees of the theatres for the time the houses are closed on Mondays. The question of cancellation of films and serials already contracted for as Monday attractions was also discussed and the exhibitors were assured by the exchange men that in their opinion the producers would not expect them to pay for something they did not get.

In the opinion of those present the moving picture industry is facing the most serious situation since its formation. They have been hit, they say, by the war tax and by demands on their pocketbooks and this Monday closing order means some of the smaller exhibitors who have been operating on a narrow margin will have difficulty in surviving.

Harry Ascher, of Ascher Brothers, owners of fifteen picture houses said it would put approximately 30 people in their theatres out of work on Monday.

World Films Gratis
For Contract Users

As a war measure designed to help exhibitors toward "standing off" the difficulties of the present time the World Film Corporation announces that exhibitors may have absolutely free use of World Pictures equal to those they are showing in their theatres under present contracts with this corporation.

This applies to all World Pictures published prior to "The Burglar" which was issued at the beginning of November, and there is no string whatsoever to the proposition.

The suggestion will not be made use of as a lever for new business, but is issued solely to benefit exhibitors in a substantial way at a time when hardships are peculiarly heavy and unavoidable.

The World executives believe their plan is a thoroughly practical and substantial source of assistance, taking effect at a time when it will be of double value to the theatre managers contemplating prospects of a most discouraging character.

Peter Schaefer Talks

Peter Schaefer, of Jones, Linic & Schaefer, said he expected to keep their theatres open.

"The order," said Mr. Schaefer "as I understand it, says nothing about closing the theatres; merely forbids us to burn coal. We are a lawed to keep enough steam on to keep pipes from freezing, and since all our theatres are heated with the water system—and it takes two pounds of steam to keep the pipes warm—all our houses will be heated sufficiently to carry out the program."

Harry Miller, manager of the Czar, Rose and Boston theatres ventured the opinion that amount of coal to be saved as far as his theatres are concerned would be infinitesimal.

"It takes," he said, "forty-eight hours to cool our boilers and for eight hours more to heat them again. It takes just that much more heat to start the boilers. We have given since November 1: $3,600 to the government for war taxes, and it seems queer that this is not taken into consideration."

Harry Lubliner, of Lubliner and Trinz, owners of eight theatres, admitted that they would be seriously affected by the order.

"CUPID'S ROUND-UP"

Fox comedy-drama; five parts; published January 13.

As a whole: Enjoyable Story: Interesting
Star: Splendid
Support: Capable
Settings: Fair
Photography: Good

"Cupid's Round-up" is an excellent comedy-drama. It is entertaining, enjoyable, thrilling and full of excitement, and a picture that will be found appropriate for any class of audience at especially where western pictures are in favor. "Cupid's Round-up" presents Tom Mix, the dare-devil cowboy, in his fox drama and he brings with him all his daring horseback riding, combined with considerable genuine humor. While it appears opposite Mix, she is pretty, petite and charming and offers Mr. Mix pleasing support. This proved a good attraction at the Alcazar Theatre, Chicago, where it was shown last week.

The story: The father of Helen Chadwick and the father of Henry Kelly decide that their children shall marry. As the tale draws near and each is informed of their parents' plans they decide to have one good time before the wedding takes place. Each decides to go to a ranch. They meet in town. Cottonwood and Helen assumes the role of maid, while her sister Miss Chadwick. Mary Pickford in

"STELLA MARIS"

Artcraft drama; five parts; published January 21.

As a whole: Remarkable Story: Well handled
Star: Splendid
Support: Adequate
Settings: Wonderful
Photography: Fine

This is a production that will be found suitable for any class of audience. It is interesting, pathetic, entertaining and ideal for a Mary Pickford story. The painstaking care of George Marshall, Neilan is shown in every scene, in the acting and the splendid sets. The exterior scenes are wonderful, artistically enhanced by fine photography.

Mary Pickford appears in a dual role and so well have the scenes been handled it is difficult to realize that the two actresses are the same person in each character part. And, while a great deal of credit is due Mr. Neilan, as much must be given Miss Pickford for her work. Her make-up as Unity, transformed orphan, is remarkable. But in the role of Stella Maris she is beautiful and sympathetic. Conway Tearle handles the role of John Risa to advantage, and Camille Anckewich as his wife does very good work. Other members of the cast include Ada Waterman, Herbert Standing, Josephine Crowell and Coonley. The story was adapted from William J. Locke's novel.

The story: John Risa, unhappily married, finds himself in love with an invalid, Stella Maris, but cannot tell her of his love because she has never known of the hardships of life. Little Unity Blake becomes a victim of Louise Risa's anger and when Louise is sentenced to a prison term for her brutality, John adopts Unity. Because no one has loved her, Unity falls in love with John, but when she learns that Stella Maris, too, loves him, he decides to make it possible for John and Stella to gain happiness. She goes to Louise and kills herself. With his wife out of the way and Stella Maris fully recovered, they look forward to a bright future together.

Mary Miles Minter in

"BEAUTY AND THE ROGUE"

American-Mutual comedy-drama; five parts; published Jan. 28.

As a whole: Entertaining
Story: Pleasing
Star: Charming
Support: Well cast Settings: Ample
Photography: Very good

A lightly rambling story full of entertainment and charm is found in "Beauty and the Rogue." Wherever entertainment of a diverting nature is desired this production should find a hearty welcome and it will without doubt, leave a pleasant impression. The picture is clean, full of humor and especially adaptable to neighborhood theatres. The lovable charm of Mary Miles Minter is endearing and pleasing, and Alan Forrest, Orral Humphrey, Spottiswoode Aitken, Lucile Ward, George Periolat and Clarence Burton afford Miss Minter good support. The direction is by Henry King from the story by Arthur Berthelet.

The story: Roberta Lee, interested in uplift work, induces her father to take as a gardener Bill Dorgan, an ex-convict, who seeing Roberta's jewelry, steals it the night she leaves for a vacation on a ranch and hides in the country, close to the ranch where Roberta is staying. Roberta meets Dick Lowe and they become mutually attracted. Dick presents Roberta with a brooch which he purchased from Bill. Roberta recognizes the brooch as her own and believing Dick guilty, turns him over to the sheriff. However, Bill is captured and Dick released, whenupon Roberta learns that Dick is her father's new general manager and she goes to her father, telling him of their engagement.

THE "HERALD'S" REVIEW SERVICE

The dominant aim of the reviewers on the staff of the EXHIBITORS HERALD is to supply the exhibitor with the information necessary to enable him to appreciate intelligently the production under consideration—to know if the picture is exceptional, if it is of standard quality, if it is suitable in theme and treatment to his requirements. The review department is absolutely essential to every person who books pictures. Its independence, strict impartiality and fairness guarantees an accurate estimation of every important production published.

The work of Madge Evans is a revelation in the art of child acting, and in “Gates of Gladness” her sincere and sympathetic acting wins her audiences from the start. The story is an interesting one of domestic entanglements and gives the young star ample opportunity to display her talent. While the story may have its strongest appeal to women and children, it will without doubt be enjoyed by male spectators as well. It is a play especially adaptable to neighborhood houses and contains much pleasing and wholesome entertainment. Gerda Holmes, George MacQuarrie, Niles Welch and Rosina Henley are in the supporting cast. The picture proved a good drawing card at the Boston Theater, Chicago, where it was shown this week.

The story: Myron Leeds is disowned by his stern father when he marries the daughter of a struggling minister. This causes a breach between Myron and Roger, his brother, who upon the death of the elder Leeds, becomes master of the Leeds estate. Myron finds it difficult to dispose of his paintings and finally consents to send his daughter Beth to his brother’s home to comfort Roger’s wife, who mourns the death of her baby. The child soon wins her stern uncle and the brothers are finally reconciled.

Franklyn Farnum in
"THE FIGHTING GRIN"
Bluebird comedy-drama; five parts; published January 28

As a whole: Average
Story: Mediocre Star: Active Support: Ample
Settings: Faithful
Photography: Good

There is nothing out of the ordinary in “The Fighting Grin” and its success will depend largely upon whether or not patrons are interested in Franklyn Farnum and whether they like the sort of entertainment provided by this star. For this class of audience the production will undoubtedly prove entertaining, though the material is many years old. Franklyn Farnum handles the role of Billy Kennedy in his usual easy-going, smiling fashion, and is supported by Edith Johnson, J. Morris Foster, Charles H. Mailes and Fred Montague. Direction by Joseph De Grasse. There are some very fine exteriors and the picture contains good photography throughout.

The story: Otis Kennedy and Amos Meredith are business rivals and enemies. Margie Meredith loves Billy Kennedy and they plan to get married, but Kennedy and Meredith thwart their plans. The young people flee to the ranches of their respective parents, followed by their elders and the man Margie is to marry. “My Own United States” contains Edward Everett Hale’s classic, “The Man Without a Country,” for its main theme. The production was handled and directed with care and precision, and the results are commendable. The picture is a gripping one and a new incentive for feeling proud to claim the United States as “my own, my native land.”

The cast is a splendid one throughout. Arnold Daly gives a fine performance as General Alexander Hamilton, has to his credit one of the most dignified pieces of acting on the screen today, a piece of portraiture that is a lesson in the art of silent drama. Anna Lee as Agnes Churchill is winsome and convincing. Others in the cast who deserve especial mention are Charles Graham P. R. Scannlon, Thomas Donnelly, Sydney Bacy, Jane Levering, Edward Dunne, Claude Cooper, William Mille, Fred Trucsdale, F. C. Earle, Jack Hamilton, Richard Wongs, man, Fred Herzog, Frank Murray, Gerald Day, Jack Burs, Marie Du Chette, Helen Mulholland, Mrs. Allen Walker, Mr. Mary Kenison Carr and “Baby” Carr.

The story: Philip Nolan, a young American, entertains pacific views about the war because of his selfish desire to preserve his own comfort. His father, in order to arouse him to his duty to his country, tells him the tragic story of his brother’s treason. The story of the “Man Without a Country” is then related and incidents of the Civil War are brought into the story to show how one of the descendants did all he could to wipe out the stain from the family escutcheon. At the conclusion of the story Philip Nolan is thrilled by the history of the great deeds of his family that rises to the occasion and offers his services to the cause when it needs him most to make the world safe for democracy.

“The Spirit of ’17” is a timely subject, with a good deal and the story was kept up in interest and certain sequences would indeed be a remarkable offering. As it is, spectators will have difficulty in following the tale and will lose much of its enjoyment. Jack Pickford stands out as the center of interest, and his refreshing portrayal of a boy scout, Jack, who enters the army and yet not too young to know a spy when he sees one, is pleasing and entertaining. He is well supported by L. N. Wells, Ashton Dearholt, Helen Eddy, William C. Carter, Katherine McDonald, G. H. Geldert, Edythe Chapman, Charles Arling, James Farley and Seymour Hastings. Direction is by William S. Taylor from the story by Joe Willis Brown.

The idea of the story seems to be to instill in the minds of young men how necessary it is for them to enlist. Much of the action takes place about the grounds of the old soldier’s home, and when the old soldiers find there are no young men volunteering, they round them up and have the amusing experience of the young idle rich. Among these young people is Randall, whose father owns large mining interests. However, he sees the bravery of a young boy scout and some of the soldiers, who have rounded up a gang of spies, he is ashamed of himself, and enlists. The subtitles bear messages appeal to young men to enlist.

The story: David Gildden, a boy scout, is too young to join the army, but the Recruiting officer overhears German spies planning to cripple the mines of Thomas Lee and take a large quantity of the product to the native country. With the assistance of a number of of the old soldiers who have rounded up a gang of spies, he assists them in protection, and is brought before the law. At the trial, in order to prevent the spies from becoming destroyers and also in time to save the lives of John Edwards and1 daughter, Flora, with whom, though some years his senior, Davy believes himself in love.

"The Grain of Dust" by David Graham Phillips and interpreted by an all-star cast, headed by Lillian Walker, is a thrilling picture from life that holds one spellbound. It was produced by Olen Pictures Corporation and directed by Harry Revier. The story is logical and convincing and the depths of suffering that cannot be experienced by all who break the law of decency are shown in such clear symbolism that the picture is better than a sermon. No expense has been spared in making the picture complete in every detail. The hero and heroine are splendidly types as they represent keen studies of human nature.

The cast is particularly good. Miss Walker does some of the best work of her career. Her interpretation shows sympathy and deep understanding of the character. Ramsey Wallace as Norman gives a forcible and dominant characterization. Corene Urrzell, as his sister, proves herself one of the most attractive and capable of the screen. Ralph Delmore, James O'Neil and Edith D- all deserve special mention. The remainder of the cast includes Elizabeth Ferris, Cecil Fletcher, Jacques Tyrol and Richard Wingerman.

"Du Barry" is a splendid production and should prove a good box office attraction. The play has been handled in an exceptionally careful manner; is lavishly produced; well acted; has an entertaining story, and Theda Bara is cast in a very fitting role which she handles to excellent advantage.

It is a costume play of the period of Louis XV, whose life of extravagance resulted in the downfall and the guillotining of Madam Du Barry. Scenes of the French revolution are brought into the play and the mob scenes have been well handled. The costumes of Miss Bara are beautiful and elegant and those of the other members of the cast are in good taste. There is sufficient comedy throughout the piece to offset what might have been a sad ending. "Du Barry" spreads cheer and mirth throughout the seven reels. Charles Clary, Fred Church and Hershall Mayall have important parts. Direction by Adrian Johnson. The Orpheum Theater of Chicago played this production to capacity houses this week.

The story: Madam Du Barry becomes the reigning favorite of Louis XV and enjoys this distinction until the sudden death of the king. The lavishing of which Jeanne Du Barry indulges, arouses the wrath of the peasant class, and after the death of the king, a revolution breaks out. Joan of Arc is the greatest sufferer through the revolution and pays the price upon the guillotine.

Wherever William S. Hart is a favorite "Wolves of the Rail" should prove a good attraction. While the story is well handled, it is along the same line as many others.

There is enough of Hart to make it enjoyable from that standpoint and for the lovers of this type of pictures it is a good example. The photography is excellent, the mountains and canyons standing out in unbelievable sharpness and reality. C. Norman, as the hero, is convincing. "Buck" Andrade, the old gangster, are also good. The production proved a fairly good attraction at Chicago's Ziegfeld Theater.

Viola Veale appears in support of Mr. Hart but does not have a great deal to do. What she does do is done in a pleasing fashion. C. Norman, as the hero, is convincing. "Buck" Andrade, the old gangster, are also good. The production proved a fairly good attraction at Chicago's Ziegfeld Theater.

The story: "Buck" Andrade, an outlaw, promises his dying mother to reform and by taking a letter of introduction from a wounded man, he becomes a detective for the railroad, which in his outlawry he had repeatedly held up. He is successful in capturing a number of the bandits and also wins the love of Faith Law, the fiancée of her father's chemical discoveries. She establishes the girl in luxurious quarters and incorporates the company, making her treasurer. He then has her come to his home to sign papers. "The Eyes of Mystery" should prove an excellent drawing card in any house, not only because its star is one of the best actresses in the game, but also because the story is gripping and has been carefully and well directed. But one weak point occurs in the story, the capture of the moonshiners, and that is so small a part it probably will be passed with little thought.

Almost every line of the script seems to have found its proper place, and this product is an acceptable offering. There is comedy, drama, thrills and many tense situations, each one being worked up to the greatest degree of interest. This is Miss Storey's first appearance on the screen for some time, and is indeed good to see this clever star back again. Her work in this production is clean-cut and sincere and she brings with her a stronger personality than ever. The supporting cast has been well selected, and if there is any complaint, it is that the villain, Northrup, adding another excellent villain characterization to his already long list. Tod Browning is responsible for the direction. The picture was enjoyed by patrons at the Orpheum Theater, Chicago, where it was shown last week.

The story: Carma Carmichael, living with her uncle, is kidnapped by her father, who plans to hold her for ransom. In order to trap the blackmailers and secure Jack Terhune as Carma's husband, Quincy Carmichael "dashes" dead and makes Jack his heir. Carma is angered at her uncle's action and determines to assume her rightful place. By going through some of her uncle's papers, she learns that the man she believes to be her father is an impostor, her fate being dead. She goes to the Carmichael home, now occupied by Jack, who has been endeavoring to find Carma. Carma's supposed father and a gang of moonshiners attack the Carmichael home and are fought off by Carma, Jack and his friend, Quincy. Now, Carma believes it is time to come to life and does so in time to get the sheriff's posse on the grounds, subdue the moonshiners and capture the crooks. The picture ends in pleasing fashion.

"The Law's Outlaw" is a story of western politics, lawlessness and hounding detective work. It is about the poorest photoplay, in direction and acting, that the Triangle has turned out in some time. It is confusing, with an obvious ending, and is consequently quite uninteresting.

Roy Stewart made the most of the role of the fearless deputy sheriff, but was accorded poor support by Fritz Ridgeway, as the girl, and Harry Rattenberg, as her father, and the half dozen other actors.

Ethel and James Dorrance furnish the story; Alvin Bertz the camera work; and Roy Stewart the direction.

The story: Charles Easton, young rancher, runs for the office of sheriff but is defeated and loses the hand of Rose Davidson. Rose's father, who was instrumental in securing his defeat, is robbed and beaten, and Easton appealed to by Rose to run down the criminals. He sets out with the new sheriff to capture the thieves, feigns insanity, shoots the sheriff, and thus becomes a criminal and is admitted to the camp of the outlaws. Here he rounds up the gang, explains that the shooting of the sheriff was a frame-up and wins the plaudits of the populace as well as the heart of Rose.

The first three episodes of "The Eagle's Eye" shown at the Strand Theatre, New York, furnish the people of the United States three of twenty good reasons for getting behind the government with all their strength of soul, mind and body. The first three reasons are enough to convince all of us that patriotism is the best policy, but the Wharton Bros. know seventeen more reasons, strong enough to create patriotism as the enduring basis of America's message to the world. The story of "The Eagle's Eye" is founded on facts given out by William J. Flynn, retired Chief of the Secret Service. The scenario was arranged by Courtesy Ryley Cooper, one of the most capable fiction writers of our times, and a man who understands his subject and the best manner in which to present it to the public. The name Wharton has always stood for the best in motion pictures and in this master-serial they have passed all their previous records and given the public a truly great production, one that is swaggering in its import. They have put their greatest effort into this production and it is so well handled that it should receive a ready response. The picture shows not only the diabolical plots of the Imperial German Government to undermine our country, but also depicts what would have happened if the Secret Service had not thwarted their schemes.

King Baggot and Marguerite Snow give capable characterizations of their roles. Baggot is powerful and manly, a fine example of Americanism. Miss Snow has great charm and displays a keen understanding of the service she is rendering her government.

William Bailey, Bertram Marburgh, Paul Eyerton, John Wad Frederick Jones and Florence Short all acquit themselves well.

him at a cabaret until he is late for all his appointments and then watches him drive away. Quickly she follows him and finds the shackle where the torpedo is hidden. She notifies Cecily Flynn, who asks Harrison to stop the attack. He reaches the vessel just in time to stop the torpedo as it is on its way through the water to strike the flag ship. After a severe struggle with one of the spies he saves the fleet and returns to his machine. He

An official of great accomplishment and of greater promise in the motion picture trade is Watterson R. Rothacker, president of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company of Chicago.

The company of which Mr. Rothacker is the head and moving spirit has gradually forged ahead in its particular line until it is now widely recognized as the largest and finest laboratory devoted to the various processes of motion picture photography.

Mr. Rothacker, though literally a young man, frequently joins in the counsels of the wisest heads of the film world, and his dynamic personality is often the deciding factor in important deliberations. Mr. Rothacker is one of the most widely known men in the trade, and there is no branch of the business from studio to screen in which he has not a large circle of acquaintances.

Despite his comparative youthfulness, Mr. Rothacker is a genuine pioneer of the film world, his personal experiences in the business going back to the early days, when practically all the leading executives of today were as yet unheard of. Among other things, Mr. Rothacker’s name will go down in film history as the first motion picture advertising specialist.

Mr. Rothacker has been identified with practically every important movement and association that has come into the film world. He was the first vice-president elected to the Motion Picture Board of Trade of America and is actively interested in the succeeding organization, the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry. He is a member of the advisory board of the Bureau of Motion Pictures of the American Red Cross and a member of the National War Organization, which was established by William A. Brady at the request of President Wilson. He is also chairman of the studio committee of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers.

In Mary Miles Minter's next American-Mutual production entitled "Beauty and the Rogue," which will be published on the Mutual schedule January 28, this star will be seen in a role quite different from any character she has yet portrayed.

As "Bobbie Lee," the unsophisticated daughter of a wealthy and doting father, she is interested in the work of an "uplift" society and is invited by an ex-burglar who works with her sympathies and promises to "go straight." He did go straight away, but only after he had taken her jewels, some of which he sold to the young chap who had fallen in love with "Bobbie," and the young fellow was arrested as the thief when he presented "Bobbie" with her own brooch. George Periolat, Alan Forrest, Orral Humphrey, Clarence Burton and Lucille Ward complete the cast.

The Strand Comedy, published January 29, stars Billie Rhodes in a farce entitled "Somebody's Widow." Billie poses as the inconsolable young widow of a victim of the sea, in order to captivate a scenario-writer who is immune to feminine charms. She is on the point of succeeding and winning a battle she made with her chums, when the secretary of the B. Y. S. W. learns of her scheme, makes up as her sailor-husband returned from the sea, and exposes the bungus widow.

The "Mutual Weekly," the interesting and timely topical news reel, which is a pictorial exploitation of the most significant events of the week, is published on January 28.

Irvin S. Cobb Furnishes Material
For Coming Mae Marsh Production

Mae Marsh will have one of the greatest opportunities of her motion picture career, it is said, in a new production just announced by Goldwyn Pictures. In it she will appear as the heroine of a romantic story of thoroughbred crookedness from the pen of Irvin S. Cobb, one of the foremost of America's authors, and as a participant in midfield activities.

The original story of the production was published in the Saturday Evening Post under the title of "The Web." If the title may not be used, it is said, for the screen version. Mae Marsh will begin work on it the moment she completes the final scenes of "The Beloved Traitor."

In her new picture the star has the role of the daughter, a man known to the world as the head of a prosperous detective bureau, but who in reality is chief of a band of bank thieves who use the most advanced methods in defiance of the rules of common honesty.

The daughter falls in love with the cashier of a bank who is robbed by the band and through accident the cashier learns that her father is not what he pretends to be.

Titles for Three Fox Films Selected

Starring Carmen, Mix and Theda Bara

Announcement has been made by William Fox of a selection of titles for three of the productions heretofore announced under temporary names. Two of these are Fox Special Features, which will be published this week, and the other is a Standard Picture.

Jewel Carmen's next appearance, her second as a star, will be February 17. In "The Girl With the Champagne Eye" the story centers about a girl who is the outcast of society, and who, for a time, serves to be the only feature the girl possesses.

Tom Mix will be seen February 24 as the clean-up man of Bannack, a western town, in "Six Shooter Andy." He is confronted largely in his role as sheriff, who is in league with a vicious element, and in protecting a young woman who has been thrown by Fate to the midst of this alien element.

The Standard Picture for January 27, which has previously been carried under the temporary title of "From the Dept.," will be known as "The Forbidden Path." It was made under the direction of J. Gordon Edwards and is said to be an incisive study of the attitude of society on the question of the double moral standard. Theda Bara is the star of "The Forbidden Path."

June Caprice Cast as Rich Girl

The Fox picture to be published January 27 features June Caprice as a rich girl in a production entitled "The Heart of Romance," the story being sought by a struggling young writer who is suspected by the heiress' guardian of courting the girl because of her money.

The story was written by Frances Crowley and the scenario prepared by Adeline Leitzbach. Harry Millar was the director.

The cast includes Bernard Thornton, George Bunny, Joseph Kilgour, Lillian Page, Jack Martin and Jack Raymond.
This department will furnish, on request, such statistics as are available concerning the above or other motion picture stocks, providing such request does not call for an expression of opinion concerning the policy of the companies or the future prices of the stocks.

“The Crucible of Life” 7-Part War Spectacle Offered by General Enterprises

Screen Version of “Fairfax” Former Stage Success Contains Notable Cast—Burning Aeroplane Furnishes Thrills

“The Crucible of Life,” the latest seven part war spectacle which General Enterprises, Inc., are at present offering for state right distribution, contains a notable cast of stage and screen players. The picture is an adaptation of Bartley Campbell’s play, “Fairfax.”

Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin, sponsors for “The Crucible of Life,” succeeded in securing the original stage Fairfax in the person of Frank Connors for the same role in the film version. Mr. O’Connor portrayed this particular part for many years. Featured in the leading feminine role is Grace D’Armond. Miss D’Armond is presently being starred in feature productions of the Vitagraph Company.

Appearing in a typical juvenile character which gives him full opportunity for the display of his particular talents is Jack Sherrill. Mr. Sherrill has scored several successes in screen vehicles of the past, notable among which were “The Witching Hour” and “God’s Man.” Edwin Vosburgh, well remembered in several Broadway stage successes, handles the heavy role in “The Crucible of Life.”

The picture contains, it is said, a bit of realism not written into the scenario when the film was being produced. The scenes in question depict the wrecking and burning of a monster aeroplane. The script called for an air flight by the leading man of “The Crucible of Life,” Jack Sherrill, and for this purpose the services of an experienced “bird man,” together with the use of a Bleriot monoplane were secured. The flight was in full progress when something went wrong in the electrical apparatus and the machine, occupied by Sherrill and his pilot, took fire.

The aviator volplaned to earth at top speed with the result that the flying machine hit the ground with considerable force and Sherrill and the other occupants were thrown out, receiving slight cuts and bruises. Director Harry Lambert kept his two camera men grinding throughout the accident with the result that these particular scenes afford a sensation rarely witnessed in motion picture productions.

Louisiana and Mississippi Added to Territory Already Controlled—James R. Grainger Completes Deal With Midwest Civilization Co.

Arthur H. Sawyer and Herbert Lubin reported this week the successful consummation of a contract whereby their seven-part film spectacle, “The Warrior,” had been distributed for the states of Louisiana and Mississippi.

The purchaser for these territories of the feature starring Maciste, hero of “Caballero,” James R. Grainger of the Allen Film Corporation of Chicago, Illinois. The executives of General Enterprises, Inc., also stated that Mr. Grainger had contracted for the same privilege for the George Loane Tucker production, “Mother,” for Louisiana and Mississippi.

Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin announced immediately following the above sales, that the entire territorial distribution for “The Warrior” had now been completed with the exception of California, Nevada, Arizona and Kentucky. Mr. Grainger considered the largest purchaser of state right offerings in the field today and his recent acquisition of “The Warrior” and “Mother” for the states of Louisiana and Mississippi are but additions to the following territories which he already controls to the two General Enterprises, Inc., features:

Following the latest deal with Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin, Mr. Grainger announced that he had completed affiliations with the Midwest Civilization Company of Denver,Col., the consummation of which gives his organization control over the territorial film divisions embraced by Colorado, Utah, New Mexico and Wyoming.

Exhibitors continue to express their appreciation of the action of Mutual in absorbing the war tax by enthusiastic letters of commendation.

F. W. Twyman, treasurer of the Kendler Zimmerman Company, Jefferson Theatre, Charlottesville, Va., writes Mutual: “We have never taken the occasion to congratulate you on your standing as to war tax. We feel that you are correct on this proposition—there is no reason why exhibitor should pay war tax.”

De Luxe Corp. Gets Screen Rights to
"Street of 7 Stars"

Theodore C. Deitrich, president of the De Luxe Pictures, Inc., of New York, has concluded negotiations with Mrs. Mary Roberts Rinehart for the motion picture rights to the story, "The Street of Seven Stars," which was recently published in the Saturday Evening Post.

The De Luxe company will present Doris Kenyon in the lead role. Mrs. Kenyon's personal charm and dramatic ability, it is believed, will fit her for the leading role of this popular story, and the company, it is stated, will spare no expense in making the production complete in every detail.

Several companies have tried to secure from Mrs. Rinehart the motion picture rights of the story, but up to the present time she has withheld them pending proposition whereby a suitable star could be secured for the portrayal of the heroine of her story.

Bidding Spirited
For Foreign Rights
To U. S. Production

Bidding for the foreign territory rights to the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation subjects continues to be spirited, according to Frank Hall, president and general manager of the company.

All foreign sales have been made by Miss Edna Williams, special representative of the Robertson-Cole Company, New York and London, to which organization the foreign distribution rights of all of the Hall productions have been allotted.

The most recent transaction record by Miss Williams, whose sales recent have touched the high water mark, is the disposal of the rights to "The Zepelin's Last Raid," "Those Who Live," and "The Belgent" to the African Films Trust, Limited, which virtually controls the South African amusement field.

J. Smith, managing director of the African Corporation, who is in New York on business, closed the deal after carefully inspecting all of the United States releases. He has made overtures to the Robertson-Cole organization for all future United States releases, it is said.
Logwood Aids Coal
To Heat Mastbaum's
Philadelphia House

Philadelphia, Pa.—Six instead of two lightless nights and the alternate use of coal and coke for heating purposes has been voluntarily adopted at the many local moving picture houses controlled by the Stanley company as a means of assuring the support of Philadelphia's limited or lessening fuel supply.

Stanley V. Mastbaum, manager-director of the Stanley company, explained that only on Saturday nights would attraction of illuminated films be turned off in front of the Stanley houses while all other non-essential lights would be turned off.

Experiments made at the direction of Mr. Mastbaum have already demonstrated that logwood burned in the furnaces of his theatre was even more heat than coal and provides a much more comfortable degree of warmth for patrons and employees alike.

The Mastbaum policy has met with the unqualified approval of William Potter, state fuel administrator and Francis A. Lewis, local fuel administrator. They have cited confirmed six instead of two lightless nights for Philadelphia, but Mr. Mastbaum declared the patriotic thing for Philadelphia business interests to do would be to voluntarily dispense with all unnecessary illumination on six nights a week.

Manager and Usher
Keep Audience Calm
In Near Theatre Fire

Louisville, Ky.—Patrons of the Rex Theatre, Fourth and Green streets, made their way to the street without accident when fire was discovered in the basement of the building during an evening performance recently. The blaze was discovered by a passerby who turned in the alarm.

Assistant Manager Earl Sparks and Joseph Vieth, an usher, notified the audience that there was a small blaze in the basement discovered and with their assurance that there was no danger the audience passed quietly to the outside. The fire was confined to the basement.

Because of the difficulty experienced by firemen in reaching the origin of the fire a second alarm was turned in, but the blaze was under control within twenty minutes. The loss was less than $1,000.

Springfield Patrons Pay More Than $3,000
Theatre War Tax

Springfield, Mo.—Moving picture patrons of Springfield theatres have already paid the government more than $3,000 in war taxes, according to an estimate on the returns to the Internal revenue department at Kansas City. There are two Springfield picture theatres open in the city at the present time.

When the war tax started in November it was a novelty and ticket sellers had to do lots of explaining, but the “fans” have their pennies ready now, through force of habit. There has been little or no complaint, the theatre owners say.

The levying of the tax on theatre patrons has only increased the patronage at the houses in this city, according to than it is said that Miss Burton will be seen making a fourteen-foot jump.

Chairman of National Board of Review Talks on "Influence of Motion Pictures"

Cranston Brenton Addresses Forum at Somerville, Mass. At Sunday Meeting—Pictures Far Reaching Effect Explained

The chairman of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures, Cranston Brenton, addressed an open forum at Somerville, Mass., on Sunday afternoon, January 13, on the subject "The Social Influence of the Motion Picture." Mr. Brenton traced the rapid development of the motion picture from its first exhibition as a scientific toy to its present phenomenal position as a great, new art. He showed the far-reaching effect of moving pictures in the crowded city, the smaller towns and the rural community, and as a temporary life of the individual. The motion picture as a distinct recreation of the masses is tending to keep families together, particularly in their recreation hour, and to drive out the saloon and the less desirable places of amusement.

"In the smaller town it answers the problem of amusement," said Mr. Brenton, "in that the very best motion pictures can be widely distributed at a cost less than that of any other form of entertainment. Its educational and moral value is too great to be estimated and the few pictures that may possibly be called objectionable because of the depiction of crime, merely serve to accentuate the lessons of truth and honor that are being taught every day in the seventeen thousand motion picture theatres throughout the United States." Mr. Brenton further explained the great social service being rendered through the National Board of Review by its two hundred or more volunteer members who are endeavoring constantly to make the motion picture fulfill its place in the social life of today. He also told of the many problems confronting the board, and its difficulty in regulating the films to the entire satisfaction of the widely separated communities with diversified thought, and to the tastes of all the individuals of the United States.

He explained also the place of the motion picture in the present war and that the government through the various commissions and the Y. M. C. A. is employing films to occupy the leisure time of the soldiers both here and abroad, and recognizes it as one of the most powerful factors in keeping up the morale of the soldiers. The government is using the motion picture not only in the interest of the Liberty Loan and the Red Cross, but is interpreting our Democracy to nations abroad by the employment of this graphic art.

As the present war was brought about through racial jealousies based largely on gigantic misunderstandings, Mr. Brenton stated he felt that ultimately the motion picture will have a large place in maintaining peace and preventing future wars through the fact that it brings to all nations, races and creeds, the life of all other peoples; that this is bringing about a greater understanding among people of divergent thought, and that this understanding may, of necessity, bring about sympathy which eventually will tend to make strife impossible.

The marked attention to the lecture and the many pointed questions asked later, showed great interest in the subject of the social influence of motion pictures.

W. H. Productions Company "Doing Its Bit" Printing Films for Y. M. C. A. Camps Abroad

Co-operating With Community M. P. Bureau and National War Work Council—Other Distributors Asked to Help

W. H. Productions Company, with a viewpoint of doing "their bit" to promote better moral conditions in the training and recreation camps of the American soldiers in France, is co-operating with the Community Motion Picture Bureau and the National War Work Council of the Young Men's Christian Association to print thousands of feet of film for the cost of printing.

It is said a number of other prominent distributors will also aid along these lines.

The Community Motion Picture Bureau service is a non-commercial one, devoid of profit, and is the medium through which this distribution and showing of film is made.

Within the sound of German field pieces and to the accompaniment of the rattle of Lewis machine guns, a few miles from the first line trenches, our American lads "over there" are now viewing some of the best moving pictures produced by American companies, and it is hoped that every organization will contribute film for this cause. It means the supply of this gigantic army with healthy recreation and enjoyment, which nullifies to a great extent, the horror through which they have to pass.

One can well imagine with what joy the war-worn boys return from the trenches to their billets or to the resting camps and view these pictures. By this means the morale of the American army will be greatly upheld, and the results will indeed be far-reaching in effect.

W. H. Productions Company makes an appeal to other distributors to do as much as they possibly can to help this good work along.

Over Half Territory For Shorty Hamilton Sold by E. Shipman

Producing in their own plant in California, and with the first series of pictures completed, and enough under way to insure delivery up to June, 1918, the W. H. Clifford Photo Play Company is in position to keep faith with all state rights buyers, and publish on schedule for the United States and Canadian exhibitors.

Nathan H. Gordon, Globe Film Co., Boston, and manager of the Olympic Theatre Circuit, has purchased the rights for New England, and will open in his Boston houses.

ERNEST SHIPMAN

Other buyers are doing likewise, as approximately 60 per cent of the territory is now sold. The list will shortly be announced for the benefit of exhibitors everywhere.

"We are in no particular hurry to dispose of these franchises," Ernest Shipman, who is handling the sales, said, "the more the buyers realize the demand for these Shorty Hamilton five-reel stories the more thoroughly will they expect the business, and as there is but one prior to all alike we will wait to close the remainder of the territory with the best organized companies."

Titan Pictures Head Lauds Director for Staging of Comedies

After viewing the latest production of the Titan Film Corporation, "Love Boxing Gloves," starring Joseph Santley and members of the "Oh Boy" company, Frederick Russell Clark, president of the film company, paid a tribute to Director Rex Weber.
"Mr. Weber was selected from a list of ten well-known comedy producers," said the Titan president. "He has ideas strictly original and puts as much though in the production of a two-reel comedy as most directors do in a feature. He has a reputation of getting his desired laughs, omitting the smut and pie throwing which most directors cannot get away from.
"His experience has been varied, starting as an actor in the dramas when the film field was not crowded and then to the production end of the features.
After several years in that, he began the study of the film field and saw there unlimited possibilities for one who cared to specialize in that line of endeavor.

"I am taking up this new work with the same thought in mind that led me to accept the Better Films chairmanship," said Mrs. Michael, when explaining the new venture. "That is, to spread the gospel of good, clean films, and I shall specialize in making up programs for schools use in the study of all subjects and in providing suitable programs for community center use and for special perfomances."

The companies who have already signed themselves willing to co-operate

PERSONALS

By "MAC"

Fra "Wid" Gunning arrived in the Big City by the Lake bright and early Monday morning, Jan. 14, just in time to get a great big look at the pranks old Father Snow has been pulling in and around this here country of ours. 'Tis bothering this "know-how scribe" not at all, as he is taking it easy for a day or so, prior to leaving on his extended Western tour, which will possibly cover a month or two, as Wid is contemplating heart to heart talks with his many exhibit. friends.

Joe Brandt, general sales manager of the Universal Film Mfg. Co., arrived in the Loop Jan. 18 just chock full of ideas.
Leave it to J. B. to get 'em off his system. Got Halley's comet beat a mile when it comes to that speed stuff.

Looks to us as though our old pal Cress O. Smith is becoming a regular "bus-ness player." He is off again back to Metro. With Fox regrets, and Metro smiles, wots the diff so long as Cress gets his? We mean more sheekles.

A party of fifty-six from the boys' division of the Wilson Ave. department of the Y. M. C. A., accompanied by Secretaries Maurice F. Gogie and Edward A.
Compton, were the guests of the American Film Co. at a recent visit to the plant at 6227 Broadway. Richard R.
Nehls, general manager of the company, gave a very interesting talk to the boys, explaining to them the many intricate of a motion picture from the time it was recorded upon the film until it was shown upon the screen.

J. A. Berst, V. P., and Gen. Mgr. of Pathe, judging from the speed with which he departed from Chi, last Monday, Jan. 14, enroute from sunny California, must have got an earful of info on the package of Spring atmosphere being distributed about ole New Yawk.

Frank J. Snyder, formerly a member of Doc. Willa's technical staff, has arived from New York to assume his responsibilities with the Rothacker Film Mfg. Co. organization.

You know that stuff we spilled a spell back about "Screen Opinions" grabbing the hull building at 115 W. Harrison St, well it's all wrong. Here they go and let a fire visit them, early Saturday A. M., Jan. 16, so we'll all have to wait a spell now before our tip pans out. We re-stand, other than water damage, all is well.

CHICAGO TRADE EVENTS

37
D. M. Vandawalker, V. P. of Doll-Van Film Corp., finally managed to plow his way through the huge snow drifts, arriving in the city Jan. 15 from an extended visit to New York. Been down there, as a member of the executive board of the State Rights Distributors looking over the New York branch, never fear, he be soon tellin’ us about some more features, just as nifty as “The Big Three” they are now exploiting in the Central West. Alright, we’re listening, let ’er go, Van.

* * *

Harry C. Miller, the “Big 3” boss, is certainly packing them in at his Alcazar Theatre, with Bomber A. A. Westman, who is lecturing in a red-blooded manner in conjunction with a war film in many scenes of which Bomber Westman was actively engaged. This fiery young Yankee enlisted at the outbreak of the big World War at Newport News, being shipped to England and assigned to the South Wales Borderers, who by the way won for themselves more Victoria Crosses than any other regiments. Young Westman was recently given an honorable discharge from the British army and carries three wound stripes on his coat sleeve which makes him a hero, that he was injured that number of times. He was first wounded at the Battle of the Somme and received the other two at the Battle of Ypres Belgium.

* * *

Terry Ramsaye, of Mutual publicity fame, is again within Chicago’s domain, having recently attended a pre-spring showing of Broadway’s atmospheric conditions. They tell us Terry held his hammer walking stick, “somewhere amid the realms of lightless Broadway.” Well, that’s all right, he should, that’s where it belongs.

* * *

We note as follows, regarding that busy Rothacker Film Mfg. plant that Jack Byrne of the production department is now engaged in directing several important industrial subjects involving studio work; Ed. Blackburn, one of the well knowns of filmdom, is affiliated with the sales squad; and Wesley Smith, formerly of the camera department, has been promoted to an important position in the factory organization.

* * *

Looks to us as though M. J. Mintz, manager of Unity Photoplay, is striving hard to annex the title of being the biggest and Chicago’s film colony. Other than the usual duties as manager of this well known independent exchange (hours 8:30 A. M. until any old time after 6:00 A. M. the same day) he has elected to personally handle every single production. Besides the task of re-assembling and titling the 20 reels of industrial film recently purchased by his concern for distribution in weekly releases, Mintz tells us he will be gratifyingly thankful for any suggestions offered for a good title for the series, and upon acceptance of same, will certainly reward the idea sender. Go on boys, shoot it in to him, he’s a good feller.

T. J. Richrath, general purchasing agent for Goldwyn Pictures, gave Sid Goldman’s Chicago branch the o.o. last Friday, Jan. 18, enroute for Western points.

About the Boys
On The Firin’ Line

Ed Grohe has been chipping these days covering the city for Fox Films with his old side kick, Joe Lyon, being transferred to the booking department. That’s all right Ed, get up earlier, ’tis the ‘early bird gets the worm.’

M. Winnower, erstwhile Select rep., is now covering parts of Wisconsin for Fox. A. J. Gallas, of Select Pictures, was certainly royally welcomed by one Capt. Taylor, owner of the Rialto Theatre at Kewanee, Ill., when he blew into town. Whenever any of you boys feel like a real scare, why, be sure and tell the old-timers about it, ”cause we hear a real jam on the way.

Nat Wolf, erstwhile Goldwyn representative, thought for a while Uncle Sam wasn’t going to use him, as he reported for duty Jan. 1 and was informed it was all off. Was just going to leave Houston, Texas, for Chicago when the message to report for duty Feb. 1 was received. Nat feels a wee bit lonesome down there away from the “Big Windy City,” so you fellow knights of the grip had better get your fountain-pens to work and slip the boy a little good readin’ from the home town.

1. Natkin of Goldwyn is burning ‘em up in Iowa if his first week’s returns on bookings signify anything. Must be using snow-shoes, because ole loway is smothered with snow.

John Emerson and Anita Loos Signed by Paramount Corporation

The Famous Players-Lasky Corporation announces through its publicity manager the formation of the John Emerson and Anita Loos Productions, to be issue through Paramount.

Mr. Emerson and Miss Loos, upon the termination of their association as director and scenario writer for Douglas Fairbanks’ Artcraft productions at Los Angeles recently, went to New York, if it was not wholly unexpected that the future activities would be in connection with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

It is said Director Emerson will give carte blanche in new association and is prepared to present my original ideas in the new productions, assisted by Miss Loos, who will prepare the scenarios and continuity.

Hamilton Theatre Fire

The Royal Theatre, Hamilton, Ont., was the scene of a fire on Sunday night,
Jan. 3, at 11 o’clock, the damage being $800. Had it not been that the people living in the apartments above theatre smelled the smoke the fire most likely would have done considerable more damage. As it was, the firemen had to fight the fire nearly all night.
The smoke was so dense. The fire damaged the side wall and made two large holes in the floor. However, the mangement were able to get workmen on Monday to fix the theatre sufficiently to open on Monday afternoon for the usual marine.

Melba Guest of Mitchell

Manager Griffith Mitchell of the Regent Theatre, Toronto, had the pleasure of a short while age of Mme. Melba, the courtesies of the theatre to Mme. Melba, the noted singer.

Mme. Melba is a frequent visitor to Toronto, and this time was the guest of Lady Hendrie of the Government House. Manager Mitchell extended the invitation to Mme. Melba and the Government House party to witness the Goldwyn production, “Thais,” in which Mary Garden is the star.

Much interest centers upon this Mary Garden production in the fact that Mme.
Melba and Mary Garden are great friends and naturally Mme. Melba wished to see the noted Mary in her screen production.

M. Garten, leading violinist in the Regent Theatre orchestra, Toronto, won great praise for his rendition of “Meditation,” introducing “Thais.” Mr. Garten was dressed in the garb of a monk and there was special scenery representing the buildings of the monastery.
The Regent Theatre’s policy of having a special singer or instrumental solo in connection with the programme has ipsed great favor among the theatregoers of Toronto. The week the Regent presented the Mary Garden feature “Thais,” they also had an extra attraction a tenor soloist, besides the violin solo, making a special music attraction for that week.

As a result of a conference between the Moving Picture Exhibitors’ Association and the Minister of Finance, a compromise was worked out. A public apology was made in the newspapers of British Columbia by the Exhibitors’ Asciation for the “unkind” remarks made in the British Columbia Government and the amusement tax.

The Vancouver office of the Canadian Universal Film Company was paid a visit by H. B. Young of West Summerland.

Clune’s Auditorium Reserves All Seats For “Madam Who”

After having played “A Man’s Man,” which was the first Paralta Play to be published and which broke all house records, W. H. Clune of Clune’s Auditorium at Los Angeles, Cal., has decided to reserve all seats in his theatre for the presentation of “Madam Who,” which Bessie Barriscale makes her debut as a Paralta star, and has placed seats on sale one week in advance of the showing of the production.

Clune’s Auditorium has had the premiere presentation of practically all of the big photoplay offerings and Mr.
Clune’s decision to reserve the seats in his theatre for future Paralta Plays is owing to the popular demand for these productions in Los Angeles where it is said about the reception of all three plays at Clune’s Auditorium.

Sawyer and Lubin To Present “Mother”
At Boston Theatre

Arthur H. Sawyer and Herbert Lubin, of General Enterprises, Inc., left New York last Monday for Boston to compel negotiations to secure a first run booking for the George Loane Tucker production, “Mother,” starring Elizabeth Ridston, at one of Boston’s large photoplay houses. After the run of the feature has established it as a box office attraction, the executives of General Enterprises, Inc., plan to dispose of the New England territory to one of the leading buyers.

During their stay in Boston the two state right distributors will also attend several meetings held for the purpose of discussing the recent order of the Massaechusetts Fuel Administration whereby the New England theatres must operate between the hours of seven and ten, and will present convincing articles before the local Fuel Administrators to secure the co-operation of the leading exhibitors and state rights buyers in Boston.

Fox’s “Baby Grands”

Dance for Audience

“Troublemakers,” the Fox comedy-drama, with Jane and Katherine Lee as stars, established a record for big business for a week’s run at Philadelphia’s leading picture theatre, the Palace, during the week January 7-12. Seven performances every day were given and at least some of these the S. R. O. sign was wielded.

Stanley Mastbaum, controlling the Palace, expressed himself as delighted with “Troublemakers.” The little stars, Jane and Katherine, made their personal appearance at the Palace each day at three performances and received ovation for performances of this time.
Mastercraft Photo-Play Corp. to Produce Works of Well-Known Authors on Coast

Will Use Paralta Studios at Los Angeles—Company Will Spend $1,000,000 Yearly, it is Estimated

Word has been received by F. Eugene Farnsworth, president of the Mastercraft Photoplay Corp., of another production, it is understood, of which the Mastercraft Corp. will produce pictures in the new Paralta studios at Los Angeles, Cal. Under this agreement the company will be able to enjoy the splendid efficiency and big producing facilities which has made the Paralta studios the most talked of plant on the western coast.

Mr. Farnsworth expressed himself as being delighted with the Paralta plant, which was chosen after an inspection of many of the other large studios. This arrangement refers only to the use of the Paralta studios and facilities for picture making. Otherwise there is no connection. Both will produce and publish features separately and absolutely no sort of combination will be formed.

The Mastercraft company has secured the film rights to all of Thomas Dixon's books. Just which one will be the first to go into production has not as yet been decided. Since the making of "The Birth of a Nation" from Dr. Dixon's "The Clansman," the film possibilities of his works have been widely recognized and this arrangement with Dr. Dixon for exclusive rights to his stories promise big things to the screen in the near future.

There is a rumor that the Mastercraft corporation will be to make big pictures, produced regardless of time and expense, it is said, and for this reason production will be limited from four to six pictures a year. Mr. Farnsworth asserts that about $1,000,000 will be expended by his company in Los Angeles yearly. Care is being taken in the selection of every detail of the new organization which will figure in the making of their pictures. The company is being backed by Boston capitalists. Mr. Farnsworth has been connected with the motion picture business for about fifteen years, during which time he has been associated with practically every branch of the industry.

Robert Brunton will be the production manager of the studio organization. The Mastercraft company expects to start work within a few weeks and is negotiating with certain other authors for the film rights of their works, similar arrangement with Dr. Dixon, of course, will be the policy of the Mastercraft Photoplay Corp. not to consider original stories, but only the published works of the foremost authors of the day.

Brenon Is Filming
Vance's "False Faces"
With Notable Cast

In addition to Bert Lytell, who plays the stellar role, and William E. Shay, as Wetherhomer, a number of players have been added to the cast of Herbert Bruton's production of "False Faces," the sequel to "The Lone Wolf," now being filmed at the Brenon Studios on Hudson Heights, N. Y.

Barbara Castleton heads the list as Cecelia Brooke, the leading feminine role in the screen adaptation of Louis Joseph Vance's romance. Although Miss Castleton's career in the silent drama has been a short one, she is well known throughout the film world. She has just completed the role of "Murrid Schuyler" in Mr. Brenon's production of "Empty Pockets," soon to be shown at the Rialto Theatre, New York. Previously she appeared in "God's Man," "On Trial," "Parentage," "For the Freedom of the World" and "The Sins of Ambition."

Alfred Hickman, who has taken prominent roles in a number of Brenon pictures, will be seen again as Eckstrom, which character he created in the film adaptation of "The Lone Wolf." Mr. Hickman is a tall, blond, goateed, St. Louis boy, and in "The Fall of the Romanoffs" was hailed as one of the best pieces of acting that has been presented on the screen.

W. L. Abingdon is also a prominent member of the cast, while others who will be seen are Earle Brunswick, Henry Koster, Logan Paul, Franklin Murray and Joseph Scott.

Cleveland Girl Cast
In "Heart of Romance"

Miss Ivy Deibel, the nineteen-year-old Cleveland girl who won the distinction of having the best "camera face" out of a field of contestants, was cast last week by William Fox for a part in June Caprice's forthcoming feature, "The Heart of Romance." Harry Mil larde is directing this picture.

Miss Deibel worked several days during the week with the Caprice company and is said to screen exceptionally well. She appears in the party scene in "The Heart of Romance," which practically opens the picture. The play was screened at the Victor studio, New York, and has now been completed. Miss Deibel will be assigned to another company within a few days.

Western Import Co.
Offers "Mickey" Film

Western Import Company announces it will give Mabel Normand in "Mickey" a Broadway showing soon. With "Mickey" they will endeavor to demonstrate that it is possible to produce a picture that can go into a theatre and remain successfully for an indefinite period of time, the same as a big legitimate show.

"Mickey," it is said, possesses the happy medium of the combination of Miss Normand, that master of comedy directors, Mr. Semple, a good story, and an excellent cast.

W. H. Productions
Soon to Publish
"The Bargain" Film
First of W. S. Hart Features
With Exceptional Cast—Helps for Exhibitors

The first of the Hart special features, "The Bargain," is soon to be published by W. H. Productions Company. This production will rank as one of the best Western dramas that has ever been screened. It is said, having all the attributes of a first-class photoplay—exceptional scenic beauty, interesting story and an excellent cast.

William S. Hart appears in the role of "Jopedad," and as "Gun-Man," a desperado who reforms under the influence of love. The picture was taken in the Grand Canyon of Arizona. Clara Williams appears as the girl; J. Barney Sherry, as the father; J. Frank Burke, as the sheriff, and James Dowling, as the true Arschnik and Mack of Mr. Hart.

The advertising matter for "The Bargain" will consist of one sheets, three sheets, six sheets and a twenty-four sheet poster. A lobby display consisting of ten 8x10 photographs, six 11x17 photographs and two 22x28 photographs will also be available.

In addition to "The Bargain," W. H. Productions Company will publish for the benefit of exchanges and exhibitors a twentv page campaign book on this and other Hart productions. This book will cover a complete campaign for the exhibitor in order to help him put the picture over.

The second and third of the Hart features are almost complete; "The Band and the Preacher," in which Mr. Hart is supported by Robert Edeson, Rht Mitchell, Gladys Brockwell and Herscha Mayall; and "Cockeye," in which Mr. Hart, supported by Endi Ma key. These productions will be given the same exploitation campaign as "TI Two-Gun Man" in the Bargain campaign.

W. H. Productions Company has at all been successful in disposing of territories on the series of twenty-eight titles reel Mack Sennett-produced comedies including three Charlie Chaplins. The comedies will be published commencing February 1 at the rate of one a week.

The first six subjects have already been prepared, and are as follows: "A Sm Town Bully," with Mabel Normand; Mack Sennett; Roscoe Arbuckle a Owen Moore; "Friendly Enemies," w Syd Chaplin and Chester Conklin; "Polished Villain," with Al. St. Jol Charles Arling and Mae Bush; "His D ing Beauty," with Mabel Normand, R Tucker, "Bitter Half," with Polly Moran a Charles Murray; "The Dynamiter," w Chester Conklin.

The Dominion Theatre, Vancouver, recently gave the "Bargain" show at $50, 75c and $1.00, plays to capacity business. However, my expressions of disappointment were held in all the number of apparent eliminations.

Gentlemen: This is to confirm the booking of "The City of Purple Dreams," produced by Wm. N. Selig, for week of February 3rd at the Ziegfeld Theatre, 624 South Michigan Avenue.

It is a pleasure for me to inform you that your picture is one of the best independent productions that I have reviewed for some time and is the first independent picture that will play at the Ziegfeld Theatre since it has become one of our circuit. I was particularly impressed with the splendid fight participated in by Thos. Santschi; it reminds me very forcibly of a similar fight in "The Spoilers."

The Ziegfeld Theatre is the only house in Chicago now charging an admission price of 25c and 50c and for that reason we are showing only the best available attractions the market affords.

Yours very truly,

R. W. B. of the Exhibitors Trade Review

"The City of Purple Dreams" is the first release of the newly formed Exhibitors' Operating Corporation, of which A. Snyder is the head. That it is a good picture all those who see it will agree, and that it will make money for an exhibitor seems a foregone conclusion, for it contains all the elements that go to the making of good screen entertainment. The suspense, exciting scenes, excellent acting and a story that has been skillfully directed.

Of the many points that place this picture in the upper class are the fine types that have been selected for both the leading and minor roles the excellent photography and lighting, which is brought out strongly in a number of night scenes and the praiseworthy manner in which Director Colin Campbell has handled his material both as to story and cast. He has taken a successful novel and pictured it so well that it provides the picture-going public with an attraction that they will hardly fail to appreciate, and one which seems certain to cause most favorable comment among the patrons of all theatres wise enough to book it.

"The City of Purple Dreams" should be shown in all first-class houses because it is a feature that will be appreciated by those who really know what a good picture is. Exhibitors cannot go wrong on this one. It will make itself felt at the box-office.

An Open Letter from OSCAR M. SHECK, General Organizer of the I. A. T. S. E., to the Moving Picture Machine Operators of America

International Alliance Theatrical Stage Employees
Of the United States and Canada
107 West 46th Street
New York City, January 19, 1918

Dear Brothers:—

So many members of our order have written me for information concerning the SHECK UNIVERSAL ADAPTER for utilizing MAZDA lamps in motion picture projection, that I have thought best to make a public acknowledgment of these letters and a public reply to them.

Through the courtesy of the MAZDA engineers, I was invited to be present at the first semi-public demonstration of MAZDA lamps in the projection of motion pictures. I realized at that time that I was witnessing an epoch-making event in the motion picture industry, and the thought occurred to me that the fruits of this wonderful invention would be more quickly available if some one were to perfect an appliance by which any existing make of motion picture projection machine could be adapted to the use of these MAZDA lamps immediately, instead of waiting for the machine manufacturers gradually to awaken to the importance of the discovery. Then the thought came to me: Why not design such an appliance myself? This idea was the inception of the SHECK UNIVERSAL ADAPTER. Its development is too long a story to tell here. Suffice to say the adapter, passing through various stages of experimental evolution, is now standardized and is operating satisfactorily in many theaters in this country. And the demand for the adapter is far in excess of our present factory capacity! So much for that: now a word as to the lamps.

Like every new thing, incandescent projection has encountered the usual number of scoffers. Many fellows who watched Robert Fulton's steamboat on its first trip up the Hudson laughed at the "hair-brained inventor who imagined that any such fool contrivance would ever work!"

I have even heard of operators who have opposed MAZDA projection on the theory that it would make projection so simple that experienced men would not be needed in the booths. To this objection I reply that it is sheerest nonsense. I take it as a trite proposition of industrial ethics that any invention which improves the conditions under which a man works, automatically raises the standard of his craft and tends to increase remuneration for his services. The linotype machine, at first bitterly opposed by the printers of this country, is one of many proofs of this axiom.

Successfully to project pictures with MAZDA lamps requires as complete a knowledge of the art as under the old arc-lamp regime, while the steady quality of the incandescent light gives an operator more time to watch his picture on the screen and to keep his films clean and in first class running condition.

But the big advantage of MAZDA Projection from the operator's standpoint is the matter of health! No more fumes in the booth—no more tuberculosis! That's the thing which should recommend these lamps to all of us who are familiar with the disastrous inroads of this terrible disease in our brotherhood.

And finally, the saving of operating costs! In the great majority of installations, my adapters and MAZDA lamps save the theaters 75% of the cost of current, so our grateful friend, Mr. Exhibitor, is not likely to commit himself to a policy of further retrenchment.

It is my firm conviction, therefore, that incandescent projection stands for better working conditions, improved health, an elevated industrial standard, and in the long run, a higher wage scale.

Yours fraternally,

Oscar M. Sheck

Fox Film Corporation
FREQUENTLY there is demanded of the EXHIBITOR'S HERALD an explanation of the reason for printing weekly the "Official Cut-Outs by Chicago Board of Censors." The following is an explanation for those who have inquired and for those who have not, and it also sets forth what we have been endeavoring to accomplish in the publication of these "cut-outs."

The position of the EXHIBITOR'S HERALD, with reference to the proposition of censorship, has been made plain innumerable times; we do not believe in censorship and we do not want censorship. We think that censorship is un-American and unjust, and we know that it is very costly to the motion picture business.

We have frequently pointed that the responsibility for the existence of censorship rests largely on the shoulders of a few producers who are so zealous in the dollar-hunt that they are willing to prostitute their product and the motion picture screen with the depiction of the vilest sides of human nature for the purpose of pandering to the tastes of the sordid-minded.

We desire now to point out that while censorship is caused and is fostered by a certain few producers, a very large number of producers, in fact, the majority, are, in a measure, responsible for encouraging the existence of censorship.

This statement, we believe, is thoroughly attested by the list of scenes and sub-titles which the Chicago board of censors is compelled to eliminate and to alter.

The following are a few of the sub-titles which the Chicago board has encountered and has ordered eliminated:

"The sun of the desert, timed by his passion, scornful of the husband who has kept no watch over his own."
"Some refinement has kept her from going the limit."
"We've got to quit. She's at least my meal-ticket."
"Why be broke with so much easy picking?"

"Here's to what we want—may we always get it when we want it and always want it when we get it."
"So the jewels have been repaired—perhaps madam would not care to explain how she earned the money."
"You will have to see Dr. Thorne and that—means?"
"This man lives only to gratify his desires. Your fresh young body appeals to him."
"Only a door protecting her from the violence of desire."
"I've never made a good woman bad, but if you're good, you'll have to prove it."
"Let me off; let me off, please. "I'll give you fifteen minutes to get ready for bed."

The above sub-titles are selected at random from pictures all issued within the last few months. Obviously, there is no need to describe the action of the scenes from which these sub-titles were deleted. The sub-titles speak eloquently for themselves, and in addition it is questionable if the publication could properly be sent through the mails if description was given to the scenes upon which these titles are based.

Data on two films recently rejected entirely is at hand. These pictures were rejected for the following reasons:

Because film portrays life of an immoral woman, and contains scenes of murder, theft and tough dancing.

Because film is story of an immoral and indecent flirtation of a girl, her betrayal and the operations of a blackmailing abortionist.

An almost interminable list of similar titles and reason for the withholding of pictures could be supplied if it would serve any good purpose. But we think those that have been cited illustrate the point in question: that there is being put out regularly a vast quantity of pictures that in various parts utterly reek with moral filth. Many of these pictures give strong testimony to the charge that many producers believe that the theme of degraded womanhood is one of perennial freshness and one that is ever welcomed by the American public.

A list of the producers of these pictures would include the names of many who prate loudly from time to time about keeping the screen—the favorite amusement of the American public, men women and children — wholesome and free from corruption. The producers of these pictures are also responsible for many beautiful and inspiring films, but their record cannot rest on these alone, for they also are responsible for these from which the above bits of moral filth are culled.

The object of the Exhibitor’s Herald in the publication of these “cut-outs” is to supply the motion picture trade at large with the same ammunition with which the sponsors of censorship are loading their guns for new attacks to further entrench official censorship.

As long as producers allow this sort of rot to go into their pictures, just so long will we have censorship with all its concurrent ills and disadvantages. Motion pictures will never have the same full liberty of free speech to which is accorded the press and to which pictures are entitled until it is rid of all this filth which is obviously harmful to a large percentage of the patrons of motion picture theatres.

Credit For Director

Since the photoplay has become a real artistic achievement no one denies the vitally important part of the director in the execution of a successful production. Yet the recognition which thus far has come to the director — except in certain isolated cases — is very scant and meager.

Players are featured and over-featured, yet the director who frequently is the guide and mainstay of the player passes without notice.

The public has recognized this and is already inquiring concerning the identity of the directors of favorite pictures. Every factor concerning a production which tends to interest the public and draw its attention has genuine commercial significance for the exhibitor.

The public now that it has indicated an interest in the identity of directors should be supplied with the necessary information. That many directors are thoroughly worthy of such a mention is an added inducement and as the various successful directors build up a following through their work the exhibitor will be rewarded by the additional patronage that will be attracted to theatres.

General Tone However Is Optimistic—Motion Picture Houses Report Record Business for First Two "Fuelless" Mondays

Crowding into its brief thirty-one days more colossal hardships than the ordinary entire year, the month of January, 1918, has passed on, but will not be forgotten for some time to come by the film industry.

The five-day shutdown of motion picture studios east of the Mississippi river and the closing of theatres on Tuesday of each week for ten weeks in the same territory, coupled with blizzards that completely tied up transportation, were some of the high lights in the past month's contributions to the general woe.

Undaunted, however, by the many obstacles which every branch has had to surmount, the industry as a whole has rallied and met each setback with renewed determination. It now awaits the recovery of traffic to renew business as usual.

While it is doubtful if exhibitors could recover any time with open arms an order to shut down for absolutely one day a week, they will probably suffer the least from the order of Fuel Administrator Gage. Why the official changed the closing day from Monday to Tuesday, the benefit to exhibitors cannot be underestimated.

Record Attendance Reported

Reports from the larger cities in the affected area concerning attendance on the first fuelless' Monday show that previous records for that day of the week were excelled anywhere from twenty-five to seventy-five per cent. At Providence, R. I., the best business in years is reported. In one theatre, it is reported the police were pressed to close the lobby.

Washington, D. C., Philadelphia, Boston, Milwaukee, Indianapolis, Cleveland, Detroit, New Orleans, Buffalo, Chicago, all report record business for the day.

In some of the smaller cities where the motion picture house is something more than a continuous show but have of custom run one matinee and two shows at night, exhibitors have come into sharp dispute with local fuel administrators through scheduling an extra matinee on Mondays.

Administrators Claim Violation

While the administrators admit that they have no power to order these houses to close, they insist that giving the extra matinee is a violation of the spirit of the closing order. None of them vouchsafed any explanation of what action they might attempt to take.

Exhibitors of Buffalo, N. Y., are facing what may be a complete shutdown, due to the attitude of Fuel Administrator McDougal. Mr. McDougal stated that he would allow the theatres to open Monday until noon, provided they are supplied with coal.

No theatre shall be furnished with more fuel, he stated, until the coal situation generally has improved and local heating societies and households have been supplied.

Motion picture theatres in Providence, R. I., have been ordered to close each night at 10:15 o'clock and are permitted to open until 12:30 p. m., through an order of the local fuel administrator.

Film Exchange Stand

Speculation is rife among exhibitors as to what stand the various film exchanges will take concerning rentals because of the one-day enforced closing. Many of the exhibitors are of the opinion that the film distributors cannot justly charge them for a service which is of no use to them.

Some of the larger companies, it is said, is refusing any adjustment on Tuesday's film delivered under contract, but promises exhibitors one day's use in future without charge of the film covering the Tuesday holiday. In cases of three days or a week's run this would mean little or nothing to the theatre owner.

Film Exchange Report

The loss of approximately one-ninth of their total gross business through the closing down of the theatres one day a week is a fact. This situation, coupled with the considerable concern has been expressed for the welfare of some of the smaller independent exchanges.

Producers Retrench

Retrenchment has been marked throughout the ranks of producers, with the exhibitors to Film Manufacturing Company taking probably the most radical steps. This company in a slashing order laid off so many people that a report was current that Universal City was to be abandoned, but this was denied by the company.

In New York, however, that more than 1,500 persons were let out by the unexpected move.

Among others mentioned as having curtailed production are Herman Becker and S. J. Alexander, vice-president of Schlesinger, head of the Mayfair Film Company, and Harry Rapf. It is estimated by one screen producer that the picture production has fallen off more than one-third at the present time.

The five-day closing order also curbed productions. One or two studios used storage batteries to operate necessary laboratory apparatus, but the greater amount of work done was in filming exteriors.

Conditions about New York were ideal for this with the exception of last Tuesday when a heavy snowfall made the work impossible.

In Chicago, Tuesday has become a popular day for traffic but that the fact that all the theatres are closed and many of the exhibitors visit the loop, the exchange managers have seized the opportunity to arrange special showings of current productions.

Prominent Chicagoans Protest Funkhouser's Censorship Regime

Former Governor Edward F. Dunne, Attorney Clarence Darrow and Others Appear Before Sub-Committee on Censorship

An imposing array of men and women prominent in Chicago business, social and civic life, appeared before the sub-committee of the council judiciary committee late last Tuesday afternoon to voice their protest against Chief Schuettler and the city from interfering with the exhibition. The city has already announced its intention to repeal the case.

Among those scheduled to appear and voice protest were former Governor Edward F. Dunne, Opie Read, president of the Chicago Press Club; Clarence S. Darrow, lawyer and publicist; Dr. George B. Foster, professor of history of the University of Chicago; Henry Ketchell Webster, novelist; William M. McEwen, former judge; Mrs. Stella S. Jannotta, president of the Chicago Political Equality League; Charles H. Mitchell, former attorney for the election board, and Col. William L. Visscher, lecturer and Civil war veteran.

Some Oppose Censorship

Many of those named, principally Clarence Darrow, Charles H. Mitchell, Opie Read and Col. Visscher are opposed to all censorship, believing that the people are the best censors and that there is no more reason for censoring the screen.
“Turn Out the Lights—Go to the Movies”
Movement Started to Save Nation’s Fuel

Motion Picture Theaters Use Less Power—Statistics Show Vast Quantities of Coal Can Be Conserved by Plan

Exhibitors are taking a keen interest in a movement which has been started in several places throughout the United States and Canada to encourage the public to assist fuel conservation by curtailing on lighting. In this connection the public is being urged to darken their houses evenings and visit the neighboring motion picture theatres.

In several towns and cities where the movement has been started, conclusive statistics have been introduced to show that vast quantities of coal can be conserved by the public diminishing the amount of lighting and gas used by evening attendance of film theatres. The motion picture theatre, it is pointed out, of all recognized amusements uses the least amount of electricity and in the accommodation of thousands of people throughout the evening can assist in the saving of a large amount of lighting, and consequently limit the coal consumption.

Various civic organizations are to be requested to present this matter to their membership and co-operate with the movement to encourage the public to attend, in large numbers, picture theatres in the evening. As an aid to the movement it is planned to have exhibitors prepare a brief explanation, to be thrown upon the screen, which will appeal to the patrons to patronize the theatres more often and thereby aid, in an easy manner, the conservation of fuel, which has been impressed upon people throughout the country as a vital national need.

A tentative slogan, “Turn out the lights and go to the movies,” has been adopted and exhibitors are being encouraged to use it in all their printed matter and also to use it on slides.

The Goldwyn decision was based on the knowledge of what happened in England shortly after the declaration of war and correctly it was assumed that the United States and its industries could not escape ill effects, as all of the national energies were concentrated upon war work.

Two weeks ago Goldwyn rented and began work in an additional studio on Manhattan Island and now has companies at work in this building in One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street, near Lexington avenue, as well as in the big Goldwyn plant in Fort Lee.

Garfield Order
Found Goldwyn Well Prepared

Company Had Three Productions Finished and on Way to Exchanges

While Goldwyn Pictures Corporation derived just as little pleasure from National Fuel Director Garfield’s drastic closing down of industries as any other affected industry, Goldwyn finds itself it is said, in a most fortunate condition. When Director Garfield’s closing order came, with a five-day enforced closing of studios and film printing laboratories, Goldwyn had its next three productions completed and in transit to its branches. This meant that Goldwyn exhibitors suffered no delays that can be attributed to the home offices and producing plants of the Goldwyn organization.

The wisdom of working at top speed for months in the Goldwyn studios now finds complete justification in the enviable position of the company. The pictures ahead that are already out are Mabel Normand in “Lodging a Million,” published January 27; Madge Kennedy in “Our Little Wife,” issued February 10; Mac Marsh in “The Beloved Traitor,” available February 24.

In addition, Goldwyn has at least four more completed productions which can be published in any order that the company sees fit to issue them. During November and December much comment was created in the industry by the Goldwyn decision to work at the full capacity of its plant during months when, because of weather conditions in the East, companies usually seek to reduce operation wherever possible.

Boost “Smoke Week”

Let us not forget “Smoke Week” to be held throughout the United States under the auspices of “Our Boys In France Tobacco Fund,” for the purpose of supplying much-needed smokes to American soldiers in the trenches of France.

The amount sought is $5,000,000, and the week allotted to obtain it is that which includes Washington’s birthday, February 18 to February 25.

Handling the publicity for the occasion, in addition to his work for the Petrola Picture Company and McClure Pictures, is Bert Ennis. The manager of the fund is A. Blakie Dick. These men are volunteering their time and services.

You’ve dug deep. But you can always dig just a little bit deeper. Swear off if you’ve got to. But by all means support this project and see that the boys “over there” get the smokes so sorely needed.

H. B. Varner in Urgent Appeal
To Exhibitors for Tax Data

H. B. Varner, chairman of the allied exhibitors' legislative committee, has issued an urgent appeal to the North Carolina Exhibitors' Association, of which he is the secretary, calling upon the members to write at once to the state's representatives, both in the Congress and the Senate, asking for a repeal of the present war tax and the substitution of the plan prepared by the allied exhibitors.

In his notice Mr. Varner states that it is estimated that 25 per cent of the nation's theatres have been forced to close since November 1, on account of the war tax, and it is generally believed that if Congress does not revise this war revenue tax affecting theatres that 50 per cent more of them will be closed between now and April.

"I am confident that Congress has no desire to do the moving picture industry an injustice," states Mr. Varner in his appeal, "yet they have taxed us out of all reason, much more than any other industry in the country is taxed, and you want to urge in this letter that this tax be revised so that the theatres of the country may continue to stay open and operate and pay a good revenue to the government.

Many Theatres Close

"It is estimated that 25 per cent of the theatres of the nation have been forced to close since November 1st on account of the war tax, and it is generally believed that if Congress does not revise this war revenue tax affecting theatres that 50 per cent more of them will be closed between now and April.

"What you want to do is to give the members of Congress actual facts and figures, and show our real condition, and when you do this I feel confident that our North Carolina delegation will do everything they can for our relief. We want you to write this letter to each of the ten Congressmen and two United States Senators immediately—don't wait a single day. If you are not prepared to write the letter yourself get a lawyer or somebody else to write it for you on your own stationery and sign it.

"The entire industry throughout the nation is working harmoniously back of the Legislative Committee, of which I am chairman, and I shall spend a great deal of my time from now on in Washington looking after your interest; but I cannot accomplish anything unless you do your duty by writing these letters. And I want you to be certain to send me a copy of the letter, and address it to me in care of the National Press Club, Washington, D. C.

Wants Full Co-operation

"Get busy today and let's all work together and do our full duty and I am confident that we will get relief; otherwise we are going to be put out of business. Don't delay this matter a single minute, but attend to it today, then you will be doing your bit; otherwise you are a slacker.

The revision sought by the allied exhibitors provides that all children under 12 shall be exempt from any admission tax; that the film footage tax of one-fourth and one-half cent per foot be repealed and eliminated entirely; that the theatre seat tax be repealed and eliminated entirely; that for the purpose of raising additional revenue in lieu of the eliminations asked for, that the admission tax be made to cover all admissions including the five-cent admissions (except on children under 12); that the method of collecting admission taxes shall be through the sale of tax tickets furnished by the Government to the theatres for that purpose; that these tickets be sold in blocks at a discount so as to allow the purchaser a 10 per cent margin for handling.

Their first offering will be the McClure picture, "Mother," with Elizabeth Risdon in the title role, made by George Loane Tucker, who also directed "I Believe" and "The Manx Man."

Boys at Camp Upton

Enjoy Frohman Film

Through arrangements completed in co-operation with Lieut. Louis H. Frohman, O. R. C., The Frohman Amusement Corporation were hosts at a private showing of its latest motion picture spectacles, "My Own United States," starring Arnold Daly, at Camp Upton, Yaphank, L. I., where Lieut. Frohman is stationed.

By courtesy of the Y. M. C. A., the large auditorium at Upton was set aside on Friday evening last, and with more than three thousand officers and soldiers and the full Military band as orchestra, the picture was presented.

The effect had upon the audience is best illustrated by the fact that almost constant cheering and applause ensued for nearly two hours. A return date has been set aside for early in March and the repeat of the showing.

Ring Lardner, Tribune Humorist,
Aids Paper's Photoplay Critic
Two Collaborate With Excruciatingly Funny Re-result—Only Thing Lacking Is Information Concerning the Picture Reviewed

Unaware of or totally disregarding the rising resentment of the motion picture industry at the way in which the so-called motion picture criticisms are conducted in its columns the Chicago Tribune sailed blithely along the past week and finished up with a column which finally subsided on the sporting page, where Ring Lardner, the paper's foremost humorist, collaborated with the review department by using a Paramount production as the foundation for his daily comic.

To those high in the industry who for months have considered this picture review column a joke, the only surprise expressed was that Mr. Lardner had been so slow to grasp the opportunity afforded him, that he didn't strike him as intelligent an idea of the picture from his "review" as they did from the one in the review column.

While other picture playboys are almost unanimous in voting "Mrs. Dane's Defense," the picture in question, a satisfactory production, and could see nothing humorous in it, the film seemed to have the poposie effect upon the Tribune's critic. She did make one thing plain in her review, however, and that is that in the Cannes' theatre the fact is borne out by the humorist himself, in his review, as he admits that he met the "dramatic" critic.

Lardner Rhymes His
"I had a hard time to defend Mrs.
Dane at the place where I went to get on their train," Mr. Lardner.
"Mrs. Dane and I had a hard time defending Mrs. Dane," runs the opening line of the paper's critic, which she uses as a means to lead up to the more important part of the review of the picture —the meeting with Lardner, who sat neaby, and who, according to the critic, was under the impression that he was witnessing a comedy.

After explaining to Mr. Lardner that it is not a comedy he is viewing the critic, apparently recalling that she is supposed to write something concerning the picture, resumes her "Oh girls" de-mmeur and details a short synopsis, closing with a comment on how curls seem to age Pauline Frederick. She then relates the final chapter of her tete-a-tete, which teams with information concerning the picture.

What They Said
"If you came to see a comedy and it ain't, and you don't like the nursing methods, why don't you go?" I asked, (Lardner) getting on my nerves.
"Why don't you?" he freshed.
"I am.
And I did."

And so summed the "World's Greatest Newspaper"s method of reporting to its public on the great and important subject of motion pictures.

A general indictment of Mary Mac-Lane for going into pictures at all is the sum and substance of the Tribune critic's review of the George K. Spoor than for censoring the stage and the press.

The sub-committee does not, however, intend to abolish censorship. It has undertaken an amendment to the present law which will relieve Major Funkhouser of his censorship duties and put the matter in the hands of a censorship board composed of twelve persons.

The amendment provides that a majority of the board shall rule and that none of those connected with the body shall be a member of the police department of the city.

It is the opinion of some of the members of the sub-committee that the second deputy superintendent of police is sufficiently employed in taking charge of the morals squad, hunting out gambling and buying supplies for the police department.

Max Linder Recovered

Max Linder, the popular French comedian, who terminated his contract with Essanay last July on account of ill health, has cabled friends in New York City that he has now fully recovered and expects to visit this country again in April. After making a few production at his own studio, the Chineax, in Paris Max Linder repaired to Switzerland and will sail for the United States in a few months. Just which company will present him is still a point of conjecture.

Harry Lauder and Charlie Chaplin Combine To Make Comedy Film For War Relief Fund

Money Realized From Sale of 500 Foot Subject Will Go to Aid $5,000,000 Fund Sought by Famous Scotch Comedian

Combining two distinct brands of comedy for the purpose of raising a million dollars or more, Charlie Chaplin and Harry Lauder, the world's greatest laugh producers, have been filmed together in a five hundred foot subject which will shortly be exploited throughout this country and the other allied nations. The net proceeds will be added to Lauder's $3,000,000 War Relief Fund.

The idea was conceived by the noted screen star when he was entertaining Lauder at his new motion picture plant in Hollywood, Cal. The plan so strongly appealed to the Scotch humorist that not a moment was lost in carrying it out and two hours later the camera had filmed what is said to be the most unique comedy ever made.

No Supporting Cast:
Chaplin and Lauder comprise the entire cast and the story is a collaboration of these two world renowned performers. There is only one scene in the picture and during a large part of the pantomime Lauder has adopted the Chaplin style and the screen star takes a ring at the characteristics for which the comician is widely known.

When the story was completed, the two comedians with their personal business managers, Tom Vallance and Sydney Chaplin, took up the subject of turning the film into money and it was decided that the entire Chaplin organization would be used to further the success of the venture.

Much depends upon the action of the 1st National Exhibitor's Circuit, the corporation holding the contract for Chaplin's exclusive services. They are the ones who will determine whether it will be a violation of contract to exploit the famous Charles in the manner suggested.

Has a Censor Value?
In Lowell, Mass., Abraham S. Goldman was so anxious to censor motion picture films that during the year of 1917, he volunteered his services. Now he has had a change of heart, not that he wants to give up passing on the films, but he wants some compensation for doing it.

He has taken his troubles to Mayor Perry D. Thompson. He avers that considerable more time is taken up with the work than any man can well afford to give voluntarily and believes that his familiarity with motion pictures in general qualify him to go on with the work which he started here.

The censor is modest to this extent—he does not set out how much compensation he thinks he should receive.

The L. J. Schlaifer Attractions, of Seattle, Wash., have closed a contract for the exhibition of "Parentage" with William Smyth for a two weeks' run at the Strand Theatre, Seattle. The engagement will commence on February 9.

The same firm has also closed a contract with J. J. Parker, of the Majestic Theatre, Portland, Ore., for "Parentage." The run in the City of Portland commences on February 9.

"Where Cowboy Is King" now being exploited by the L. J. Schlaifer Attractions, of Seattle, Wash., has just played a successful engagement at the Burbank Theatre, Los Angeles; the Star Theatre, Pocatello, Idaho; Irene Theatre, American Falls, Idaho; Baker Theatre, Baker, Ore.; Gem Theatre, Filer, Idaho, and the Majestic Theatre, Boise, Idaho. Negotiations are at present pending for its exhibition throughout Alaska.

World Film Corp. Free Offer Embodies Nearly Eighty Pictures

Action Prompted by Desire of Company to Aid Exhibitors in Time of Stress—Not a Sales Argument

Approximately eighty productions were put on the free list by the World Film Corporation in its recent war aid offer to exhibitors as is evidenced by a list made public this week by the company. The use of the films is tendered without reservation other than the exhibitor be a contractor for World service.

From what could be learned in the limited time in which the new arrangement has been in operation, exhibitors everywhere are taking advantage of the offer. According to L. A. Roselle, manager of the Chicago office, he has been literally swamped with requests from exhibitors in his territory.

In their instructions to branch managers the officials of the company emphasize the fact that this free offer feature is not to be made the foundation of sales talk. Exhibitors, however, who sign for World service in the future, will in all fairness be granted the same privilege as those now holding contracts. The exhibitor will be given the free service to the same extent as his contract calls for.

Details of Plan

The details of the plan and the motives underlying its origin are plainly stated in the statement of Ricord Gradwell, vice-president and general manager of the company, to branch managers concerning the action.

"Much has appeared in public prints," reads the statement, "much has been said by promoters, many protestations have been made up from various sources, more or less sincere, of so-called desire to help exhibitors. "From the beginning of this administration it is the purpose of World to consistently work for upbuilding the industry, for the interest of the exhibitor, the safe-guarding of local business, the establishment of the quality deal, the inauguration and maintenance against all odds of the principle of the Golden Rule in the manufacture and distribution of motion pictures.

"The exhibitors, long-suffering, sometimes complaining and sometimes uncomplaining, times really needing help, constitute the backbone of the industry and are the jobbers through whom we must distribute to the public. It is only right that we should consider, as we consider our own interests, the interests of those who, hand in hand with us, have helped to make World service and World pictures stand for the best in the trade.

"We have now resolved to throw open our great library, like other great institutions in our country have been opened, to the use of our friends and co-workers and through them to the public.

"For the period of the war the use of our library shall be given free to exhibitors who are on contract or may be on contract with us, this being the exhibitor to give, in his turn, added comfort and service to his patrons.

"In offering the use of this library to the trade we do so without any reservation, mental, actual, or implied. It is a true offer, generously tendered, which we hope will be as generously and sincerely received. It must not, by any means, be made the basis of a selling argument for the acquisition of new business. It must be handled as a dignified, big, broad exposition of the general stand of World organization on matters of national policy. It must not be stultified by making it an argument to get one or more accounts.

"We ask that the organization transmit our message to the trade in such manner that it will not be misunderstood, and in such way as will help to cement still closer the bonds of mutual regard, confidence and esteem which now exist between the exhibiting fraternity and your own company."

The list of publications made available by the offer follow:

New Kellermann Film

In "Queen of the Sea," a new Willis Fox Standard picture which soon will be issued throughout the country, Annt Kellermann is said to have done her best work in the silent drama. Many of the scenes were taken near Bar Harbor, Me., where a wealthy summer colony is the liveliest interest in the star and company.

There are hundreds of pretty girls in the production and the sub sea photography is said to be a revelation in pictures. The British Museum and the Smithsonian Institution in Wash., have aided in the making of the product.
marked decrease in the number of productions, together with increased interest in the government in the motion picture industry, featured the entrance of the United States into the world war, according to Cranston Brenton, chairman of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures of New York.

The board of which Mr. Brenton is chairman reviews annually probably more than ninety-nine per cent of all the photoplays produced in the country. Based on the figures in his possession, there were 8,456 reels of pictures manufactured during the year 1917, which is fewer than the number passed upon in 1916. The number of pictures or subjects was 3,114 as compared with 4,115 in 1916.

Governmental interest in motion pictures has been marked, according to Mr. Brenton, not only as regards the sale of war bonds, Red Cross funds and conservation of foodstuffs, but also as a means of entertainment for soldiers and sailors in the training camps, on board ship and at the front in France. The war department, he said, believes in the usefulness of motion pictures as a means of preserving civil and military morale.

War Affects Pictures

These figures reflect the effect of the war upon the making of pictures and the demand of the public regarding the type of pictures desired. Mr. Brenton said the fall off in production was in the ninth just before the declaration of war and the following two months. Evidently at that time the producers were uncertain as to what effect the war would have on motion picture production.

Since July the production has followed the general trend of that of the previous year, the number released, however, being somewhat smaller, with an upward tendency in December.

Mr. Brenton also noted the marked effect the general demand for five-reel productions has had upon the production of the one-reel pictures. In 1915, he said, the average length of a picture was 1:53; in 1916 2:23, and in 1917 the average length was 2:77.

One-Reelers Replaced

The demand for single-reel pictures greatly fallen off in the course of the year, he said. "The feature pictures usually five reels in length, is taking the place of the one-reeler. In some months, many five-reel features as one-reel subjects were released. In December the average length per picture was 3:28 reels, compared with 2:23 for the corresponding month of 1916."

In reviewing the general trend of pictures during the year, Mr. Brenton stated: "A large number of subjects were utilized relating to the war. Incidentally it should be noted that the large number of pictures had been put to distributive purposes. The campaign for enlistments, sale of bonds, the Red Cross campaigns for funds and memberships and the conservation of foodstuffs, were all covered in the pictures."

In the second place," the speaker continued, "the year was marked by the large number of subjects produced relating to the war. These were photographed with a war twist, European war pictures and propaganda for various war measures, such as the stimulation of enlistments, the sale of war bonds, the Red Cross campaigns for funds and memberships and the conservation of food. The government has taken a marked interest in motion pictures, not only in these respects, but as the means of entertainment for soldiers and sailors in the training camps, on board ship and at the front in France."

"The American Cinema Commission was appointed to carry the propaganda of democracy to Europe by means of motion pictures. The war department believes in the usefulness of the motion picture as a means of preserving the civil and military morale. The great value of the motion picture as a medium of expression of opinion has therefore been clearly demonstrated. Many successful books and plays have been used as a basis of scenarios for photoplays."

"The motion of the National Board of Review in eliminating the nude from motion pictures, and refusing to pass white slave pictures of the commercialized type, has affected the character of the pictures made. This action followed an expression of opinion secured by means of a questionnaire sent to exhibitors and others in all parts of the country and evidently represented public opinion in every part of the country."

Comments on Censorship

In closing Mr. Brenton commented on the activities of the various states during the past year concerning censorship, and ventured the prediction that this year there should see little discussion of the regulation of this form of public's amusement by special state boards.

"The attitude of the general public toward legalized censorship of motion pictures," he said, "may be indicated by the fact that last year, although bills were introduced in more than twenty-five state legislatures, in not one of them did a bill reach the statute books. Owing to the higher average of the quality of motion pictures now being made, this year there should be little discussion of the regulation of this form of public's amusement by special state boards."

"A study of motion pictures from the moral point of view was carried out in Great Britain by a cinema commission headed by the Bishop of Winchester. The results of this inquiry indicated that photoplays as a rule proved to those who patronized them to be educative, morally healthful and pleasure-giving and instrumental in reducing intemperance. The commission also found that in England little juvenile delinquency was traceable to motion pictures, despite the fact that since the war began this class of delinquency has been on the increase. It expressed the opinion that motion picture theatres were a much better place for young people than the street. This report is of interest because the United States is now entering a war and may look for social conditions in large cities somewhat similar to those produced in the large cities of England.”

Anita Stewart Now
Mrs. Rudolph Cameron
Hearing Discloses

New York.—The fact that Anita Stewart, motion picture actress, is a bride was brought out in the Supreme Court in the course of Vitagraph Company’s suit to restrain her from allying herself with any other company. The confirmation came during the preliminary quesfor the film company.

Her husband, Rudolph Cameron, of Washington, D. C., was in the courtroom.
Because of business reasons and also recent illness of the bride, he said, no announcement of the wedding had been made.

What Has Become of The O. F. Fire Bell

Out in Anita, Iowa, where war has been the chief topic of conversation ever since the Kaiser dusted off his legions in 1914 and decided to turn the world upside down, this word has become commonplace and holds no terror for the inhabitants of that district.
So the other night when “Jake” Chapman ran up and down the main streets of the village at 1 o’clock at night yelling “fire” at the top of his voice and it sounded to the sleeping villagers like “war” the members of the volunteer department turned over and resumed their dreams.

In the meantime the Rood Opera House was burning down. The fire resulted in a complete destruction of the building, moving picture machines and interior furnishings causing a loss of about $10,000.

“Les Miserables”
To Reach Exhibitors
In Nine Short Reel

William Fox could not cut “Les Mierables” to eight reels, as was intend-and the production, therefore, will to exhibitors in nine short reels.

total length, as the work stands completed, is substantially 8,400 feet, appromately 1,381 feet having been eliminated. This is 400 feet short of the cuts that it had been proposed to make.

“Shortening this picture to bring within the length requirements of hibitors has been one of the most di-cult tasks ever imposed upon our organization,” said William Fox. “Sir Lloyd, the director, thought the list had been reached when he turned the production over to us. The film is measured 13,000 feet. For the shows at the Lyric Theatre in New York, we managed to cut it to 9,781 feet at our opinion then was that we could possibly take out another inch.”

MARGARITA FISCHER PLAYS THE LEADING ROLE IN THIS FAST MOVING COMEDY DRAMA, TO BE PUBLISHED FEBRUARY 1 (Mutual.)
New York, Jan. 29, 1915.

Vell, I hate to tell it, but I feel that I'm compelled to relate the yarn, for the benefit of the "fans" who may not have been about at the time. In one of the World's Great films, "The Beautiful Mrs. Reynolds," there is a duel between Hamilton and Burr, and in the benefit of the few I will relate the conversation which was the underlying cause of the fatal fight between these to Colonial statesmen. One blistering cold morning in the times that tried men's souls Aaron Burr was seated at a table in Yc Old Coffee House on Ann street, smacking his lips over a pot of sail ale, when Alexander Hamilton came in and as he failed to close the door, the richly dressed gentleman said, "Is this a door or not a door, brother Jay?" "Why, when it's a jar," said Emilron, "but that's a chestnut-Burr." They fought over that. So you see there were fights over the draft away back in the days.

The editor of Trench and Camp never saw "Morok," but shortly after it's trade showing he wrote, "Corporal of the Guard Post No. 2. Now I do feel sorry for The wandering Jew."

There seems to be no doubt as to Anita Stewart's ability to draw $120,000salary singly, but in double harness, as Mrs. Rudolph Cameron, will she be able to pull twice as much?

Jay Roscher, of the Submarine Pictures Co., remarked that he didn't understand why some film people had such highly polished boots and such dull finished manners. Your observation is good, Jay, but remember you can get a shine for a "jimney" but you can't buy a nickel's worth of social veneer and get away with it.

There has been a Fox studio for a long time, likewise a Beaver, but now comes the Dahm Studio at Pearl River. First thing you know the Beaver Dahm'll back the river up and stop the pearls over the bank.

We were asked the other day why the Vestal Queens of the Rialto and Rivoli chorus never rendered that heart-inspiring rhapsody, "The Patella Oblong Gatta." It's kneed-less to answer this.

Zongar, Tarzin, Morok, White Rock, and Virginia Dare, make a fine little wine list for one week.

The General Film Co. has moved into new quarters, a bit further up town. Fred Schaeffer carried the staff up and Morgan Bryan drove the same, thereby making the moving a bit easier.

Mrs. Julia Hurley, who has been playing in the "Four Years In Germany" film, finds time to devote to the soldiers over there and at home. She is one of the most active members of the Stage Woman's War Relief Association and is accomplishing much for the boys behind the guns.

It's reported in the papers that the Winter Garden recently tried to make over seventy soldiers of the U. S. Army, who had paid good money for seats, use the "Jim Crow" entrance to the theatre. The soldiers refused, and went to the Hippodrome. When our Broadway managers get started on this kind of thing there's going to be Hell to pay up Sixth street, and we hope there will be.

General Enterprises
Holds Showing for "Crucible of Life"

Due to the mandatory fuel conservation order issued by Dr. Harry Garfield, it was found necessary to change the date of the private showing for "The Crucible of Life," starring Grace Darmon, Arthur H. Sawyer and Herbert Lubin of General Enterprises, Inc., which organization is distributing the feature had originally scheduled the premiere to take place in the ball room of the Astor Hotel, Thursday, January 24, but due to the heatless days enforced by the order from Washington, it was found impossible to secure a print of the feature from the laboratory in time.

Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin therefore arranged to show the feature to the trade press on Tuesday evening, January 29.

Following the screening of "The Crucible of Life," dinner was served and a program of entertainment offered under the personal direction of William J. McKenna, well known musical leader and composer.

Exhibitors Least Hurt by Fuel Order
Declares Sales Director of Foursquare

Distributors Entitled to Sympathy for Loss of Play-Dates—Predicts March First End of Closing Rule

"Exhibitors who are meeting existing disturbances in the trade with the resourcefulness that is characteristic of their success are not alarmed over the latest order of the Federal Fuel Administration," said P. V. R. Key, director of Sales and Advertising for Foursquare Pictures.

"Sometimes, as many of us know, a seeming calamity is a blessing in disguise. This closing-order, drastic though it appears, may be one of these elements for improving matters. It is likely to hurt a little, but the exhibitor least of all. For he may make up, in patronage, on the Mondays and other nights what he loses on Tuesdays.

"The distributors, if we pause to consider, are the ones entitled to sympathy—if it is deemed necessary to pass any round. Because taking one day out of each week for several weeks means a loss of possible play-dates; they are gone, irrevocably.

"It would be useless to deny that seemingly there has been a succession of hard knocks for the industry—beginning with the effects caused by the placing of war taxes upon film raw stock, positive prints and theatre admission tickets. But all these hardships have been righting themselves. We were all beginning to feel the effects of the improvement when the Fuel Administration stirred things up again.

Prosperity On Way

"The trade, without a question of doubt, is approaching an unprecedented era of prosperity. Underlying proof is clear to those smart enough to look for it: and it is these men who are getting ready to take the fullest advantage of the upturn—which is nearer at hand than many pessimists think.

"It would occasion no surprise among the well informed if by March 1 the Federal Fuel Administration were to vacate the order for Tuesday closings. By that time winter (which has already spent its force) will be nearly, if not fully over. By that time, too, the freight congestion will have become materially relieved and shipping conditions vastly improved.

"Some of the problems now perplexing the government in its war preparations also will have been solved by March 1 and then the temper of the public turned into a more optimistic channel.

"Then, without doubt, will the desire for entertainment and diversion become more pronounced. Likewise, will the people accept the habit of paying war-tax on admissions. So it would seem exhibitors may reasonably anticipate the business pendulum to swing toward them instead of away from them. And on that account existing troubles should be met smilingly because of absolute knowledge that they are but temporary.

Predicts Speedy Recovery

"In point of fact, every man who has gone through the trying times of the past month or so, and who emerges from what lies ahead during the next few weeks, will as a consequence be an able business man.

"There never was a time when adversity did not depart leaving matters primed for subsequent betterment over their original condition, and it will be so in this instance.

"The speed with which the improvement is made, however, will rest in a measure with the exhibitors themselves. Wry faces and hard-luck tales are not good medicine for the quick recovery of the ailing patient; and nothing will have a better effect on the public than a generous amount of good advertising, a sunny frame of mind and the showing of the best pictures in the most up-to-date manner possible."

Edgar Brooks Joins Hesperia Films Co.
As Vice-President

The latest addition to the ranks of film exploiters on a world-wide scale is Hesperia Films Co., Inc., of which concern Edgar O. Brooks has been elected vice-president and general manager.

The Hesperia Company will handle features only, of both domestic and foreign manufacture, for exploitation in the United States, Canada, Cuba, South and Central America, with a probability of extending its operations later to Australasia, China, Japan, Philippines, India and South Africa.

Mr. Brooks recently resigned the general sales management of the Mutual Film Corporation, after a connection lasting upward of two years, and his previous affiliations with the firms of Gaumont, Universal and Cosmofotofilm, when he handled every branch of the business end of motion pictures, during six years of active participation in the American field, render him valuable to the firm.

Hesperia's initial feature release will be a seven-reel picturization of Eugene Sue's dramatic masterpiece, "The Wanderer Jew," under the title of "Morok." A private trade showing of "Morok" was held at Wurlitzer Fine Arts Hall, January 22nd.

The Bold Adventure

All the brave men are not at the iron in witness whereof cite the adventure of one Terry Ramsaye, director of publicity of the Mutual Film Corporation, as the sole male guest at a meeting of the Advertising Woman's Club of Chicago on January 15.

 Alice Brady in
"WOMAN AND WIFE"

 Select Pictures drama; five parts; published February

 As a whole: Excellent
 Story: Gripping
 Star: Versatile Support: Good
 Settings: Appropriate
 Photography: Clear

 "Woman and Wife," adapted from the book, "Jane Eyre," is a worthy addition to Select's list of features. There was fine story material in the book and the screen version is plausible and interesting throughout. The story has been superbly screened with appropriate and picturesque settings.

 The work of Alice Brady is flawless. She plays the part of Jane Eyre with a fineness of understanding and sympathy that makes the book character live again on the screen and the pictorialized forced to feel for her. There is no striving for theatrical effect, her work is straightforward and sincere. The supporting cast, too, is a good one, each giving intelligent interpretation of the various roles. "Woman and Wife" deserves a very high rating.

 The story: Jane Eyre is sent to an orphan's home by her surviving aunt, from which institution she is expelled when she slaps the superintendent's face, for trying to embrace her. She secures a position as governess in the Rochester home and becomes strongly attached to Rochester's only child. The boy's older brother, believing his wife dead, proposes to Jane. His wife's brother appears, bringing with him his demented sister, Rochester's wife. He hides her in a room, and while the housekeeper is asleep the demented woman escapes and stabs Rochester. Pursued by the servants she thrashes herself into a pool and is drowned.

 Kitty Gordon in
"THE DIVINE SACRIFICE"

 World Brady-Made drama; five parts; published February 4

 As a whole: Psychological Story: Superb Star: Able Support: Suitable
 Settings: Superbly

 "The Divine Sacrifice" deals with one of the most delicate psychological problems that the mother of a child can meet. The story, by Alma Speer Benzing, is clear, concise and convincing. The acting of Kitty Gordon is up to her usual standard; her clothes are especially beautiful, and with her genius for wearing them with distinction the picture will appeal particularly to women. The settings are novel and suitable. The direction, by George Archainbaud, greatly assists in bringing out the fine points of this remarkable theme.

 In support of Miss Gordon is an unusually able cast. Jean Angelo as Dr. Carewe is earnest and professional looking.

 Celene Johnson gives a fine characterization of the wife who refused to free her husband legally. Others who deserve mention are Frank Goldsmith, Charles Dungan, Mildred Beckwith, Vera Beresford, Ethel Burner and Harry Fraser.

 The story: David Carewe, a physician, and his wife are very unhappy together. The doctor loves children, but Mrs. Carewe's whole interest in life is society. At his children's hospital David meets the wife of Rupert Spencer, a libertine, who spends his time with fast women. David and Mrs. Spencer become interested in each other. Mrs. Carewe goes abroad to be gone a year. On the vessel she meets Spencer and his mistress, who is traveling as his wife. In an Oriental theatre a fire occurs in which Spencer and his companion are killed. Mrs. Carewe is reported dead also. David has the news of his wife's death confirmed and he and Mrs. Spencer are happily married. Rupert Spencer's son becomes sole heir to the

In “Innocent” Fannie Ward makes her bow as a Pathe star.
The story is perhaps a little risky for all motion picture theaters, but it is well handled and for followers of this class of entertainment is an excellent subject. Miss Ward does some of her best screen work and makes a charming Innocent. The cast has been carefully chosen and the directing and acting is excellent throughout. The settings are especially commendable. Good photography abounds.

As a production “The World for Sale” is splendid. But as entertainment it lacks appeal, and there are many things about the story that are mediocre and average. Its success from the box office standpoint will probably depend largely upon the mood of an audience. From the reviewer’s point of view it is not a production that will what one’s interest to follow the threads of the story whole heartedly. It is done in too cold a style. Conway Tearle and Anna Little are both pleasingly cast and they work sincerely. Other members of the cast are
W. W. Binner, Norbert Wicki, Crazy Thunder and Escarmillo Fernandez. The story is from Sir Gilbert Parker’s novel and the direction is by J. Searle Dawley. There are a number of scenes of gypsies’ camps which are interesting and well done.
The story: Fleda Druse and her father sever their connections with the wandering Romans and become Christians.
But childhood Fleda, has been given in marriage to Jethro Fawe, in accordance with the gypsy creed and after a separation of seventeen years Jethro comes to claim his bride. Fleda loves Ingolby, leader of the Canadian settlement, and will not accept the attentions of Jethro. Jethro attempts to take the life of Ingolby, but is repulsed. Marchand, an adventurer is jealous of Ingolby and attacks him, which results in Ingolby’s blindness. Fleda cares for him and after his sight is finally recovered brings him to an understanding. Jethro has “Zongar,” a five-part melodrama, written by Bernarr Mac-duffee, editor of Physical Culture Magazine, is notable for its physical culture and treatment and presents many extraordinary feats of swimming and athletic prowess, as well as a sensational aeroplane rescue.

The picture contains material which is seldom seen upon the screen and as a whole should be well received by exhibitors seeking something new.

George Larkin is a shining example of what physical culture and careful training can do toward making one graceful and strong, and he plays the role of the hero with sangfroid. Others in his support are Grace Davison, Delores Cassanelli and Jack Hopkins. The picture was directed by Bernarr Macduffee and altogether “Zongar” is a good state rights feature.

The story: Zongar, a young sculptor, is in love with Helen Phorpe, a physically perfect and most beautiful girl. She has a rival, however, in Wanda Vaught, an adventuress, and in a struggle between the two they fall over a cliff into the water where the adventuress attempts to drown Helen. She however, is rescued by Zongar, and Wanda, unknown to the other two, makes her way to shore. Richard Sutton, an unscrupulous cad, takes a fancy to Wanda and engage herself to Zongar. This affair develops until Wanda finds herself in love with the sculptor. Helen poses for Zonga Sutton insists upon Helen accompanying him, but Zonga resists. She refuses him in his automobile. Zongar follows, and in a thrilling manner rescues the girl’s schooner upon which she is held prisoner is burned. Fall-and again rescues Helen. The villain meets his end by being dashed over a cliff in his automobile.

“Madame Spy” is a timely subject but a glaring exama-in of the padded story. The work of Jack Mulhall as an im-sonator of the fair sex is quite good and with a more origin-story it would answer as a production appropriate for a class of audience. The “playing” for footage, however, is tracks from the plot. The story is one of Don Drew, Claire Du Brey, Wadsworth Harries, Maude Emory and George Gehhart. The direction is by Douglas Gerard.

The story, according to Robert Leslie, is a German plotter. He overhears the butler’s secrets and the knowledge obtained he manages to gain admittance to private meeting of the spies, under the name of Baroness Vi two. After he has followed them he discovers the the deception is discovered. However, he manages to elude his would-be captors, return the stolen documents and ato for the disgrace he had brought upon himself by failing his college exam.
For entertainment of a dramatic nature that carries with no depression, "A Heart's Revenge" is an appropriate subject. The story has been well handled and affords pleasant entertainment. Sonia Markova is charming in the leading role and is given adequate support by David Herbin, Frank Goldmith, Eric Magne, Bradley Barker and Helen Long. The story is by George Scarborough and the direction is by O. A. Lund.

The Story: Baron Eugene Drako is jealous of Jim Harding, and when he announces his engagement to Vera Sabouroff and, with the assistance of Dr. Wu Chang, Jim is given a drug which destroys his memory. He is thrown aboard a ship and then away to a deserted island. Vera is led to believe Jim untrue to her. However, she is suspicious of the Baron and an investigation reveals the truth of the case. She goes to the hidden place of Jim, but he does not recognize her. The guides with Vera endeavor to get Jim in leash and are forced to strike him on the head. This is the very blow which is necessary to offset the influence of the drug. With his mind fully restored, the picture ends.

Edna Goodrich in "WHO LOVED HIM BEST?"
Mutual drama; five parts; published February 4

"Who Loved Him Best?" is an interesting photoplay. Inna-Goodrich is seen to excellent advantage and does some her best screen work. The supporting cast is adequate. The interior of a studio, with the actual taking of scenes, is made use of and this should prove a fascinating feature to actors. It is a well-produced picture, and affords five reels of pleasing entertainment.

Supporting Miss Goodrich are Herbert Evans, Frank Otto, Charles Martin, Miria Folger, Burt Bushy, Nadia Cary, Thomas Wallace, Francois Du Barry and Talulah Bankhead. His direction is by Dell Henderson. The beautiful furs and coming gowns worn by Miss Goodrich should prove especially appealing to feminine members of the audience.

The story: Doris Dane, a successful motion picture actress, sacrifices her career to help George Steele, a noted sculptor, whom she is in love with. Mrs. Schuyler also is in love with Steele and tries to bring a break between the two lovers. Doris elicits that Steele has tired of her and prepares to leave him. Entering his studio she finds another sculptor copying Steele's masterpiece. On the day of the exhibition Doris exchanges the two statues, comes into the studio and smashes the work of art. Steele is heartbroken, but Doris displays her loyalty by bringing the original statue and explaining the other artist's act.

Sonia Markova in "A HEART'S REVENGE"
Fox drama; five parts; published January 29

As a whole Interesting Story Enjoyable
Star Excellent
Support Adequate
Settings Appropriate
Photography Very good

"A Heart's Revenge" stars Sonia Markova as a girl on screen who more easily portrays loving and lovable heroines than Constance Talmadge. She is fast creating an enviable reputation for herself.

This picture is a faithful reproduction of narrow, small-town life, the side of life that is simple and amusing. The scenes are laid in strictly typical locations and have atmosphere enough to make one feel that they have been transplanted to New England. After the great number of vampire pictures and the tiresome pasts of women who live by their wits, this sweet story of simple girlhood will be cordially appreciated.

Constance Talmadge has added a very interesting piece of work to her other portrayals. Earle Foxe is manly and sincere and works excellently and sympathetically with her in all their scenes. Grace Barton and Isabel O'Madigan, as the two spinsters, did much good work. Others in the fine cast were Edna Earle, John Himes, Fred Tidmarsh.

Constance: Celia is a sweet, simple young woman living in New England, with her two aunts who approved of her engagement to Obad, a villager. Celia's mother had married an artist against the wishes of the spinners and they determined to prevent a repetition of Celia's father's mistake. For the second time, an artist from the city, comes to the town to rest, meets Celia and sketches her. The aunts discover what is going on and rush the wedding to Obad. Celia, in desperation, runs to warn Frazer that he is to be married and leave town. They are going in the interest of the aunts to marry this man for whom Celia cares nothing. He advises her to go home and marry the fellow and forget art and romance. Harry Carey in "THE PHANTOM RIDERS"
Universal drama; five parts; published January 28

As a whole Good Story Western

Support Efficient

Photography Very good

A typical Harry Carey picture is "The Phantom Riders" abounding in western scenes and kaleidoscopic action. Based on "Cheyenne" Harry's invasion of Paradise Valley and the final dissolution of a collection of cattle rustlers at his hands, much opportunity is offered for scenic possibilities full advantage of which is taken in the production. Molly Malone plays the only feminine role in the picture and does well.

The story: Dave Blane, a band of cattle rustlers operating in Paradise Valley, is defied by "Cheyenne". Harry who has driven his herd into the valley to graze. Bland calls his mountain riders together, routes Harry's cattle, and then seeks the owner in hope of making use of him. Harry is influential member of the gang, who has a grievance against Harry, claims the right to settle with him and this is accepted to. In the meantime Molly Grant has prevailed upon her father to warn her of danger. Harry is discovered Grant is hanged by the rustlers and Molly is forced into marriage with Bland. Hearing that Harry is in a saloon nearby, the gang rushes the place. A gun fight follows in which the gang is finally routed by the rangers after Harry and his partner have inflicted many casualties. The picture ends with the distant chime of wedding bells for Harry and Molly.

In adapting to the screen "One Clear Call" by Larry Evans, Bluebird has achieved a production worthy of commendation. Carmel Meyers as the 'price' of her father's freedom, and Kenneth Harlan as the man who married her with him as reparation for his father's sin, depict in clever fashion difficult roles. The story of the girl who sought to win after marriage the love of her husband makes an enjoyable entertainment, being cast by Howard Crampton and Sydney Dean. The picture was directed by Harry Solter.

The story: Hutch Valiant who comes from the west to buck Wall Street, finds himself ruined through being double crossed by James Brieson. At his father's death bed, Steele Valiant promises to avenge him. 'THE GUILTY MAN'

Paramount drama; six parts; published in February

As a whole: Well handled Story: .......... Convincing
Star: .................. Good
Support: .......... Adequate
Settings: ......... Faithful
Photography: ......... Good

There is mastery in the direction and photography of "The Guilty Man," but the story deals with a subject not adaptable for every class of theatre and contains many subtleties not at all appropriate for audiences containing children. The story deals with common law marriages, the birth of children, the marriage, the divorce, and the restoration of the family, with many thrilling incidents. The direction is by Irvin W. Willatt, from the novel by Francois Coppee.

The story: Maria DuBois, deserted by her lover, shortly after the birth of her child, marries Flamboy, cruel and heartless. When her daughter has grown to womanhood Flamboy forces her to sing in his cafe and then endeavors to marry her to one of his creditors. Maria intercedes and Flamboy takes hold of her then for her safety and her mother, kills Flamboy. She is arrested and taken before the grand prosecutor, who learns that Claudine is really his own child. During the trial he enforces the same rigidity which has characterized his other trials, but in the end confesses that he is the girl's father, resigns his position and puts himself at the mercy of the public. He is allowed to go free and solemnly swears he will make up to his wife and daughter what they have missed.

"Her Boy," a picturization of H. Carey Wonderly's magazine story, "Conscription," and adapted to the screen by Albert Shelby LeVina, serves very well as a vehicle for Effie Shannon and Niles Welch, who co-stars with the well-known actress. It is the story of a mother, who through love for her only child, sacrifices her good name to save him from being drafted into the army. The play has a strong dramatic theme and patriotic appeal, and Miss Shannon has been given many long and excellent scenes in which her acting ability is brought into full play. However, the impassioned speeches are somewhat lost in a screen production and tend to weary one when overdrawn. At no time did she seem to win the sympathy of her audience, although in tense situations she is most effective.

Niles Welch, as the boy, is pleasing throughout and others in the very capable cast were Pauling Curley, as his sweet heart; Charles Riegel, as the Rev. Kimberly; Charles Sutton, as Dr. Swift; James T. Calloway, as Col. Gordon, and Patrick O'Malley, as Charles Turner. The picture was directed by George Irving.

David Morrison on his twenty-first birthday assumes the management of his dead father's mill. The United States declares war on Germany and David plans to head a company of volunteers. His mother, however, fearing to lose her identity and her fame as a widow, refuses to go and thus the number is drawn in the selective draft David refuses to claim exemption. His mother changes the date of his birth certificate and takes it to the exemption board, where she swears David was not born until a year after her husband died. David, disgraced, goes to the city and enlists. To right the wrong, Mrs. Morrison secures the correct data from her physician, confesses that her former statement was false, and there is a happy reunion.

Hesperia Film Co., Inc., presents

"MOROK"

Hesperia Film Co. drama; seven parts; published state rights

As a whole: .......... Worthy Story: .......... Convincing
Cast: .......... Fair
Settings: .......... Suitable
Photography: .......... Excellent

Eugene Sue's great masterpiece, "The Wandering Jew," is the work upon which "Morok" is based. The seven parts move so deliberately that one is of necessity more impressed by the extreme length of the picture than by the force of the story, which might be better told in a shortened version of all the horrors. The early adversities of the people who fell into the clutches of the Secret Society are faithfully told. The costume and scenery are artistically considerable. This whole attempt is worthy and if the main story were removed from the too ponderous a setting the picture might be a success. The cast did good work, though many of the characters were repulsive beyond words. The production stands sadly in need of editing by someone who can remove the drag giness. The story is based on the narrative of the animat er and the part the Secret Society played in keeping those who believed in the Rennenport forecast.

The story: Count Rennenport, a fugitive from France, makes his will, leaving all his fortune to his wife for her heir. The money is to be cared for by his faithful servant and 11 heirs until one hour after the one heir has passed, when the accumulated fortune is to be divided between all the heirs at a certain address on a certain date. If none of the heirs arrive, the money is to go to the Secret Society. The passes until the date when the money is to be divided. The heirs arrive, the money is to go to the Secret Society. The Society has deteriorated and the men in it the lowest hypocrisies. They plot against the heirs to sink the ship on which one descendant is returning from the East Indies. They lure another heiress to a fever minded asylum, where she is detained. And they throw the two in a sub-cellar, where they are apt to drown. The Ex Indian and the Parisan are released and carefully watched. At the Hippo drome they are locked in the box they occupy and at a certa hour the place is set on fire. It is planned in a diabolic fashion that in some way each heir is to be burned as they all escape. The arch plotter meets the death he plans for his victims, and all the heirs arrive in time to claim their fortune, much to the disgust of the men at the head of the Secret Society.

“Les Miserables” One of Eight Films
To Be Issued by Fox During February

Announcement has been made by William Fox of the scheduling of eight productions for publication during February. There will be two Standard pictures, four Fox Special features and two Fox-Lehrman Sunshine comedies. June Caprice and Henry Lehrman will provide the first pictures, the former appearing in “The Heart of Romance,” and Mr. Lehrman’s comedy offering being “Hungry Lions in Hospital.” Both of these will be available to exhibitors during February 3. “The Heart of Romance” is a Fox Special feature, and shows Miss Caprice as a rich girl whose guardian suspects a struggling young author of courting her for her money. The plot revolves around the test which proves the sweetheart’s sincerity.

George Walsh Feature Ready

The second week of the month, beginning February 10, will be a big one from the standpoint of the Fox management. The Special feature set down for this date is “Jack Sparlock—Prodigal,” in which George Walsh is featured. It is based on a serial story written by George Horace Lorimer, editor of the Saturday Evening Post.

The other picture of this week, considered the most important which William Fox has made this year, is “Les Miserables,” the William Farnum production that has just finished a long run on the Lyric Theatre in New York City. This created considerable surprise in the trade, due to previous announcements having led to the belief that the production would be retained for some time by the producer for road company service.

Gladys Brockwell in Dual Role

Gladys Brockwell will be seen in “The Moral Law,” beginning February 17. This Special feature gives the actress a double role, that of two half-sisters, and makes her both heroine and villainess. Another Sunshine comedy also will be published this week. It is titled “Are Meanwhile Policemen Safe?” and originally scheduled for January 13.

Jane and Katherine Lee have completed a new Special feature, which will be offered to exhibitors February 24, but this feature not yet numbered “Grands.” These are active in an orphanage and at an army post. The Fox Special feature for the week of February 24 will be “The Girl With the Champagne Eyes,” a Western drama, in which the role of Carmen is sung.

“The Reason Why,” Elinor Glyn’s Book, Secured for Clara Kimball Young

Clara Kimball Young has secured the motion picture rights of Elinor Glyn’s novel, “The Reason Why,” and is planning to make it her next Select production. The story was first published serially in a popular magazine. It deals with the tangled love affairs of a charming American girl and her English husband. The screen adaptation has been made by Mary Marlor.

Production on the new play will be started immediately and follows the star’s recently completed adaptation of “The House of Glass,” which is now being filmed. The latter promises to be rival to screen presentation the Broadway stage success. It is a gripping drama filled with tense situations, and the leading role is one in which Clara Kimball Young appears her best, it is said. The picture, which is the fourth of the “Grands” which she is making for Select Pictures, was directed by Emil Chautard and a notable cast appears in her support.

Mabel Normand Has “Fourth Estate” Atmosphere in Next Goldwyn Film

Mabel Normand, Goldwyn star, will be seen in a role unlike any hitherto essayed by her, it is said, in her next production. It is a tale of newspaper life, combining comedy and thrills and the role to be assumed by the Goldwyn star is that of a society girl, a sport of journalistic n clever-wit, whom brilliant beat her. She appears and herself with glory. The picture is, as yet, untitled.

Clarence G. Badger has been chosen to direct the production and Tom Moore will again play opposite Miss Normand. Others in the cast are Charlotte Granville, Helen Dahl, Louis Grisel, Willard Dashall, Lincoln Plumer and Wallace Mcutcheon.

Mutual Completes Six Weeks' Schedule
Productions Now Arranged to Feb. 25

Mutual's schedule of February publications includes production starring Edna Goodrich, Margarita Fischer, Ann Murdock and William Russell, while March will bring pictures starring Mary Miles Minter, Olive Tell, Miss Murdock, Mr. Russell and Miss Fischer. The schedule for late January and February is: January 21, William Russell in "In Bad"; January 28, Mary Miles Minter in "Beauty and the Rogue"; February 4, Edna Goodrich in "Who Loved Him Best?"; February 11, Margarita Fischer in "Gilted Janet"; February 18, Ann Murdock in "My Wife"; February 25, William Russell in "Detective Dan Cupid." "My Wife" deals with the adventure of a girl who appropriated the mansion next door to entertain the lover who jilted her and his bride, the unexpected arrival of the young master of the house and the girl's efforts to get rid of her common-law husband. "Detective Dan Cupid" is one of the Charles Frohman plays in pictures, produced for Mutual by the Empire All Star Corporation. It casts Miss Murdock in the role of a young English girl whose marriage is to be discovered by the police, who regard her as an eccentric aunt's will and finds herself in love with her husband after her betrothal to a soldier in France.

The forthcoming William Russell production made under the working title of "Detective Dan Cupid" gives the young screen actor the role of a romantic Sherlock Holmes. It provides Mr. Russell plenty of opportunity to develop the particular quality of humor which has marked his most recent motion picture productions, it is said.

Irene Castle and Baby Marie Osborne Stars in Forthcoming Pathe Plays

Four additional Pathe features, "Annexing Bill," "Mrs. Slacker," "The Mysterious Client" and "Any Home" have been completed during the past week and are ready to be assigned publication dates on the program.

"Mrs. Slacker," directed by Hobart Henley, is a story of conditions of the present moment, by Agnes Johnston. Gladys Hulette and Creighton Hale appear in the star roles, supported by Paul Clerget and Walter Heirs. The title of this production may be changed to a more descriptive one before the subject is released. It tells of a young fellow's fear of danger and a happy marriage to avoid being called to the colors. The patriotism of the young wife finally brings him to his senses and a fine display of courage gives the production a happy and satisfactory ending.

"The Mysterious Client," directed by Fred Wright, is a melodrama that embodies mystery, surprise and comedy. Irene Castle is starred, supported by Milton Sills, Warner Oland and Caesare Gravina. The story tells of a test of courage imposed on a young lawyer by the father of the girl whom he wishes to marry.

"Any Home," a Baby Marie Osborne feature, directed by William Bertram from a story by John W. Gray, is a story of human interest. It tells of a misguided ambition that results in the neglect of home and baby and the final righting of all wrongs through the influence of the child.

"Annexing Bill" is another Gladys Hulette-Creighton Hale feature, directed by Albert Parker from a story by Edgar Franklin that appeared in "Argosy." It is a comedy-drama with the humorous element predominating.

Title of Russell Play Changed

The title of the latest Russell picture to be published as an American-Mutual production, has been changed from "Polo Jack" to "The Midnight Trail." It is a mystery picture with an unexpected comedy atmosphere. The American-Russell productions have set such a standard that many exhibitors are cheerfully booking them on the strength of the Russell standard.

Jewel Carmen in New Feature

"The Girl with the Champagne Eyes" is the title of the new William Fox picture, in which Jewel Carmen is the star. It is a story of the north and Miss Carmen's beauty and talent again are much in evidence. The feature will be published in February.

"Turn of a Card" Starring Kerrigan Scheduled as the Next Paralta Play

Many of the spectacular scenes in J. Warren Kerrigan's forthcoming Paralta play, "The Turn of a Card," are laid in the oil fields of Oklahoma. In the role of Jimmy Montgomery Farrell, Mr. Kerrigan is seen as a young college man who goes west and strikes oil in the Oklahoma fields. During the progress of the story, the men employed at the wells become incensed and start a riot, during which they set fire to one of the great wells.

R. Holmes Paul, technical director at the Paralta studios, in securing locations for these scenes has been fortunate in securing permission to locate the sets in the heart of the famous La Brea oil district.

After having located a great oil gusher, and having won a fortune and a country estate by the turn of a card from a noted western gambler, Jimmy Farrell comes east to dispose of his option on the oil property and to look over the newly won estate. Cynthia Burdette, the daughter of its former owner, arrives from Europe, without knowing of the loss of the property. She thinks Jimmy is the chauffeur, and the situations that follow lead to a romance of a most unusual nature.

Louis Wilson, who will be remembered for her creation of the role of Delores Ruey in "A Man's Man," will be seen as Cynthia Burdette. The remainder of the cast includes Eugene Pallette, David M. Hartford, William Conklin, Eleanor Crowe, Roy Laidlaw, Clifford Alexander, Albert J. Cody and Wallace Worsley. The production was made under the direction of Oscar Apfel.

CAHILL-IGOE COMPANY ISSUES BOOKING BOOK FOR EXHIBITORS

The latest innovation of the Cahill-Igoe Company, publishers of "Screen Opinions," a weekly and monthly review service, is the exhibitor's booking book. The new aid to exhibitors contains on pages facing each other a composite memorandum blank for the motion picture theatre owner in which he can jot down the bookings for each week. In addition there is a small space left for putting down any special notes of the week.

The space allotted to each day's bookings provides a line for the entering of the day and date, also space for entering in name of the feature, the star, the producer and number of reel. Space is also left for noting the short subjects booked. The booking book is made as to be easily carried in the inside coat pocket. They are furnished by the Cahill-Igoe Company free of charge.

Charlie Chaplin Begins Initial Picture
For First National Exhibitors' Circuit

After Twenty Weeks in Retirement Comedian Begins on $1,000,000 Contract Which Calls for Eight Productions Within Eighteen Months

Occupying for the first time his new motion picture plant in Hollywood, Cal., Charlie Chaplin started this week, his initial production under his million-dollar contract with the First National Exhibitors' Circuit.

Twenty weeks have elapsed since Chaplin left the business to appear in Europe. With his return he enters the motion picture field in another capacity, that of producer. Under the terms of this contract, Chaplin will make eight subjects. Although a time allowance of eighteen months has been specified for the completion of the pictures, it will be greatly to the star's advantage to finish in a shorter period.

Chaplin's last work before the camera was for the Mutual Film Corporation. Twelve two-reel subjects were made for that concern, the last of which, "The Adventurer," was completed in August. The comedian then purchased the property on LaBrea and DeLongpre avenues, Hollywood, and after approving the architect's plans, departed for a vacation in Honolulu.

Since his return from Honolulu Chaplin has been active at the studio. He has carefully watched the progress of the erection of the various buildings, while special attention has been given to the stage, a span of more than twenty thousand square feet. Its design is original, being a combination of glass and outdoor variety.

The same organization which was affiliated with Chaplin at the Lone Star studios surrounds him today, although the comedian has made a number of additions to the various departments. One of the losses to the organization was that of Eric Campbell, throughout the past year chief foil for Chaplin, who was killed in an automobile accident a month ago.

Edna Purviance, for almost two years Chaplin's leading woman, will continue in the same capacity. Syd Chaplin, the comedian's brother, is personal manager; John Jasper, studio manager; Roland Totheroh, chief of the camera department; Danny Rabin, technical director; Frank Crompton, director of construction; Alf Reeves, stage director; "Chuck" Riesner, Charles Lapworth and Melville Brown, members of Mr. Chaplin's personal staff and Carlyle R. Robinson, director of publicity.

"Who Loved Him Best" Unique Opportunity For Edna Goodrich

Miss Edna Goodrich has a unique opportunity, it is said, in her newest Mutual production, "Who Loved Him Best?" A pictorial drama based on the life of those optimists who make Greenwich Village, the New York artist quarter, so interesting a locality.

Miss Goodrich is cast as Doria Dane, a motion picture star, whose beauty so impresses George Steele, a young sculptor, that he beseaches her to pose for him as "America Militant," a statue for which a large prize has been offered by the United States government.

The life of the art quarter is most interestingly portrayed. The picturesque studios are shown both internally and externally and the Greenwich Village background forms the prettiest spectacles seen on the screen for many a day.

"The Light Within"
Title Mrs. Russell's

Through an error inadvertently committed by a member of the studio staff of the Petrova Film Company, credit for the rilling of the second feature starring Olga Petrova was given to Larry Trimble. "The Light Within," the title chosen and approved by Frederick L. Collins, president of the Petrova Company, and Mme. Petrova herself was selected by Mrs. L. Case Russell, author of the scenario and an adaptation of her original story, "Laurel Carlyle."

Having blazed the trail through the West for productions released by the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, Joseph Partridge, division manager of the concern, a special representative to the North West, where he will center his activities in behalf of the new company for the next few weeks.

Mr. Partridge reports that he was highly satisfied with the reception Western exhibitors gave to "The Zeppelin's Last Raid," "Those Who Pay" and "The Belgian," the three productions thus far released by the booking corporation. He also is sanguine that the distribution system of the U. S. beyond the Rockies, to assemble which he made his recent trip to the coast, will be to the exhibitors of that territory a highly efficient service.

"The U. S. productions are being booked through the offices of the Sol Lesser and DeLuxe Exchanges and in the Northwest by the De Luxe Feature Company, of which Michael Rosenberg is the director. These exchange organizations are among the leading independent concerns of the West.

The booking corporation, however, has assigned a special representative to each of the Lesser and Rosenberg exchanges whose duty it will be to look after the U. S. Productions exclusively. In that way, it is believed, the special attractions issued by the booking organization will receive the benefits of special promotion and the plan, although in operation only a few weeks, has already brought gratifying results.

"I found exhibitors beyond the Rockies more optimistic than those in any other territory," declared Mr. Partridge "Business has been normal in the coast territory and there appears to be no un easiness of any nature which might bring forth. The picture's the thing on there. Any good production properly exploited is reasonably certain to fill a house."

"In California and the North Wests there are no calamity howlers. At least I came across none during my trip through territory. Everybody is pulling for the good of the trade. Conditions are far better there than in the East. Exhibitors are willing to pay good prices for the right kind of productions, and the photoplay devotees appear to have just as much interest in pictures as ever. There really is nothing over which I perspired, as far as the coast territory concerned."

Specialists Assist
Mme. Petrova in Her Film "Light Within"

"The Light Within," the second Petrova Picture Company production in which Madame Petrova will appear, necessitated the expert services of two eminent New York laboratory specialists during the making of several scenes. The story deals with the discovery of a curative serum for the purpose of combating the dread plague of infantile paralysis and Mrs. L. Case Russell's scenario called for many important scenes to be filmed in the laboratory of Laurel Carlisle, famous woman specialist, depicted by Madame Petrova as the leading character.

In order to avoid errors so frequently committed in photoplay scenes of this nature, Madame Petrova decided to guard against accidents by the presence of two prominent research and laboratory specialists. Dr. Mason Levinson, bacteriologist of the New York Board of Health, was personally drafted by the star for his important work, while Dr. Noel Campbell, famous New York surgeon, placed his private laboratory at the exclusive disposal of Madame Petrova and her director, Larry Trimble. During the filming of "The Light Within," under the direction of Trimble, the two specialists were in close attendance, with the result that these scenes will bear the most searching scrutiny of any professional audience.

Division Manager Partridge Reports Conditions Good Beyond the Rockies—Big Productions Fill Houses—No Calamity Howlers
Quebec Theatremen Win Big Victory

By a decision returned January 12, in the court of King's Bench sitting in appeals, all motion picture theatres in Quebec City may open on Sunday. This decision revokes a series of judgments delivered in the inferior court and the court of revision.

For the last few years the local theatres had been forced to close their doors on Sunday by a municipal by-law which had been sustained by the recorder's court and superior court. The next day after the decision was announced, being Sunday, January 13, several local exhibitors took advantage of the victory to open their theatres.

Charles Hill, a local Toronto exhibitor, was ordered by Judge Winchester in the Sessions to dispose of his motion picture business after he had pleaded guilty to having received stolen goods. Hill proved that he bought a bolt of silk from a patron but had given it back to the man after showing the material to his wife. In spite of this fact, the Judge insisted that the accused close up his theatre, although the latter business had nothing to do with the case, and further, that the accused give a bond of $3000, before he would permit Hill to go on suspended sentence.

Mr. Hill has an excellent reputation for fair and square dealings and it is regrettable that he should be forced to sell his theatre.

Canadian exhibitors who have made a specialty of electric lobby displays will have to find a new method for dressing their lobbies. Starting January 15, no illuminated advertising and ornamental signs are allowed because of the need for the electricity for manufacturing war materials.

Local vaudeville and motion picture bookings have been taken by the License Board for a while but Chief of Police Grasett of Toronto has got wise and declares that these theatres who originally were picture theatres and operated with pictures only and then changed to motion picture and vaudeville houses, must obtain a new license covering this change or they will be required to double up in the matter of fees or forfeit their present licenses.

Several of the theatres in small Ontario towns have been forced to close their doors until the extremely cold weather has passed, due to lack of coal. Among these are the Stanley Theatre, Lucan, Ont., and the Pleasant Hour Theatre, St. Mary's, Ont., which is closed all but two evenings a week.

The Board of Control of Montreal, Que., has taken up the suggestion that a license fee of $5.00 per year be charged for the privilege of using desired spaces for all permanent or temporary signs. It is then proposed to charge an additional fee of five cents per square foot per annum for the continued privileges.

Roland Roberts, formerly manager of the Regent Theatre, Toronto, and now manager of the St. Denis Theatre, Montreal, Canada's largest exclusive motion picture house, recently made a visit to Toronto to take up several matters of importance in regard to change of policy with the Toronto directors.

Several changes have taken place in the exchanges in Western Canada. Louis Wagner, formerly with the Canadian Universal Film Co. in Vancouver, has joined the staff of the Famous Players in Calgary, and H. Schwartz of the Winnipeg branch of the Regal Films Limited, has been promoted to the rank of booker in the Winnipeg office of the Regal Films Limited.

The exchange managers of Winnipeg have formed an Exchange Managers Association. Luxurious quarters have been secured in the Kennedy Building, where meetings of the managers will be held every week.

F. Lee, recently returned from oversea and late of the Orpheum Theatre, Montreal, has taken over the management of the Mount Royal Theatre, Montreal. The policy of Mount Royal Theatre, under Mr. Lee's management will be pictures and vaudeville with large shows daily. Mr. Lee likes the idea of an entirely different show for Sundays only.

The Speciality Film Import Limited, representing the Pathé in Canada, now has two cameramen at work in Eastern Canada. The company announces that it has improved facilities for both topical and commercial moving picture photographic work.

The Gaiety Theatre, Winnipeg, announces that starting with January, 1918, the theatre will be operated on the policy of one change of bill each week instead of twice each week as heretofore. It has also been decided to give matinees daily.
World Publicist Gives Views on Bids for Stars

"Bushwhacking and Singular Lack of Foresight"

Says Richardson

Leader Richardson, of the World publicity department, has taken a fling at what he terms "the noble pursuit of bushwhacking and a singular lack of foresight" of producers in the matter of bidding for the services of film stars. Mr. Richardson's remarks deal in particular with the cases of Ethel Clayton and Alice Brady, the former to leave the World Company in March, the latter having already joined another company.

"A sport among manufacturers during the past year or more," declared Mr. Richardson, "has taken the form of paying World stars two or three times the salaries to sign contracts elsewhere. This is a process quite complimentary to World skill in picking stars and developing them to a high point of actual production, and it also places the motion picture business in a class by itself, not alone in the noble pursuit of bushwhacking, but in singular lack of foresight.

Ethel Clayton's Case

"To illustrate, Miss Ethel Clayton's contract was with Pictures Brady-Made, will expire during the month of March, and after a vacation she will go to work for another company at a salary reported to be $2,000 a week for forty-four weeks. Naturally, it is part of the present utterance to state the amount paid to Miss Clayton under her World agreement rather than to say it was such that the corporation could afford to sell her pictures on its regular program at regular prices.

The experience of other manufacturers, who have paid fancy sums for former World stars has been that it was necessary to greatly increase the amount previously charged to the exhibitor, in the first place inviting his resentment and in the second invoking a condition made to order for this situation.

For example, Miss Alice Brady retired several months ago from World-Pictures Brady-Made, yet the corporation still has several unpublished Alice Brady features which are being issued from time to time on the World program at World prices. One of these, called "The Spurs of Sybil," is due for publication at the salary rate prevailing of March, with others to follow in due course.

Pictures in Advance

"A long time ago, when Clara Kimball Young left the World Film Corporation to join a new management at a greatly increased income, several of her pictures were held in reserve in the hope that with this situation, were released covering a period of some months' duration, and a similar case was developed in the instance of Robert Warwick, that Miss Clayton's finished photo-plays there will be a considerable number by the time her contract is ended, and presumably they will be published covering quite a long time and entering into active competition, at program prices, with the new pictures of this artist produced at the higher cost reflected in her new salary."

"This, of course, is simple and easy to do under the World's system of completing its productions for months ahead. I am not saying that the ability to go on issuing the pictures of Miss Young, Mr. Warwick, Miss Brady and Miss Clayton long after their transference to other companies is a matter of advance productivity, but it is extremely convenient and useful."

"The Light Within"

Second Patrova Film Published February 1

Immediately following the announcement that the title, "The Light Within," has been chosen for the second production in which Madame Olga Petrova will appear, the publication date for this feature was set for Friday, February 1, on which date the photoplay will be distributed through the exchanges of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit.

The premier of the second production starring Madame Olga Petrova under the banner of her own organization, will take place at either The Rialto or The Rivoli, New York, S. L. Rothapfel, managing director of New York's two beautiful photoplay temples, is, according to the Petrova Pictures, holding his schedule open to accommodate the presentation of the picture for its first appearance.

"The Light Within" was written by Mrs. L. Case Russell and directed by Larry Trimble. Thomas Holding appears in the leading male role opposite the Polish star, which is supported by a cast including Lumsden Hare, Freddie Verdi, Evelyn Dune, Frank McDonald, Matilda Brandage, Fred C. Jones, and Clarence Bell. The majority of the Petrova cast is the famous Vitagraph collie Jean, who contributes the best work of her long career as a most reliable and intelligent animal performer.

Clune Features to Be Exploited in Canada

W. H. Clune's two features, "The Eyes of the World" and "Ramona," will have elaborate presentations throughout Canada, according to Charles H. Haystead, representative of the A. J. Small Circuit of Canadian theatres, who is in New York completing plans for the exploitation of the pictures. Both features are to be shown with special scenic, musical and lighting effects in the principal theatres of Canada.

The plans for the exploitation of the Clune successes were arranged by the Arrow Film Corporation. For the past few weeks Mr. Lumsden Hare have been going on between the Arrow officials and a group of Canadian capitalists, who have entered the motion picture field of the Dominion. It was decided at these conferences to start activities with the two Clune pictures.

Saves Theatre But Burns Auto

The actions of Lee Howard, an operator in a motion picture theatre, at 649 South Main street, Los Angeles, were such as to rob the rear of the theatre and Howard grabbed the reel and tossed it out of the window. When the reel hit the sidewalk it sent the auto mobile of Mr. Mount which was standing at the curb. The car immediately caught fire and was damaged to the extent of $700, a fireman being called to put out the blaze.

The theatre was threatened for a time, but the actions of the operator, although unfortunate for the owner of the automobile, saved the playhouse from serious damage and the audience from danger from the blazing celluloid.

Arrow Film Co. Gets Warren Production

A long term contract has been entered into between Arrow Film Corporation and the Edward Warren Productions, whereby the latter is to produce certain number of superfeatures for a distribution through Arrow's state right department during the current year. To Warren productions already complete "Souls Redeemed" and "Weavers Live" have been taken over.

PARAMOUNT IN DENIAL OF ACTIVE INTEREST IN THEATRE CIRCUIT

Aaron J. Jones of the firm of Jon Linick and Schaefer and Max Goldstik of the Paramount-Artcraft exchange have sent a denial to The Examin- Herald of the item published in last week's issue in which was stated that Paramount has purchased an interest in the Central Film Company, Chicago, a statement which Paramount is interested in Ascher chain of theatres in Chicago and in other first-run theatres throughout country.

"Paramount is not interested in theatres," said Mr. Goldstine, "and it is not interested in the Central Film Company.

Ralph T. Kettering, general repre- rson for Mr. Jones, said:"

I am herewith placing in formal or our protest against the article in your paper stating that Adolph Zukor had purchased an interest in the Jones, Linick and Schaefer Circuit, Ascher Bros. Circuit and the Central Film Company. This is not so. Mr. Zukor is not interested financially or otherwise in any of the above mentioned enterprises."

The Herald article did not state that Mr. Zukor was interested in the Jones, Linick and Schaefer Circuit. The information upon which the original article was based was supplied by source which has proven uniformly liable.

Fox Film Corp. Changes Schedule; Result of Five-Day Shut Down Order

New Arrangement Makes Two Standard Pictures Available To Contractors for Specials “Jack Spurlock, Prodigal” Delayed

Exhibitors under contract for Fox Special Features will have their choice the week of February 27 of several of the company’s standard pictures. This is a direct result of the recent order of the fuel administrator providing for the closing of all industrial establishments during a five-day period.

One of the parts of the William Fox organization affected by the closing order was the film printing plant at Fort Lee, N. J. Due to the preceding coal shortage and inability to operate the plant satisfactorily, prints of pictures which were in the process of completion were materially delayed.

To meet this situation and provide a picture for the week of January 27, the Fox management has taken “Treasure Island” and “Troublemakers” from the Standard Pictures and placed them on the special feature calendar, giving exhibitors their choice. Either production which is desired by those holding Fox Special Features contracts will be furnished for the last week of the month.

“Treasure Island” is based on Robert Louis Stevenson’s novel of the same name and is a story of a search for buried treasure. Francis Carpenter and Virginia Lee Corbin are the stars. “Troublemakers” is a comedy-drama featuring Jane and Katherine Lee and shows “two little imps” engaging in all sorts of pranks at the expense of nearly everyone in the quiet country town where they operate.

The remainder of the previously scheduled Special Features have been pushed along with the June Caprice picture, “The Heart of Romance,” which was to have been released January 27, now being scheduled for February 3. This picture is completed and if the fuel administrator’s order had continued a day or two later the prints of it would have been available for release on the date originally scheduled.

“Jack Spurlock, Prodigal,” the George Walsh feature which Mr. Fox has widely advertised as being made especially for Special Features and which is to be released only to those holding contracts elsewhere, will be available, barring future unforeseen delays, on February 10, being moved up from February 3. Gladys Brockwell in “The Moral Law” will be February 17 picture, and that in “The Girl With the Champagne Eyes” the picture for February 24 and “Six Shooter Andy,” featuring Tom Mix, will be moved over from February 24 to March 3.

Lloyd’s best vein. The comedies are all produced under the general supervision of Hal. E. Roach of the Rolin Co., who has achieved success in comedy direction and who personally directed the two-reel “Luke” comedies.

Stage Women’s Relief
Active in War Work

The Stage Women’s War Relief Association, 366 Fifth Avenue, New York, is doing excellent relief work for the soldiers. Mrs. Julia Hurley, who is one of the active workers, is making a special effort to get the names of soldiers who may have been connected with the stage to be furnished.

Recently while working in a picture at Glen Island, L. I., Mrs. Hurley noticed some soldiers from a near fort who were without sweaters. She took their names and addresses and the boys are wearing hand-made sweaters from the Stage Women’s War Relief Association.

Any soldier from any district will have at any time been connected with the theatre, stage, or studio, who sets their names down without sweaters, should call on Mrs. Hurley’s special attention. This association has accomplished much and by the efforts of the women of The Stage Women’s War Relief Association will receive Mrs. Hurley’s special attention.

ial attraction. The Garden will be strictly a motion

State Exhibitors
Seek to Repeal Censorship Law

Baltimore, Md.—The Motion Picture Exhibitors Board of Maryland will ask the repeal of the State Board of Motion Picture Censor’s law by the pres-tent general assembly. The bill has been pared and will be introduced in both the House and Senate within the next few weeks. The exhibitors take the stand that it is not desired so that motion picture houses may be opened to any film that might tend to debase the morals of the community, inasmuch as the police have the power to stop the exhibition of any improper productions.
The league is maintaining headquarters at 210 West Lexington street to aid in the fight. The motion picture theatre owners point out that the amount of film consumed has been greatly curtailed by the government.
This, they say, alone will reduce by almost one-third the receipts of the Cenor, and the appeal board.

Tripped Over Metal;
Files Suit for $5,000

Baltimore, Md.—Charging that on January 2 she tripped over a piece of metal near the ticket office of the Picture Garden, 31 West Lexington street, Miss Evelyn M. Smith has sued Joseph Blechman, proprietor of the theatre, for $5,000 damages.
The suit was filed in the Court of Common Pleas, by G. Tyler Smith, counsel for Miss Smith, who asks the amount for personal injuries she is alleged to have sustained as a result of the fall.

50 Exhibitors Form
Tri-State Circuit
And Elect Officers

An organization to be known as the Tri-State Exhibitors’ Circuit which will work in conjunction with other circuits, taking in exhibitors of Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and West Virginia, has been formed in Pittsburgh, Pa. About fifty exhibitors attended a meeting held recently and elected officers.
This circuit is not affiliated with any organization and all bonafide exhibitors can become members. Much enthusiasm is being manifested and it is realized that much permanent good can and will be accomplished for its members. The financial returns to members from such a circuit are a revelation to most exhibitors and they are keen to have the organization in working order.

A. J. Barthell, former president of the Exhibitors’ League of Western Pennsylvania, is busily engaged arranging details and will present his final report at the next meeting. Exhibitors in this territory who are interested in the circuit should make application to Mr. Barthell, 804 ‘nd avenue, third floor, Pittsburgh, Pa.

Grand’Ave. Territory Opens to Theaters

St. Paul, Minn.—Another application for a moving picture theatre on Grand avenue has been made to the city council by Gilosky and Harrison who want permission to operate a theatre at 642 Grand avenue. The application has been put over for future consideration.
The Grand avenue district has a large quota of churches and efforts of the motion picture men to obtain permission to operate theatres in this territory have been met with much opposition. Recently, however, after a bitter fight, Heilbron and Weiskopf obtained permission from the council to open a theatre at 1051 Grand avenue.

INTERIOR VIEWS OF NEW YORK’S NEWEST PHOTOPLAY THEATRE
Bijou Theatre, Oconto, Destroyed by Flames

Oconto, Wis.—Fire completely destroyed the Bijou theatre here recently in a spectacular midnight blaze. The fire department fought the stubborn flames for more than five hours before they were extinguished.

There were no people in the theatre at the time the fire started and its cause is unknown. The loss of several thousand dollars was fully covered by insurance.

Operator Wage Scale
Signed in Trenton

Trenton, N. J.—Every one of the many motion picture houses in this city and vicinity signed up on a new wage scale submitted by the Trenton Motion Picture Operators' union which places the organization in line with the international union, as holding a 100 per cent standard. Skilled operators are scarce in this part of the state on account of many having been drafted into military service.

D. W. Henderson of Petrova Picture Co.
Issues Unique Folder

Toledo, Ohio—Manager Horwitz of the Colonial Theatre, which was damaged by fire and smoke recently, has announced that the theatre will be remodeled and renovated and will open shortly as a first class motion picture house. Musical comedy will be dropped.

The Colonial will have a seating capacity of 1,000 and Manager Horwitz announces that only first run and high class pictures will be shown.

No Cause for Anxiety Over Big Decrease
In Last Year's Output, Says M. H. Hoffman

The statement made by Cranston Brenton, chairman of the National Board of Review of Pictures of New York City, recently that the war is affecting the quantity of films produced warrants scrutiny by those in the industry who are anxious to keep it in mind that the quantity of pictures which will be produced over the coming year will be the same as that made in 1917.

M. H. Hoffman, of Foursquare Pictures, sees in the statistics furnished by Mr. Brenton evidence of the utmost value to producers, distributors and exhibitors. Mr. Hoffman does not believe that there should be any anxiety felt over the fact that the output has decreased in 1917; on the contrary he is of opinion that the reduced number of pictures, which will doubtless prevail in 1918 will have the effect of increasing the quality.

"What may appear at first glance to be a contraction of business with respect to all in the industry must prove, upon thoughtful examination, to have a cloud having a silver lining. I predict that there will ensue a degree of watchfulness and care on the part of both producers and exhibitors with them in a far stronger position at the close of 1918 than they now hold.

"The constructive business men in the industry are now fully awake. They recognize the need for the elimination of waste; for tightening the loose portions of their respective machines to the end that they shall develop the utmost efficiency of which each machine is capable."

"The producer of intelligence will immediately select his stories with greater caution than ever before. He next will have made the most suitable and best possible, so that there shall be no last-minute changes to be made while a company is being paid for doing nothing. Then, a carefully laid out schedule of costs will be prepared and the actual work done in a manner permitting no extravagance or loss of time or materials."

"I do not say that all producers will follow such a course; but I do contend that those who consider the interests of the distributor and exhibitor will do so."

"The distributors, also, will practice efficiency through the medium of economy in so far as this is possible. Unnecessary, but as they have been thrown out will now be squeezed as quickly as possible—by the distributor who has at heart his own business and those of his exhibitor-customers."

"In point of fact, the painstaking producer and distributor who proceed wisely will doubtless show a greater net profit at the end of the current year—even though he does a smaller volume of business."

Boston Photoplay Co. Gets "Mother" Film
From Sawyer and Lubin for New England

Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin are now preparing to distribute the latest addition to their string of state right successes, "Mother," a seven-part melodrama of the great war, starring Grace Darmond and Jack Sherrill and adapted from the stage success "Faithful." This picture was presented in New York for the first time on January 27 at the Park Theatre.

Phil. Ryan Promoted
General Manager of Standard Film Corp

Standard Film Corporation announces the resignation of R. C. Cropper, president and general manager of the organization. Phil. L. Ryan, former sales manager, has been appointed general manager to succeed Mr. Cropper.

A convention for the purpose of discussing future plans of the company was held at the Hotel Baltimore, Kansas City, recently, at which the news of Mr. Ryan's appointment was confirmed. The following branch managers were in attendance: R. C. Herman of St. Louis; Louis Fagan, St. Louis; B. F. Rogers, Chicago; J. W. Rachman, Omaha, and C. W. Stobbauch of Minneapolis.

Mr. Ryan will make no changes in the management of the various Standard offices, it is said, with the exception of Kansas City, where R. C. Herman succeeds J. L. Shipley, resigned, who goes to Des Moines, la., to accept a position under J. W. Rachman.

D. W. Henderson of Petrova Picture Co.
Issues Unique Folder

A most attractive and artistic advertising brochure is being issued by the exploitation department of the Petrova Picture Company. Daniel M. Henderson, advertising manager, is responsible for this novelty. The folder is so arranged as to not only serve as a clenching argument to all exhibitors regarding the merit of the productions starring Madame Petrova, but is also most suitable for distribution by the theatre manager to his patrons.

The outside cover carries a personal letter from S. L. Rothapfel, managing director of the Natio and Rivoli theatres, New York, highly praising the business drawing qualities of the first Petrova production, "Daughter of Destiny." Unquestionably this is one of the most interesting and effective items on the line which stirred the box-office of the Rialto during the run of the feature.

The two inside pages give in concise and complete form the various items which have influenced the numerous reviews of the press, while the back cover is devoted to the territorial distribution divisions of the First National Exhibitors Circuit Exchanges, through which offices the Petrova pictures are being published.

On their return from Boston last week, Arthur H. Sawyer and Herbert Lubin reported the successful consummation of a sales scheme worked out in cooperation in the interests of the state right features "Mothers." The two executives of General Enterprises, Inc., placed the picture to New England buyers by first booking it in one of Boston's leading photoplasy theatres in order that its drawing power might be fully tested.

The six-part feature starring Elizabeth Risdon and directed by George Loane Tucker, played at the Tremont Temple and following the first day's run, immediately established itself as a box-office attraction. Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin were literally swamped with bids from many prominent New England film purchasers who witnessed the success of their sales innovation. After due consideration of the various offers, "Mother" was disposed of for the entire New England states to the Boston Photoplay Company, represented by Edward Goldsen, pioneer exchange man and well known throughout New England. The picture will be exploited on an extensive scale by Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin.

Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin also report that the feature, "The Warrior," created a veritable sensation during a week's run at the Boston Theatre. The management of the Boston Theatre has contracted for another seven days booking for "The Warrior" on the strength of the showing made by the feature.
Mary MacLane’s Film
Has Chicago Premier

Prominent Chicago society leaders attended the premier of Mary MacLane’s first screen appearance, Orchestra Hall, Thursday evening, January 24, in the Esplanade feature, “Men Who Have Made Love to Me.” The immense theatre was filled from dollar first floor seats to balconies. The premier showing was given under the auspices of the Lake Shore Drive surgical dressings unit in charge of Mrs. Archibald Freer, director general.

Miss MacLane herself attended the bowing of the George K. Spoor feature, sitting obscurely to the rear of the first floor with a party of friends. Though sked to say a few words during the performance from her box, at the last moment decided that she would rather remain in dark corner, unseen and unheard as he public passes judgment on her offering.

After the performance she expressed herself as more than gratified at the warm reception her screen efforts produced. The unusual nature of the photo-day held the undivided attention of the audience. The picture was preceded and accompanied by a musical score, including vocal selections.

Funkhouser Refuses Permit for Hart Film

The Standard Film Corporation, through its Chicago office, is said, is preparing to put up a stiff fight with Chicago’s censor “ezar,” Major M. L. C. Funkhouser, over “The Bargain,” a Thos. I. Ince production, starring William S. Hart.

Chicago’s Deputy Superintendent of Police, after seeing the picture, refused to grant a permit. Thereupon attorneys were consulted and it is said a jury trial will be demanded.

Cinema Circuit Plays
Greier & Herz Film

The Chicago Cinema Circuit will substitute for the regular Paramount film for the week of February 2, at the Ziegfeld, “The City of Purple Dreams.”

“The City of Purple Dreams” is a Selig production and is being distributed in this territory by Greier & Herz. The theme of the film is based on a story of Chicago life.

H. A. Spanuth Sells
Charlotte Feature

H. A. Spanuth, upon his return from St. Louis, Mo., on January 29, reported the sale of “The Frozen Warning,” starring Charlotte, to William Sievers of the First National Exhibitors’ Circuit, for the state of Missouri.

Mr. Sievers will use the film for a week’s run at his New Grand Central Theatre, St. Louis, one of the leading houses in the city.

Tom resides about ten blocks from his business headquarters—“just a few steps,” is the way Tom puts it—and, with the snow just flitting with his shoe tops, it was merely a playful gambol to plow his way home. Ah, well, some fellars is born lucky.

C. H. MacGowan, assistant to the president of the Universal Film Mfg. Co., was here for several days incident to the arrangements of the amalgamation of Jewel, Bluebird and Butterfly films, for distribution through Universal exchange. C. R. Plough, formerly manager of the Bluebirds, will be in charge of the Chicago branch of the exchange, while I. L. Lesserman will become sales manager.

Art Schoenstadt, of Schoenstadt & Sons, theatre owners, is down to New York for a brief visit. He is sort of giving his fellow exhibits of the East the O. O.

Looks to us though ole Gotham must be gettin’ a bit chillier. Did you see that flock of film birds flying westward over the “Loop” last Monday, January 21? Yep; three of em: Tom Meighan, Wallace Reid and Frank Keenan.

Harry B. Fitzmaurice, one of Chi’s well known showmen, who is now manning the Pastime Theatre on West Madison street, intends making several decorative changes and will change the policy of the house entirely, he being playing the biggest and best the market affords. Luck be wit’ you, Harry, me buckoo.

No wonder it has been cloudy about these parts for the past few days, that flock of “sunshine,” handsome Jack O’Toole, former Fox manager, is now up North with the Scans, becoming naturalized, as he is now Minneapolis manager for the U. S. Exhibitors Booking Corps. No more will ye loop hounds hav’ a chance to lamp his new “darby,” the new gold tooth nor those “pale” gloves he hav’ been wearin’. Luck be wid you. Jack, me bye, is our fond wish.

That was surely some wedding party in attendance at the Rose Room, Hotel Sherman, Saturday evening, January 19. I know, we said it was to have been March 1, nevertheless, Miss Hazel Levin is no more, and Sid Goldman is now one of Chicago’s happiest of “happiest.” There was a strictly chummy affair, with the various members of the J., L. & S. organization gathered about the happy pair, all former associates of the bride. Presents? Boy, there were oodles of ’em.

The Essanay studios were surely “camouflaged” from the coal man after those last two snow storms had got through with their work. It needed but little coaxing to get everybody out doing their bit with the shovels, rather than enjoy the Arctic atmosphere prevailing from lack of the old black diamonds. It did not take long after Howard Moss and his assistants. They were busily engaged producing Essanay’s doll films, and as they were on the toboggan scene the existing conditions were more of an inspiration than troubling, and wide awake Director Arthur Hotaling, who was about to begin the production of a comedy, altered his scenario for snow scenes and hustled his company out in the big drifts about the studio buildings. Gee, some directors are merciless, ain’t they?

Carl Laemmle, president of the Universal, dropped in on the local branch last week giving the results of the recent amalgamation of branches the o. o.

Maury Fleckles, on his way to the coast, stopped off awhile at the local branch to have a visitie with Prexy Laemmle of the Universal.

Julius Bernheim, former manager of Universal Minneapolis office and, G. L. Stiles of the Universal Milwaukee office were visitors to the local exchange week of January 21.
On the Firin’ Line

We see by the Metro payroll that "Cookie" is selling Again at Chicago, selling the Metro brand of films. "Too cold up at Minneapolis, besides there's only one Paris, and that's Chicago," so speaks "Cookie." Alright ole top, we believe yer.

"Bath House Johnny" Mednikov (absolutely independent of City Hall affiliations), formerly of the Universal sales, will henceforth sell the dates. Think wonderful Celebrated Players Co films is.

'Tis heard on the road that L. L. Ballard of the World's sales squad, disports himself in an English walking suit about Chicago's famous hotels. You can't prove it by us— besides "Bally" old top, we'd rather not discuss the matath any further, bah jove.

That's nuttin, the other day Ollie Moore, a Vitagraph, was out to lunch and, returning, ran across an old pal of his. The pal had put on two feet and was folding up his Grant tights & folded up in his new uniform. Ollie gives him the O. O., complimenting him on his appearance and just as the old lad was putting on Ollie's breathes as follows: "You surely look dandy. Who are you working for?" It must be tough to be so full of business that you can think about is Vitagraph Next.

Max Levy of the Metro is certainly enjoying that pipe, gross papa presented to him last Christmas and he smokes it from us. He must be an heirloom, judging from its sound. If you have any doubts, just breeze past the Metro doors on the Mal- lers building, inside and get a whiff of what soft coal he burns. Say, it can be heard any distance. Have a heart, Max; play with it when you're at home.

Ed Mordic of the Standard has taken on a new financial interest. He is now booking the Langley Theatre. Ought to make it easy for a regular film seller to land Ed for some dates. Think you so? Well, keep on thinking. Thassall.

Louis O. Maas of the Pathé Denver sales gang, passed a few hours with the local squad last week, enroute for New York. Louis was formerly a popular member of the local team. H. E. Fried- man, Denver manager, accompanied L. O. M. eastward. Louis says: "It's great going out West. Some of the theatres are miles apart; all you need is a pair of snow shoes, skis and a toboggan. Didn't bother him tho', he got his train- ing up north at the Minneapolis branch, running around with the white-top Scans.

If George Berg didn't land a booking for his films at the Union Theatre the other night, there's nobody to blame but himself. Sure thing: he's manager and salesman combined. Alright; see that they put the name on the line.

The local sales team of the Pathé Ex- change held some "love and get together feast" the other day. Many of Chicago's well known folks were present, show- ering the boys with praise for their splendid hospitality. "Chick" Sedell poured (meaning coffee and tea), Morrie Salkin and Del Goodman served, Brother Johnson entertained, while "Dean" J. W. Brickhouse completed the services by washing the dishes. "Dutch" Meyers, who brought himself being falling away to a ton, must have been dieting, judging by the lack of victuals he con- sumed. He only took on twelve sand- wiches, six bowls of pie, six bowls of Java, about twelve cigars, and to further the aid of his digestive apparatus was seen to consume a few after-dinner mints.

Note: The food was purveyed by the famous Pumpernickel restaurant, Ch's official film caterer. Those who enjoy a good meal, every time, Ch's affair is the one to be.

Mutual Press Sheets

Form Comprehensive Aid to Exhibitors

Mutual's claim to being the originator of novel ideas now universally accepted as a matter of course under the general plan of "service to the exhibitor," is well sustained it would seem in the many interesting and helpful suggestions in the two-color press sheet which that company issues on each star production. This press sheet, prepared under the direction of the director of publicity, is the result of the combined efforts of experts in their respective lines. Its comprehensive character is shown in the variety of subjects embodied, covering every feature that is available to the exhibitor in exploiting Mutual productions.

Interesting advance stories, relating to the production or to the star, are put in form acceptable to the newspapers. Newspapermen are interested in such material, and if well constructed it will be found to be of the class suitable for local newspapers.

Hobart Henley Directs

Next Mae Marsh Film

Preparations for Goldwyn's new produc- tion starring Mae Marsh include the engagement of Hobart Henley as di- rector. His success in presenting "Par- entage" brought him to the attention of Goldwyn, and a contract was signed whereby he becomes the guiding factor in the film. In a letter to Irvin S. Cobb furnishes Mae Marsh with the story for her next play which Mr. Henley will direct. It is a doubly interesting job, Miss Marsh's latest suc- cess, "Fields of Honor" was adapted from Mr. Cobb's story of the same name.

France Films Move

The France Films, Inc., to accommodate its augmented sales force, has moved from the 8th floor of the Candler building, New York, to the twentieth floor.

The company's campaign on "The Nat- ural Law," featuring Marguerite Courtot, is well under way and considerable ter- ritory has been disposed of, it is an- nounced.

Paralta to Issue Unique Press Book

For "Robe of Honor"

Paralta Plays, Inc., has issued a press book of Henry R. Walthall's initial Paralta production, "Robe of Honor," which contains many new ideas and promises to be of great assistance to ex- hibitors exploiting this production.

The cover is decorated by a similar design used on the press book for "Madam Who." The first page inside contains the complete cast of characters together with the names of the heads of the various departments under whose supervision the production was com- pleted. The following page is devoted to catch lines to be used for various advertising purposes which takes the place of advertising layouts. Illustrations of the various billing paper, consisting of two three-sheets, two one-sheets and one six- sheet and a double column, single column and thumb-nail cuts to be used for newspaper and program presses.

In preparing the press copy for the book, it has been compiled in such a manner that it can be edited by any newspaper by the mere stroke of a pen- cil. Any paragraph can be eliminated without giving the slightest indication of the press notice. There are no squibs in the book but the first paragraph of each press notice is written in such a manner that it is a sin to delete anything of it. The fol- lowing paragraphs can easily be used for squibs by a slight alteration. Music cues are also contained in the press book.

Goldwyn Picture

Opens New Theatre

In Poughkeepsie

When Poughkeepsie's new $100,000 motion picture theatre, The Stratford, opened for the first time on Monday, January 21, as a production of Mae Marsh, in "The Cinderella Man," was the initial attraction. George Loane Tucker's picturization of the Moroseo stage success, written by the management in its newspaper advertisements to be "the ideal production with which the Stratford wishes to introduce itself to the people of this community.

The ownership and management of The Stratford engaged in an extensive newspaper advertising campaign to herald the opening of the new institution, which is architecturally one of the dominating and distinctive buildings of the city.

The Stratford is distinctly a Pough- keepsie institution, made possible by the public spirit and interest of the fol- lowing named citizens of the city: Ed. Herbert E. Gurney, John Lurie, W. De Garmo Smith, D. W. Wilbur, Dr. H. L. Salsbury, Albert F. Schwartz, John H. Dennis, John Edwards and H. H. Arnold. It is located at the corner of Liberty and Cannon streets and is the largest theatre for the exclusive produc- tion of photoplays in that section of the state.

The structure was designed by W. H. McElfatrick of New York. Edgar V. An- derson of Poughkeepsie was the general contractor. The main floor seats 1,000 persons and the balcony 500. There will be daily changes of program.

continued dramatic action that is split up into three parts, jumping from beginning to end, then back to the middle and finally returning to the end again, is one of the peculiarities of the film "Cinemelodrama, 'The Grain of Dust'," starring Madame Petrova and her company at the Poli Theatre in Miami, Florida, where they are now presenting their third production. Goldwyn Distributing Corporation announces the completion of another Rex Beach picture, "Heart of the Sunset," made from the author's successful novel of that name. Unlike, "The Auction Block," which was purchased from the Rex Beach Pictures Company and published as a regularly scheduled Goldwyn feature, "Heart of the Sunset" is to be distributed as a special Rex Beach production.

The final scenes of which have just been completed in the Southwest, is declared by its producers to be in every way a worthy successor to "The Auction Block." After viewing it in its unassembled state, Rex Beach declares it a more powerful production than "The Barrier." Mrs. Margarette O. Marsh is the featured feminine player in the production. In the leading masculine role is Herbert Heyes. Others in the cast are: F. L. Fernandez, Jane Miller, William Frederic and Irene Boyle.

The production has been more than three months in preparation, chiefly at Eagle Pass and Corpus Christi, Texas, under the direction of Frank Powell.

"The Grain of Dust"
Has Public Interest
Says Crest Co. Head

Public interest in the coming Crest picture, "The Grain of Dust," starring Lilian Walker, is providing the producers with ample evidence of the wish of their choice of stars according to President Carlton of the company. Exhibitors are revealing keen interest in the big feature, which is directed by Harry Revier, and the film is being booked with the expectation of record business.

The reception of "The Grain of Dust," on the part of state rights buyers and exhibitors, is most gratifying, and bears out our contention that really important works of fiction, with plots of strong dramatic value, make exceptional picture material," said Mr. Carlton.

"It goes without saying that works of fiction with the recognized standing and the intrinsic merits of "The Grain of Dust" are few and far between, and we count ourselves fortunate in having this feature to offer the exhibitors. We believe that the public is keen for this type of picture than for anything else that is available at present. Material of the calibre we want, of course, is not cheaply purchased, and it is, incidentally, one of the most expensive fields in which to enter, owing to the heavy initial cost of screen rights. And of course we have all the facilities of entertainment which is possible with a genuine fiction success which makes the outlay eminently worth while."

Expense of producing "The House of Glass," which Clara Kimball Young and her own company are making for Select Pictures, was increased last week when Fuel Commissioner or other losing order caught the studio force unaware. Work was rushed on the remaining scenes in the hope that the picture could be released before the Tuesday deadline, but despite every effort, about two days' work remained to be done when Friday morning dawned. In consequence, Miss Young was forced to carry her staff of players and studio helpers over the five-day halt in activities, and the completion of "The House of Glass" was not reached until the end of this week.

International Alliance Theatrical Stage Employees

Of the United States and Canada

107 West 46th Street

New York City, January 19, 1918

Dear Brothers:

So many members of our order have written me for information concerning the SHECK UNIVERSAL ADAPTER for utilizing MAZDA lamps in motion picture projection, that I have thought best to make a public acknowledgment of these letters and a public reply to them.

Through the courtesy of the MAZDA engineers, I was invited to be present at the first semi-public demonstration of MAZDA lamps in the projection of motion pictures. I realized at that time that I was witnessing an epoch-making event in the motion picture industry, and the thought occurred to me that the fruits of this wonderful invention would be more quickly available if some one were to perfect an appliance by which any existing make of motion picture projection machine could be adapted to the use of these MAZDA lamps immediately, instead of waiting for the machine manufacturers gradually to awaken to the importance of the discovery. Then the thought came to me: Why not design such an appliance myself? This idea was the inception of the SHECK UNIVERSAL ADAPTER. Its development is too long a story to tell here. Suffice to say the adapter, passing through various stages of experimental evolution, is now standardized and is operating satisfactorily in many theaters in this country. And the demand for the adapter is far in excess of our present factory capacity! So much for that; now a word as to the lamps.

Like every new thing, incandescent projection has encountered the usual number of scoffers. Many fellows who watched Robert Fulton's steamboat on its first trip up the Hudson laughed at the "hair-brained inventor who imagined that any such fool contrivance would ever work!"

I have even heard of operators who have opposed MAZDA projection on the theory that it would make projection so simple that experienced men would not be needed in the booths. To this objection I reply that it is sheerest nonsense. I take it as a trite proposition of industrial ethics that any invention which improves the conditions under which a man works, automatically raises the standard of his craft and tends to increase remuneration for his services. The linotype machine, at first bitterly opposed by the printers of this country, is one of many proofs of this axiom.

Successfully to project pictures with MAZDA lamps requires as complete a knowledge of the art as under the old arc-lamp regime, while the steady quality of the incandescent light gives an operator more time to watch his picture on the screen and to keep his films clean and in first class running condition.

But the big advantage of MAZDA Projection from the operator's standpoint is the matter of health! No more fumes in the booth—no more tuberculosis! That's the thing which should recommend these lamps to all of us who are familiar with the disastrous inroads of this terrible disease in our brotherhood.

And finally, the saving of operating costs! In the great majority of installations, my adapters and MAZDA lamps save the theaters 75c of the cost of current, so our grateful friend, Mr. Exhibitor, is not likely to commit himself to a policy of further retrenchment.

It is my firm conviction, therefore, that incandescent projection stands for better working conditions, improved health, an elevated industrial standard, and in the long run, a higher wage scale.

Yours fraternally,

Oscar W. Sheck

FEBRUARY RELEASE : CONTRACT NOW

FOX FILM CORPORATION
Credit Protection Due Distributors

A certain class of exhibitors are practically responsible for the existence of the deposit system. This is the class composed of exhibitors who have little or no commercial integrity; whose word when given to bind a bargain is repudiated without a moment’s reflection and whose self-interest is such that they will cause a distributor a severe loss without any good reason.

There are certain cases where the advance deposit scheme has been put into force with a view of obtaining from exhibitors a sum of money with which to finance producing and distributing operations. But there are many other cases where distributors have been driven to the advance deposit plan in order to compel payment for rentals and the carrying out of contract stipulations.

In the latter instance the position of the exchange is absolutely correct. If all exhibitors followed the lead of a certain class and no advance deposits were exacted distributors would be put out of business very quickly.

The dishonest exhibitor, the man who does not pay his bills and cancels bookings without due notice is a menace to the entire business. In order that exchanges may stay in business the losses which they incur from dealing with this type of exhibitor must be made up by making the rental charge higher to the exhibitor who does pay his bills.

Frequently, where an advance deposit is not required we hear of exhibitors cancelling bookings at the eleventh hour, simply out of some whim. And it is this same type of exhibitor who, when some condition arises that prevents the exchange from supplying film as agreed, is loudest in his denunciation of exchanges and exchanges.

It is simply a question of fair play. The exhibitor cannot merely regard the proposition in a selfish light and be utterly unmindful of the distributor’s interest. If an exhibitor cancels at the last moment, thereby causing the exchange to suffer a loss, it is only in the natural order that himself or other exhibitors will eventually be called upon to share the loss.

The advance deposit scheme is an inequitable and irksome proposition for many honorable exhibitors who meet their obligations when due and who regard a contract as something to be fulfilled and not to be broken. But it is not the distributor alone who has saddled the deposit requirements upon these exhibitors. The utter necessity for proper credit protection has in a great measure been responsible for saddling deposits upon all exhibitors.

The first step toward a proper solution of the advance deposit problem is to accord distributors protection from the exhibitor who does not pay his bills and who repudiates contracts.

Data for Varner

Exhibitors everywhere have raised a great protest over the tax situation as affecting their business. With a view to obtaining any possible adjustment of the matter a committee has been appointed which in turn named H. B. Varner to remain in Washington and carry on the work.

For several weeks Mr. Varner has been appealing to the exhibitors of the country to forward to him at Washington accurate data as to just how the tax is affecting their business. Up to date the lack of response to Mr. Varner’s request has been very deplorable. Yet, without question, these exhibitors who are ignoring the request are those who will complain loudest in event that no readjustment is obtained.

It is to the best interests of all exhibitors that this vital information as to how the tax is affecting their business be forwarded to Washington without delay. Without this information the work of the exhibitors’ Allied Legislative Committee will be utterly in vain. Congress will not be influenced in the matter by any general statements; if the committee cannot produce absolute data tending to prove that the tax is over-burdensome they will hardly be able to obtain a hearing.

The World Offer

The extraordinary war-time offer of the World Film Corporation is worthy of special notice. According to announcement this company has agreed for the duration of the war to supply exhibitors with an additional picture to everyone they receive on their contract at no additional cost.

This World plan will be a most excellent thing for a great many of the smaller exhibitors who are finding it difficult to make a profit owing to current conditions.

The intention of this plan to show a spirit of co-operation in a most substantial manner is to be highly commended.

Industry’s Loss

THE motion picture industry lost two good, conscientious men last week when death wrote fins across the pages of life of Leander Richardson and Joseph Kaufman. Each had made his mark in different departments of the field and each was looked upon as an authority and an expert. Mr. Richardson, as publicist, and Mr. Kaufman, as director, had few equals in their distinct lines and both will be greatly missed not only by their hosts of friends and dear ones, but in the industry at large.

Mr. Richardson has for years held high rank in newspaper circles, and was an authority on matters pertaining to theatricals. He was an aggressive, tireless worker, and up to the time of his death conducted a column in a New York periodical.

Mr. Kaufman “made good” from the start as a director and his quiet, affable way of handling those under him won for him many lasting friends in the profession.

Government Probe High Cost of Films Asked

Paramount and Artcraft Corporations Named By Michigan Exhibitors as “Chief Offenders Against Best Interests of Motion Picture Industry”

Congressional investigation into the high cost of producing films is asked in a resolution adopted by the American Exhibitors Association of Michigan at their recent convention in the city of Jackson. The document which is a detailed résumé of conditions confronting the exhibitors of motion pictures, contains in all about three thousand words.

It sets forth that while the closing of many theatres was precipitated by the sudden imposition of extra war taxes, the real cause lies in the excessively high and unnecessary cost of producing film and of film rentals which are imposed by film producers. Most of these theatres, it states, could have continued open to help the government in the spreading of patriotic propaganda had film service been obtainable at a reasonable cost.

The aid of the government is sought on the grounds that through the imposition of high rentals many theatres have been forced to close and that in this way the United States departments have been deprived of a means of reaching the public with information necessary to the successful conduct of the war.

Exhibitor Creates Star

Action in the courts is also sought by the exhibitors, founded upon the investigation of various insurance companies which, as a result, are putting under regulation. They believe that exhibitors should have a voice in limiting the salary of stars because of the integral interests of the exhibitors in the outstanding value of a motion picture star. The exhibitor holds the resolutions set forth, greatly creates this asset and value.

The Paramount-Artcraft pictures corporations are mentioned in the resolution as the chief offenders against the best interests of the motion picture business by the manipulation of the star system. The resolution further charges that the advance deposit money of exhibitors may not be in safe hands in the Paramount-Artcraft combination and declares that a statement should be forced from these advance deposit producers as to where the money is and what is being done with it.

Paramount-Artcraft Named

“That the Paramount-Artcraft pictures corporations and associated companies are the principal offenders against the best interests of the motion picture business by the manipulation of the star system,” the resolution states, referring to the Zukor companies, “that they have within about the last year offered the exclusive services of many great stars, including Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, William S. Hart, Marguerite Clark and others, and are charging exhibitors about three times more per engagement for their film rentals of these stars than the prices of about one year ago, when some of these were in the employ of other producing companies from whom these stars were taken by reason of larger offers made to these stars, which offers were possible because of the large financial resources of the Paramount-Artcraft company.

“Exhibitors were getting some of these stars in the pictures equally as good from other producers at less cost about one year ago; that these producers are now paying Mary Pickford a reputed salary of about twenty thousand dollars a week, which we believe is much more salary than a motion picture star is really worth; that one thousand dollars and less per picture is a mere token of the amount of salary of the greatest moving picture star to receive for making pictures continually, and that this is a factor of advantage not in keeping with that economy that should be exercised in times of war and should therefore be discontinued at once.

Seek Monopolistic Control

“That these same producers have caused the salaries of all motion picture stars and directors to be increased beyond their actual value in order to secure the better stars and directors as they become popular from time to time so that these producers may control the film market by discouraging other producers to leave the field to them alone.

“That the Paramount-Artcraft corporations have used the so-called advance deposit system, combined with the “star system,” and thereby caused exhibitors to pay prices for film service in amounts more than this service was worth, on the expressed or implied warranty that their film service would be of greater merit and drawing value and increase the box office receipts under their so-called “open booking plan” (which is a misnomer): that the experience of exhibitors has been that pictures produced under this “open booking plan” were no better in drawing value than pictures produced heretofore by the Paramount and associated companies.

“Therefore, we believe exhibitors have action for redress and damages in the courts because of this expressed or implied warranty which was made when contracts were secured from exhibitors on the so-called “open booking plan.” Furthermore, we believe that the advance deposit money of exhibitors may not be kept safe or in keeping and that a statement should be forced from these advance deposit producers as to where this money is and what is being done with it.

Force Increased Admissions

In another part of the document it is charged that unfair producers, through the paying of high salaries to stars and to directors, have so increased the price of film rental that exhibitors have been forced to increase their prices. It is also charged that these producers hope to gain by the entire business of producing and exhibiting motion pictures.

That the cause of this advance in film rentals, the resolutions read in this connection,” results from certain producers of large financial resources who are and have been for some time aiming to monopolize and control the motion picture business in its entirety through the source of the so-called star system.

That this star system operates through manipulating, over-bidding and contract for the services of all great motion picture artists and directors by certain producers as these great artists become popular to the end that motion picture exhibitors in order to have good pictures with good stars for showing in their theatres may be compelled to take film products exclusively of these producers.

Recall Moore Case

As an example of this the document cites the case of Tom Moore, Washington, D. C., exhibitor, who, when informed by the Paramount-Artcraft corporations that he would have to show the pictures of those companies in his houses to the exclusion of all other productions, cancelled all his contracts with the company.

Cost of producing pictures has risen from about one hundred dollars for the first motion picture reel, the resolutions state, to reels reputed to cost as much as a hundred thousand dollars a reel of one thousand feet. Five-reel productions today, it states, are costing an average of forty thousand dollars where the cost was only five to ten thousand dollars before the so-called star system came into vogue.

Pictures No Better

These higher priced pictures, it states, are no better, often not as good, as pictures that were produced at a more reasonable cost before the advent of the star system, and that some kind of immediate control is needed to prevent further machinations and manipulations of the industry.

An amount estimated to be about one million dollars a month in war taxes, the resolutions state, is lost to the government because of closed theatres, in addition to the loss of the use of many screens and stages in aiding the government in worthy propaganda work necessary to win the war.

A copy of the resolutions has been given to the allied exhibitors legislative committee at Washington by B. Varner, chairman, that the information contained therein may be presented to the proper government officials with the request to take such action as will obtain relief from the present monopolistic and unfair methods of trade.
William A. Brady Resigns Post
As Head of World Film Corp.

Retiring Director-General Yields to Press of Other Interests—Will Retain Seat on Directorate and Interest in Company

William A. Brady of the World Film Corporation has resigned as director-general of that company, due, it is said, to the heavy press of other lines of enterprise in which he is interested, principally his theatrical properties.

In a statement which he issued following his withdrawal from active management of the World company, Mr. Brady announced that his motion picture plans for the future were indefinite, but said that his principal line of endeavor along this line would be devoted to the completion of his picture, "Stolen Orders."

The retiring director-general will not, however, relinquish his seat upon the directorate nor his interest in the company. He emphasized that he would expect, as well as strive for, the continued success of World Pictures. Productions and other plans for the future of the company, he said, are in good shape and intimated more good tidings for exhibitors in the near future.

Expresses Deep Appreciation

Mr. Brady closed his statement with a deep appreciation of the great cordiality that had been extended to him and of the reception that has been given his productions. His statement in full follows:

"After two years of the most intensive application to the production of a regular program of weekly releases, at the same time carrying on my many theatrical and other enterprises, I have decided, in justice to my own interests and the demands upon my time, to withdraw from my active responsibilities in the World Film Corporation, retaining my seat upon the directorate and my interest in the company.

"I shall, of course, expect, as well as strive, for the success of World Pictures and that the company continue prosperous as heretofore. Production and other plans for the future are in good shape in the World Organization and in due course exhibitors may expect to hear good tidings. The company will make further announcement in respect to its own intentions and plans in a later statement.

"I am happy to announce that the stock of completed pictures on hand with World is not only ample in quantity, but in quality to satisfy the most exacting public for the next twelve months and to make any unnecessary or justifiable any interruption that there could be or would be any interruption in regular service of dependable pictures.

"Finally, I wish to express to the trade my deep appreciation of the great cordiality that has been extended to me and of the reception that has been given my productions and to say that in the future, as in the past, I shall always be keenly interested, personally, in watching the development and doing what I can to help in the safeguarding of the interests of the theatre men, manufacturer, distributor and exhibitor alike.

"What my motion picture plans for the future are has not as yet been decided. For the present I have dedicated myself to the completion of my big picture, "Stolen Orders."

DIORATOR KAUFMAN

GALLLED BY DEATH
AFTER BRIEF ILLNESS

Victim of Pneumonia Dies in N.Y. Hospital—Directed Many Noted Stars

New York—(Special to Exhibitors Herald)—Joseph Kaufman, one of the best known and most popular directors in the motion picture industry, died February 1 at the Polyclinic Hospital, of pneumonia, after an illness of ten days.

Mr. Kaufman had but lately joined the Famous Players-Lasky forces and contracted a severe cold while directing Billie Burke in a film entitled "Let's Get a Divorce," at the Famous Players studio, New York.

Joseph Kaufman was thirty-five years of age. He was born in Russia, but came to the United States when quite young and was educated in Washington, D. C. His career as a director dates back to the Lubin Company, where he was employed for some time and made a name for himself from the start.

Mr. Kaufman directed George M. Cohan in "Broadway Jones," Paulette Goddard in "Ashes of Embers," Elsie Ferguson, Clara Kimball Young, Marion Davies, Clark and Billie Burke, as well as many other players.

He is survived by his wife, known professionally as Ethel Clayton, and who recently signed a contract to join the Famous Players-Lasky organization to work under the direction of Mr. Kaufman.

Motion Picture Theatres to Be Asked To Further Aid the Food Administration

Six Slogans on Thirty-Foot Trailers to Be Added to All Films for Next Three Weeks

The motion picture industry has just been given another opportunity to do its bit for Uncle Sam. Since the United States entered the world war for democracy, the screen has again and again proven the tremendous part it now plays in modern life.

"The film has come to rank as a very high medium for the dissemination of public intelligence, and, since it speaks with a universal language, it lends itself importantly to the presentation of America’s plans and purposes," said President Woodrow Wilson when he requested that the motion picture industry should be mobilized to aid the various departments of the government in the prosecution of the war.

In the two Liberty Loan drives, the War Savings Stamp campaign and Red Cross work the screen has proven its patriotism. Now, through the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, Herbert C. Hoover, National Food Administrator, calls upon the film world to aid in making the campaign to conserve food a success, by adding the following slogans as thirty-foot trailers to all pictures for the next three weeks:

"Use only Victory bread, so that our boys at the front may be maintained. It is a small thing they ask of you as partial recompense for the much you ask of them."

"Observe Tuesday as a meatless day and one meatless meal every day."

"Remember, children must have whole milk. Use all of the milk—waste no part of it."

"Observe Mondays and Wednesdays as wheatless days and one wheatless meal every day."

"Observe Tuesdays and Saturdays as porkless days, eating every day a fatty and sugar saving meal. Use fruits, vegetables and potatoes abundantly."

"Hoarding food in your household is both selfish and unnecessary. The government is protecting the food supply of its people."

The Motion Picture Food Administration Committee, working in cooperation with Herbert C. Hoover, National Food Administrator, numbers Arthur S. Fries, treasurer of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, New York; Chairman A. C. Pantages, Pantages Circuit of Theatre San Francisco, Cal.; Thomas H. Inci, treasurer of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, New York; Chairman A. C. Pantages, Pantages Circuit of Theatre Chicago, Ill., and John Wylie, editor Moviatising World, New York City. The campaign is being directed by the N. M. P. I.
George K. Spoor
In Fight to Break
Mastbaum’s Power

Fight to Finish” Declared By Essanay Head’s Personal Representative

What is declared to be a fight to a finish has been begun on the Stanley Booking company of Philadelphia by the Essanay manufacturing Company, which, it is asserted by the film company, will break the power of Stanley Mastbaum and reserve to the Pennsylvania metropolis a good open market for the booking of film.
Acting with the full sanction and approval of George K. Spoor, president of the Essanay company, Andrew J. Calla-nan, personal representative of Mr.
poor, has notified the Stanley company that all existing contracts between and the George Kleine exchange are an end.
Mr. Callahan’s ultimatum took effect immediately and no theatre booking through Mastbaum’s company can now remain Essanay pictures. Mr. Spoor’s personal representative will, in the near-ter future hold a conference with Mr. Kleine and it is believed that the outcome of the meeting will be the support of other interests booking through the Kleine exchanges in the fight on the Mastbaum company.

Full Investigation Made.

Prior to taking the step he did, Mr.
Callahan had made an investigation of the Philadelphia film situation which covered more than a week’s time. The facts uncovered concerning the methods of the Stanley Booking company, he said, made it impossible for the Essanay company to longer be identified in any way with this project.

Two moves were made at once by the Essanay representative. Through a prominent attorney of Philadelphia he began the instigation of criminal proceedings against the Mastbaum interests.
He then got into communication with George McCorkle, special investigating attorney of the Federal Trade Commiss-on, and made arrangements to turn over to that official the information he had obtained during his investigation.

Testimony Not Disclosed.

Mr. Callahan gave his testimony to Special Investigator McCorkle in Philadelphia last Saturday. The full text of his disclosures could not be obtained, as much of it undoubtedly will be used by the Essanay company as the basis for criminal action against Mastbaum and will likely furnish the groundwork for possible federal investigation into the Philadelphia film situation.

At the Chicago office of the Essanay company it was said that the Philadelphia matter was fully in the hands of Mr.
Callahan and that the entire situation would be handled by Mr. Spoor. It was said, had no statement to make at this time.

“I spent nearly two weeks going into the matter from every angle,” said Mr.
Callahan. “The result has proved conclusively to me that Stanley Mastbaum has the Philadelphia exhibitor by the throat. He can only exist at the pleaure of ‘The King.’ Can anything be more absurd than the practice of calling Mastbaum ‘King?’

Essanay on Offensive.

“With the sanction and approval of George K. Spoor I have declared war on Mastbaum and we have determined that we will fight him to a finish. It will not be a defensive fight, but will be an offensive one and an aggressively ofensive fight right from the start.

“We are out to make a real open market in Philadelphia whether it costs $5,000 or $50,000. We are going to beat Stanley Mastbaum. There will be no promise after we have spent a few thousand dollars the way other concerns have done in the past. We are in it and in it to the very limit of our resources.”

Walsh Film in Demand.

Exhibitors are evincing keen interest in the production of “Jack Spurlock—Prodigal,” with George Walsh as star, according to announcement from the Fox offices, and many new patrons have been obtained for the William Fox Special Features, to whom this picture is to go without extra charge. This, however, applies only to exhibitors listed January 30 as having contracted for Fox Special Features.

Aaron Jones Denies Central Film Sale

Aaron J. Jones, president of Jones, Linick & Schaefer, who with Nathan Ascher, heads the Central Film Company, an important independent film distributing concern of Chicago, has issued a denial that the Paramount Pictures Corporation has purchased a substantial interest in the Central company.
Mr. Jones’ statement follows:

“Neither the Jones, Linick & Schaefer Co. or Ascher Brothers, as a corporation or individuals, have sold any part of their holdings to anybody in their theatres or film exchange nor do they intend to, or has the Paramount company at any time ever asked for purchase of any interest.”

Three Scenes from the Paralta Play, "The Turn of a Card" Exhibitor-Operator Controversy Breaks Out Once More in Chicago

Local Branch of A. E. A. Puts Up to Its Executive Committee Advisability of Placing Matter Before State's Attorney

Investigation of the motion picture operator's union may be begun by State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne as the result of action taken by the Motion Picture Theatre Owners Association at the regular meeting of that body held in Chicago last Friday.

While much dissatisfaction has arisen between operators and operators over the one day closing mandate of Fuel Administrator Garfield due to the fact that some operators have insist upon full pay and overtime for the Monday matinees, the latest grievance which prompted taking the controversy to the state's attorney involves the formation of a cashier's union.

August Zilligen placed the matter before the members. While he did not name the theatre in question, he informed the exhibitors present that an operator had been withdrawn from a south side house because the cashier of the theatre had been discharged. This, it is said, was the first intimation the exhibitor had that such a thing as a cashier's union was in existence.

Zilligen Advises Action

"This matter should be put squarely up to State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne," said Mr. Zilligen. "We exhibitors are representative citizens and should be allowed to run our own businesses. If it has come to a point where the operators can tell us how to run our houses, it is time we closed up."

Mr. Zilligen moved that a committee be appointed to see the Motion Picture Exhibitors League, Chicago branch, and with them take the matter up to Mr. Hoyne in a body. After some discussion the exhibitors decided to put the matter before their executive committee.

E. Thomas Beatty, president-elect of the association, is still ill and was not present at the meeting. George Henry, vice-president elect, was voted chairman, and presided at the session.

Lincoln's Birthday Discussed

Adolph Powell called the attention of those present to the fact that Tuesday, February 12, is Lincoln's birthday, and also reminded them that due to the fuel administrator's ruling if it was adhered to strictly theatres would be closed on that day. He suggested that a communication be sent to the legislative committee at Washington urging them to see if some action could not be taken which would permit the theatres to stay open on that day and close some other time in the week.

This was vigorously opposed by Mr. Zilligen, who contended that the theatres were already the most favored industry under the ruling of Administrator Garfield.

Take No Action

"I think the best thing we can do is to remain silent and seek no further deviations of the ruling," he said. "The government did us a great benefit when it permitted us to remain open on Monday and close on Tuesday. We were practically the only industry to be so favored. I think the best thing we can do is to let well enough alone and take no action in this regard."

The opinion of Mr. Zilligen predominated and when the vote was finally taken it was unanimously against any action whatsoever in the matter.

The committee which was appointed to wait upon the Commonwealth Edison Company concerning refunds on contract lighting because of "lightless" Sundays and Thursdays, reported that while the company was not yet in a position to do so, due to its bookkeeping system, the refund would be made.

Powers' Projectors Put to Novel Use

At the special presentation of the "Crucible of Life," which was given Churchill's restaurant, New York, Feb. 2 by Messrs. Lubin and Sawyer of the General Enterprises Company, much favorable comment was caused by the stereopticon appearance of the figure on the screen that many in the audience wondered whether a special apparatus was being used. This was not the case however—the unique projection result was obtained by the use of a new pr and two 6-A Powers' Projectors.

Clarence F. Darrow
On Film Censorship

Unable to be present at the recent hearing before the Steffen sub-committee concerning the censorship of motion pictures in Chicago, lawyer Darrow, a lawyer of national repute, incorporated in a letter his views on the subject, which were laid before the aldermen by H. J. Friedman, representing the film interests. In substance, Mr. Darrow wrote as follows:

"The present system of censorship in the city of Chicago is intolerably stupid. There is the same danger to the freedom of thought in the censoring of motion pictures as there is in the censoring of the stage or the press. Surely no intelligent American citizen today would countenance a censorship of either the stage or the press. Why, then, should there be censorship for the 'movies.'"

Other city speaker has not reached that point where it is ready to do away with all censorship of motion pictures I hope that the City Council will amend the law so as to remove as far as possible the dangers of one-man censorship and the stupidity of the police brand."
Blaine McGrath Edits Screen Telegram Mutual News Film Which Supplants Weekly Newspaper Man of Wide Experience With Various Publications and News Pictorials Selected by John Freuler For Important Post

The appointment of Blaine McGrath to the editorship of the Screen Telegram, which is announced by John R. Freuler, president of the Mutual Film Corporation, Mr. McGrath goes to the Screen Telegram department of the Mutual from the office of managing editor of the Chicago Tribune. He was previously connected with the International News Service and with various Hearst picture enterprises.

The Screen Telegram, the new Mutual news film, will be issued twice a week, supplanting the Mutual Weekly, the present news reel.

Mr. McGrath began his newspaper career on the Indianapolis Sun, going on to the Milwaukee Journal, the United Press in New York, the St. Louis Times and the International News Service, later becoming a member of the staffs of various Chicago and New York newspapers. In the moving picture field he edited the Hearst-Selig News Pictorial, the Hearst-Vitagraph news reel, the Hearst International News Pictorial until it was merged with the Pathé News.

The staff of the Screen Telegram is now practically complete and staff cameramen and correspondents have been placed in all of the more important news centers in North America and abroad.

The offices of the Screen Telegram in Chicago are located at 6235 Broadway. The location of the New York offices will be temporarily at the Mutual's exchange at 1000 Broadway. Arrangements have been completed for the printing of the Screen Telegram in both New York and Chicago to insure swift and adequate distribution of the two reels a week.

Contracts have been closed by the Mutual's sales department with leading and representative theatres in a large number of the important centers, including Sid Grauman's new million dollar house in Los Angeles.

Texas Company Buys
Two W. H. Co. Films
And Open New Office

The Special Film Company of San Antonio, Texas, has secured the rights to the two W. H. Productions Company Hart productions, "The Bandit and the Preacher" and "The Hell Hound of Alaska," and the twenty-eight two-reel Mack Sennett comedies, for Texas and Arkansas. They have established their branch office at Dallas for the purpose of exploiting these productions.

W. G. Underwood, who will be in charge of the exchange, is one of the pioneer film men of the Southwest, having located in Texas about ten years ago. For the past three years Mr. Underwood has been manager of the Pathe Exchange branch office at Dallas.

L. C. Baxley, who is also associated with this enterprise, was also connected with the Pathe Exchange at Dallas for a period of two years and is considered one of the best salesmen in this territory. They have chosen the Matinee Bar of Dallas as a branch office, because it is one of the old landmarks which is well known to film men and exhibitors who have visited Dallas in the last five years.

Boost "Smoke Week"

Let us not forget "Smoke Week" to be held throughout the United States under the auspices of "Our Boys In France Tobacco Fund," for the purpose of supplying much-needed smoked to American soldiers in the trenches of France.

The amount sought is $3,000,000, and the week allotted to obtain it is that which includes Washington's birthday, February 18 to February 24.

Handling the publicity for the occasion, in addition to his work for the Petrova Picture Company and McMurtry Pictures, is B. E. Emmis. The manager of the fund is A. Blaikie Dick. These men are volunteering their time and services.

You've dug deep. But you can always dig just a little bit deeper. Swear off if you've got to. But by all means support this project and see that the boys "over there" get the smokes so sorely needed.

Chicago Houses
Face Shutdown From New Order

Local Fuel Administrator Orders Homes and Industries Supplied First

Motion picture theatre owners of Chicago and Cook county were hit another body blow this week, due to the acute coal shortage in Illinois, when Raymond E. Durham, fuel administrator for Cook county, issued an order that coal is to be supplied by dealers only to homes and other preferred users until their needs are filled. Dealers were ordered not to deliver fuel to motion picture houses, theatres or industries as long as there is danger of suffering in homes.

Any number of the motion picture theatres in Chicago have been operating on a day to day basis as far as fuel is concerned and with the latest order of the county fuel administrator many of them face a complete shutdown. The only hope held out is for a moderation of the extreme cold weather which would permit the railroads to resume normal traffic. The order of the fuel administrator follows:

"February 25.—To the Coal Dealer of Cook County—Gentlemen: Unit further notice, all coal dealers of Cook county are warned to observe more closely the Garfield order of Jan. 1 which provides that they shall give preference to the necessary current requirements of domestic consumers, hospital charitable institutions, the United States government, fuel manufacturers of perishable food or food necessary immediate consumption, or municipal, county, or state government for necessary public service. Under this order you are hereby strictly directed to discontinue delivey of coal to saloons, breweries and motion picture houses, theatres, or other places of amusement, or to industries, until the class of consumers enumerated in the foregoing and the schools are first at quately provided for.

"It is imperative that this order be scrupulously carried out, and any violation on the part of any coal dealer will result in cutting off his coal supply."

M. P. Exposition Date
Fixed for October

The National Motion Picture Exposition which was scheduled for February 2 to 10 in Grand Central Palace, New York, has been postponed until October 5 to 13 are the dates decided on by the management representing the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry and the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America, who makes the exposition will be held.

The postponement was determined upon after a series of conferences and meetings, participated in by nearly all the parties concerned, with which it came apparent that the confusion brought about by the temporary close of many industries and the movement to conserve heat and light made this an opportune time for carrying out the plans for the show in the fall.
Tribune Reviews Are Target Of Theatre Owners' Resolution

Local Exhibitors Pass Measure Declaring Criticisms Unharmonious With Dignity of Fifth Greatest Industry of United States

Official action protesting against the present method of conducting motion picture reviews in the Chicago Tribune is taken at the meeting last Friday of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners Association, Chicago branch of the American Exhibitors Association. The resolutions adopted state in resolutions at the method of conducting reviews as "unharmonious with the dignity of the fifth greatest industry in the United States" and that in many cases subjected exhibitors to monetary loss through pages being prejudiced unjustly against certain productions already booked by exhibitors.

A copy of the resolutions which were read unanimously by the association will be sent to the paper and it is the hope of the members that some action will be taken tending toward a more dignified handling of motion picture reviews. The resolutions follow:

Direct Sales Plan Endorsed by Local At N. Y. Meeting

Exhibitors of Sixteen States Have Signed to Adopt Scheme—Seven Producers Interested

At a meeting of the New York Local 1, of the M. P. E. L., held Tuesday afternoon, January 29, at the headquarters in New York City, the Manufacturer Exhibitor Direct plan, which was approved by the Allied Exhibitors Convention in Washington in December, was presented. E. M. Chadwick, Joseph A. Alden, Harry Rapp, Louis L. Levine and Charles C. Pettijohn presented the details of the plan for the consideration of approximately seventy-five exhibitors present.

A motion was made and unanimously carried to per this Direct Sales Plan into immediate effect in New York City and a committee was appointed by President Haidner to secure signatures necessary to guarantee New York City's minimum quota. Quotas have now been granted under this plan for sixteen states and quotas are now organizing to opt the plan in sixteen other states as well as New York City and Brooklyn.

Exhibitors' booking units are springing up in all parts of the United States for the purpose of marketing film under this direct Sales Plan. The seven independent producers engaged in this enterprise are receiving considerable lists and encouragement from exhibitors everywhere, it is said. Temporary offices of the manufacturer to Exhibitor direct plan have been established at 523 Longacre Building, New York City.

"Whereas, we believe that the present method of conducting reviews of motion picture productions in the Chicago Tribune is entirely unharmonious with the dignity of the fifth greatest industry in the United States, and

"Whereas, we feel that harm is being worked upon the exhibitor as well as the distributor and producer because of the manner in which these criticisms are conducted,

"Whereas, we feel that our patrons are many times unjustly prejudiced against productions, already booked by us, to our monetary loss through said reviews; therefore, be it

"Resolved that we, members of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners Association, do hereby protest against the present style and manner of conducting motion picture criticisms in the Chicago Tribune, and be it further

"Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the said newspaper that our stand in the matter be clearly understood."

The resolutions were introduced by Louis H. Frank, treasurer of the organization, and promptly seconded by August Zilligen.

George Larkin Star Of Athletic Drama

George Larkin, who made such a favorable impression in the Physical Culture photoplay, "Zongar," which was written and produced by Bernarr Macfadden, editor of Physical Culture Magazine, is rapidly forging to the front as a screen star.

Mr. Larkin not only excels in athletics but has shown marked dramatic ability. His pleasing personality has gained him a multitude of friends among motion picture patrons and his artistic achievements and daring have won for him the sobriquet of "Gentleman Unafraid" upon the screen. Mr. Larkin will appear in forthcoming Physical Culture photoplays under Mr. Macfadden's supervision.

Film Stars Appear In Prominent Stage Successes as Well

It is a matter of interest to state right buyers and exhibitors alike that several of the players who have appeared in the various features distributed by Arthur H. Sawyer and Herbert Hubin, General Enterprises, Inc., are now characterizing the prominent roles of more than one Broadway stage success.

At the present time Elizabeth Risdon, whose interpretation of the title part in the General Enterprises, Inc., feature, "Mother," created a very versa- tion throughout the film world, is appearing in "Seven Days Leave," now playing nightly at the Park Theatre, New York.

In the same play also appears Edwin Fosberg, who is one of the featured artists in the latest state right feature, "The Crucible of Life," now being distributed by Messrs. Sawyer and Hubin. In the same film appears Winifred Harris, at present delighting audiences throughout the country by her interpretation of an important character in the stage success, "Cheating Cheaters."

Messrs. Sawyer and Hubin believe that prominence of several of their leading film players on the speaking stage lends an important publicity value to their screen appearances in the state right pictures, "Mother" and "The Crucible of Life." In order that the various purchasers of territorial privileges to these features may capitalize this publicity, the stage appearances of Risdon, Fosberg and Harris have been emphasized strongly in all of the special exploitation and advertising material. In addition, a special booklet has been compiled giving in full information regarding the plays, where they are showing and the exact roles participated in by the General Enterprises artists.

William Fox Now Has Nineteen Directors

The recent addition of Edmund Lawrence to the staff of directors of the Fox Film Corporation brings the total number now in the employ of William Fox to nineteen. Two of these, Saint and Oscar A. C. Lund, have recently joined the Fox forces. Mr. Lawrence is directing Virginia Pearson in a new war play. Mr. Le Saint is working on the Pacific Coast, and Mr. Lund at present is in New Orleans taking scenes for Peggy Hylan's first Red Head.

The others include J. Gordon Edwards, now in California; R. A. Walsh, Frank Lloyd, who has just completed a picture dealing with the divorce problem; Carl Harbaugh, Richard Stanton, C. M. and S. A. Franklin, Harry Millarde, Kenean Buel, Bertram Bracken and Henry Lehrman. Mr. Lehrman's direction of Sunshine Comedies. Those on the Pacific Coast, besides Mr. Edwards, are Mr. Lloyd, the Franklin, Mr. Lehrman, Mr. Le Saint and Mr. Bracken.
George Loane Tucker Appointed Managing Director of Goldwyn
Will Have Oversight and Supervision of All Company's Productions—To Direct Limited Number of Pictures

George Loane Tucker, one of the ablest directors and producers in the motion picture industry, has become managing director of production for Goldwyn Pictures Corporation and will have oversight and supervision of all the company's productions.

From the earliest days of Goldwyn, Mr. Tucker, it is said, has taken a vital interest in the company because he felt then and now that it presented one of the greatest opportunities for screen achievement in the industry, and because he was in entire harmony with the Goldwyn plan of making only quality productions.

That George Loane Tucker should step into this important post is of great value to Goldwyn for many reasons, not merely because he is an able director, but because he is one of the greatest judges of story values for the screen as well as a master of continuity—one of the most difficult and exacting details of the picture art. The assumption of these increased duties by Mr. Tucker will not win him exemption from personally producing pictures, for he will continue to make a definite number of productions for Goldwyn in its annual scheduled output. But, in addition, he is to give his attention to all other Goldwyn productions and this will unquestionably greatly increase the Goldwyn average of excellence.

Already Mr. Tucker has produced two pictures for Goldwyn—Mae Marsh in "The Cinderella Man" and Mabel Normand in "Dodging a Million."

His past achievements have equipped the new managing director for his present work at the Goldwyn studios. When it is recalled that he produced the widely discussed "Traffic in Souls" before transferring his activities to England for a long period, it will be seen that handling difficult subjects is not a new experience to him.

His capital direction of Albert Chevalier in "The Middleman" has not been forgotten, nor have his other pictures ceased to be milestones in his career. "Rupert of Hentzaun," "Called Back" and the W. W. Jacobs stories were all given to the screen by George Loane Tucker, to say nothing of the big patriotic spectacle produced for the British government, "England Expects. Then came his memorable Hall Caine drama, "The Manx-Man," immediately succeeded by his connection with Goldwyn.

No Amalgamation—Convention to Be Held as Planned, He Says

Whatever steps may be taken by the amalgamation committee of the American Exhibitors Association and the Motion Picture Exhibitors League, formed at the Allied Exhibitors Convention in Washington last December, the annual convention of the American Exhibitors Association scheduled for Detroit July 2 to 5 will be held.

This announcement was made by Frank J. Rembusch, national secretary of the A. E. A., following the convention of the Michigan State exhibitors at Jackson, Mich. At this meeting some fear was expressed by those present that due to the fact that an amalgamation committee had been appointed this might in some way affect the holding of the convention.

Members of the committee appointed by the Detroit exhibitors to make arrangements for the annual affair have already expended considerable time and money preparing for the event and were much concerned over the issue.

"There are some impressions out that we are amalgamated and therefore will not hold a convention," said Mr. Rembusch. "This is all wrong. We have not amalgamated and therefore, inasmuch as the committee has already gone to some work and expense toward holding the convention and for other reasons it seems no more than right that we hold the convention just as planned."

The amalgamation committee has not as yet held any meetings. It was felt by the exhibitors that inasmuch as so many important problems confronted the industry and as long as no definite agreement had been reached whereby the two organizations could act in unison, the efforts toward permanent reconciliation could be delayed. As far as could be learned no time has been set for the committee to meet to consider the amalgamation problem.

Virginia Valli Guest Of Honor at Dances

Virginia Valli, Essanay star, who supports Taylor Holmes in "Ruggles of Red Gap," responded last week to a call from Streator, Ill., for her personal appearance at a patriotic benefit dance.

Miss Valli attended the event, as guest of honor, garbed in the costume of "Miss Columbia." In company with local "Uncle Sam," the actress led the grand march and during the evening addressed the gathering on the interesting phases of studio life. For the most part, the guests of the affair appeared in masquerade of sun shining light of filmdom. During her two-day stay in Streator, Miss Valli was the guest of the American Club.

Be that as it may we must tip the hat to Wally Van and the rest of the directors who took an active part in arranging the M. P. D. A. supper and dance at the Biltmore. For a small man Wally van packs around the biggest wallop in the way of big ideas we have met in many moons and the masterhand was seen in his arrangement of the whole affair and the finished manner in which it was run. It will long be remembered by those at that aperitif an entertainment of quality, and will do much to remove the stigma which has been cast on the picture industry in days gone by in other Y. hotels.

The scribe at once suspected sly conspiracy, or the launching of a late rights movement and he was right for he got a full report and if you want to know all about it read this page next week.

We are glad to be able at this time to chronicle the fact that our good friend, Ernest Shipman, is up and about again. Ernest had a hard time cheating the undertaker, as pneumonia had him on his back and the doctor was inclined to turn his thumbs down. We are rather inclined to think, however, that Ernest was playing the "Small" white convalescent but if you blame him, "cast the first stone." He had a peach of a nurse.

It is expected that the recommendations will be filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington for final approval at an early date. The amended paragraph No. 43 as revised to date by the Bureau of Explosives follows:

(c) Unexposed motion picture films in tight rolls must be packed in interior metal cans not to exceed five rolls (approximately 2,000 feet) in one inside can: the cover of each inside can must fit tightly and be held in place by a strip of adhesive tape or paper. The interior cans must be securely packed in outside wooden boxes complying with Specification No. 19. The gross weight of one outside container must not exceed 400 pounds.

Leather or web straps, if used, must be of metal and not exceed in length or width the telescopic covers.

Creeil Committee Passes Episodes Of "Eagle's Eye"

The first three episodes of The Whar- tons' new serial photodrama, "The Eagle's Eye," for which Chief Flynn is standing sponsor, were run before the Committee on Public Information in Washington on January 26 and were passed. The episodes were shown exactly as they were run at the Strand Theater in New York the week previous.

The reels were taken to Washington by Earl J. Hudson and Courtney Ryley Cooper, representing the Wharton Releasing Corporation. While the films were in the hands of the Committee on Public Information, they arranged to present the episodes to the National Press Club.

They met with many difficulties in securing a projecting machine and operator, who held up the run of the picture till after 11 o'clock. Nearly two hundred persons, including members of the Committee on Public Information and heads of departments, saw the pictures. Applause was frequent and enthusiastic, it is said.

The impersonations of Count Bernstorff, Captain Karl Boy-Ed, Captain Franz von Papen and Du-Abi attracted especial attention and caused much comment. Each of these Imperial German officials were well known to everyone present. The impersonation of each was so faithful that his appearance on the screen was applauded as a true presentation of a personality.

The members of the Press Club became so interested in the picture that a request was made that future episodes be run for their entertainment when shown to the Committee on Public Information.

Ernest Shipman Drops The HERALD a Line

The Herald is in receipt of a letter from Ernest Shipman, dictated at his bedside, in which he says:

"For the first time in many years an able-bodied doctor, with a cool and determined eye, has made an incursion upon my bank account. I was backed up by a good-looking nurse, and had to ring in a pneumonia scare on me, or he would not have got a cent from me.

"The promised pneumonia did not develop, so I am in disgust at being forced to pay for something which I did not get. I started him on a mission territory for "Shorty Hamilton" and with a shaky, but perfectly right, hand, signed contracts for New York City and state, New Jersey, East Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, Minnesota, Wisconsin, the Dakotas and Oklahoma, which together with the previous sales to New England and other points now permits of a comfortable breathing spell, in the hope of being able to strike the fact that no credit is coming to me at all for this business, as a child could sell this "Shorty Hamilton" franchise, the way it is linned up.

"However, I will admit that it is just as interesting to close these deals here and to show the one where I hope to be by February 10."

"THE LIGHT WITHIN"

Mme. Petrova—First National drama; six parts; published state rights

From the standpoint of production, "The Light Within" is splendid. The subject has been treated in a pleasing, interesting way. It is a story that has not been overlooked and therefore there are touches here and there, that, while having no particular bearing on the story, add to its interest. The story might have been slight in itself, but the manner in which it has been told makes it stand out as an interesting production and proved very entertaining to patrons of Chicago's Royale Theatre, where it played to capacity houses.

Olga Petrova is excellently cast and does some of the best work of her screen career. She is well supported by meden Hare, Thomas Holding, Clarence Heritage, Freddie Fear, Evelyn Duno, Fred C. Jones, Frank McDonald and Claudette Brundage. The direction is by Lawrence W. Trimble of the story was taken from Mrs. L. Case Russell's novel.

The Story: Clinton Durand does not approve of his wife, Thelma, living so strictly to her profession of doctor and, when her husband remains in town to attend her patients, Clinton decides to undertake the bringing up of their son Donald, the result of which is the child's death. She accepts the acceptance of Dr. Leslie, whom she loves, and they become engaged, however, returns and becomes insane. Thelma has discovered a serum which will cure anthropology before a number of noted specialists, she inculcates Dr. Leslie. When the time comes for the injection of the serum, she finds it has been stolen. The precious serum can only be obtained from the masquerade turtle and she is forced to have the only remaining one stolen. The new serum is prepared in time to save Leslie's life, but Clinton, the thief, who delicately inculcates himself, dies from the effects.

Darrell Foss in
"HER AMERICAN HUSBAND"

Triangle drama; five parts; published January 27

"Madame Butterfly," John Luther Long's immortal story, comes to the screen once more under the title of "Her American Husband," with a slightly different twist to it, but the Japanese tale nevertheless. In the present instance the American does not desert his Oriental wife in the East, but brings her to New Rochelle, N. Y., where he leaves her in her "Dove cote" while he leads a gay life somewhere along Broadway.

The production has been carefully handled and skillfully played throughout. There is a sentiment of realism about the whole that grips your heart strings, and though the end is a little thumbs-up from the first reel, it holds your attention.

Darrell Foss, as Herbert Franklyn, is the Sharpless of other Long's tale, while Teddy Sampson is the little Japanese, as, as the butterfly, is admirably cast, though younger than the Lake Shore Theatre, Chicago, refused to take him seriously with that funny little stringy mustache. Miss Sampson's make-up did not convey the idea of a Japanese girl, though her acting was pleasing. The best performance was given by Jacob Abbe, as Kato, the secretary, in love with cherry blossoms. The actress who cast this part was well chosen, her photography is exceptionally beautiful, the lavish sets representing Manhattan homes contrasting pleasantly with the melle, but artistic, Japanese effects. E. Mason Hopper directs.

The story: Miriam Faversham breaks her engagement with Herbert Franklyn, young millionaire and "social butterfly," and goes to the Orient on business for his firm. In Asia she meets and marries Cherry Blossom. The father, Kato, who is deeply in love with her. Franklyn decides by the toss of a coin to marry Cherry Blossom and they are wedded. They leave for America and on the way Kato tells Cherry that he will come to her should she ever need his aid. Franklyn establishes his little wife in a cottage in a suburb of New York, returns to his former friends and is taken back by Miriam. Ignorant of his marriage, plans for the wedding progress. A week before the event Herbert returns to his "Dove Cote" to pay Cherry a last visit. The spirit call of poor Cherry, however, has brought her father and Kato to New York and Kato is strangled to death before the fireplace of his bungalow. Back in Japan Kato and Cherry are reunited.

The picture drew good houses and pleased at the Lake Shore, Chicago.

Mabel Normand in
"DODGING A MILLION"

Goldwyn comedy-drama; six parts; published January 28

"Dodging A Million" is excellent for light entertainment. There is not much to the story but admirers of Mabel Normand will welcome her back to the screen after a year's absence and derive considerable pleasure from the story. The production proved very entertaining to patrons at the Warner Theatre, Chicago, where it was shown last week.

The manner in which the play has been staged, its excellent direction, fine work of the star and cast, the splendidly selected scenes and the fine photography place it in the ranks of the first class. Tom Moore, the male lead, gives his role so much character with apparently so little effort, one forgets he is acting and the whole is most pleasing. The work of...

A photoplay of a melodramatic nature is "Cheating the Public." It is propaganda showing how certain people are profiting by holding back foodstuffs and then disposing of them at high prices. Besides this the plot concerns the murder of the man doing the profiteering, the trial and conviction of the murderer, a race with an express train to have the governor sign a stay of execution, the guilty one having confessed, and the race back to the prison to save the convicted murderer. Audience reaction is varied, but Enid Markey enjoys this play. Enid Markey does what is probably the best of her screen work. Other important members of the cast are Ralph Lewis, Bertram Grassby, Charles Edler and Tom Wilson. Richard Stanton is given credit for the direction.

The story: By decreasing wages and increasing the price of food John Dowling drives his employees to strike. Mary Garvin, heartbroken over the starving conditions of the poor factory employees goes to the home of Dowling to plead with him. He forces his attentions on her and she shoots him. Mary is tried for the murder and sentenced to the electric chair by the judge. Because Dowling's son refuses to give "Bill" Thomas his position back as foreman, he threatens to kill the son at the same time boasting of the murder of the elder Dowling. With this evidence young Dowling endeavors to free Mary, whom he has come to love. He is forced to race with a fast train in order to catch up with the governor and get the pardon signed, and then rush back to the prison with the pardon. Fortunately he arrives in time and after Mary has recuperated from the shock there is a happy ending.

"The Crucible of Life" is a patriotic melodrama of the oil which is bound to find favor with American audiences, if it should prove an excellent box office attraction for any exhibitor. The action is fast, the continuity good, and from beginning to end the story holds one in suspense. Grace D'Armond as Gladys Dale, plays her role with intelligence, and her youthful appearance is most refreshing to the eye. F. C. O'Connor did splendid work as Edwin Fairfax; Jack Steele played the part of Robert Dorset with sincerity, while the character of Fritz von Hoffbert was ably portrayed by Kevin Forsberg, and Winifred Harris was convincing as Mrs. Dorset.

The story: Gladys Dale, an orphan, secures a position as companion to Diana, daughter of Mrs. Dorset, prominent Viennese woman. Robert, ne'er-do-well son of Mrs. Dorset, advances to the girl, but she repulses him. A younger father, Edwin Fairfax, arrives with his motherless child, Vio, for a visit at the country house. A strong friendship springs up between Fairfax and Gladys, rapidly opening into love. He receives a commission in the United States Army and leaves Vio in the care of his sweetheart during his absence at the battlefront. Robert has become acquainted with Fritz von Hoffbert, leader of a band of society thieves and in employ of the German government as a spy. Playing upon Robert's weakness of character, von Hoffbert implicates him in several robberies. His mother cuts off his allowance and he steals her necklace, casting suspicion on Gladys. She learns that the son has robbed his own mother, but in order to spare Mrs. Dorset leaves for New York under the suspicion of having taken the gems. She enlists as a Red Cross nurse and on her arrival in Europe, Gladys finds herself assigned to same command of which Fairfax is an officer. Gladys, seriously wounded and carried to a dressing station in the field, is caught and imprisoned. Meanwhile von Hoffbert is summoned to Europe and becomes a member of the company commanded by Fairfax. He manages to get command of von Hoffbert and arranges a happy reunion for Robert. Robert has been caught while digging the house of a society woman and in a confession Gladys cleared of suspicion. Gladys and Fairfax are united in wedlock at a war wedding.

Earle Williams is very pleasing in "A Mother's Sin," but the story is somewhat confusing. Too much is taken for granted, which leaves the audience in doubt as to just why certain events happen. Along toward the latter part of the story, however, it runs smoothly and is interesting. The material is not new, but has been handled in a way that would like the offering an excellent one, were the story a little more logical, and the acting more perfect as a whole.

The exteriors are beautiful. The story is laid in England and the various scenes are what one might expect to find in the smaller towns of that country. Mr. Williams is well supported by Maude Earle, Earl J. Peck, Marion Vane and Betty Blythe. The direction is by Tom Mills.

The story: Patrick Yardley's father disowns him and gives his entire estate to his new wife Vincent. However, he due Vincent nothing whatever except an out of town, and hides it in a lock. After his death Vincent becomes the heir until one day, a friend, in going through the books, finds the new wife many hardships and the loss of the girl he loved, Patrick finally comes into his own. And in due course of time the old gentleman returns to him.

Entertainment of a diverting nature, replete with comedy and little true-to-life touches is to be found in "The Heart of Romance." It can be shown to an audience of any age with confidence in its wholesomeness and is just the production for the neighborhood house.

June Caprice is amusing, has a good role to exploit her charms in and wears some very pretty gowns, which should interest feminine patrons. Bernard Thornton makes a very pleasing opposite and other members of the cast are George Bunny and Lillian Page. Harry Millarde is responsible for the direction. The famous dog Lady, also plays an important part.

The story: Judge Stafford does not approve of Harvey Grayson's attentions to his niece June believing he is of a mercenary nature and wishes money. To test Harvey, June is declared a bankrupt. Harvey, who believes, himself a great author, gives all his precious stories as security to enable June to secure an extension of time in which to make good her debts. At every turn he is opposed by the uncle, but he meets each move with such grit and self-denial, that the uncle finally believes him sincere, reveals the facts to Harvey and promises to help him along.

Elmo Lincoln in
"TARZAN OF THE APES"
National Film Corporation drama; three chapters; presented at Broadway Theatre, New York, January 26

"Tarzan of the Apes" is a feature picture made from the amazing story by Edgar Rice Burroughs. It carries quite openly a prejudice against the English and their operations in the Congo are hideously pictured, exposing in a most disgusting fashion the cheapest possible conception of the English nobility as well as the unnecessary brutality of the English sailors. All of which seemed to be dragged into the picture by the heels, and will undoubtedly stir up feeling against the British. At the present time this would seem to be bad policy.

The settings are magnificent from a photographic and educational standpoint and are worthy of a better offering. The cast is a fine one. The work of Gordon Griffith as "Tarzan," the boy, and of Elmo Lincoln as "Tarzan," the man, called forth much comment. True Boardman, Kathleen Kirkham, Enid Markay, Thomas Jefferson, Bessie Toner, George French, Jack Wilson and Coli Kenny all gave excel-
The story: Lord and Lady Greystoke leave for Africa to investigate reported atrocities among the natives who are being bartered and abused. Mutiny breaks out and they are put off on the shores of Africa and left to perish. Lady Alice dies when Baby is less than a year old and Lord John is in despair. The mate of the chief of a tribe of apes has lost her baby and the entire tribe advance upon the cabin of Lord John and take his son. Lord John dies. Tarzan is lovingly reared by them. Back in England, the next of kin, a dissolution home, has married a barmaid and taken possession of Greystoke Manor. Ten years pass and Tarzan has grown in grace and strength. Old Binns, a sailor on the ill-fated ship, escapes from the Arabs and starts out to find the Greystokes. He comes upon the cabin containing their skeletons as Tarzan comes into the cabin and the two make friends. Binns teaches Tarzan to read and write. They start for England, but Tarzan is wounded by the Arabs. Binns makes his escape to England where he tells his story to "Lady" Ann and is thrown into a sanitarium. Ann tries to get her degenerate son to marry an American heiress, as she fears the story of Binns may get out. A maid in the house releases Binns and tells his story to the solicitor of the estate and a searching party is formed. Binns dies, but tells all necessary details before his death. The party find the cabin and Tarzan, the man, is greatly attracted by the heiress, who is the first woman of refinement he has ever seen. A native captures her and Tarzan saves her after a fight. He then tries to possess her, but she recalls his manhood to him and to his inheritance he is content to wait for her to decide.

Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne in "UNDER SUSPICION"

Metro comedy-drama; five parts; published February 4

As a whole: Pleasing
Story: Enjoyable
Stars: Very good Support: Suitable
Settings: Good
Photography: Good

The plot and humor of "Under Suspicion" make this an acceptable offering. Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne are well cast and make their roles ring true. The direction is good and the quiet tone of the settings is restful to the eye and leave a lasting, pleasing impression. The subtleties, however, are poorly done and will not create the laughter they are evidently intended to bring out. Aside from this the picture is a very entertaining one. W. S. Davis directed.

The story: When Gerry Simpson meets Virginia Blake, a reporter, and learns she has little use for the idle rich, he decides to become a reporter, make Virginia believe he is poor, and win her. Both are very happy until Virginia has reason to believe that Gerry is responsible for a number of robberies which have occurred at the Simpson estate. She goes to his apartment to investigate and is intercepted by Gerry's valet. Gerry arrives home in time to save Virginia from the wrath of the crooked valet, the thief is brought to bay, and Virginia, convinced of Gerry's innocence, promises to marry him even though he is rich.

Texas Guinan in "THE GUN WOMAN"

Triangle drama; five parts; published January 27

As a whole: Unusual Story: Entertaining Stars: Well cast
Support: Angle
Settings: Good
Photography: Very good

"The Gun Woman" is a little out of the ordinary and because of its unusualness it will undoubtedly prove entertaining to many. It may be regarded as too rough to be appropriate for houses where only high class productions are shown but for a regular western drama it is good. There is a touch of humor and satire running through it that adds to the picture's interest. Texas Guinan as "the Tigress" is well cast. Ed Brady handles his role well as does Francis McDonald and Walter Perkins. "The Gun Woman" was made at the Selig studio, Los Angeles, and is directed by Daniel McCall. It was produced by John E. Korean, and is a pure western.

The story: The "Tigress," who is famous for her quick "draw" and straight shooting, finds her soul becoming softened with love when she meets the "gent" and his whisperings of a home for two makes the "Tigress" believe in him and she entrusts her savings to his care that he might go forth and prepare a home. When she learns that she has been betrayed, however, she kills the "gent" and when he is buried she buries her love so that when the "Bostonian," a detective who has been on the "gent" trail, offers her his name, she refuses it.

Thomas Santschi in "THE CITY OF PURPLE DREAMS"

Selig melodrama; six parts; published state rights

As a whole: Well done
Story: Interesting
Star: Fine
Support: Capable Settings: Excellent
Photography: Very good

"The City of Purple Dreams" is a good example of melodramatic entertainment and for followers of this kind of amusement should prove attractive. The production of the play has been handled in Colin Campbell's usual fine style. There is but one criticism. The interior sets appear crowded and unreal looking. The photography is excellent throughout and many of the exterior scenes will be recognized by persons familiar with Chicago.

The acting of Thomas Santschi is exceptionally good and he is offered good support in Besiee Eyton and Fritzi Brunette. All the rush and excitement of the board of trade is well wrought in the story. The story was adapted from Edwin Baird's novel.

BESIEE EYTON AND SUPPORT IN A TENSE SCENE FROM "THE CITY OF PURPLE DREAMS." (Selig)

"Up the Road With Sallie," Next Select

Constance Talmadge has started work on her latest Sel production, "Up the Road with Sallie," at the Pallas-Moro studios, Hollywood, Cal. The story is a picturization of a novel by Frances Sterrett, the scenario having been prepared by Julia Crawford Ivers.

Miss Talmadge, who has just finished making a film version of Frances Hodgson Burnett's novel, "The Shuttle," Select, has a new director. "Up the Road with Sallie" will be directed by William D. Taylor, who directed Jack Pickford in "Tom Sawyer," "Huck and Tom" and "His Majesty Bun Bean."
Margaret Fischer in "Jilted Janet" Tops Mutual Schedule Week of Feb. 11

Margaret Fischer in "Jilted Janet" tops the Mutual schedule of features for the week of Feb. 11. The production was made by the American Film Company, Inc., under the direction of Lloyd Ingraham from the scenario by Elizabeth Honey, the author of the previous Fischer success, "Molly-O-Em.")

The story is that of a young girl in modern circumstances, Janet Barnes, who has been jilted by a mercenary young man, who trantly confesses that love in a cottage is the forte. Janet sends him a picture of a mansion belonging to her neighbor, asking him how he likes her new home. When he writes that he and his wife will visit her on their honeymoon, she borrows the house from the caretakers during a real owner's absence and enters her former suitor and wife.

"Jilted Janet" Amusing Mix-Up

Graham, the owner, returns and assumes the position of her in his own home. The jilt, impressed with Janet's exorbitant wealth, attempts to renew his love-making but is dined into an artificial lake by Janet. When Janet discovers her butler is the real owner of the establishment she hires, she takes the lover and has him sent to jail. Graham petitions her to have him released and bequeath her his fortune. He promises her a life of luxury and she accepts the proposal. But Janet, too, is plotting to ruin Graham. She gets him arrested again.

"Three Times and Out" is the title of the Strand comedy, starring Billie Rhodes, which is published Feb. 12. Billie and her sweetheart have a lover's quarrel, and he refuses to take her home from a dance when she flirts with others, and is compelled to accept the escort of the butler. On the way she is insulted by a drunken man and is saved by a boy who has a passion for her. Greece, her sweetheart, attempts to recon- cile the mechanic with her impression that he is a stranger, but Billie forgives her battered lover.

The Mutual Weekly, released Feb. 11, is replete with interesting topics. War pictures, pictures showing the effects of the Blizzard which recently swept the country, and the results of the fuel conservation order, make this issue one of the best.

Dotty—No. "Over the Top" is not a bar tonic. Ask J. B. what he uses. I think he uses a cigar box to keep his in.

Now that that amalgamation story has grown "cold"—somebody ought to think up another one to keep Reel Row from going fast asleep again.

We thought that silly idea of keeping a star's marriage secret for "trade purposes" had about died out. It seems to have been revived in the case of a pretty little actress recently, but court proceedings brought the fact out.

To aid that Smoke Week Fund for the boys "over there," why not prevail upon the screen villains to cut out a few cigarettes?

A Hot Story

Ha! Ha! Did you read that one about the Schenectady, N. Y., fireman who responded to an alarm in a motion picture theatre and when they got there, forgot the fire to watch the comedy on the screen, which was "barely visible through the smoke." We recommend a Carnegie medal for the operator in the booth, who stuck to his post so nobly and an increase in salary for the F. A. who wrote the story.

In the Interests of Conservation

Referring to that nifty little club that has been organized at a west coast studio which proposes to fine actors $1 for being late, 50 cents for each cup and, etc., we could suggest another clause: $5 for a P. A.'s wasting paper on pulp stories.

The Chicago Tribune comments on an ad. in the N. Y. Telegraph addressed to "actors and actresses and motion picture players." Nothing odd about that, some are just that and nothing more.
Russia Offers Market for Films

Odessa, Russia, with a population of 700,000, has thirty-four motion picture theaters with a total seating capacity of about 20,000. These theaters are open seven days in the week (except on the eve of religious holidays) from 7 until 11:30 p. m., and are almost invariably full for the regular performances which begin at 8.50 p. m. A separate audience has been set aside from 2:50 p.m. according to the class of the theater and the location of the seat sold. The usual price paid for desirable seats in the first-class motion picture theaters is 1 to 1.50 rubles, but the complete schedule of prices has not been determined. But it has been decided by government management when an unusually attractive or expensive film was being shown. The seating capacity of the average motion picture theater is about 800. Three or four of the first-class theaters have a seating capacity of about double this number.

The programs in Russian motion picture theaters greatly resemble American programs. There is usually a drama of four, five, or six reels, followed by a film of current events, travel, or comedy. Two or three performances are given each evening, according to the length of the program. Not more than two or three theaters in the city combine motion pictures and vaudeville.

When the program in a Russian motion picture theater has begun, patrons coming late are compelled to wait in an anteroom until the next performance commences. In this anteroom music is often provided, and there is generally a small buffet where one can buy sandwiches, tea, and candy. Frequently a program of Russian motion picture theater occupies a half or even two-thirds as much space as the picture hall itself.

Russian Films Mostly Tragedies

The films shown in Russian motion picture theaters are of many kinds and makes, but the great majority are of domestic manufacture and are almost always tragedies. No one ever saw or heard of a Russian love story ending happily in the films. But in spite of the popularity of the Russian tragedy in this country, the American producer would be welcome to Russian motion picture audiences for having a knack of ending happily.

For variety the managers of the Russian motion picture theaters always have to depend upon films of foreign manufacture. Foreign films frequently seen in Russia are of Italian, French, and American make—named in the order of their importance in the Russian market. These foreign films never fail to draw good audiences. When one hears a motion picture film praised in Russia, it is almost certain to be a film of foreign manufacture. The most successful foreign films are those of a strong tragic or criminal character and classical pictures, such as "Quo Vadis" and "Cabiria." The classical films draw crowds from every class of Russian society.

Foreign Films in Demand

The demand for foreign films comes from every class of the people. The theaters offer to accommodate the audience and arrange for the showing of films of the same language. The films are shown in their original foreign language with the help of Russian subtitles.

Prices Paid for Big Productions

Well-known motion picture films that have been shown in Odessa and the prices at which they have been thrown:

1. "Quo Vadis," city rights released for 2,500 rubles per month; newspaper rights 1 per cent of admission receipts, all other rights 10 per cent. Duplicate prices of admission were charged when this film was shown.
2. "Cabiria," release rights for three Governments in southern Russia, 400 rubles per meter; hire for each evening shown, 250 rubles.
3. "The Fall of a Nation," release price not learned; hire for each evening shown, 250 rubles.
4. "Mabel," release rights for 5,000 rubles; hire for each evening not learned.
5. "Peg o' the Ring," release rights for three cities, 2 rubles per meter; hire for all five series for each evening, 600 rubles.

War Scenes and Conservation of Food Feature Gaumont-Mutual of Feb.

How the Gaumont News Service covers the world in reporting news topics of more than passing interest is shown in the recent coverage of the war in Russia. The pictures of Russian events, which are illustrated here, were taken on the spot.

Among the most important of the subjects shown in number are the capture of Jerusalem, with scenes of the fall of the city; the work of the British army and the Alpine Chassens; scenes showing the occupation of the Allied troops in Hungary; the maneuvers of the Mikado's fleet, which is now co-operating with the Allied armies in the north of France; and the launching of one of our new steel ships by the Kaiser.

That our country is now fully awake to the need of saving all supplies is pictured in many of the subjects which show the preparation of a bountiful army ration at the average cost of four dollars. There are many crowded scenes of the daily life of the troops in the field, a network of trenches, the feeding of the men in the trenches, the feeding of the men in the trenches, the feeding of the men in the trenches.

Gladys Brockwell Begins New Picture; "Six Shooter Andy" Camera Work Do

"Any Home" New Pathy Play

Pate announces "Any Home" for publication on Apr. 3, in which Baby Marie Osborne is to be seen in an amusing story of childhood. John W. Grey and Mrs. W. Ramerez-Torres are the co-authors of "Any Home" and have written it with the idea of giving the story a new setting and an appeal to New York Pathy's market which is not adapted to her personality and talent. Little Sambo, the ored boy who has made such a hit in recent Baby Orphans' pictures, has a prominent part in the cast and repeats his role in the new film, "Any Home." Standing is in the cast as is Marian Warner, who has played many of these Baby pictures. The picture was produced Diando at Glendale, Cal.

"Forbidden Path" Date Changed

Laboratory congestion, due to the coal-saving or steamless fuel apparatus, was responsible for a change in the publication date of the new motion picture, "Forbidden Path," starring Mary Barry. The production was to have been issued January 28, has been set a week further down the calendar at February 28.

Animated Sub-Titles
For Seven-Reel Film
“Crucible of Life”
Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin
Arrange Distinct Novelty
For Screen Version
Of Play

In order to properly suggest the patriotic atmosphere which invests a major portion of “The Crucible of Life,” their latest seven-part state right feature, Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin have arranged for an original series of animated sub-titles to serve as a background for the story.

The feature, now being exploited by General Enterprises, is an adaptation of the famous stage melodrama of “Fairfax” by Bartley Campbell. It has been produced under the auspices of the Author’s Film Company and directed by Captain Harry Lambert. Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin have recently undertaken the disposition of the “Crucible of Life” on a territorial basis, as a worthy successor to their prior series of right sensational successes, “The Warrior,” starring Ma-ciste, and “Mother,” featuring Elizabeth Rudden.

The patriotic and war atmosphere of the feature, starring Grance Darmond Jack Sherrill and Frank O’Connor, has been closely approximated by magnificent backgrounds giving glimpses of the trenches, the various contingents leaving for France and several very beautiful effects introducing the American flag and all it stands for.

The main title constitutes a distinct novelty in that the brilliantly lighted exterior of a motion picture house is shown with a line of people steadily moving at the box office. As the electric display sign flashes in and out the title of the picture is clearly illuminated, followed in rapid succession by the names of Darmond, Sherrill, O’Connor and other leading members of the cast.

A close-up to the picture is arranged a most striking tableau, the central figure of which is the Goddess of Liberty surrounded by the fighting representatives of the entire allied nations, each one of which springs magically into place as Liberty calls. The entire scene has been done in colors and forms a stirring finis.

World-Pictures Brady-Made Completed
And Ready for Publication Up to May 15

The World Film Corporation announces the titles of World-Pictures Brady-Made completed and scheduled for publication up to May 15. Inasmuch as the chronological order of the pictures is not determined, no scheduled dates are given and the following order is only an approximate one.

Kitty Gordon in “The Divine Sacrifice” leads the list, associated with Miss Gordon in this picture is Jean Angelo, who is leading into the middle of May. Inasmuch as the chronological order of the pictures is not determined, no scheduled dates are given and the following order is only an approximate one.

Montague Love, June Elvidge and Arthur Ashley follow with “Broken Ties,” an philosophical story, and possesses a complication of the tensest sort involving no less than six persons and the solution of which is accomplished by the sacrifice of the victim, Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Grealie are co-starred in “His Royal Highness.” The story relates the adventures of an American Collegian who has the throne of a European monarchy thrust upon him and is confronted with the necessity of relinquishing the hand of an attractive young lady in order to continue the World program in a most sympathetic role in “The Spurs of Sybil,” a comedy-drama. In this picture Miss Brady plays a virtuous and ambitious girl who surmounts many obstacles, both serious and ludicrous, in order to win her spurs.

Kitty Gordon’s next picture is called “The Whisper” and contains a number of startling mob scenes and exciting episodes which indicate some deviation from her previous roles.

Cross Bearer” Ready

“The Cross Bearer” in seven reels with Montague Love and Jeanne Eagles is prepared for publication. This is the much-discussed World-Picture picturizing the conditions in Belgium at the opening of the war. Montague Love portrays the masterly figure of Cardinal Mercier in his role of protector of the oppressed Belgians. A delightful love story is back-whired in a picture with the stern realities of the prelate and relieves the harrowing details. Several military scenes of surpassing interest are included showing the Germans and British, which it is said, are in keeping with the massive scale of the production.

Madge Evans is co-starred with George W. Matlock in a picture with the thought-provoking title, “Wanted, A Mother.” The story revolves about the vicissitudes of little Madge as the moth-er who endeavors to renew the affections of her father and at the same time find a suitable mother. Some of the scenes are of mark and photographed in the Magnolia Gardens of Savannah, Georgia.

Carlyle Blackwell and June Elvidge appear in “The Way Out,” Ethel Clayton in “The Witch Woman” and Kitty Gordon in “Devil’s Diet,” all of which title are not permanently decided upon.Every detail of the picture arrangements are made together in “Leap to Fame” by Ethel Clayton plays an unusual role in “A Soul Without Windows,” which has the added attraction of its background. “Journey’s End,” which is also an Ethel Clayton picture, has John Bowers as leading man. The scenes at large in Florida are being photographed and another Alice Buxton picture called “Nether Currents,” is listed for publication.

Ethel Clayton is scheduled to appear in a “A Man and a Girl” and another all production entitled Helene is also completed. Carlyle Blackwell, June Evidé, Montague Love, George MacQuar and John Bowers are among the long list of World players appearing in the picture.

Disappearance of Dr. Albert’s Portfolio Explained in Episode of “Eagle’s Eye”

In the sixth episode of “The Eagle’s Eye,” the new Wharton secret service serial, Chief Flynn makes a most important revelation—how Dr. Heinrich Albert, the fiscal attaché of the Imperial German Embassy at Washington, lost his famous brown portfolio containing the secrets of alien propaganda in this country.

How Dr. Albert lost his portfolio and into whose hands it originally fell have long been a mystery and a source of great interest to every chancellory in Europe, so important were the revelations that followed, both to the American and Allied governments.

The real story is that Dr. Albert lost his portfolio in the simplest way on a Sixth Avenue elevated train. On Wednesday last Leopold Wharton, assisted by D. H. Turner, discovered every incident connected with its loss by the Imperial German plotter.

The management of the elevated system gave Mr. Wharton every facility and placed a train of five cars at his disposal, running it as he requested from Rec to 155th street. During the run several stops were made. The train was un the direction of Mr. E. B. Horne, the master, and C. A. Wood, station insp. tor.

On the afternoon of July 24, 1913, the whole of the documents were sent to the English secret service a adversary who had been shadowing him. The is thru the English secret service bureau in this country knew nothing about the incident till a part of the documents were published.

The sixth episode of “The Eagle’s Eye” will be called “The Brown Portfolio,” will be one of the most interesting and sensational of the twenty in which production will be presented.
Exhibitors Facing Three-Day Shut Down
Take Quick Action to Combat It

Considerable excitement and comment as caused throughout the theatrical world in Canada by the rumor that the theanadian government had a proposal before them which would come all theaters three days a week in order to conserve fuel.

The different associations in the various important cities called emergency meetings, stating that it was through the feature of "BUCKWHEAT" which is well known both in Buffalo and Toronto. By means of uniquely arranged posters and banners he has shown several old films, proving that these picture shows can be repeated with special lobby displays and play to even better business than when first shown. This was the case with the Bluebird feature, "The Sign of the Poppy," which Mr. Pomeroy ran for one week recently, playing to packed houses.

HARRY POMEROY HAS NOVEL LOBBY DISPLAY

Harry Pomeroy, of the Globe Theatre, Toronto, arranged a novel lobby display for the showing of "The Last Tiger Lion." The display consisted of attractively painted banners, with scenes from the play, and well chosen posters.

Mr. Pomeroy has made a study of creating striking lobby displays at small expense, and his ingenuity along this line is well known both in Buffalo and Toronto. Mrs. Art Pelletier, wife of the proprietor of the Sunset Theatre, Estuary, Sask., is the holder of the first license from the government to operate a moving picture machine in the province of Saskatchewan.

It is announced that Allen Bros., who recently built the new Allen Theatre, on the corner of Richmond and Victoria streets, Toronto, a large first-run house, has purchased the Princess Theatre, Estuary, which is also one of the main first-run theatres in that city.

The Rialto Theatre, Toronto, made a special feature of the Charlie Chaplin latest picture, which they used for the entire week. The lobby was dressed as a propaganda building with cut-out of Charlie hanging from the top of same by his feet, as it he had fallen. One door had the caption "Charlie Chaplin Built This," while the entrance door read "This is his work," Mr. Stewart, manager of this theatre, makes a specialty of lobby displays, and there is no doubt the Rialto Theatre has been due to his genius in selling his show to the public through his clever lobby displays.

The vocational department of the Military Hospitals Commission have decided to use moving pictures in connection with the re-educational work of the returned soldiers. It is thought by this method the heroes will be better able to decide just what vocation they wish to follow in the future.

In order to increase the box office receipts, the theatre managers of Edmonton, Alberta, have decided to make their orchestras a feature of the program. Special arrangements have been made for the orchestras to perform, and in their advertisements special notice will be made of the musical attraction.

Instead of moving into new headquarters, as was originally the intention, the Famous Players Film Service have had their three floors rearranged so as to provide better facilities for conducting their growing business.

Manitoba Bars Comedies

The action of the Manitoba government in prohibiting the comedy films in that province has caused much discussion and disapproval, not only in the film industry, but with the general public as well. The majority of the leading Canadian newspapers have announced their opposition to it, that it was through the Selwyn Thaw production, "Redemption," which led up to this action, the authorities stating that it was such plays and comedies that gave the public a frivolous viewpoint. It takes a great deal of imagination to see what the comedy films are to do with a production such as "Redemption."

St. John's New Theatre

The Queen's Square Theatre, St. John, opened to capacity houses on Saturday, Jan. 29. The building now occupied by the Queen's Square Theatre was formerly used as a skating rink. However, it has been recently remodeled and thoroughly renovated and has been plainly but attractively decorated. A splendid heating system has been installed and comfort seems to have been the watchword of the management in renovating this theatre.

Robert Armstrong, the proprietor, announces that the policy for this house will continue to be an admission of five cents for everyone, with the best possible program. Judging from the opening attendance, this "nickel" playhouse is going to be very popular.

Slides with messages calling attention to the necessity of conservation and increased production of food have been sent to all the motion picture theatres in Canada. It is estimated that these slides will be seen in one week by no less than 1,750,000 people.

Manager Wyckes of the Princess Theatre, Sherbrooke, Que., has received considerable publicity from the daily paper in his town for his capable manner of managing that theatre. Mr. Wyckes has three changes of program weekly, and shows one serial. Mrs. Wyckes is the pianist and shows considerable art in her interpretation of music for the screen.

Hoffman-Foursquare to Distribute Educational Film Corp. Productions

Arrangements just concluded between the Educational Film Corporation and Foursquare Pictures will result in the distribution, through the latter concern, of the Bruce and Newman scenics and the Ditmar animal pictures in several of the Foursquare Exchanges.

"It is especially gratifying to have secured the co-operation of the Foursquare organization because both Mr. Backer and Mr. Hoffman feel, as do I, that our pictures are features in the genuine sense and that their release has come when public appreciation of them is positive," said E. W. Hammons, vice-president and general manager of the Educational.

"What Mr. Hammons states is unquestionable," said Mr. Hoffman. "His pictures are not only the finest of the kind obtainable, but their appeal to all classes of motion picture patrons is steadily gaining. The contention which Mr. Key, our associate, and I make, is that the Bruce and Newman scenics and the Ditmar animal pictures form the substance of any motion picture program, and actuated by a degree that can be best proven by the fact that theatres of every character are more and more appreciating their commercial elements, and that their audiences, very often, prefer these brief bits of pictorial perfection to a big feature.

I am confident that the time has arrived for the Educational product— which should not be confounded with "education" pictures that endeavor to teach something—will find its level of popularity in the degree deserved. For every Newman or Bruce or Ditmar picture is a sure-fire, it must be before it is published.

Constance Talmadge Completes Filming Of "The Shuttle"

"The Shuttle," Constance Talmadge's latest Select picture, in which she will be presented by Lewis J. Selznick, has been completed and is now being cut and titled. It is the first production to be made by the star since her arrival in Los Angeles and provides her with a role of unusual dramatic force, it is said.

The story was written by Margaret Turnbull and Harvey Thew from Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett's novel of international love and marriage, and was directed by Rollin Sturgeon. Miss Talmadge, who has worked steadily on its production, admitted that she would be glad of a short respite before starting her next picture.

Western Exhibitors

Booking Foursquare Report Big Returns

Foursquare Pictures appear to be what the exhibitors of Colorado, Wyoming, Utah and New Mexico want, according to Ben S. Cohen, vice-president and general manager of the company operating in that territory.

"Although Foursquare Pictures of Colorado has been in business less than two months," states Mr. Cohen, "our understanding of the point of many concerns that have been 'going' for years. In this territory only the best is wanted, and that we are supplying.

"The Bar Sinister" is regarded here-as one of the finest productions from every standpoint which has ever been shown. Story, cast, direction and all else that go to make a great picture has been combined in this Edgar Lewis production.

"Then there is 'One Hour'; a feature of unique elements, which is exciting a great deal of comment from experts who know good pictures and the public which does not stop to analyze them, but usually guesses right.

"I find 'The Fringe of Society' held in high esteem—a picture of distinguished acting and characterization cut by a fine cast. Ruth Roland, Milton Sills, J. Herbert Frank and Leal Baird have done work in this picture justifying their reputation.

"The Great White Trail" and other features we have to offer are all finding ready acceptance. It pays to get good merchandise, for when you have it your customers come back for more of the same kind.

Otis Skinner to Make Screen Debut In "Kismet" Before Production

Herbert Brenon, although just completing a busy year, has even more ambitious plans for 1918, it is said. During the past year he secured complete control of the corporation bearing his name, purchasing all other interests; purchased the studios and laboratories at Hudson Heights, N. J., which he had occupied while making construction, and established his own distribution organization, with offices at No. 509 Fifth avenue, New York City.

This perfected his "director to exhibitor" plan. It gave him absolute control of a production, from the selection of the script and player to the moment the finished product reached the exhibitor. It permits him to make a production and send it to the public exactly as he believes it should go.

Immediately following his declaration of independence, Mr. Brenon announced his plans for the coming screen year, which includes the production of Hall Caine's novel "The Woman Thou Gavest Me," and Edward Knoblock's romance of old Baghdad, "Kismet." In the latter, Otis Skinner will make his first appearance on the screen.

The Brenon plant is one of the most thoroughly equipped studios in the East. There are two large and model studio buildings, laboratories, administration buildings and any and all the studios and laboratories have every modern up-to-date appliance for the shooting developing, printing, cutting, etc., of film.

The Brenon Distributing Corporation is now handling the territory of New York State and Northern New Jersey. In the former he has made himself the manager in this field, is sales manager for the distributing organization. A man is better known or more popular among exhibitors than Mr. Brenon has already built up a we knit organization to handle the productions according to his "director to exhibitor" policy. Mr. Brenon recognizes the value of the exhibitor, that the screen showman will appreciate the value of dealing directly with the man who makes the pictures.

"I realize more fully today than ever before, and I think, every manufacturer should realize it now, if he hasn't before that unless the exhibitor gets a square deal, the entire motion picture industry must collapse," he says. "Huge immediate profits must cease.

"In making pictures, it will always my policy to keep in close touch with the man who shows the pictures to the public. The exhibitor cannot be fooled by flamboyant advertising. He is going to look at his box office statement at nothing else. Words don't prove an thing, but facts speak for themselves."

Olcott's "Belgian"
A Play About War
But Not a War Film

President of U. S. Booking Corp. Explains Paradox—Few Scenes Of Warfare in Heart Interest Drama

"The Belgian," Sidney Olcott's heart interest spectacle of martyred Belgium, published through the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, is a picture about war which is not a war picture. This apparent paradox is easily explained, according to Frank G. Hall, president and general manager of the concern.

"Most producers in dealing with the European war," said Mr. Hall, "put the war first, the story and its drama second. But just the reverse is the case in "The Belgian." As a prominent editor said at its first showing, 'I thought I was going to see a sort of Pathé Weekly, but I saw instead an intensely dramatic and human love story'"

"The reason for this is clear. Mr. Olcott has fortunately made the war not the subject of his picture but a setting for his story. And yet he has given us, in their proper perspective, cavalry raids, armored motor cars, trench scenes with which even army experts can find no fault and the best exposition of the far-reaching German spy system that has ever been reported, to the screen."

"The story by Frederic Arnold Kummer, author of 'The Brute' and many other successful novels, plays and motion picture productions deals with the love, the sufferings and final happiness of two loyal children of Belgium."

"Mr. Olcott devotes very little footage, to scenes of warfare. He time and time again with uncanny accuracy the effects of the invasion of the Huns but did not put on the screen the unforgettable ruthlessness of the Teuton horde. In other words, he shows what the Huns threatened to do if his striking pictures of desolation by did not put before the eyes of the public the frightful way in which the destruction was wrought."

NEW MOTION PICTURE THEATRE FOR COAST

San Francisco, Calif.—A motion picture theatre having a seating capacity of more than 2,000 will be erected in the Presidio district here in the near future. The site for the new playhouse has been acquired at the southeast corner of Ninth avenue and Clement street and plans are already under way for the construction of the building.

The buyer and owner of the new theatre is Samuel H. Levin, one of the pioneer motion picture exhibitors of San Francisco. While negotiations for the purchase of the land were pending he rein-ained architects to prepare plans for the theatre so that construction may commence at the earliest possible date.

The agents in the transactions, Umsen, Kerner and Issett, describe the enterprise as the largest theatrical real estate deal ever undertaken by one man in San Francisco. The theatre when finished will represent an investment of more than $250,000.

Closes His Theatre For Lightless Period

Grand Rapids, Mich.—Declaring that his electric sign is a guidepost to his theatre and that with it darkened his patronage falls off one-half, O. R. Sebring of the Columbia theatre has closed his house during the period of lightless nights regulation.

"As soon as the situation eases and we're permitted to use the electric sign we will reopen," said Manager Sebring in commenting on his action. "Business has been good at the Columbia. We have no indebtedness and we are in excellent condition. Our electric sign is a sort of guidepost to the theatre and when lights are off the audience drops off correspondingly."

H. S. Logan, who is a co-partner in the management of the theatre, has returned to Wabash, Ind., where he manages another playhouse. Mr. Sebring will remain here and await developments.

Theatres Save Fuel By Opening Later

Little Rock, Ark.—S. S. Harris, president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Arkansas, has sent out a request to all members of the league to open their picture houses one hour later than usual every day, and thus help to conserve heat and relieve the situation caused by the lack of fuel.

Mr. Harris said that if all the theatres in the state will follow this rule it will mean a saving of nearly 2,000 hours a week of heating and 2,000 hours of electricity, and it will aid the fuel administrator in his effort to clear up the congestion of freight. This would more than equal the saving, he said, that would be effected by closing every theatre in the state one day each week.

Manager Edel and the Strand

HAROLD EDEL IS MANAGING DIRECTOR OF THIS POPULAR NEW YORK PHOTOPLAY THEATER, LOCATED AT FORTY-SEVENTH STREET AND JULIUS WAY, ONE OF THE BEST KNOWN PICTURE HOUSES IN AMERICA.

Men in U. S. Service Are Admitted Gratis

Pittston, Pa.—The motion picture theatres of this city have been thrown open to uniformed men in the service of the government excepting Sundays and days when closed under orders of the federal fuel administrator. The announcement came from Mayor Kennedy and the managers of the picture houses operated under the Comerford management.

The order means that there will be no admission charge for soldiers and sailors at the Roman, Dreamland and Hippodrome theatres. Pittston and its vicinity has more than 500 young men in service and every day brings some of the uniformed men home on a furlough.

Mayor Kennedy was instrumental in the announcements which were made by Manager Wesley of the Roman; Manager Sharpe of the Dreamland, and Manager McHugh of the Hippodrome concerning the free admissions.

Want M. P. Operators Licensed in Lorain

Lorain, Ohio—It has been suggested to the city council of Lorain that an ordinance be prepared and passed which will provide for the licensing of moving picture operators and which will set an age limit which will do away with the practice of young boys working in the picture booths.

The action was prompted, it is said, through the numerous fires in motion picture theatres during the past year, which, it is declared, can be attributed to boys of immature years operating projectors.

Pittsburgh Film Men Co-operate to Get "First Run" Pictures

Pittsburgh, Pa.—Pittsburgh motion picture exhibitors show a readiness at all times to co-operate in every way possible with the Pennsylvania State Board of Censorship in obeying the law regarding the exhibition of censored film, according to Miss Florence E. Wrenshall, inspector for Pittsburgh, in directing attention to the annual report of the board made recently.

The exhibitors credit Miss Wrenshall with having been active in procuring "first run" pictures for Pittsburgh simultaneously with Philadelphia and in other efforts to give picture patrons of this city and vicinity the best kind of entertainment available.

Miss Wrenshall’s efforts to convince exhibitors that it is less expensive to obey the law than to seek to violate it have been so successful that the number of prosecutions were reduced from twenty-three during the first six months of the fiscal year to three violations during the last six months.

Theatre Changes Hands

San Francisco, Calif.—The Strand Theatre was sold recently by the Grauman's, who own it for the last six years to M. L. Markowitz, president and general manager of the California Film Exchange, one of the best known moving picture men of the west.

The consideration was $100,000 which covers the lease on the entire property. The transfer was made at once and Markowitz came into immediate possession. Leo Weinberger, the present manager, will continue in charge of the house. The policy of the theatre, it was announced, will not be changed.
Immense Advertising Campaign Is Planned
By U. S. Exhibitors Booking Corporation

An advertising and publicity campaign nation-wide and embracing the use of billboards, magazines, daily newspaners, trade publications and special circu-cularizations, is being arranged by Frank Hall, well known in the film business, manager of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, as an exhibitor aid in the exploitation of the special feature, "The Zeppelin: Last Raid." The announcement was made by "Raid," declared Mr. Hall, "depends largely upon advertising. We have made it a point in the selection of our subjects to take only such productions that will readily lend themselves to intensive exploitation.

For instance, 'The Zeppelin: Last Raid' is built around a most timely subject, that of the Zeppelin Airship, which has been waging ruthless warfare upon the Allies on the west front. It is readily apparent that an exhibitor can put a maximum amount of advertising behind such a production and reap a profit.

The Belgian Timely

"Our second production, 'Those Who Pay,' while possessing nothing of a spectacular nature, is founded upon a subject of unusual heart appeal and lends itself to extraordinary advertising. The third,
'The Belgian,' inasmuch as it is a subject of extraordinary interest, will receive the excellent exploitation material and it is our intention to promote these productions to the limit.

Special productions, even more than program subjects, require special advertising. For instance, in 'The Zeppelin:
Last Raid' there is a most spectacular scene in which a Zeppelin, an exact counterpart of the types used by the Germans in Europe, is dynamite-bombed in mid-air and goes to pieces among the clouds. That is the big advertising angle and all our billboards material and other accessories feature this unusual photographic feature.

"It is my belief that most productions, in order to be an extraordinary success at the box office, require a most magnificent big scene, a climax about which all the advertising may be built.

Advertising Pays

"Despite disquieting reports from quarters, I find that the exhibitors who book special productions and are advertising them liberally have no cause for complaint. The advertising appropriation is the last item of expense the exhibitor must consider. In my opinion, both as an exhibitor and a distributor, of motion pictures, is well nigh as important as the exchange.

The exhibitor who books a picture that lends itself to big advertising and then fails to take advantage of the opportunity possessed by such exploitation is lacking in showmanship.

The United States advertising campaign also will extend into the foreign territories, in which case of work it will co-operate with the Robertson-Cole Company of New York and London, to which the foreign territorial rights have been assigned. It will be the intention of United States officials to establish their concern firmly in the foreign markets and it is planned at present to utilize many of the leading newspapers in England, France, South America and South Africa in the effort to acquaint photoplay de-voeles in foreign lands with the United States pictures.

U. S. Booking Corp.

Adds to Sales Force

John K. Grier, who recently resigned as Canadian sales manager of the Famous Players-Lasky Company, has joined the sales staff of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation and will supervise distribution in the Cleveland territory.
Mr. Grier formerly served as manager of the Triangle exchange in that city and has a wide circle of friends among Ohio exhibitors.

Homer Howard, one of the most popular film men in the upper New York State district, has resigned his position as Buffalo representative of Paramount to join the sales forces of the U. S. Ex-bibitors' Booking Corporation. He will be in charge of the Buffalo district, making his headquarters in the Hoffman-Foursquare exchange of that city.

Max Cutler also has joined the U. S. organization and has been assigned by General Sales Manager Lynn S. Card to the Chicago office. Cutler has had long experience in the film business in the middle west.

Another recent addition to the U. S. distribution organization is Charles Be-man, well known in Canadian film circles.
He will represent the Hall organization in Toronto, in which district the U. S.
subjects are handled by the Superfa-tures, Ltd., of which Charles Stevens is president. Branch offices are maintained in Montreal and St. Johns, the latter of which covers the maritime provinces.

Two Jester Comedies

Sold in Many States

William Steiner, founder of the Jester Comedy Company, who is now on tour with the first two comedies, "The Recruit" and "His Golden Romance," giving spectacular and solid receipts, is making

Forty-second street, New York City;
New York, Western and Eastern Pennsylvania to the Masterpiece Film Attractions, 1225 Vine street, Philadelphia;

Kentucky and West Virginia to the United States Association of Pennsylvania, Inc., Cleveland, Ohio; the State

troit, Mich.; Southern Illinois and North-era Western Exhibitors, Kansas City;

apolis, Minn.; Omaha, Neb. to the Stan-ard Film Exchange, Omaha, Neb.;

Exchange, Kansas City, Mo., and St.
Louis, Mo., to the Standard Film Exchange, St. Louis, Mo.

Gaumont Company

To Change Method of Publishing Weekly

The recent announcement that the world famous news service of the Gaunmont Company will shortly be published under a new arrangement which will make it more valuable than ever to exhibitors and to the public has caused, it is said, considerable comment in film circles. In the midst of the pessimism caused by the war and the shortage of rolling stock, the Gaumont Company will soon increase its activities in this country. Gaumont officials refuse to confirm this report, but admit that they will soon have an interesting statement to make public.

Far from believing that the war will have a harmful effect upon motion pictures in the United States, the Gaumont Company is the more optimistic because the greatest year the industry has ever known is due in 1918.

In France and England, countries which have been the most active with Gaumont, the company is not only actively engaged in producing, but is running its own exchanges and theaters. When it realizes that the Gaumont Company now making serials and other elaborate productions in its foreign studios, but that it has found it necessary during the past few months to build a number of additional exchanges in the British Isle to handle an ever increasing business, will be appreciated that motion picture have become a necessity even in the war zone.

Western Territory

Offers Good Field

For Road Picture

There was never a better time than the current for road show picture attraction in the west, according to J. L. Adams the Desert Film Company of Salt La-City, who is making his headquarters at the Arrow Film Corporation while he is in New York looking over the new productions.

"Picture conditions are, generally speaking, good out in my part of the country," said Mr. Adams. "War has very little effect on the majority of the picture houses—in fact most of them are making more money than ever. We have been listening to the calamity howl and their predictions that because economic conditions are making the entire picture industry would be stunted, but we haven't paid any attention to them and I haven't seen any of the predictions verified as yet.
Some of the prophets of dismance warned me especially against handling road attractions while the war lasted to told me if I did I would lose everything. I attended the book opening of W.
Clune's feature, 'The Eyes of World,' which up to the present it has made three rounds of the interstate circuit and is doing better than ever. This is not only a trip to the picture itself, but will serve as illustration of picture conditions out of our part of the country."
Doll-Van Film Corp.

Has Ill. and Ind. for "Carmen of Klondyke"

With the first purchase of the newly formed State Right Distributors, the Doll-Van Film Corporation of Chicago obtain the rights to the seven part serial production, "Carmen of Klondyke." The picture will not, however, be available for distribution until he middle of April, when the first part is expected.

"This is the first production of sufficient magnitude to warrant a purchase by the State Right Distributors," said D. d. Vandewater, of the Doll-Van Corporation. "The picture was seen by representatives of the organization which includes in its membership sixteen independent exchanges in the United States and Canada of which our company is one, having the distribution rights to the production in Illinois and Indiana. The production was purchased without an dissenting vote."

The Doll-Van Corporation has also obtained the Illinois and Indiana rights to the Renown Pictures production, "The Public Defender," in six reels. Contracts have been signed by the Asker Brothers of the appearance of this picture in their localities, as well as those of Lubliner and Trinz.

Unity to Distribute Anti-Cigarette Film

A number of one-reel subjects being made in the interest of the Anti-Cigarette League of America, whose superintendent, Lucy Page Gaston, is now conducting a million membership campaign, will be distributed through the Unity Photoplays Company. The films will show various aspects of the cigarette evil, but are to hold enough story interest to make them worth showing, even if they had no value as reform propaganda. They are based on the League's slogan, "Let us make our boys as free from the vice as our solders are fighting for."

"Over Here," a one-reel film showing what large industrial plants are doing to aid the United States, is also being distributed by the Unity Photoplays Company.

B. N. Judell Forms Own Exchange

B. N. Judell, formerly manager of the Mutual exchange and who left Chicago three months ago to manage the Universal Exchange, Minneapolis, has resigned the latter position and opened an independent exchange to be known as B. N. Judell, Inc.

The offices of the new company are located in the old building, Minneapolis. Mr. Judell has secured the rights to "Redemption", and "Purity", for the northern territories, and within a fortnight intends opening a branch office in Chicago, to handle big features in nearby territory.

A. SILBAR JOINS WHOLESALE STAFF

A. Silbar, one of Chicago's most fashionable garment makers, has become associated with the Wholesale Films Corporation, in which he is a stockholder, and will devote himself entirely to the producing end of the film business.

Mr. Silbar has conducted a ladies' tailor establishment for fifteen years and his knowledge of styles and designing will prove a big asset in managing Wholesale productions. Forthcoming pictures will show the handiwork of the man who has had as patrons Mrs. Carter Harrison, wife of former mayor of Chicago; Mrs. Lockwood Honor, widow of the late Judge Honor; Mrs. William Wrigley, wife of the chewing gum magnate, and many others.

Flaherty Acquires Interest in Exchange

Frank J. Flaherty, the genial and aggressive Chicago exchange man, is now a part owner in the Hoffman-Foursquare Exchange. Mr. Flaherty acquired a fourth interest in the local exchange upon a recent visit of M. H. Hoffman, T. W. Wharton, of the Wharton Bros., Inc., also came to town to meet Mr. Hoffman, to screen the first three episodes of "The Eagle's Eye," the new Wharton-Hoffman serial. The showing took place at the Rothacker studios.

Mr. Flaherty opened the Hoffman Chicago Exchange and is well equipped to handle the Foursquare output, he having gained a wealth of knowledge while with the Bluebird and Mutual exchanges.

Spanuth Goes East With "Frozen Warning"

H. A. Spanuth, president of the Commonwealth Pictures Corporation, left Friday for New York and New England points, to be gone two weeks on a selling campaign with the Charlotte film "The Frozen Warning". Western Canada was disposed of during the past week, Mr. Spanuth announces. Throughout the mid-west "The Frozen Warning" has played to capacity business.

Fitzpatrick-McElroy Open New Mich. House

The Fitzpatrick-McElroy Company of Chicago, which added a chain of motion picture theatres in the state of Michigan, have added another to their already long list. It is the Lyric Theatre of Cadillac, Mich.

Formal opening of the new house took place on Wednesday night, February 6. The company distributed attractive invitations throughout the trade to be present at the affair.

Samuel S. Hutchinson Back From Conference

Samuel S. Hutchinson, president of the American Film Company, Inc., has just returned to Chicago after an extended trip to New York and Washington, where he was in conference with George Creel, relative to important motion picture developments.

PERSONALS

By "Mac" Geo. Paul, owner of the States Theatre, and Nathan Joseph have taken over the Owl Theatre, 47th and State streets, with Frank H. Salkin, one of Chil's old timers, at the managerial helm. Watch this combination. They don't know what sleep is; got their eagle eyes open all the time.

William N. Selig went 29th Century in down to New York last Friday, Feb. 1, for a several days' visit.

Kob and Dill, purveyors of fun at the Olympic Theatre, were recent visitors to the American Film Company's plant and were given an opportunity of viewing themselves in films they appeared in under the American Film brand, such as "Peck o' Pickles", "Lonesome Town" and several others.

Colin Campbell, director for Selig features, is now in the city for an extended stay.

George Periolat, character actor for the American Film Company, was giving Chicago the o. o., during a stopover amidst out-of-town blizzards. While in town George attempted to visit an old pal of his out on Sheridan Road, via the taxi route. Well, all was going along matter-of-fact until said taxi started fussing matters and took on a regular skidding stunt, landing the natty Periolat plump into a huge snow drift. Orful, ye shout; nix, sez we. Why right in this particular drift mob of Chil's fattest damsels were busily engaged doing a shovelin' sketch and after praying George loose from the elements (we mean snow, of course) why-er-ah, let him tell it, he was there.

Wots the idear? Someone told us E. Schwartz of the E. S. Film exchange was seen running around about Milwaukee avenue and Noble street early last Sunday A. M., hatless and coatless. How about it, Elia? U. S. conservation orders? No—it must have been one of those wild Polish balls they have a habit of pullin' out that way every now and then.

Phil Ryan, general manager of the Standard Film Corporation, is in the city for a while going over company matters with Frank B. Rogers, local manager.
J. R. Grainger, general manager of the Allen Film Corporation, left for New York by the Century Jan. 31. Looks as though "Rapid" was going to pick up all the good stuff down there. Took two members of the company with him, "Dave" McKeight and Joe Baukhage, to help bring the load back. More power to yer, me lads—go get it, that's awl.

Regardless of all former reports, this communication carries the signature and seal of executive headquarters.

On the Firin' Line

M. Cutler has resigned from the local Triangle sales force and will henceforth wrestle with the U. S. Exhibitors Bookung Corporation brand of films for this territory.

Milton Simon is now on the First National Exhibitors Circuit team letting his many exhib. friends in on their money getters.

We note that the "ole timer," J. J. Gilmore, is now hanging around Cleveland, getting his from the Allen Film Corp. pay-roll. Great little city, whimpers J. J.

Miss E. M. Hopkins, who recently resigned as secretary to R. O. Proctor to take up her new position with the Doll-Van Film Corporation, certainly has every reason to remember the change. On her way home the evening of Jan. 29, about 7:30 P. M., a couple of highway artillery experts brought this charming Miss, leaving her at the corner of Grand boulevard and 47th street shy about $50 worth of Uncle Sam's green goods.

H. W. Willard, formerly associated with Triangle exchange and the Lubliner & Trinz executive offices, is back again in the "Loop" and is now assisting C. W. Eckhardt in managing the local Fox exchange. Oh, yes, Harry still retains his golden tresses as of old.

W. E. Haines, former Universal and Mutual sales man, is now with Hoffman-Foursquare on their big serial film, "The Lost Eye." Talkin' about a clean-up on this film W. S. Alltad came pretty near being put on the hospital list, suffering from fountain-pen paralysis, a rare affliction, chiefly attributed to overwork in witnessing exhib. contracts.

We note the crafty ole "Mitch," late of the Fox sellers brigade, and "Beau" Boland, of the Universal clan, are now under the subtle guidance of G. W. Wilson, manager of the U. S. Exhibitors Booking Corporation.

That certainly was an oriful jam crowding the Central Film exchange the other day just waitin' for their old pal, Maynard Schwartz, to return from lunch, that's all. Gosh—it must be wonderful to experience the pangs of popularity. Next—let's be on our way to th' next shop.

They tell us Max Levy is home under the weather. The doctors cawnt seem to arrive at an agreement as to the cause. You see, Cress Smith has been working Max on the out-of-town squad, and the question is whether travel is to blame or the recent exercise "gross papa's pipe" has been given by the patient.

Exhibitors Supply Opens Branch Office In Milwaukee, Wis.

Due to the large amount of business in and about Milwaukee, Wis., the Exhibitors Supply Company, the largest independent concern of this nature in the field, opened an office in the Wisconsin city at 304-5-6 Manhattan building, 133 Second street.

The office was opened under the direction of G. A. Lincoln who with H. A. Dutton founded the Exhibitors Supply company a little more than two years ago. A complete line of motion picture machines, booth equipment, screens and theatre supplies will be carried by the Milwaukee office which will be complete in every detail.

It was felt by the company that better service than ever before in the way of quicker shipments at a minimum of transportation charges could be rendered to the company's patrons in this territory through the establishment of an office in Wisconsin.

The home office of the company is in the Mallers building, Chicago, and there is also a branch in Indianapolis. They are in possession of the simplex machine, Hertner Transvertisers, Sheet adapters, Mazda lamps and Da Lite Screens.

H. J. Smith Joins Wholesome Films Corp.

H. J. Smith, formerly representative of the Mutual in Minneapolis territory, has been appointed manager of the service department of the Wholesome Films Corporation. The executive offices of the Wholesome are now located on the fourth floor of the Shops Building 17 North Wabash avenue.

Rowland & Clark Buy "The Frozen Warning"

H. A. Spanuth, president of Commonwealth Pictures Corporation, has signed with Rowland & Clark, of Pittsburgh, for the exploiting of "The Frozen Warning" in western Pennsylvania and West Virginia. The feature is to be played in eight of Pittsburgh's leading theatres.

W. H. Productions Co.

Issues Press Book On "The Bargain"

Although the picture is practically sole for the entire country, the W. H. Productions Company has prepared and distributed an attractive two-color sixteen page booklet on its William S. Hart production "The Bargain."

It was compiled primarily for the purpose of helping the exchangemen obtain bookings and also contains much valuable and essential information for selling the picture properly to the public. The first six pages are devoted to sales argument to aid the exchangemen in securing the theatre's interest and the subsequent pages are devoted to catch phrases and advertising material for the use of the theatre owner in exploiting the picture to the public.

Universal Completes Five-Reel Features
To Carry Their Programs Up to August

The lateness of the rainy season in California has enabled the Universal Film Manufacturing Company to work on productions four weeks longer than was possible to the studios of other producers. The company has had an opportunity to get farther ahead on their programs, both Bluebirds and Universal features, as well as serials. There are no new negatives started during the past week at Universal City, we now have on hand enough first-class five-reel feature pictures to take all our first-run theaters through until August, said President Carl Laemmle in a statement issued last week from the Universal offices.

"For that reason and also to avoid unnecessary producing during the expensive rainy season, we have temporarily laid off all companies except those producing Bluebirds and Universal serials. By this plan we hope to carry the picture business over the next three months. Of course our employees will be temporarily laid off, but they will be taken on as soon as the weather breaks and we do not think the workmen will miss the work. We are paying our men as much as possible and we believe this has helped to build up the pool of talent for us. As for the weather, the only thing that can possible be done about it is to wait. This rainy weather is certainly better than snow. It is uncomfortable and we are in the process of finishing up our summer programs."

Three of Thomas Dixon’s Literary Works
Under Consideration by Mastercraft Corp

Thomas Dixon, Jr., one of the notable figures in American literature, spent several days in New York last week, conferring with the directors of the newly formed Mastercraft Photo-Play Corporation in reference to producing his literary works on the screen.

Since the making of "The Birth of a Nation," it is said producers have endeavored to obtain other works of Mr. Dixon for the screen, but up to the forming of the Mastercraft Photo-Play Corporation, he had refused to consider any of the offers made him.

"I attribute a great deal of the success of "The Birth of a Nation," said Mr. Dixon, to the fact that Mr. Griffith and myself went over the script many, many times in a careful, painstaking manner, and we visualized in our own minds, before the actual work of filming, just what the result would be upon the screen. Of the present time producers have not avored this method of working, but seemed to prefer to purchase a story from the author and then turn it over to their scenario department and directors to make as they think best. A great many times these men have not the sympathy or the same viewpoint as the author has and thus a great many pictures fail, where it would have been possible to have made them highly successful. It is the intention of the Mastercraft Photo-Play Corporation to work with the author, the same as Mr. Griffith and myself worked with "The Birth of a Nation" and this is the chief reason why I am becoming affiliated with this newly created organization."

"The town won't make not less than our nor more than six productions a year, but these productions I feel confident will be of such magnitude that I will be proud to have my name associated with them. I am at this time working on three of my stories, 'Comrades,' 'The One Woman' and 'The Root of All,' all of which will probably be produced for the screen. We have not decided definitely yet just which of these stories will first go into production, but we will probably determine this question before I leave the city."

$2,500 Paid for Use
Of Furniture One Week

"The Life Mask," the third production which will serve as a starring vehicle for Madame Petrova, contains several scenic notable for the luxurious atmosphere provided for in the scenario, the work of Mrs. L. Case Russell. The story, an adaptation of the novel by the anonymous author responsible for "To M. L. G." required the use of a specially designed boudoir set.

In order that the furnishings of these scenes might be in proper accord with the atmosphere of the set, Director Frank Crane decided on the use of hand painted furniture exclusively. After a thorough search of many of New York's Fifth Avenue shops, Mr. Crane located the exact furniture necessary for the boudoir scenes.

A rental price of twenty-five hundred dollars to the firm of Tobey & Co. furniture dealers, was paid by Mr. Crane for the use of five pieces during a period of seven days.

"Cast-Off" Starring Bessie Barriscale
Arousing Interest

George Backer's big feature, "The Cast-Off," in which Bessie Barriscale stars, with Howard Hickman in support, is starting bookings with a rush. Hoffman Foursquare announces. This Thomas H. Ince production, which is being distributed by Foursquare Pictures, has aroused keen interest among exhibitors. The Newark Theatre has booked "The Cast-Off" for one week.

According to M. H. Hoffman, of Four-square Pictures, this is a picture which is the most human, the most appealing, and one of the finest in quality which has been produced this season.

The story tells the story of Mr. Barriscale's highly of my own product, yet here is an instance that warrants making an exception," said Mr. Hoffman. "I can recommend "The Cast-Off," as a picture which will get money, and a lot of it. Nothing Thomas H. Ince has produced excels "The Cast-Off" in those essentials that the public looks for, that Barriscale had a role more sympathetic than in this picture or one she played and appeared in to such advantage.

Reissue of Chaplins Reported by Mutual

Charles Chaplin's twelve Mutual specials, the two reel comedies which the screen comedian produced under his $670,000 contract with the Mutual Film Corporation, have set new records for repeat bookings in the history of the motion picture industry, according to that company.

The record is held by the Gem theatre, a loop house in Chicago, which has played the twelve pictures a total of 175 times, an average of nearly fifteen times each. The high mark is held by "The Vagabond," which has been shown on the screen at the Gem twenty-one times. The Floorwalker has run nineteen times. "The Fireman," "The Pawnshop" and "Easy Street" eighteen times each. "Behind the Screen" seventeen, "The Rink" sixteen, "The Count" fifteen, "The Immigrant" ten, "The Cure" nine, "The Adventurer" eight and "One A.M." seven.

The Star theatre at Boston claims second place. It has run sixty-one two-day showings for the twelve pictures, a total of 122, an average of better than five two-day showings for each release. The Star theatre, a downtown house in Chicago, has almost reached the same mark.

The Royal Theatre at Virginia, Minn., played all of the Chaplins for three days on first run and the Bijou, an opposite house, repeated them all for second run on one day schedule, and has just commenced a third run of three days each lasting two weeks.

Reuben and Finkelstein's houses in Minneapolis have repeated all of the series at their first run houses and in spite of this the Garden theatre, a downtown house, has booked the series of twelve for four days each. This booking makes virtually the third run for the Chaplins in downtown Minneapolis and a fourth run at this week's showings.

Records of the Mutual show, it is said, that nearly all of the suburban and neighborhood houses which played the Chaplins have repeated the series and that three days has begun a second run before the release of "The Adventurer," the twelfth of the series and that scores of houses which played the series for first and second runs are reboking under the new booking plan for the third run.
Universal to Issue
"Dorothy Phillips Productions" Alone

Although continuing to publish through Bluebird exchanges, production activity is to be limited to Twenty-first Century Productions Hereafter they will be designated as "Dorothy Phillips Productions" Universal an nounces. There will be no brand designa tion, and the method of handling the pictures will apply as though they were independent productions without being any part of the regular Bluebird pro gram.

"The Grand Passion," lately shown at the Broadway Theatre, New York, will be the initial "Dorothy Phillips Produc tions" to reach exhibitors under the new plan. William Stowell, who has been Miss Phillips' leading man in Bluebirds, and Jack Molhall, who has been a regular character in Universal features, will now appear in this Ida May Park production. Miss Phillips has completed another of which Miss Phillips will star, "Her Fling," a feature based on Kath erine Leiser Robbins' story of the same title. William Stowell, who has been involved in several Universal features, has just in other Universal features, appear as Miss Phillips' principal supporters in this Ida May Park production.

Manager Arthur Kane Adopts Sales Slogan
For Select Staff

Select Pictures Corporation has adopted the slogan "Stars to Sell Stars," as applied to its sales organization. The phrase is the choice of General Manager Arthur S. Kane.

"Any man in each particular territory—that has been our aim," said Mr. Kane. "It would make no difference if the man who covered Cleveland, for instance, could not sell cheeses in Atlanta. The point is, is he the very man to sell Select Pictures in Cleveland, bar none? When we are able successfully to apply this test, and record an affirmative answer, we know we have the one man of all men for the particular field under consideration.

The old routine has been superseded by the new order of things, in which a highly specialized, individualized relation is maintained between branch manager and the special picture to be sold. This enables the branch manager to give the customers what they want, and to oversell the pictures without effort.

"Naturally the relationship between the branch manager and the home office has also undergone a change. It is the policy of the Select organization to put the utmost freedom of action compatible with a responsible organization, and to hold him to account for results. This policy of responsibility based upon authority is the one and only one under which the individual initiative necessary for the intelli gent conduct of a high grade campaign may be applied to the branch managing sold men who are territorial specialists. Select proposes to avail itself to the fullest extent of their highly cultivated knowledge of the field under their command."

M. H. Hoffman Offers Aid in Distributing Great Lakes Scenes

Foursquare Pictures, co-operating with the Great Lakes Naval Relief, is prepar ing to aid in this patriotic cause by dis tributing through its twenty-one exchanges the picture now being made showing the training of the recruits. M. H. Hoffman, administrative head of this insti tution, has just sent to Chairman Mrs. Moffet, of the Great Lakes Naval Relief, at Great Lakes, Ill., the following letter:

"I trust you will extend the excel-ence, at this time, of the film entitled "Our Boys and Your Boys," showing the work that is being done at the Great Lakes Relief Station in the cause of democracy's freedom. It is my belief that the distribution of this film will not only be of the greatest interest to the public at large, but that it will appeal to and stimulate a patriotic feel ing within all who see it."

"Foursquare Pictures will be too glad to do our bit in this. We could work by distributing, without charge, the film in question. Our twenty-one exchanges in the United States and Canada are at your service in this matter."

Former Models Star
in Flagg's Satires

Motion picture patrons who saw the first of James Montgomery Flagg's series of "Social Satires," are anticipating with interest the showing of the next one. "The Screen Fan" is an amusing and fascinating twentieth century prod uct—and these one-reel sketches in which Mr. Flagg employs his gifted brush and witty pen, are a diverting innovation in motion pictures.

For "The Screen Fan," Mr. Flagg se lected Eleanor Masters, a petite and vi vacious brunette, as the ideal type, and his next sketch, "Flagg's Satire," will be presented. Both girls have posed for many of Mr. Flagg's illustrations.

Substitute for Scenery

Louis Burstein, president of the King
Bee Films Corp., has been approached by a California inventor, who claims to have perfected a scenic illusion which he pro jects through a small lantern and that will do away entirely with studio scenery.

A demonstration is promised shortly, and if practical, Mr. Burstein and his as sociates in the King-Bee Films Corp will handle the business end of the invention, which, it is said, should revolutionize the studio end of the motion picture industry.

Select Stars Choose Directors for Plays

Charles Gilbey will direct Alice Brady in her next Select production, at present called "Ruthless Russia." Mr. Gilbey has just completed a picture with Ann Pennington and prior to that launched Constance Talmadge on her flight to stardom, when he directed her in "Scan dal," "The Honeymoon" and "The Studio Girl!"

Clara Kimball Young has chosen Rob ert G. Vignola to direct "The Reason Why," the next picture she is planning to make for Select. Mr. Vignola recently completed Alice Brady's Select feature, "The Knife."

Edward Warren Soon
To Start Production
For Arrow Film Corp.

Edward Warren, who recently signed a long term contract with the Arrow Film Corporation as a result of which all of his future pictures will be published through that latter organization will shortly begin work on his first super feature under the new arrangement.

"I expect to produce some noteworthy feats through the years," he said, "as a result of this new affiliation with the Arrow Film," said Mr. Warren, in dis cussing plans for the future. "We shall develop in the next year our first picture. This will be selected from several big stories that we have option on by a special board of experts, and when we have both the story and the Warren organization and produc tion will commence immediately."

"Soul's Redeemed" and "Weavers of Life," the last two Warren productions have been taken over by Arrow Fill for distribution.

Samuel S. Hutchinson, Contributes New Word
To Film Vocabulary

Samuel S. Hutchinson, president of the American Film Company, has been over whelmed with inquiries from his friends as to the meaning of the word "grouse" as used in a recent article published in THE EXHIBITORS HERALD.

Mr. Hutchinson, in his Chicago offices, where the American laboratory is situ ated, only smiled when they wanted to know what in thunder "grouse" meant. A lot of them evidently thought it was a second cousin to a quail; but Mr. Hutchinson only smiled and took an other whiff from his constant companion, a well-colored meerschaum, and remarked that "grouse" wasn't a good word for a film man to become acquainted with.

As a matter of fact the word "grouse," or "grouse," as it is spelled in the trenchers, is a word commonly used by a sea avenue, called for a section of sailors to indicate a soldier with a habitual grog or a case of cold feet, grumbling, and "Don't Grouse!" is a common admonition in the trenches of the new trench-man complains of conditions.

"Therefore, it is absolutely a proper word for a seasoned campaigner in the new world to use," asserts Mr. Hutchin son.

What Official U. S. Government Censorship Thinks of "THE EAGLE'S EYE"

The Committee on Public Information, composed of George Creel, Chairman, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of War, the Secretary of the Navy, officially passed and endorsed the first three episodes of this patriotic serial.
Is the Kaiser's censorship and approval also necessary to permit American propaganda pictures to be shown to American audiences?

Everyone knows that the sinking of the Lusitania was planned in the United States by Imperial German agents. They do not know that it was also planned to blow up the Hotel Astoria, New York, and kill 800 American naval officers attending the Naval Ball. Nor do they know that an attempt was made to torpedo the Atlantic Fleet while in review before President Wilson in New York Harbor.

These, and many other facts generally unknown, are revealed by Chief Flynn in "The Eagle's Eye."

Every American should know of the Imperial German Government's deliberate crimes of murder, arson and sabotage against America and its people—all the while posing as a friendly nation.

"ONE PICTURE IS WORTH MORE THAN A MILLION WORDS"

—Arthur Brisbane

Exhibitors should give their patrons the opportunity to witness these revelations because the purpose of this serial is to inspire patriotism and foster loyalty.

The Independent Picture—Exhibitors Brightest Hope

FROM day to day the open booking plan is winning new recruits. According to reliable reports recently obtained, a large percentage of the theatres of the United States have adopted the open booking plan since the first of January. In the case of one of the large companies it is reported that more than twenty percent of the company’s customers have given notice that existing contracts will not be renewed.

All this is positive indication that the scope of the program system is to be still further curtailed. It does not mean that the so-called program is going to pass entirely out of existence, but it does mean that a great number of exhibitors are waking up to the advantage of the open market and also to a realization of the burdensome nature of many of the existing program contracts.

The inequitable program contract which, to a great measure, takes the management of the theatre out of the hands of the exhibitor, which compels him to run the poor pictures as well as the good pictures, is on the eve of elimination. Certain companies whose great object seems to have been to tie up the exhibitor in such a way that he would have to use whatever pictures the company decided to make, stand the burden of whatever outrageous salaries to players the company saw fit to pay, are now being hit very hard.

But the plan of these companies being an inequitable one, it is only natural that they should suffer and

Patriotism and Dollars

WITH practically the entire motion picture trade striving valiantly to demonstrate its undivided loyalty to the cause of America in the war, it comes as a distinct shock to learn that a powerful chain of theatres in the East has declined to run a patriotic and anti-German serial on the grounds that it might prove offensive to its German patrons.

This situation strikes to the very root of the problem of America’s position in international affairs. If this country is to defend and maintain its proper position among the great nations of the world, all this nonsense of kow-towing to the likes of this foreign element and that foreign element must be wiped out at a single stroke and the slogan of “All Americans We” must be engraven in the heart of everyone looking for protection and prosperity under the “Stars and Stripes.”

Refusal to submit to the course of true Americanism must be branded with the stigma of “Traitor”—and the only proper reward of treachery in time of war is death.

Unfortunately for America at this time a patriotic and anti-German serial probably would rouse the ire of a number of alleged Americans, but it is grossly disheartening when the greatest sacrifices that a human being is capable of are being made daily in the cause of our national interests that a powerful chain of theatres, capable of great publicity and propaganda, declines to submit to the sacrifice of losing, if necessary, the patronage of those who are enemies at heart to the America that defends and protects those theatres and their owners.

M. J. Q.
also cause exhibitors who have played their game to suffer.

There are certain program contracts which work out very well, especially for the small exhibitor who is not in the position to pick and choose and who cannot pay the price for the pictures that he naturally would want to run. But the larger theatres whose success absolutely depends on being able to present the best pictures the market affords, cannot intelligently bind itself to any single company or any small group of associated producers.

The open market is now offering a majority of the best pictures of the year and these pictures standing alone and not carrying the burden of many weak ones may be obtained at a price that is consistently low.

There has long been a preponderance of evidence in support of the commercial correctness of the open booking plan, but it is only within the last sixty days that the exhibitors have spoken in a voice that cannot be misinterpreted—namely, by cancelling contracts—and have impressed upon the biggest program company, for one, that the old game of binding up the exhibitor with a burdensome contract and then allowing him to work out his salvation as best he can, is destined to pass into the discard.

The film industry, because of its very nature, is a business of constant change; the program was once a splendid thing for exhibitors, but that day is passed and very likely passed for all time.

The independent picture, standing alone on its individual merits, holds out the brightest promise to exhibitors.

A Credit to the Industry

With the retirement this month of Edwin Thanhouser from active participation in picture making one of the pioneers of the industry lays down his tools. Mr. Thanhouser throughout the years of his busy life has been a credit to the business. Never has he permitted a suggestive or obnoxious scene to be photographed in his studio; and during his whole career he has never allowed an employee to overstep the bounds of propriety while on the premises. He has well earned his rest and he retires with the highest regard of those who worked under him and the business world at large.

Oklahoma Branch A. E. A. Passes Resolution and Wires U. S. Treasurer Authorizing Request That Advance Deposit Funds Be Converted Into Liberty Bonds

A movement which owes its origin to the Oklahoma state branch of the American Exhibitors Association and which as already gained impetus among other exhibitors organizations in the country, may cause considerable embarrassment to the ranks of certain producers. The Oklahoma exhibitors in a resolution passed at the sixth annual convention of that body, consented and authorized the United States government to request the film companies holding advance deposits to convert the money thus obtained into Liberty Bonds. Producers have long contended, exhibitors point out, that the money paid into their hands is deposited in a separate fund and available at all times. Inasmuch as the government is about to float third Liberty Loan it is estimated that a sum considerable in excess of $5,000,000 could be obtained if the advance deposit funds were so used.

Bond interest satisfactory
Motion picture exhibitors who were present at the Oklahoma meeting expressed a willingness to accept a reduction in interest to the amount paid on such bonds, where the interest paid by the film companies exceeded this amount. They asserted that the money was now rationally lying idle.

Rumor has had it, although never verified, that certain producers were using this advance deposit money as a means of furthering their own affairs. If this is so, the exhibitors state that such statements are false and will be nailed as untrue.

Probably the custodians of the largest mount of exhibitors money through the advance deposit system are the Paramount and Artcraft companies. These affiliated organizations are believed to have approximately $4,000,000.

Copy to McAdoo
Following the passage of the resolution a copy of it was wired to William G. McAdoo, secretary of the treasury at Washington, D. C. The document closes with the assurance of continued support of the organization in all war measures by the government. It follows:

"Be It Resolved, that the American Exhibitors Association, Oklahoma State Branch, in convention assembled, do hereby give consent and authorize the United States Government to request that the film companies convert into Liberty Bonds the vast amount of the exhibitors' money now held by said film companies as advance deposits for film service, such bonds to be held by the film companies as security deposits on film service furnished to the exhibitors by the said film companies to the end that this money, which is now lying idle, may be used in the prosecution of the war. Oklahoma members of the association will, upon request, appear at the advance deposits, in excess of the rate paid on Liberty Bonds, agree to accept the reduction in interest to the amount paid on such bonds.

We further pledge our continued support of the Government in all war measures. Our screens are open to all patriotic movements and our Theatres open to Four-Minute-Men and other duly authorized speakers."

Good attendance recorded
The convention was held in Oklahoma City at the Lee Huckins hotel on February 5. More than sixty exhibitors from various parts of the state were in attendance. Oklahoma City, Muskogee and Tulsa were represented by one hundred percent membership.

Acclamation was the means by which all the officers of the association were re-elected for the ensuing year. They are A. B. Momand, president; S. H. Jones, vice-president; H. W. McCall, second vice-president; C. D. Jackson, treasurer, and L. W. Brophy, secretary.

Fourteen new members were admitted to membership at the meeting. In addition to the above resolution the exhibitors went on record as being opposed to the advance deposit system and entered an agreement to give preference to the film companies that showed a disposition to be fair.

Rembusch Succeeds Pettijohn
As General Manager of A. E. A.
Later Is Now Allied With Seven Independent Producers
Who Are Backing "Manufacturer to Exhibitor Direct" Plan

Frank J. Rembusch has succeeded Charles C. Pettijohn as general manager of the American Exhibitors' Association and is in charge of the headquarters of that organization in Indianapolis. Mr. Pettijohn has allied himself with the seven independent exhibitors who, after appearing before the Allied Exhibitors convention in Washington in December, formed the "Manufacturer to Exhibitor Direct" plan.

The new general manager is highly optimistic over the outlook for the association. He has but recently completed a tour of the central states and is especially enthusiastic over the strength of the exhibitors organization in the state of Michigan.

"There is one thing, however, that has been considered as an obstacle," said Mr. Rembusch, "and that is the general broadcast impression that the American Exhibitors' Association and the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League have amalgamated.

No Amalgamation Yet
"This is not true. There has been no amalgamation as yet. Our association is going right ahead with its plans to hold the annual convention in July, and indications are that this event will be a success in every way." Mr. Rembusch expressed himself as being heartily in accord with the plans of the seven independent producers in the interests of whom Mr. Pettijohn has already begun a campaign to familiarize exhibitors with the details of the project. The latter will meet the exhibitors of Chicago and surrounding territory on Wednesday, February 13, for this purpose.

Circular letters announcing this fact have been sent to all of its members by the Motion Picture Theatre Owners' Association, Chicago Branch of the American Exhibitors' Association. The meeting will be held at Fraternity Hall, 19 West Adams street.

Show Brenon Production
C. C. Pettijohn, Harry Rapf and Frank J. Rembusch will be in the party and will bring with them the latest Herbert Brenon feature, "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," a showing of which will be had on that day.

"In this matter," the notification reads, "organizations are put in the background and just as we met in Washington under an allied convention, so should we meet here in Chicago without any reference to an organization, but to gain the advantages that are yours for the asking." The plan contemplates the publication of one picture a week which "can reach the exhibitor no matter how small or how large his house may be, at prices so reasonable that not a man will fail to book them," and is dependent upon a guarantee of a specified number of days' run from each state.
Titan Feature Photo Play Company Formed
By Group of Spokane, Wash. Business Men
Organization Capitalized at $500,000—Will Produce Six Big Films a Year—Ernest Shipman, New York Agent

One of the first companies composed of farsighted business men who recognize the safe and sane method of first ascertaining the demands of the motion picture public, and then manufacturing to supply that demand, has been organized at Spokane, Washington, under the corporate name of the Titan Feature Photoplay Company.

The company is capitalized for $500,000, and the organization contract reads as follows: "It is further agreed that not a move will be made towards production, until the entire $500,000 is fully subscribed and paid into the treasury."

Present at the first meeting were E. Dan Alexander, president; J. D. Severson, treasurer; J. D. McLaughlin, secretary; and J. D. McLaughlin, secretary; H. G. Twomley, attorney; J. D. McLaughlin, treasurer; and many others active in the business life of Spokane.

One hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars were paid in by voluntary subscription at this meeting, and J. D. Mayo, who is official underwriter for the corporation, is confident that the entire stock issue will be over-subscribed by April.

Plans Announced Later

The plans for discerning the market needs, the co-operative methods to be inaugurated between the Titan Company and the exhibition men, and the ultimate terms of release, will be the subject of a later announcement. Suffice it is to say that a sufficient amount of preliminary investigation was undertaken by representative business men of Spokane, who visited New York for the purpose, to insure a carefully studied and well defined line of action.

Ernest Shipman has been selected as the New York representative of the Titan Company and will have entire charge of the Titan product, both in America and abroad.

A board of advisers will be selected from among the most prominent film historians, clergymen, and educators, who will act in an advisory capacity in the choosing of stories, stars, directors, etc., thereby largely influencing the nature of the product which they will be handling at a later date. Ernest Shipman, of the Allied, will serve as chairman of the board, and supervise the advertising methods of the Titan Company.

A plan is already under way whereby the first picture will be shown simultaneously in seven or more of the world's most important capitals, with interchangeable cables regarding the various openings, passing between all points for publicity purposes. A fund of $100,000 will be set aside for the publicity drive.

Other Companies Forming

It is rumored that four other independent companies, two in California, one in Florida, and one in Utah, are organizing along similar lines regarding which Ernest Shipman makes the following statement: "Bankers, captains of industry, and sound business men recognize that there is an ever-growing de-

Mr. McLaughlin received his business training in the journalistic field, having started work as an advertising man on the Pittsburgh Press, a position which he held for nine years. While on the Press, McLaughlin made a study of advertising methods followed by the various businesses which used the columns of his paper, and thus gained an intensive knowledge of the advertising game.

Mr. McLaughlin went from the Pittsburgh Press to the Cleveland Leader, and afterwards to the Chicago Tribune, and gained a still further knowledge of sales conditions in the fields which they represented. He also served as Editor of Photoplay Magazine.

New York, Feb. 9—Harry Leonhardt, for some time special western representative for the Goldwyn Distributing Corporation, severed his connections with the company on Tuesday, February 5, and left immediately for Los Angeles. Mr. Leonhardt stated that he intended devoting his time in the immediate future to his theatre interests on the Coast. Mr. Leonhardt formerly was connected with the Fox Film Corporation.

Trenton, N. J.—Assemblyman Herschfield introduced a bill last week at a session of the House of Assembly which is aimed to safeguard the lives of motion picture theatre patrons. The bill provides that managers of every film theatre shall display upon the screen or have printed in his program a diagram of the interior of the theatre, indicating each exit.

Legislator From Richmond Introduced Bill "By Request" Which Passes General Assembly—Maryland to Repeal Law

Two states, Virginia and New Jersey are in the throes of a fight to impose censorship upon motion pictures. Probably the most drastic of these is the Virginia bill which has already passed the general assembly and now awaits the governor's signature. It is said by those in close touch with the situation that its passage seems assured.

The bill was introduced into the legislature less than two weeks ago by J. P. Jones, a new member from Richmond, who said he did so "by request." It provides for a board of censors of three members to be appointed by the governor at a salary of $2,400 each per year. In addition, it is provided that the board shall be self-supporting. It will sit in Richmond and all have deputies stationed throughout the state who are to receive a per diem compensation for such actual service in supervision and regulation of a film house as may render. The system is so framed as to relieve the state of any cost, the exhibitors being required to bear it all.

In New Jersey two bills practically alike in character have been introduced into the legislature at Trenton. The first measure introduced by Senator Roberts calls for a censor board of three men, annual salary $2,500 each. The second, introduced by Senator McGovern, differs in but one respect in that it calls for two men and one woman, instead of an all-male aggregation.

Both measures contain provisions for the imposition of a fee of $1 each for each thousand feet of film reviewed by the board and both specify it shall be illegal for any person to exhibit a film that has not been passed upon by the proposed board.

In Maryland, where a fight is being made to obtain the repeal of the present censorship law, representatives of the film industry are of optimistic mien. Although nothing has been disclosed concerning the method to be used in fighting the bill, it is said that the situation is held well in hand. The hearing will be had in the House of Representatives on February 14.

Allen Film Corp. Plans the Marketing Of a Series of Important Productions

General Manager and Directors Select Several Films in New York— to Extend Territory in Middle West

New York, Feb. 9—James R. Grainger, general manager of the Allen Film Corporation, was in New York this week to consider several state rights, special and making plans for adding to the list of special features now being distributed by the Allen company.

Mr. Grainger was accompanied by M. Michelson and L. H. Baumgardner, well known Chicago business men, who are directors of the Allen company.

Mr. Grainger and Mr. Michelson arrived in the city early Wednesday, February 6. Prior to leaving Mr. Grainger stated that during his New York visit, in addition to the inspection of several important productions which his company is considering issuing to exhibitors in the West, he completed plans for the marketing of a series of big special productions which are being prepared along distinctly original lines and are aimed to accommodate the demand for big popular entertainment.

Mr. Grainger stated that he would have an important trade announcement to make following his return to Chicago. "The Allen company, since its organization, "he said, "has been working intensively in perfecting an organization for the distribution of big features in the Middle West and West. "Up to the present time we have only undertaken the distribution of three specials—"The Garden of Allah," "Mother" and "The Warrior." With these three productions we have established ourselves in the good graces of exhibitors throughout the Western territory and have demonstrated our plan of issuing first-rate productions on a basis which insures profit and success to the exhibitor. The distributor at all times is aided and assisted by our service department and we have constantly made it plain that our policy is one of thorough cooperation.

Method of Collecting Theatre Admission Tax May Be Changed

Owing to dissatisfaction with the present methods of collecting the tax on theatre admissions the authorities at Washington charged with the responsibility of enforcing the law are now considering a new set of regulations which, it is said, will shortly be put into effect. These new rules it is estimated are to be more drastic than the present regulations.

The reason for the change is shrouded with mystery but it is generally believed that the authorities believe of the opinion that the Government is not getting the amount of tax money that it should from this source. Inspectors are now reporting the results of their investigation of books of every theatre in the big centres.

"Our plans for the immediate future call for several notable expansions which we have determined upon owing to the interest which exhibitors throughout the territory have, shown in the policy of this company," Mr. Grainger is probably the best known independent distributor in the country. From time to time he has assisted in an advisory capacity several of the large exchanges. Mr. Grainger is a pioneer in the handling of big features, having been in charge of the distribution of "Cabin in the Cotton" and also marketed "Civilization" for Thomas H. Ince.

Harry R. Durant Signs Contract With Goldwyn

Samuel Goldfish, president of Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, has just closed a long term contract with Harry R. Durant, well known and successful moving picture writer and editor. Mr. Durant is a young man and well known free-lance writer, having over two hundred short stories to his credit, when he joined the Munsey staff of editors.

During his five years with Munsey Mr. Durant was editor of the "All-Story Magazine." While editor there Mr. Durant wrote many notable plays accepted for the Reliance-Majestic studios. He has also the unique distinction of being the only American author who ever had a Napoleon play accepted for a Pariscn production. His play, "L'Homme Meme" (The Man Within) won for him a coveted membership to the Society of Authors and Composers of France.

Aileen Brenon Takes New Publicity Work

She is a niece of Herbert Brenon, the producer, and will handle the publicity on the "Producer to Exhibitor Direct" plan, as well as her work for Mr. Brenon.
Market Glutted with Inferior Product Says Hunter Bennett of U. S. Corp.

"Executives of Certain Distributing Companies Are Causing Conditions From Which They Are Worst Sufferers"
Special Representative Declares

That executives of certain distributing companies concerning complaints about over-production of film are themselves the chief violators in that respect, having flooded the market with mediocre pictures, was the statement of Hunter Bennett, special representative for the United States Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, upon his return to New York from a tour of the west.

Having served in an executive capacity for the Mutual Film Corporation and other companies, Mr. Bennett is one of the best known men in the distributing field. He will continue to supervise the distribution of United States productions in the west, in which territory he has just completed the assembling of the selling forces for that company.

"It is amusing to me," Mr. Bennett stated, "that executives of certain distributing companies are causing just the kind of conditions from which they are the worst sufferers.

"Grist Mill" Exchanges

"In my trips about the country—and I have spent most of my time while in the film business touring the United States—I have found that their exchanges as a rule are veritable grist mills turning out a volume of mediocre pictures out of which only one in five productions shows a profit.

"The result is that they have accumulated a great amount of film in various exchanges for which there is little or no demand.

"The conscientious exchange manager rather than see his film lie idle starts shooting it out at any old price, vainly attempting to meet the tremendous overhead expense he is compelled to operate under in order to handle the great amount of dollar per reel subjects he is receiving each week, or has received in the past.

"In the last few months a few of the companies which have been glutting the market with an inferior product woke up and reduced the number of their releases. But, in my opinion, this step was taken too late, as they are maintaining exchanges which cover three times as much floor space as they require to handle the present number of releases. Most exchanges, I have found, are tied up on long-term leases and are carrying at least twice as large a payroll as they require.

"Inefficient Heads"

"Some distributors have permitted men to dictate the policies of their companies who have had practically little or no experience in this business, with no practical knowledge of actual conditions in any one territory.

"It is suggested that the exchange counselors, as they have been called, who are largely responsible for the conditions existing at the present time, but, as I have stated above, their own companies will be the first to suffer from their folly.

"In my estimation, anyone who predicts that a certain few distributing companies who have a hold on the film business is doomed to disappointment. Nobody has or ever will have a patent on this industry. All the exhibitors are interested in, is to obtain the best productions made and anybody who can produce that kind of subject always will find a ready market for it.

"The store-show operating on a shoestring is a thing of the past. The successful exhibitor of today has passed through all the frenzy of the bally-hoo stages of the business, and neither he nor his patrons will accept anything they don't want.

"The day also is past when any single distributor can use a few successful stars or production companies to club over the exhibitor's head in order to compel him to book subjects he doesn't want. It is a case of quantity versus quality, and quality is bound to win."

What's a Few Bombs
To Essanay Workers?

A letter from Essanay's London booking agent tells us that the thrilling incident of a recent air raid, though many business offices in the vicinity of the booking agent's office had abandoned business for the time being as a measure of caution, the Essanay representatives worked hard to maintain the order the firm maintained, and that all of the exhibitors were served with films.

"It was during the height of an air raid," the letter reads, "and when the management asked the staff what they wanted to do, with one accord the answer came: 'Keep on working.' And because of this faithfulness to duty, not a single exhibitor was without his films for the next day, even though shells and bombs were bursting all about us."

Sawyer and Lubin Show "Crucible of Life"
To Press and Buyers at Churchills, N. Y.

Premiere of State Right Features Was Followed by Dinner
—Many Out of Town Guests Present—Boys From Camp Upton Entertained

Arthur H. Sawyer and Herbert Lubin held the private premiere of their latest state right feature film, "The Crucible of Life," at Churchill's Restaurant, New York, on February 1. The occasion was marked by many unique features, among which was the projection of the picture and the serving of the banquet which followed in the same room. This was made possible by the erection of a full-sized screen and two Powers 6-A machines housed in an asbestos booth. The tables for the guests, which comprised many notables of the industry, in addition to the reviewing press, were so arranged as to afford a good view of the picture.

A surprise was sprung by Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin through the appearance of the Camp Upton Quartet, especially drafted for the occasion to lend the proper military atmosphere to the "Crucible of Life," which is a patriotic spectacle dealing with the present world war. Special permission for the appearance of the soldiers was granted by Colonel Vidner, commanding officer of the 306th Infantry, Camp Upton, Long Island. To further the danh of the famous war song, "When the Moon Is Shining Somewhere in France," the Camp Upton Quartet scored a tremendous hit by reason of their singing and splendid military appearance.

Following the presentation of "The Crucible of Life" an elaborate dinner was served, during the course of which entertainment was furnished by William McKenna, pianolouge and song routine; Sam Ryan, well known legitimate stand screen actor, and a jazz band which thrilled the evening. The entire occasion was marked by the absence of speeches and formality, and those present voted the affair the most unique and enjoyable which has been held in film circles for some time.

Among the notable guests present were Richard A. Rowland, president of Metro Pictures Corporation; Joseph En- gle and William E. Atkinson, treasurer and business manager, respectively, for Metro; J. Skirbell of Pittsburgh; Conrad Milliken, vice-president of Petrova Picture Company; J. F. Bacon of the firm of Sanger and Jordan; Martin J. Quigley, owner of the EXHIBITORS' HERALD of Chicago; L. M. Wharton's "The Eagle's Eye" Not to Appear on Loew Circuit

Theodore Wharton in Signed Affidavit Gives as Reason Fear of Theatres Owner to Offend German Patronage

"The Eagle's Eye," the Wharton serial sponsored by Chief Flynn, former head of the United States secret service, exposing the machinations of the Imperial German government, will not be shown in the Marcus Loew enterprises.

In sworn statements Theodore W. Wharton, president of Wharton, Inc., and Herman Gainsborg, manager of the New York Hoffman-Foursquare exchange, which company will distribute the picture, state that the reason given by representatives of Mr. Loew is that presentation of the serial would offend the German patronage of the theatres.

Mr. Wharton further states that a trade showing of a number of episodes of the serial was given in his offices at 220 Madison Avenue, and that Freese, in charge of the booking department of the Marcus Loew theatres, was in attendance.

Following this he says, at the solicitation of Mr. Gainsborg, the first episode was shown at the Marcus Loew office and was viewed by Mr. Loew, Joseph M. Schenk, general manager of the company, and Mr. Mitchell.

Arrangements have been made, Mr. Wharton asserts, to show the first three episodes of the serial, but when the first had been finished Mr. Loew and Mr. Schenk stated that they did not wish to go any further.

On being informed by Mr. Gainsborg that he had been informed that Mr. Loew did not care to present "The Eagle's Eye," Mr. Wharton requested the exchange manager to accompany him to the Loew offices to find out the reason. As Mr. Schenk was not present, the two interview Mr. Mitchell and while he admitted that the serial was a good one, they charged that he told them Mr. Loew and Mr. Schenk did not think advisable to book it in their theatres because it catered to a large German patronage and that there was a great deal in the picture which they feared would offend their German patrons.

Offensive to Germans

To Mr. Wharton's statement that there should be nothing but America in this country, Mr. Mitchell is said to have replied that that was the truth but that there were many people of German birth who disliked seeing anything which reflected on Germany or Germans. Mr. Wharton's statement in full follows:

Theodore W. Wharton, being duly sworn, says:—that he is the President of Wharton, Inc., the producer of the motion picture serial, "The Eagle's Eye," that a Marcus Loew, as deposee in the later, is the owner of a number of motion picture houses in which moving pictures are presented and at which houses Wharton, Inc., was very desirous of booking the "Eagle's Eye" serial; that Joseph M. Schenk is the general manager of the Marcus Loew enterprises, and that he, Mr. Mitchell, deposee, have been well advised by him that the German citizens do not like the the "Eagle's Eye," and in consequence they will not present the serial. Mr. Mitchell is deposee, in charge of the booking department of the Marcus Loew enterprises, and that he, Mr. Mitchell, deposee, have been well advised by him that the German patrons of Marcus Loew enterprises do not like the serial.

Julius Steger to Succeed Brady On World, Report

To Have Full Charge of World Activities—Retains Interest in S & S Photoplay Co.

That Julius Steger will succeed William A. Brady, as Director-general of the World Film Corporation, is pretty generally conceded, although the information has not as yet been confirmed by the Film company. Mr. Steger is the brother of actress Josephine Steger, who is the subject of negotiations between Joseph M. Schenk, with whom Mr. Steger is associated in the S. & S. Film Company, Mr. Steger and the World Film Corporation since the announcement of Mr. Brady's retirement.

Mr. Steger, for a number of years, has been a prominent figure in the film field and previous to that had many years practical experience in theatricals as actor and stage manager. Therefore, he comes to the World Company well equipped to handle the post of Directo general.

The appointment of Mr. Steger, it is said, will mean a closer relations with the S. & S. (Steger at Schenk) Film Company. The last company has to its credit many successful pictures which were made under Mr. Steger's personal supervision. Notable among these are "Redemption" starring Evelyn Nesbit; "The Law of Compensation" starring Norma Talmadge; "The Libertine" with John Mason a Alma Hanlon; "Just a Woman" starring Charlotte Walker, besides many other pictures in which he starred. Mr. Steger is to present the screening of this week's but of Miss Anna Case, of the Metropolit Opera Company.

When issued, the office of Pres- dent of the Norma Talmadge Film Corporation, Mr. Steger is president of the Roscoe Arbuckle Comedies Comp. and is producing state rights features under the banner of the S. & S. Photoplay Co.
Poor “Little Mary” Pays $250,000 Tax

It took Mary Pickford just one week, working eight hours a day, it is said, to figure out her income tax. Finally Collector of Internal Revenue J. P. Carpenter decided that “Little Mary” would have to pay $250,000, in the Los Angeles district. These figures are based on four taxes now in effect; viz: the pre-war tax, the war tax, the super tax and excess profit tax.

Miss Pickford is the first of the high-salaried motion picture stars to arrange for the payment of the income tax and it is the general belief that a few of the stars will turn over to the government considerably more than the manufacturers who employ them.

Results Justify Mail Order System

Says M. J. Weisfeldt

"Not a disappointed exhibitor" is the boast of the Wholesome Films Corporation, pioneers in mail order distribution of films, letters being received from all parts of the United States, they claim, approving both their service and productions.

"The problem of shipping to points in the far west and other extreme places was a weighty one," said General Manager M. J. Weisfeldt, "and the only way we could solve it was by a reserve stock of prints to protect bookings while the shipment was in transit. This has proved successful and our confidence in the mail system is fully justified."

Crest Pictures Corp. Executives Pleased With Exhibitors’ Reception of Initial Film

Direct Applications Received for Production “The Grain of Dust” for Many Territories—Will Guard Theatre Men’s Interests

Especial cause for gratification over the manner in which the exhibitors of the country have received the Crest Pictures Corporation’s production, “The Rain of Dust,” featuring Lilian Walker and an all-star cast, is found by executives of that company in the fact that direct applications for bookings have been received which is said exceed the prices placed upon the picture for many territories.

These applications were invited by Arle E. Carlton, president of Crest pictures, as a protection to both exhibitors and state rights buyers, to guard exhibitors against exorbitant prices and to state rights buyers as an absolute guarantee, in advance, of the return of their investment, together with a handcome for the

So far as it is known this is the first time that this merchandising plan has ever been attempted. That state rights holders could seem to speak volumes for the saving power of “The Grain of Dust.”

"The idea is by no means an unselfish one," said Mr. Carlton in discussing his experiment. "We are not in business for day or for the purpose of marketing a single picture. This being so, we are more than confident in the trade than we are upon abnormal

Confidence Established

"As we see it, such confidence can be yielded only in two ways: First, by making productions which at all times will be worthy of such confidence; secondly, by marketing these productions that both the exhibitor and the state rights buyer will make the money to which they are entitled.

That we have accomplished the first step, so far as "The Grain of Dust" is concerned, would seem to be evidenced by the reception which has been accorded this feature. Nothing but unusual and self-evident box office value could have produced such a response as we have received from our suggestion that exhibitors get in touch direct with us regarding this picture.

The second step is not so easy of accomplishment. My thought is that it depends fundamentally upon the sincerity of purpose of those marketing a production. As both an exhibitor and a state rights buyer, in addition to a producer of pictures, I have a very profound respect for the problems and perplexities of my fellow exhibitors and state rights

If anything, however, my sympathies are most toward the exhibitor. From my own experience, I believe he is being gouged unmercifully on all sides. He is, as it were, of the many "cure-alls" which the manufacturers are advancing ostensibly in his interests, but in reality in the interests those who seek his confidence through selfishly inspired sympathy. What he wants is less talk and more evidence of good faith: less theory and more real money-making possibilities.

“Cut Out Deadwood—Stop Leaks”
M. H. Hoffman to Film Industry

Foursquare Executive Declares Frank View of Situation
Does Not Justify Alarm Felt in Many Quarters

M. H. Hoffman, back from a two weeks' trip to the Hoffman-Foursquare exchanges in the Middle West, warned the industry against faltering in the face of probable government tainting it. He de- by explored the alarm which he had observed in various quarters and while admitting that economies were in order was particu- larly hardy as to reducing advertising below the point of reasonable conserva- tion.

"With conditions adjusting themselves toward an improvement, there must be no faltering at this time; no long faces and no hesitation in going forward courageously," said Mr. Hoffman. "The trade must not indicate that its bone and sinews are fair-weather sailors."

"Everyone has suffered—producers, distributors and exhibitors. But out of this suffering there must be an improvement. Viewing the situation frankly, it reveals nothing justifying the alarm which I have observed in certain quarters. It is a temporary condition, a state of affairs resulting from overproduction; extravag- ance in the making of pictures; over- payment by distributors for distribution rights and the booking of many, many photoplays at prices in excess of what should have been charged.

"The industry has served, for the mo- ment, as the receiving end of the movie dell; its various units being the ten- pens that have knocked down one an- other. For the errors of the first have affected the errors of the third and fourth—and each being depend- ent upon the others have had its share to pay for wrong policies and methods."

Exhibitors Discover Evils

"Secondly, the exhibitors have dis- covered the ill results of those methods which I have been preaching about now for months. A series of events brought matters to a climax and now they are awake to the facts, a body of men deter- mined to stand firm for the good of the industry.

"It is a pity that the lesson has had to be learned in a way that is proving, and is to prove, so drastic for so many. Al- together too large a number of persons who are innocent are suffering and will suffer. Still, it is a salutary lesson, and it may be that will be more thoroughly learned.

"What every man in the industry must now do is to approach his own problem constructively. He owes it to the busi- ness as a whole, quite as much as to his individual affairs, to refuse to be over- worried by the slump through which the industry is passing."

No Time for Pessimism

"Now is not the time to pull a long face, and crawl inside one's shell. Econo- mies are in order; the development of efficiency to its highest possible point. But not pessimism, or the curtailing of expenses legitimate and essential to progress.

"Let the deadwood be cut off, by all means.

"Stop the momentary leaks, which have so long been permitted through carelessness and bad judgment."

"But do not cut advertising appropri- ations below the point of reasonable con- servatism; nor check expenditures in those directions which will aid in steady- ing the industry's ship.

"Every man who is a leader, or influ- ential and whose attitude is being watched by others in the trade who look with respect on what he does, has a duty to perform. He should not mistake by stating that 'business is fine' when he knows he has entailed a falling off. Yet he can, and he should, hold up his head and say what he knows to be true: That good times are not far off, and that be- fore very long the revival in business will come to an extent that will give the industry the greatest boom in its history."

"What every man in the industry must now do is to approach his own problem constructively. He owes it to the busi- ness as a whole, quite as much as to his individual affairs, to refuse to be over- worried by the slump through which the industry is passing."

"No Time for Pessimism"

"Now is not the time to pull a long face, and crawl inside one's shell. Econo- mies are in order; the development of efficiency to its highest possible point. But not pessimism, or the curtailing of expenses legitimate and essential to progress.

"Let the deadwood be cut off, by all means.

"Stop the momentary leaks, which have so long been permitted through carelessness and bad judgment."

"But do not cut advertising appropri- ations below the point of reasonable con- servatism; nor check expenditures in those directions which will aid in steady- ing the industry's ship.

"Every man who is a leader, or influ- ential and whose attitude is being watched by others in the trade who look with respect on what he does, has a duty to perform. He should not mistake by stating that 'business is fine' when he knows he has entailed a falling off. Yet he can, and he should, hold up his head and say what he knows to be true: That good times are not far off, and that be- fore very long the revival in business will come to an extent that will give the industry the greatest boom in its history."
Leopold Wharton Encounters Difficulties While Filming "Eagle's Eye" Serial

Piers Closely Watched by U. S. Police—Members of Company Seek Refuge in Restaurant While Secret Service Men Examine Papers

Anyone who appears with a camera in the water fronts of New York City these days soon finds himself a lively enter of interest on the part of the naval and military intelligence services, their secret agents of the Government, and the police. Every inquiring one has to be fully satisfied before a man with a camera is allowed to move on.

Leopold D. Wharton, supervising director for The Whartons, who are producing Chief Flynn's serial photodrama exposing the Imperial German Government's spy system in America, "The Eagle's Eye," learned something of this protective system during the past week. He brought the entire company appearing in the Flynn serial to New York for three different episodes in "The Eagle's Eye." With D. H. Turner, his assistant, he went to his first location last Monday morning.

Mr. Wharton crossed West street and hardly got under the lee of one of the pier fronts when men came running toward him from several directions. He had already passed one inquisition by merely showing his identification papers, but he was in a very different situation, where different authorities questioned him. His papers were all right, but even pigeons had to be identified and they all had their own way of going about it. Each authority telephoned to its own headquarters for information and fully ten hours passed before Mr. Wharton was permitted to proceed with his work. Meanwhile, the male members of the company took refuge in a sailor's hotel on the opposite side of the street and the ladies were taken into a restaurant.

After a long delay all authorities agreed that Mr. Wharton and his company were free to go ahead in filming the scenes he wanted if accompanied by an officer of the navy, who soon arrived, and the work went on without further interruption.

S. L. Rothapfel
Sponsors Premier Of "Light Within"

The honor of appearing on the screen of the world's foremost photoplay temple twice within a period of less than two months, has been accorded to Mme. Olga Petrova by S. L. Rothapfel, managing director of the Rialto and Rivoli Theatres, New York. Mr. Rothapfel presented Mme. Petrova's initial starring production, "Daughter of Destiny," in the latter part of December. The success scored by the Polish star in this picture led Mr. Rothapfel to secure the New York premiere of her second production for the same house. "The Light Within," starring Mme. Petrova and directed by Larry Trimble, was presented for the first time on any screen at the Rialto Theatre commencing Sunday, February 10.

Mr. Rothapfel arranged for special music and settings to accompany the production. "The Petrova Waltz," composed by Dr. Hugo Reisenfeld, leader of the Rialto symphony orchestra, formed the dominant theme of the musical program during the presentation of picture, and considerable space in the Rialto Revue was devoted to the discussion of the Petrova play and an interview with the star.

Following the showing of "The Light Within" at the Rialto, the picture is to be issued to exhibitors through the exchange of the First National Exhibitors Circuit, who are presenting Mme. Petrova in a series of eight starring vehicles during the present year.

Porto Rico Club Buys Powers' 6-B Projector

Arthur J. Lang, export manager of the Nicholas Power Company, has just returned from Porto Rico, reports the installation of a Powers' Cameragraph, No. 6-B, at San Juan, the capital of that country.

The new machine was installed in the Casino Puerto Rico, one of the finest club houses in the West Indies, and was selected by a special committee on entertainment after a thorough investigation into the merits of several projection machines on the market. Only the latest and very best films are shown there on Friday evenings of each week and the exhibition is given exclusively for the members of the club and invited guests.

Mr. Lang further reports that his trip throughout the Island of Porto Rico was highly successful, and states that as picture fans the Porto Ricans are hard to beat. Quite a number of Powers' 6-B machines have been installed in the theatres and the best American and European films are being shown, Mr. Lang states.

C. W. Harden Leaves Hoffman-Foursquare

Charles W. Harden, one of the best known motion picture exchange managers in the South, has resigned as manager of the Foursquare Pictures' office in Atlanta.

This move was made necessary owing to the increasing business of the E. & H. Film Company, of which Mr. Harden is half owner.

"It is with regret that Foursquare Pictures sees Mr. Harden's withdrawal as he is the type of man whose efforts are constructive," reads an announcement from that company.

THREE SCENES FROM "THE GIRL WITH THE CHAMPAGNE EYES" Film Industry Undergoing Readjustment
Due to Natural Causes, says Horkheimer

Business was Never Healthier, Declares Balboa President, Despite Temporary Suspension at Coast Plants

Referring to the temporary closing down of the Union Square Triangular film plants on the coast, H. M. Horkheimer, president and general manager of the Balboa Amusement Producing Company, has publicly announced:

"It seems that another of those 'survival of the fittest' conditions has been reached in the film industry. At least, that's what some of the most agile hammer throwers in the business would have the people think. As a matter of fact, the business was never healthier in its life, despite the fact that a couple of the largest producing concerns have temporarily suspended operations."

Mr. Horkheimer attributes the present unrest in the film world to the fact that conditions are undergoing the usual readjustment which occurs every three years.

"The motion picture industry never can be dominated by a czar," adds Mr. Horkheimer. "In this respect it differs from every kind of business; no one man or group can control it, and when they try they dig their own graves."

"The success of a motion picture producer depends entirely upon his ability to keep pace with the ever changing tastes of the public. It wasn't so long ago when such firms as Biograph, Kalem, Edison and such stars as Maurice Costello, Florence Lawrence and Helen Gardner were names to conjure with. Today you hardly hear of these people."

"Les Miserables"
First Fox Standard
Offered Exhibitors

"Les Miserables," the William Farnum production which was shown for five weeks at the Lyric Theatre, New York, and which is said to have done capacity business there, afternoons and evenings throughout the run, was issued by William Fox as a Standard Picture February 10. It is in nine short reels and exactly follows the Jean Valjean story as written by Victor Hugo.

The production was staged in America and done under the direction of Frank Lloyd. The cast, besides Mr. Farnum in the role of Jean Valjean, includes George Moss as the bishop, Hardee Kirkland as Javert, Madame Sonia Martinova as Fantine, Kittens Reichter and Jewel Carmen as Cosette, Harry Spangler as Marius, Dorothy Bernard as Eponine, Anthony Phillips as Gavroche, Edward Elkas as Thenardier and Mme. Ross as Mme. Thenardier.

"This production," says William Fox, "is in every respect the greatest drama we ever have offered to exhibitors. It is in our opinion the biggest money-making film that has been put on the market. There can be no doubt about this because we have demonstrated its possibilities in New York. It has not only been shown at the Lyric Theatre at prices ranging up to $1, breaking all house records, but it has been put on for a week at every one of my nearly thirty houses in New York and vicinity. Everywhere it has done a tremendous business and I know it will do the same sort of business wherever it is shown. "Les Miserables' heads the list of Standard Pictures."

W. W. Hodkinson Corp.
Announces Dates
Of Paralta Plays

Printing of Second Feature Delayed by Fuel Conservation Order—Calendar Complete to March 15

Three new features carrying the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation's distribution calendar for Paralta Plays up to March 15 were announced last week. The pictures are "The Turn of a Card," with J. Warren Kerrigan, for February 15; "Within the Cup," with Bessie Barriscale, March 14, and "Humdrum Brown," with Henry B. Walthall, March 15.

The fortnightly release plan would have moved all of these plays up two weeks, as the third of the Paralta Plays with Henry B. Walthall in "His Rob of Honor," was published January 1. Owing to the shutdown of industry for the conservation of fuel, however, the printing of the second Kerrigan picture "The Turn of a Card," was held up so that it was decided to move the whole series ahead two weeks to give the laboratory ample time for thoroughly good work. There will, however, be no further postponement, as the other pictures announced are already in work. Two publications on the first and the twelfth of the month will be continuing the three pictures announced this week complete the sets. The three Paralta star series. The W. W. Hodkinson Corporation has further announced that there are ten Paralta series already finished and on the shelves in the cutting rooms, where time is being taken to bring them up to the highest standard set to the trade by the three successful issues.

Billy West had a very hazardous adventure at Hollywood recently with a Winged Galapagos, whose habitat is the slums and slime of the river Nile. The "Winged" had worked its passage all the way from Africa and arrived on the scene very much out of breath, and with blood-hot eye. Seeing the King Bee seated in the piazza, and being very fond of the honey tribe, he made a bee line for the King. Billy took one look at the approaching "Dododad," and recognizing once that it was some specie of wild-eyed chicken that he had never before encountered, he rushed for the house and into the kitchen where he grabbed convenient ax. The Wingdaddodo chicken followed him into the room, saw the ax, got "excited" and lost its head. Let us not forget "Smoke Week" to be held throughout the United States under the auspices of "Our Boys In France Tobacco Fund," for the purpose of supplying much-needed smokes to American soldiers in the trenches of France.

Handling the publicity for the occasion, in addition to his work for the Petrova Picture Company and McClure Pictures, is Bert Ennis. The manager of the fund is A. Blaikie Dick. These men are volunteering their time and services.

Motion Pictures and the Libraries

A movement is on foot through the Library Journal to interest libraries in the motion picture. In the current issue of Library Journal, editorially, "have of late years been considered the chief rivals of the libraries for public attention, but it is now found that they may act in concert with them to the mutual benefit of the common good." Movies more and more find their subjects in great books, as 'Quo Vadis' and 'Les Miserables,' and many managers are quite glad to preface or append to the film a word that the book film is too kind. The problem is, what may libraries do in accord in that fact by playing a movie poster and with it copies of the book in question or of cognate books and periodical articles. One library in Indiana has arranged with local managers to show direct result turns where the library advertises the book films in this way."

The Library Journal contains an article written by Orrin G. Cocks, Advisory Secretary of the National Board of Review, in which he discusses the response of non-readers to books and to libraries throughout the country some time ago, the article being entitled, "Motion Pictures and Reading Habits." In taking up the questions contained in the questionnaire, he says: "One of the important factors that can be considered by the libraries of the country is this: Can the masses of the people who do not now read be led to the libraries and the world literature from the motion picture houses? The answers to one and the other suggest that the libraries felt that this connection should be established. It is unquestionably true that people who have received a taste of literature, travel, science, and fiction through the motion picture will still be interested in it which can be presented in all the rest of life. The problem, therefore, which confronts the librarian is to show these beginners that there are still finer things and still larger vistas behind the doors of libraries.

"In response to the question: 'Have the motion pictures changed the reading habits of your townpeople?' the majority answered affirmatively. "Despite the influence upon library readers had not been appreciable, but that with the group of non-readers there was a decided change. Among those who frequented the libraries evenings there was a falling off of requests for books and also of readers within the buildings because of the attractiveness of the motion pictures. The increased desire to read popular fiction, some of it not up to the standard of the books on the shelves of the library, had been stimulated to request books of travel, and another small group of readers and considered the standards of works of fiction and the classics as a result of pictures discussing these themes in the commercial motion picture houses, during the year. The motion pictures exhibited in the motion pictures exhibited in the various centers is an increased desire for picture fiction dealing with the stories exhibited. In a majority of cases this was after the film had been shown.

"The particular query: 'Do new readers request books which have been made into motion pictures?' has so far been answered unqualifiedly in the affirmative. Nineteen stated that requests came to a limited extent and six answered in the negative. It is, of course, impossible to decide just what causes a new reader to request a certain book of fiction unless he makes a positive statement. There is apparently a drift on the part of motion picture habitués to the libraries without a very decided attempt being made by either the motion picture exhibitors or the librarians to accelerate it."

"It follows," Mr. Cocks concluded, "that the attitude of the librarian should not be destructively critical. Fortunately, a few are now recognizing the motion picture; the producers now see that they have a large part to play in the cultural development of masses of people; the exhibitors are quick to notice that they are more than professional entertainers, and both are thinking seriously about methods of utilizing this great agency in the welfare of the people."

Another Mary Garden Production

Listed by Goldwyn for April 7

Goldwyn Pictures Corporation in making public the list of four new productions, occasioned some surprise with the announcement that it has a second Mary Garden production fully completed and includes this among its regular publications. The announcement does not say for all other Goldwyn Pictures. The title of Miss Garden's second picture is "The Splendid Sinner," from an original story by Kate Jordan.

The next four Goldwyn pictures following Madge Kennedy in "Our Little Wife," which was published Feb. 10, are: Feb. 27, Mae Marsh in "The Beloved Traitor," March 10, Mabel Normand in "The Floor Below," March 24, Madge Kennedy in "The Danger Game." April 7, Mary Garden in "The Splendid Sinner."

"The Beloved Traitor," Mae Marsh's next production has the best emotional role afforded thus far by any of her Goldwyn screen stories, it is said. It is exploited by Goldwyn as being "the story of the good girl who whipped a vampire." Mabel Normand is brought back in "The Floor Below," her second Goldwyn Picture, which is also a mystery story but of a different type. It is said to contain a tremendous amount of fun, laughter and pathos, with a love story thrown in. "The Danger Game," Madge Kennedy's next production, has a suspense in it for the famous mute wife of Goldwyn's screen stories, and is said to carry a great deal of action. The drama in this picture has been carefully balanced, and is said to be the best produced picture of the year. The production has been carefully considered and is said to be in the hands of a first-class director. The picture is also a mystery, but of a different type of mystery from that presented in the first production. The picture is said to be an entirely different type of dramatic picture —a type of role that Madge Kennedy has never had before on the stage or screen.

In addition to having these next four pictures complete and ready for shipment, Goldwyn also has completed three more productions, these being the issue for the third Sunday in April, the second Sunday in May, and the second Sunday in June and July productions are already under way.

Progress of Training National Army

Shown in Gaumont Weekly on Feb. 10

Five months ago the boys in the first draft were mere civilians. At that time the Gaumont-Mutual Weekly pictures them as they left their homes and as they arrived in awkward squads at the training camps. In succeeding issues they have been shown as they were initiated into the intricacies of the drill, trench digging, artillery practice, and the many other essentials which go to make up the capable fighting man.

In No. 7 of the Gaumont-Mutual Weekly, published February 10, is shown the most impressive demonstration of the efficiency of the selective draft in making soldiers. The 30th Infantry of the National Army is pictured in its parade down Fifth Avenue with all the trimmings of the regulars when the weather was hovering near the zero mark. These boys are now fit to fight.

Scenes from a number of the war zone show how Pershing's "Pets" were taught to handle big guns. Other foreign views show how the French and Italian soldiers have stopped the Prussians on the Piave River; the training of war dogs at the front; and ex-Premier Caillaux, who is in command of a division, was overthrown. France, and his wife, who gained an unwarranted sympathy when she killed the editor of Figaro, one of the first to access Caillaux of villainy.

Among the many subjects photographed in the United States, one of the most interesting is that which exposes the secrets of the "great white way." For the first time the press agents who have made Broadway the most famous thoroughfare in the world in ships on the scenes of the edification of the thousands who have read their effusions.

Fox Divorce Picture Near Completion

There are many dramatic moments in the new divorce picture, "Divorce Decree," which William Fox is making in his Hollywood, Calif., studios. The picture is tentatively scheduled for April completion. Despite opposition, we may look for the extensive use of豪华 settings: for churches, schools, and libraries. No one can stop it. But always there will be a demand on the part of the people for this cheap, artistic, and vivid entertainment. The slogan should be: 'Intelligent co-operation.'

The life of an artist always holds a certain fascination persons outside the profession and depicted as it is in the "Woman Between Friends" it proves more fascinating an ever. The atmosphere of the picture is excellent and are MacDermott is ideally cast as the sculptor, who, deserted his wife, loses interest and inspiration in his work, until June, in the person of Alice Joyce, a beautiful model, comes into his life. The entire production is replete with realistic touches and human appeal that make it thoroughly enjoyable.

The sordidness usually attendant upon pictures dealing with the eternal triangle is pleasingly missing from "The Other Woman." Peggy Hyland's clean, wholesome portrayal of the young miniature painter who has usurped the love of another's husband, is such that she fully shares the sympathy bestowed upon the wronged wife. Anna Lehr in the role of the latter does commendable work and Milton Sills as the husband is a fine actor, well cast. The entire production is a worthy contribution to the best in motion picture art.

The story: Eleanor Gates leaves her home in a small town to continue her study of art in the city. On the train she meets Mr. Harrington, a broker, also on his way and about her grief, refuses Harrington's offer to divorce his wife and marry her and orders him to go west for six months and then

Madge Kennedy in

"OUR LITTLE WIFE"

Goldwyn comedy-drama; six parts; published February 10

"Our Little Wife" is an A-1 production. It contains good, wholesome humor along the lines of Miss Kennedy's former plays. Miss Kennedy's work is very pleasing and her support capable. The story just borders on the risque, has a touch of the spicy, but never becomes suggestive or objectionable. The good acting, splendid direction, artistic handling, well selected sets and the pleasing tone of the story make it a suitable offering for every class of audience. George Forth, Maurice Marsh and Walter Hiers have important roles. The direction is by Edward Dillon.

Dr. Elliott and Dodo become locked in the apartment and Bobo arrives on the scene and then Mrs. Elliott, Herb and Angie. An explanation of the true cause of what apparently is a perilous situation brings the picture to a happy close.

J. Barney Sherry in

"REAL FOLKS"

Triangle comedy-drama; five parts; published February 10

"Real Folks" is an entertaining story of a father who suddenly becomes rich and endeavors to bring his family into society. It does not approve of his wife's association with Lady Blessington, because she believes her to be a servant under an assumed name. And when his son falls in love with a dancing teacher he threatens to disown him, much to the delight of the girl. However, with many humorous twists and turns the story ends in a fashion pleasing to all and highly amusing to spectators. The production is excellently done and appropriate for any class of audience.

J. Barney Sherry is well cast and handles his role to advantage, being ably supported by Ethel Olive, McDonald, Frati Ridgeway, Alberta Lee and Marion Skinner. The direction is by Walter Edwards and the story by Kate Coralley. The exteriors are beautiful and the production is enhanced by splendid photography. The interiors have been carefully and artistically arranged.

Fox comedy-drama; six parts; published February 10

Whether or not George Walsh is a favorite with you audience, there is every reason to believe that "Jack Spurlock—Prodigal" will prove as entertaining a six-reel feature as has been produced in some time. The fact that the story gained fame through publication in the Saturday Evening Post is a good advertising point, but most important is the management by the Fox Film Corporation an director Carl Harbaugh.

The story holds your attention, and the interest never lags. An excellent subject if you want to send your audience away with a smile. George Walsh, always pleasing, is especially so in this production. The cast is a capable one an

Alice Brady in "The Knife" has added another superb characterization to her collection of triumphs. She has never done a keener piece of work or a more difficult type of acting than in "The Knife." The screen play is made from the play by Eugene Valer, and although it loses none of the dramatic grip by being filmed it does become more offensive. It is one of those subjects that is not the least bit escapist, and yet the feeling is bound to occur. The splendid direction of Robertignola and the excellent acting of an unusually fine cast would be used to much better advantage on a cleaner topic. No one could be so engrossingly the story is handled.

The cast is especially good. Miss Brady was at her best, winsome and charming. Her facial expression carried you with her through all her suffering. In her support, Paul Doucet did a splendid piece of work, and much can be learned by American actors from this gifted French artist in finesse, concentration and poise.

Ruth Morgan, Crawford Kent, Helen Lackaye, Alice Hollister and Ethel Dansey all truly assisted in making the acting the chief triumph of the picture.

The Story: Kate Tarleton is engaged to Dr. Manning, an experimental surgeon. His experiments have enraged the community, and the district attorney is asked to investigate the case. He comes to New York to shop and while here to consult fortune-teller and meets with foul play. She is taken into the care of white slavers and drugged. Dr. Manning becomes lured to the house by Kate's little sister that she went to a fortune-teller, and with the assistance of his lawyer tracks the criminals. His lawyer's wife is a physician and gently tells Dr. Manning that his fiancée has suffered. He goes nearly mad, but is restrained from murdering the man and woman who harmed the girl. He then decides to avert them and experiment upon their healthy bodies at his hospital. He does so. The woman dies, but the man recovers. Kate is taken south by the woman doctor and stays there until she has fully recovered from the shock of the drug luckily she remembers nothing after the drug was administered. The district attorney comes to the hospital to investigate the case of the woman's death, and while there meets Kate. Kate returns and she looks fixedly at him. He sees her and thinks he is being framed before the district attorney. No doubt admirers of Charles Ray will enjoy "The Hired Man." It has been well handled and the settings a remarkable rural fair are indeed typical. The role of Ezry, the rough country lout, is much along the same line as previous roles portrayed by Mr. Ray. The story, however, is not as good as some other vehicles which have been provided for this portrayal "rube" characters. A very realistic fire scene gives the picture "punch" and a little excitement, but outside of that it is just a typical melodrama story with no deeper touches.

The story: Ezry, the hired man, in love with Ruth, his employer's daughter, is anxious to obtain an education and when Ruth learns of his ambitions she offers to assist him in his studies. He finally succeeds and is saved to enter college. On his way to the depot he stops to bid Ruth's brother farewell and from the brother learns that it will take just the amount of money Ezry has saved to keep the brother out of prison for each money from play he economics where Ezry returns to the farm. That night there is a dance and after her tasks have gone. Ruth goes to Ezry and endeavors to teach him how to handle money. His action is seen by a jealous suitor who tells Ezry. Ezry is disgraced and discharged, and leaves during the night. Turning back for a last look, Ezry finds the house fire. He rushes back and after he has rescued the brother (on which time, the brothertime) the brother explains why Ezry did not go to college. Ezry becomes an accepted member of the family.

"My Wife" provides Ann Murdock, the little Frohman star, with ample opportunities to display her ability as a portrayee of difficult roles. The picture is well done, includes a capable cast and the photography is commendable. Interest is sustained throughout and Miss Murdock's latest vehicle is a worthy successor to "The Imposter."

The story: Beatrice Hammond, heiress to a million, through the will of an aunt provided she is married before arriving at the age of eighteen years, is forbidden by her parents to marry a young man of her choice, Ronald Farwell. The young lady, after much effort, persuades her guardian, Gerald Everleigh, to marry her in name only, with the understanding that they shall be divorced when Ronald returns from military service in France. Ronald is wounded in action and falls in love with a French Red Cross nurse. Meanwhile Gerald has fallen in love with his wife. Ronald returns to the United States and meets Gerald and each tries to declare their former bargain void. There is a happy ending.

Ethel Clayton is again ideally cast in an interesting drama entitled "Whims of Society." The story has been very well handled, the interest is sustained throughout and the whole a most satisfying production. It pleased patrons immensely at Chicago's Boston Theater, when shown last week. In the supporting cast are Frank Mayo, Frank Beams, Jack Drummer, Katherine Johnson, Phina Nesbit and Zadie Burbank. The direction is by Travers Vale.

The story: Refusing to accept the attentions of her foreman, Marlinoff, Nora Carey is discharged from the Travers ribbon factory. Hugh Travers, son of the owner of the factory, is in love with Nora and assists her by putting her sister in boarding school and establishing Nora in a cozy apartment. The elder Travers hears of this and threatens to disown Hugh unless he gives Nora up. Hugh refuses and his father calls in his attorney to draw up a new will. Travers has discharged Marlinoff and in revenge Marlinoff blows up the factory, killing Travers. After his father's death Hugh goes to Nora's apartment and arrives in time to save the girl from asphyxiation and gains her consent to become his wife.
The story: John Marton, who has sold his daughter for a name of social standing, becomes the general manager of the Boyce pistol works and under the guidance of a Wall Street clique, soon has the business in a dragnet. The elder Boyce discovers his general manager's treachery and the shock kills him. His sons determine to apprehend the man responsible for their father's death, but each believing the other the murderer they separate. The younger brother becomes ill and Horace is sent for. The brothers fall in love with Myra Van Fleet and through their learning that neither is guilty of the murder, Annette De Searcy having killed him when he deserted her. Repentant for thinking wrong of his brother, Henry goes away, leaving Myra and Horace to pursue their happiness.

Taylor Holmes’ Next Play Half Done: “Ruggles of Red Gap” is Completed

Taylor Holmes shows his ability to move rapidly in his forthcoming production, “A Pair of Sixes.” This production gives him the most strenuous and perhaps the funniest role he has yet assumed for the camera. As T. Boggs John, degraded to the post of butler as result of a card game with his business partner, Mr. Holmes is speeded on in his action by the relentless love of “Coddles,” the haggard and aged hausfrau.

Production of this Edward Peple play adaptation is now in its fourth week and has several weeks yet to go before the script is all checked off. Mr. Holmes’ wife, Edna Phillips Holmes, occupies a role of conspicuousness in the picture and demonstrates, it is said, her histrionic right to the name of “Holmes.” Director Windom is in charge of the production.

William Russell Amateur Detective
In American Film "The Midnight Trail"

"The Midnight Trail" is said to be one of the best of the Russell pictures recently produced by the American Film Company. Mr. Russell, in his latest productions of comedy-drama, as believed by many critics to have distanced even Fairbanks in his wholesome laugh making.

"The Midnight Trail" was directed by Edward Smeal. It is the story of a wealthy young clubman, addicted to auto racing, polo playing and all of the sports to which a rich young man may turn for amusement.

The young millionaire, Jack Woodford, wants to be a detective. One day, after he wins the big event on the Ascot speedway, he gets the opportunity, the impertinence of the amazing detective Iorns, and with his valet as alleged assistant, he ferrets out the thief in a robbery in the home of a rector who has a beautiful daughter.

The detection of the thief turns up an amazing situation, and when the real detective Iorns puts in an appearance, here is a complication that only a clever chap can handle.

But Woodford does it, points out the innocent thief, reconciles a reckless son to his father and marries the daughter.

Francelia Billington is Russell's leading woman. Clarence Burton is Iorns, the detective, and Sydney Deane is the rector. Carl Stockdale plays the part of an unscrupulous secretary, and Harvey Clark is Jasper Stride, the valet. Other parts are taken by Jerome Shelter, Edward Jobson, Helen Howard and Alfred Ferguson.

Dolly Sisters Finish First Picture
Under Noted Director Leonce Perret

Leonce Perret, the French director, who made his American debut as director of Robert Warwick in "The Silent Master," and who wrote as well as directed "The Mad Lover" and "The Accidental Honeymoon," in which Capt. Warwick starred, is now engaged in the production of a series of big features at the Biograph studio, New York, in which the Dolly Sisters, headliners in vaudeville, will make their bow to the motion picture public.

M. Perret has made an enviable reputation for himself broad as author and director of photoplays, a record unequalled by many men in the American field of motion picture stories. During the fourteen years he served as director general of the Compagnie Gaumont in Paris, he wrote and produced 350 feature films, many of which were shown in this country before the war with great success.

Following the production of the Warwick features, M. Perret wrote a story commemorating the sinking of the Lusitania and the entry of the United States into the war in "Lest We Forget," a film featured by critics to rank next to "The Birth of a Nation." Although the picture has been delayed since it left his hands and many of his rejected scenes inserted, it is said, it has been drawing capacity crowds to the Biograph theatre, New York.

The Dolly Sisters, appreciating the ability of M. Perret as an author and director of note, sought his services for their first joint appearance in pictures. Their first picture has already been completed, the title, cast and nature of which will be announced by the Misses Dolly shortly.

Theda Bara in "The Forbidden Path"

Theda Bara does not have a vampire role in her production, "The Forbidden Path," which was published by William Fox as a Standard Picture on January 27. Instead, she is the victim of a vampire—that is, provided a man may be given that name. The role, according to the Fox management, is wholly sympathetic one, in which Miss Bara portrays a woman who has been robbed of honor by a rich man and then trod upon by society.
Feminism is advancing in the motion picture industry. For years women have been one of the pillars of the industry. Feminists are now in charge of many important companies, and women who head their own producing or distributing concerns, or who devote their energies to the selling side of the business, are still attracting considerable attention. One of the most successful women who are heading their own organizations is Miss Edna Williams, general manager of the Robertson-Cole Company, and a former exhibitor of New York City. Today, women have become a distinct loss to the purchasing in the foreign market and it has been my idea that as a company with branch offices in the principal foreign cities would overcome all these disadvantages. Hence, the organization of the company through which the U. S. productions are distributed in the foreign markets.

Ann Murdock in Adapted Stage Play
“My Wife”——Mutual Schedule Feb. 18

Ann Murdock will be seen in a screen production of “My Wife,” published by Mutual on its star production series February 18. The picture was made under the direction of Dell Henderson at the Empire All-Star studios.

It is an adaptation of the play by Michael Morton, which had an extended run both in America and London and achieved a tremendous stage success. Miss Burke here reprised the famous role originally played by Miss Beatrice Hall. Miss Murdock is a young woman who was married by her own father. The law, which elected her so handsomely to the fairy tale, beckoned to her as a vehicle for John Drew, but in the film version the play was altered to provide a stellar part for Beatrice Hall, who is “My Wife.”

The story presents the amusing and interesting complications developed by a marriage of convenience entered into by Beatrice, who, in order to comply with the conditions of a codicil in her wealthy aunt’s will, in which she is left million dollars on condition that she marry before she is eighteen, must assume the name of the husband in order to obtain the intention of securing a divorce when her lover returns from the front.

It becomes embarrassing and decidedly uncomfortable to the woman when he falls in love with his wife, and he repents of his bargain. The comedy element is dominant throughout, in spite of the seriousness which involves the unusual position of the husband.

Miss Murdock's Unique Role

Miss Murdock has been a star for many years, a fact which gives her the respect of the foreign pictures. Miss Murdock in the “My Wife” role, as Beatrice Hall, is a perfect example of the growing interest in the foreign market since the films have been made and the foreign trade has been handled by Miss Murdock.

Regardless of the fact that she may have been a star before the Mutual Pictures were released, Miss Murdock has been able to work with the Mutual organization and to make the foreign market a success. Her knowledge of the foreign market and her understanding of the foreign audience has been a valuable asset to the company.

Representing Australian Film Concern

But Miss Murdock is not the only star of the foreign market. There are many other stars who have also made a name for themselves in the foreign market. Miss Edna Williams, who is a former exhibitor of New York City, is now in charge of the Robertson-Cole Company, which is one of the leading Australian film concerns. She has been successful in the foreign market, and it was in the service of this company that the young woman fitted herself for the important duties she has undertaken.

At this point, however, art beckoned. Miss Williams had won high success as an amateur composer in Los Angeles. She fashioned a song, however, which was sung by a professional singer and the number made such a hit that the young woman decided to take her handle in this direction. Then she came to New York and became affiliated with a music publishing concern where she started on an allowance against her royalties.

Robertson-Cole Become Interested

With foreign connections in nearly every large port in the land, and many smaller ones, Robertson-Cole took up the marketing of the foreign sales of the foreign field. She realized that this would be an ideal task for a man who was well acquainted with the foreign market. Whereupon she interested the firm of Robertson-Cole, one of the largest importing concerns in the world.

Don Barclay Working on Second Comedy

Don Barclay, comedian in the "Ziegfeld Follies," has begun work on his second Essanay one-reel comedy, title not yet announced. His first, "Sir, Have a Cigar," to be published on February 16, shows clearly the comedian's cleverness that won him fame on the comedy stage.

Possessing a remarkably pliable body, he goes through some laugh-evoking pantomime in this picture, furnishing the steps of a classic dancer to the role of a drunk. Not the least remarkable part of Barclay's makeup is the "zig-zag" division in his hair, beginning at the crown of his head and continuing to his forehead in a series of white streaks, as though he were struck on the cranium by lightning.

The Fallacy of “Survival of the Fittest”

Interesting Paper Written by Frank J. Rembusch, National Secretary of the American Exhibitors’ Association

Someone a few years back said, “Most folks who remain in this film world prove business long enough to finally go broke.”

All along these years we have continually heard, “it will be the survival of the fittest.” A trade journal man said, “The other exhibitors may be unnecessary for many small theaters in the smaller cities to go out of business entirely and those cities will be without pictures for some time, when some one else will come along with more energy and start a new theater.”

A producer writes me, “I read with interest your little appeal and can see the situation of the old lady to whom you refer. Conditions will necessarily force someone out of business. It will prove hard enough to stay in and make the best of it, as I feel myself that the motion picture business is not the most lucrative business in the world. The returns which one derives from it and the amount of energy and effort directed to this business does not make it the best business in the world to invest money in. To the producer who has not had enough of it, the exhibitor has not yet had enough to lose, and I think has not really made any substantial amount of money from the industry and got away with it.”

The producer, up to three or four years ago, made money well in the millions out of producing. He has evidently stayed in long enough to lose a great deal of it, and looks now to “the survival of the fittest.”

“My picture, your picture, we all look at things in our own little selfish angle, and when we say “the survival of the fittest” we always believe that we will survive and the other man is unfit. The question then is: Who is the fittest?”

I have seen a large theatre of eighteen hundred seats open next to a small theatre of five hundred seats. The large theatre spent forty thousand dollars in fixing up and beautifying an already handsome building. They put in a symphony orchestra, sweet singers and flowers galore; the picture had wonderful titles, a large screens, velvet curtains, etc. they bought the best program on the market, that is if we judge program by price, and afterburning up some thousands of dollars in losses they closed the picture show and ran burlesque. The other little show was frightened at this monster that opened. They had no money to spend on the usual sort of short programs, but the fact is that this little show, like a “tin Lizzie,” went right along, turned on a little more gas and went better and better than ever and is still going.

Now, the question is: Which was the fittest of the two, and why did the little one survive? One interpretation would be that the big show failed because of the competition to the hightowers and there didn’t happen to be enough de luxe patrons to appreciate their performances, while there were plenty of common, ordi-nary people who liked the little short programs in that city and therefore they survived.

Now, it seems to us that the idea the “survival of the fittest” is not the answer to every standpoint. If there are only going to be a few survivors, who is going to take all this film service, and if it should happen that the fittest didn’t survive, the industry will be in worse shape than ever.

The more picture shows there are, the more programs will be absorbed or the better chance the individual picture has to be profitable, because it has a better chance for wider distribution. Production costs are based on engagements per each section. Every place a picture closes out and the town has no show, that city is no longer supporting the cost of production and therefore every house has to make it up.

In addition to this, people get out of the habit, and that is very bad as any exhibitor will tell you. Folks that go to shows to see the picture, go to the big shows in the big towns. The Circle in Indianapolis, one of the most beautiful theatres in the United States, has a clientele from outside of the city that will probably amounts to thirty per cent of its gross receipts. And so it is everywhere.

Among the producers we find everyone wishing that he would survive and the other producer who has helped some producers to survive who were unfit and some fit and fair dealing producers to die.

The producer has a star at a fair salary and is able to give us fine pictures at a reasonable figure, in fact, through these pictures he makes the star, and the exhibitor becomes interested in helping another producer who offers the star a bigger salary, comes to the exhibitor with a bigger lot of sunk than any other one has, but the producer, who is doing three times more for his pictures with this star, and we so far have been going right along, helping the new producer. The producer who gave us those good pictures with this star at reasonable figures couldn’t raise his service to meet the new salary offered the star, because we wouldn’t pay it to him. Am I right?

Evidently, then, there is more money in starting a picture show and starting the film business than to run a picture show or to continue to produce pictures. It seems to be that way because when a new picture show opens everybody goes to see it and stays with it quite a while. So it seems that the Exhibitor is fit for a while and then he becomes unfit in this business; that the old show saying, “Chickens today and feathers tomorrow,” applies very much in pictures.

“The survival of the fittest” is the most selfish and unbusinesslike thing that can be said in any business.

Those who have the best of their life to a business are entitled to live by it but this business will never be a stable affair until exhibitors join hands in some business manner by which they franchise their theatres and protect themselves.

This industry should be under some form of control, but the exhibitors don’t want the producers to control them, and I don’t blame them, because they don’t even control themselves, and that would be a case of the dog wagging the tail anyhow. The exhibitor is a permanent asset of the industry. The producer has to get his business in the United States.

There are a lot of fine little theatre in small cities that are the backbone of the industry closing up every day. The film producers should get together and give these fellow service at hal prices in order to keep them going, but they are all so busy trying to see that their market is the best the producer unit, that they won’t make a move. There must be some radical change. The first suggestion would be to get rid of the grade pictures, and cement the demand to the exhibitor, and fix it so that those who are in the business now are more fit by having conditions so that they can work and make more picture business for themselves and everybody else. We can all survive if we are all fit and there are none of us fit until we get some of this greed and selfishness out of our business, then we can live and let live. We should survive an let others survive.

Eastern Canada Theatres Must Close
Mondays From February 18 to March 25

Exhibitors Thought They Had Won Fight—Act Was Passed
And Became a Law Before Word Was Given Out

Just when the exhibitors of Canada specially in the east, thought they had been successful in winning the fight in connection with the rumor that the theaters would have to close three days a week in order to conserve fuel, came the announcement that all manufacturers, seat manufacturers, etc., would be closed Saturday, Sunday and Monday, Feb. 9, 10 and 11, and all theaters and amusement places would be closed on Mondays from Feb. 18 to March 22 inclusive.

This was a very great surprise because the reputation of the theatres was low, feeling that they had been particularly successful in the ice of present conditions. The three days' closing act was only a rumor by which the theatres were quick to combat, but the Monday closing act is now, and was passed before any intimation of whatever was given out.

It was fortunate for the amusement houses that they were at work to keep up during Saturday and Monday, the days the manufacturing concerns and offices were closed. Saturday, it was impossible to secure seats in many of the theatres and due to the change of program, Monday was the same.

The downtown moving picture houses advertised extensively in the papers and put on special lobby displays to attract attention to their various theatres. The display on 'In Southern Seas,' and was particularly attractive in face of the fact that Saturday was a stormy day and the bright signs and sunny appearance, in spite of dimmed lights, portraying the sunny South, invited the people to come in.

The exchanges made arrangements whereby the shipping offices worked a half-day in order to make necessary shipments, although no heat was allowed. It was impossible to have the relationship, therefore, they were just given a notice in the shipment advising the exhibitor of this condition.

In connection with the Monday closing for the moving picture theatres, it is believed that the exhibitor will pay for the two days on existing contracts, but on future contracts arrangements will be made for the Tuesday. This shows only. It is not anticipated that the Monday closing will hurt business any, as Monday night is not a particularly good night anyway.

Managers Fight Bill

The Manitoba Association of Motion Picture Exhibitors will fight the passage of the theatre tax bill, which is proposed to introduce at this session of the legislature.

The president of the association, J. W. Johnston, accompanied by H. M. Jernberg and Frank Hyde, members, and Max Finkenstein held a conference with Premier Norrie and Mayor Brown and other members of the cabinet. Mr. Brown informed the committee that the bill was at present in the hands of the printer and that copies of it would be available at that week. The various points of the Bill were discussed but it is under stood that the opposition of the theatre men was not overcome.

For the third time this winter trains were held up and shipments delayed. One theatre manager wrote to a certain exchange stating that there has not been a train from Toronto to his town for two days. However, he thought them a lesson, and in the same letter he explained how he and another exhibitor from a nearby town interchanged films and were thus able to save the situation for themselves.

Another amendment has been added to the law passed that all electrical display signs were to be dimmed, stating that all window lights, etc., except those necessary for the safety of the public, may be kept out until further notice. Whether or not this will include the lights in the lobbies of the theatres is yet to be discovered. However, it is likely only on the stage light will be struck so that the patrons can see to come and go.

A fire, which completely destroyed an entire block in Peterboro, Ont., recently, damaged the Royal Theatre so badly that same will not be able to open for some time to come.

A number of returned soldiers were entertained by members of the Speakers' Chambers, Parliament buildings, by Lady Hearst. The show was immensely enjoyed by all.

The Universal Screen Magazine is going strong in Canada. The latest addition to the long list of theatres using this reel is the Pantages Theatre, Winnipeg, which has contracted for a week's run for an indefinite period.

The local Montreal office of the Canadian Universal Film Co. held a screening of "The Wife He Bought," a Bluebird feature, starring Carmel Myers. There was a large gathering and the screening resulted in many contracts.

Due to the continuous storms and tie-ups on the railways, the exchanges in Ontario have deemed it necessary to send exhibitors in the northern parts where the train service is particularly bad, commercial reels, so that it will not be necessary for them to close their theatres on account of the reels not arriving. Some theatres have been forced to close on account of delayed reels more than any previous winter on record.

Saskatoon Increases Tax

The City Council of Saskatoon, at their meeting on January 31, decided to raise the annual municipal fee for motion picture theatres as follows: Houses over $1,000 are raised to $250. Formerly they paid $150 a year, houses with a seating capacity of $500 to 1,000 will have to pay $150, instead of $100. Houses with a seating capacity of $250 will still retain the old license fee of $50 per year. This tax is in addition to the Provincial license fee imposed by the Province of Saskatchewan each year. The latter, also, is being raised this year.
Goldwyn Engages “Tarzan” Maker
As Comedy Star

William H. Parsons to Head Company Producing Capitol Comedies

Starring William H. (Smiling Billy) Parsons, the Goldwyn Distributing Company will soon invade the motion picture field with the newly created Capitol Comedies, an announcement by that company. The comedies which are to be two reels in length will be produced at the rate of twenty-six a year and distributed through the Goldwyn sales organization.

Considerable surprise was expressed when the Goldwyn company made public the name of the star of the new comedies. Parsons is the president of the National Film Corporation and has just finished, with his associates, the production of “Tarzan of the Apes.” Primarily he is a financier and producer of pictures.

During the making of this picture Mr. Parsons read the scenarios of a number of two-reel comedies and found himself unable to think of a male comedian available to star under his management.

Hating, is said, the rotund figure so often associated with comedy roles, an engaging and winning smile that is a big asset in winning popularity, and being comically bald, persons to whom he admitted his perplexity quickly suggested that he become a screen star himself and make his own pictures. After persuasion and still not convinced Mr. Parsons made several of these comedies with himself as the star. Goldwyn’s problem when its executives had seen these was to persuade Mr. Parsons to make twenty-six a year. Finally objections were overcome and “Smiling Billy” and his associates organized Capitol Comedies.

The contract for distribution was signed this week by Samuel Goldfish, president of Goldwyn, and Mr. Parsons as the head of the National. Mr. Parsons left at once for California to begin work in his studios in Los Angeles.

Exhibitors will be invited to get in touch with the Goldwyn offices in the principal cities and arrange for showings on or after Feb. 18. The date of publication of the firm “Smiling Billy” Parsons comedy has not yet been announced.

W. H. Productions Co.
In Exploiting Films
Bans Deceitful Ads

W. H. Productions Company, in devising the posters and other advertising matter of help to exhibitors, are representing in this advertising matter, it is said, exactly what the public expects to see on the screen for which they have paid an admission price. The delusive and at times, the positively deceitful poster, is causing a great deal of criticism by the exhibitors, and this cannot be overcome unless the producer or the distributor eliminates the camouflage. This company feels that the exhibitor owes it to his patrons to let them know through the medium of posters or other advertising matter just exactly what they can expect to see inside.

A great number of exhibitors have contented themselves with exhibiting a plain printed program, but this has proven to be fatal to their business. A great many of the largest theatres have dropped the front house poster entirely, but have resorted to the old standby of running a two- or four-sheet standee on local twenty-four-sheet stands.

The advertising matter gotten up by W. H. Production Company on “The Bargain” consists of a twenty-four-sheet, with two styles of headlines and two styles of one, photographs of three sizes, two styles of slides, heralds and a choice of ad cuts, each of which represents an actual scene of the photo-play. In addition, twenty-page campaign books has been devised.

W. H. Productions Company feels that the profits of their pictures depend a great deal on the energy of the exhibitor, who shows them to the public. It is, therefore, to their interest and to the interest of the independent exchange that their pictures have been given a W. H. Productions Company in their respective territories, to equip the exhibitor with every possible advantage they can think of to bring the proper presentation of these pictures.

With this point in view, this company has inaugurated an exhibitors’ service department, which will co-operate with the independent exchanges who control the rights to the W. H. product.

Hiller and Wilk Sell “Whip” Rights to Chicago Co.

Hiller and Wilk, acting for the S. A. Lynch Enterprises, have closed a contract for sixteen Norma Talmadge and Frank Keenan reissues to the Central Film Company, Chicago, Ill.

Within twenty-four hours after the proposition was brought to the attention of Messrs. Aaron T. Jones and Nathan Ascher of the Central Film Company, arrangements were completed by which the Illinois rights to the following pictures were sold: Norma Talmadge, in “The Missing Link,” “Martha’s Vindication,” “Children in the House,” “Going Straight,” “The Devil’s Needle,” “The Social Secretary,” and “Fifty Fifty.” Frank Keenan in “The Coward,” “Step-ther Singer,” “The Passin’ Th’ Thy Name,” “The Thoroughbred,” “Jim Grimesby’s Boy,” “The Sin Ye Do,” “The Bride of Hate,” and “The Crab.”

The New York firm also announces the sale of the Maurice Tournier play, “The Whip,” in Louisiana and Mississippi to the Lubin Company of Dallas, Texas. The success of the Texas Film Company’s exploitation of “The Whip” in Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas has been so great that it has gone beyond their normal territory and secure Louisiana and Mississippi.

With this sale Hiller and Wilk announce that all the territory in the United States has been sold for “The Whip,” also the majority of foreign territory.

Sawyer & Lubin Have Enthusiastic Reports
On “The Warrior”

Arthur H. Sawyer and Herbert Lubin, executives of Warner Enterprises, Inc., which concern is exploiting on a state right basis many successful features, among which are the “Warrior” pictures, have received amazing reports of the opening of “The Liar," in its reception of reports from the various territories in which “The Warrior” is now playing.

C. F. Scherwin, general manager of the Warner Enterprises Exchangers of Pittsburgh, from whose office “The Warrior” is being distributed throughout Pennsylvania, writes as follows regarding the success of the picture: “Rowland & Clark’s Regent Theatre, the most beautiful house in Pittsburgh, ran ‘The Warrior’ for three days, breaking the house record of attendance and created the picture for an additional two days’ run. Following this, the Prince Theatre at Jeannette, Pa., showed the film for two weeks, and attendance was 10 below zero and a ten-inch fall of snow, broke all records. The Princess Theatre has rebooked the picture, Joseph Lombardo of the Exhibitors Exchange of Altoona, Pa., played ‘The Warrior’ for three days and has already arranged to play the film again. Reports of this nature are pouring into this exchange daily and we believe ‘The Warrior’ to be the biggest box office success of many years.”

Hoffman Predicts
Big Success for
“The Eagle’s Eye”

“There are serials and serials,” said M. H. Hoffman of M. H. Hoffman, Inc., “but the one I believe is to be seen by the greatest number of people is ‘The Eagle’s Eye.’ I am just home from another of my tours of nearby exchanges, and no one or nothing can be no gainsaying the interest shown by both exhibitors and public.

It is not good taste to over-praise one’s own work, but here I will do so. Here, however, we have something so out of the ordinary that it becomes different from the serial which is made and distributed solely for profit.

Conceding its entertainment value, its commercial strength for the exhibitor as a box office attraction, The Eagle’s Eye assumes an aspect of still greater importance.

“It will hold the attention of every person seeing each episode. And it will prove to have that quality of distinction in settings and atmosphere, which even our best serials appear somehow not to have had. Also, King Bagott and Margaret Snow, as well as the rest of the cast, with which Mr. Hoffman has performed their roles admirably.

“But an outstanding element in The Eagle’s Eye’ is its patriotic appeal; the fact that it is to do a vast service for our government, for the people themselves. That is why, along with my other reasons, feel that the great interest in this picture will be reflected in the bookings and in the number of persons who view this serial.”

Lightweight Boxer And Ex-Ball Player In "Spurlock" Cast.

'Mike' Donlin, formerly a member of the New York Giants, and Jack Goodman, at one time a leading lightweight boxer, are members of the cast of "Jack the Prodigal," the Fox special feature which is to be released February 10. It is this George Walsh picture which William Fox has advertised as having been made exclusively for exhibitors under contract to show his second-year productions.

The story is that of the son of a millionaire who is expelled from college and who thereafter, as a result of trying to be a business man, keeps his father in hot water. Finally, however, he stumbles onto an opportunity to unload a large quantity of onions which the head of the family has accumulated. There is, of course, a love story involving also a bear, the latter proving to be a real villain in that it upsets Jack's matrimonial prospects.

The novel was adapted by Ad Girdler, and the production was made under the direction of Carl Harbaugh, who has had charge of most of the comedy work done by Fox organization in the East. Two weeks were required for the filming.

If the cast, besides those mentioned, includes Dan Mason, Ruth Taylor and Robert Vetian.
urist Dissolves

Injunction Plea

For "Thais" Film

Kansas City, Mo.—Injunction proceedings brought by Charles M. Bush and Roy Crimm, attorneys for the Goldwyn Distributing Company, against Fred McClure, motion picture censor of this city, to restrain him and city officials from interfering with the showing of the Goldwyn picture "Thais" at all theaters, was dismissed by Judge O. Thomas of the Circuit Court.

The court's decision followed the induction of additional testimony as to a character of censors and their powers, which were allowed to be shown by the censorship board.

Attorneys for the film distributors charged that members of the board used their discretionary powers against distributors. The decision means that the production cannot be shown in Kansas City.

Hows Uncensored Film Exhibitor Is Arrested

Kansas City, Mo.—When arraigned in North Side court recently, W. A. Andlauer, manager of the Bonaventure motion picture theatre, who was arrested a charge of exhibiting an unlicensed picture, told Judge Fred W. Coon that he understood the film in question had been censored. Based on this information, the 1st ordered a warrant issued for the manager of the distributing company who had furnished Andlauer with the film.

Charles M. Bush, attorney for the exhibitor, said that the film had been shown in several theatres in the city without reference.

Congressman Seeks

Curb on Exhibitors

Who Raise Prices

Washington, D. C.—Spurred on by repeated complaints of "profiteering" from owners of theatres by Washington merchants, Representative Cary Wisconsin, has introduced into Congress a bill which provides for a fine and forfeiture of license for any exhibitor who attempts to take advantage of persons in the District of Columbia raising admission prices.

It is considered that the commissioners of the District of Columbia shall be empowered to revoke the license of any person, firm or corporation who will advance the price of tickets charged for his accommodations, wares or services as the case may be, during war, any holiday or event the observation or celebration of which shall have the effect of causing a person other than a resident of the District of Columbia to visit the District of Columbia on account of war, holiday or event.

In the case of businesses which usual do not maintain their places of business posted or written tariffs or schedule of prices," the bill reads, "a schedule or tariff of charges greater than the prior usual rates in use in such places during wars, such holidays or special occasions shall constitute prima facie evidence that such prices were increased.

The bill provides in addition to the loss of license that a person found guilty shall be fined not more than $25 for each offense.

Ten o'clock Closing Remains in Boston

Boston, Mass.—Despite the one-day closing order each week imposed by the recent mandate of Federal Fuel Administrator Garfield, the 10 p.m. closing order for theatres in this city is still in effect and will remain so, according to James J. Storrow, fuel administrator for New England.

The ruling is said to have worked to the benefit of the picture theatre at the expense of the so-called legitimate houses. The opening of the latter classes of theatres at 7:45 p.m. instead of the usual 8:15 p.m. has had the effect of reducing attendance at these theatres and increasing it at the neighborhood picture houses.

New Metropolitan

Roof Collapses

Washington, D. C.—Further delay in the completion of the Metropolitan theatre, being erected by Harry M. Crandall, was occasioned when the partly completed roof of the structure caved in, doing damage estimated at about $5,000. The collapse was attributed to Mr. Crandall to the recent heavy fall of snow the weight of which weakened the beams supporting the roof.

One woman in the crash as the workmen employed on the building had sufficient warning to enable them to escape. Mr. Crandall announced that work would be resumed at once and hopes to be able to open the new house early in the spring.

UNION INCORPORATED

FOR M. P. OPERATORS

Albany, N. Y.—An organization formed to effect a union among operators of motion picture projection machines was incorporated with the secretary of state last week. It will be known as the American Theatre Employees and Projection Machine Operators' Union of Long Island and also proposes to enroll all other employees of theatres where motion pictures are presented and exhibited.

The incorporators are William Gigall, D. A. McClure, David Super, Milton Kemppner, M. W. Lane, Harry Sander and William Rich, all of Brooklyn.

Health Officer Bars

Coughing Children

From Film Houses

Scranton, Pa.—Dr. S. P. Longstreet, director of the department of public health of this city, has issued orders to all motion picture theatres to refuse admission to coughing children. The order was put into effect following complaints from two or three sections of the city about children with whooping cough being taken into theatres by their mothers and having fits of coughing in these public places.

Dr. Longstreet had had a week previous issued a lengthy warning to the public in which he pointed out the seriousness of whooping cough as a contagious disease and warned parents that 100 children had died of it in this country last year. Children form a large part of the audiences at the matinee performances and it is these that the commissioner of health seeks to protect.

Wilkes-Barre Theatre

Increases Capacity

Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—A fifty-six foot addition is being built to the Savoy theatre, one of the largest and handsomest motion picture theatres in northeastern Pennsylvania. A new ventilating plant is soon to be installed, along with a new diffused lighting system by which the lights will be synchronized with the pictures on the screen.

The changes in the Savoy will result in an additional capacity of more than 350 seats, increasing the matinee at present being more than 1,000. It is expected that the alterations will be completed about March 1.

Oklahoma Exhibitors

In Semi-Annual Meet

Oklahoma City, Okla.—The regular semi-annual meeting of the Oklahoma state association of the American Exhibitors Association was held in this city at the Lee Hawkins Hotel February 5 and 6. More than 150 exhibitors from various parts of the state were in attendance.

Methods tending toward the betterment of the motion picture business in the state were discussed, as well as the effect of the recently imposed war tax on admissions. Numerous exchanges and producing companies installed displays during the two-day session.

Add to Theatre String

Shamokin, Pa.—The Chamberlain Amusement Enterprise Corporation has secured a five-year lease on the Odd Fellows' theatre at Bloomsburg and will assume the management April 1. The corporation is now operating eleven theatres, including the People's and Victoria theatres in Sunbury.
Studios to Move West
Director Edwards Says

San Francisco, Calif.—The moving to California of many big eastern film producing companies is threatened because of interruption in the film industry due to coal shortage and curtailment of lighting, declared J. Gordon Edwards, a director, who arrived here recently from New York.

"Companies were without lights three days of the week, due to coal shortage, and we were without heat," said Edwards. "The result is that conditions are very unfavorable for the industry. Southern California stands absolutely alone in the making of pictures. The atmosphere is perfect. There is no possibility of curtailment of light because the plants here are run by mountain water power and not coal."

Alf Reeves Engaged
By Charlie Chaplin
As Stage Manager

Alf Reeves, well known as a producer and manager of theatrical enterprises, has arrived in Los Angeles from London to take an engagement with Charlie Chaplin.

Reeves will be associated with Chaplin as stage manager. He is a showman of twenty-five years' experience, and a brother of Billie Reeves, the Lubin Film Company comedian, and who is at present touring this country in vaudeville. There are few theatre-givers in the United States that do not know Alf Reeves through the many vaudeville acts he has offered under his own direction and also due to his affiliation with the Fred Karno companies.

Alf Reeves introduced Charlie Chaplin to the American public. As the manager of Karno's "Night In An English Music Hall," Reeves offered the great talent of the now million dollar comedian and engaged Chaplin as the principal member of the troupe. It was while under Reeves' management that Charlie Chaplin became interested in motion pictures and finally made his screen debut in 1913, after having been associated with the music-hall for several years.

Another important addition to the organization of the Charlie Chaplin studios was made, this week, with the engagement of C. Francis Kiesner. Kiesner is widely known in the theatrical profession, having followed a stage career for more than ten years. He is also the composer of the lyrics of the patriotic song, "Good Bye Broadway—Hello France."

Buffalo Likes Chaplin

Keith's Theatre, Buffalo, N. Y., has hit a high mark with the series of twelve Mutual-Chaplin comedies. The entire series has been repeated eight times in the Buffalo house, a total of 96 runs from twelve comedies.

Figures from one territory show that fourteen leading theatres have run the whole series of Mutual-Chaplins an average of thirty-four times, nearly three times for each picture.

King-Bee Waltzes
Furnish Nucleus of Publicity Campaign

This "King-Bee Waltzes," composed by Billy West, star comedian of the King-Bee Film Corporation, will furnish the nucleus of an extended exploitation campaign to be begun by that company in behalf of the King-Bee comedies.

The publicity department of the film company has already issued a circular to exhibitors containing information showing how to get the best advertising results from the waltzes. The music will not be sold any place, it is pointed out, and is only obtainable through the various theatres.

In the circular it is suggested that exhibitors advertise the giving away of these waltzes several days in advance in the local newspapers, on the screen, and to also incorporate this information in lobby displays.

Another means of arousing interest, it is suggested, is to offer a prize for a lyric to the melody, obtained if possible, the editor of the leading local newspaper to act as judge of the matter submitted.

Similar information concerning the musical accomplishment of Mr. West has been sent by the publicity department to the numerous film exchanges.

"The Belgian" Shown
At Monster Benefit

Sidney Olcott's special production, "The Belgian," was presented at a monster benefit entertainment on Friday, February 8, in St. Francis Hotel, San Francisco, in behalf of the war orphaned children of Belgium and France.

This is the second time the production, which is the third feature of the U. S. Exhibitors Booking Corporation to be shown at a Belgian benefit, it having been screened under joint auspices of Sidney Olcott and Frank G. Hall at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel, New York, recently. An admission fee of $3 was charged, with a considerable sum was raised for the relief of the stricken kingdom.

"Crucible of Life" To Have Showing at Eastern Cantonment

Following the private showing of the patriotic feature "The Crucible of Life," sponsored by Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin, at which the Camp Upton Quartet was presented, arrangements have been made whereby the film is to be screened at the Long Island cantonment.

It was through the courtesy of Col. George Vidmer, commanding officer of the 306th Infantry of Camp Upton, Long Island, that Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin were enabled to secure the services of the celebrated quartet for their showing and in a desire to reciprocate this kindness, "The Crucible of Life" has been offered for special screenings to entertain the National Army quarters on Long Island. Inasmuch as the picture of General Enterprises, Inc. has many interesting views of our army activities both in America and France, it should carry a special appeal to the boy in khaki.

Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin have also arranged to present "The Crucible of Life" for the entertainment of nurses of Sing Sing during the coming week. It is believed that a film of this type will do much toward infusing the prisoners with the patriotic enthusiasm and love of country now being instilled by various methods employed by prison authorities.

Miller and Fire Guard Frank Toomey at gunpoint, seized $155 and ran down the street. Frank Day, ticket taker, saw the hold-up and notified the police, and after a half hour’s battle in an alley the thief’s clubbed into insensibility. Two hundred and seventy dollars was recovered.

New Motion Picture Theatre for Chicago

Chicago’s south side is to have a new 500-seat motion picture theatre to cost approximately $50,000. Property at 3143 S. State street has been purchased by Mr. Hammond, who has also leased a strip of land from Johannau Baum advising for a term of twenty-five years.

The Hammond Company’s property is now being occupied by Turner Hall, which is proposed to remodel and enlarge.

What Would You Say?

Jacob Cooper runs the Twentieth Century theatre at Twelfth street and Central Park avenue. Directly across the street is the Central Park theatre owned by Balaban & Katz.

Along with other mortals exhibitor Cooper has had his troubles obtaining coal to heat his theatre. After repeated efforts he finally received assurance that he would be supplied with the much wanted article. The dealer acted in good faith, loaded a truck with five tons, and started it to the theatre.

But all theatres looked alike to the teamster and he made the mistake of going up in front of the Central Park theatre.

“Is this your coal?” he queried of the manager.

“Sure,” was the ready response. Whereupon Cooper’s coal was sent down a chute into the basement of the competitor’s theatre.

American Film Co.
Adds Food Trailers

The American Film Company lost no time in arranging for the Food Trailers asked for by Herbert Hoover, national food administrator, and have ordered them made for all of their features for the next month.

The slogan chosen by the company and which will appear on all pictures reads as follows: “Observe Mondays and Wednesdays as wheatless days and one wheatless meal every day.”

“We intend to cooperate with the government in every way,” stated the American officials, “and we will be more than willing to add the requested trailers to our new releases.”

Little Wholesome Star
To Tour Film Theatres

As the result of requests by exhibitors for the appearance in their respective theatres of Little Mary Burton, known as the “Fairy Star” through her appearance in Wholesome productions of “Cinderella” and “Little Red Riding Hood,” arrangements are now under way for a tour by the popular little actress.

Edmund M. Allen, head of the Allen Attractions, Cleveland, who is directing the distribution of “The Warrior” and “Mother in Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky, reports that these pictures have created quite a sensation among the exhibitors of the territory and that the important theatres in the district have been bidding high for the use of these pictures.

Allen Film Co. Sells “Mother” to Circuit

PERSONALS

Harry Weiss, of Central Film fame, has been doing a heap of traveling through Indiana and Illinois by foot and car for the past month. How about that Oakland “12”? A little thing like snow shouldn’t bother a “car.”

Nothing gets past the wide awake manager H. J. Corbett of the Harper Theatre. He opens all his shows with the now famous Harper Theatre march. Yes, H. J. is quite a versatile youngster, mebbe he wrote it. Everybody claims it’s a riot (tax free, too).

No. You’re all wrong. Lee Herz never gets excited. He was a wee bit nervous the other day, that was all.

I. Van Ronkel, who recently resigned as manager of Jewel and Bluebird Photoplays is now recording his first real vacation in fourteen years, strictly a pleasure trip and he’s not even going to think of business (wonders never cease). Well, we believe yer, Van. Accompanied with Mrs. Van Ronkel his engineer, he will cover Hot Springs, Ark., Palm Beach and Florida, returning home in about four weeks.

Sam Steinberg, of the Omaha, Neb. branch of Universal, was in the city last week talking about some new business is doing in that “bee-hive” on the 13th floor of the Consumers’ building. Call again, Sam!

Nat Rothstein, general publicity manager for the Universal exchanges, stopped off for a while enroute to the Coast. Nat is hastening west to attend the funeral of his father.

We see be th’ papers that Unity Photoplays Company is about to purvey anti-cigarette fillums to the trade, sanctioned by the beloved Lucy Gaston Page (the lady that knows all about ‘em). Alright, we’re satisfied, but by Crikky that Fatima brand of cigarettes is going to suffer an orful wallop. Ask Frank Zambreno? What’s the matter Frank been flirting with the Keeley Cure?

Those two handsome youngsters seen loitering about the Lyric Theatre, Cadillac, Mich., Wednesday evening, February 6, were the happy owners, my boy! None other than our friends Fitzpatrick-McElroy, theatre magnates, and take it from us that their new Lyric is some fillum palace. That’s nothing though, they've got flocks of 'em. May success always be your daily portion.

J. Miloslowsky, Esquire, owner of the Palace and Family Theatres of Des Moines, Iowa, kindly note and have a heart. There's an average of 100 exhibits a day (P. A. figgers) calling on Cress Smith of the Metro, and about four out of five get an ugly wound from that boss, and two at his desk before departing. Listen, "Milo," mail us a cheque to buy another. "Tis said same went on record that a certain type of "car" was "P. G." and in order to contradict him, J. M., of Day Mynie, slipped the glass a "K. O." Sure! Milo has other interests besides the Movies; Broadway Motor Sales, if you please.

J. L. Friedman of the Celebrated Players Film Company rises to remark that his company has surely picked off a winner in their most recent feature acquisition, "The Thirteenth Labor of Hercules," a remarkable picture with success running at the Alazar, Rose and Bonden Theatres, besides playing the Ascher and Lubliner & Trinz chain of houses.

The next time Norman Samish, Amusis Theatre, Clinton, Iowa, comes to Chicago, will some good pal of his breathe the following into his hearing apparatus. Norm, keep that "trick" shirt of yours for a term home. The creation that carries the green idea thorough out is the one we missed at our last engagement. I'm sure this dear old city of ours as it is, with these meatless, wheatless, flourless and everything else "less" that we're having these times. That boy, Norm, we knew you would.

Taylor Holmes is surely a busy chap these days arranging his schedule to visit the various theatres hereabouts. Arrangements were finally effected with the American Red Cross, Central Division, with headquarters in Chicago, to have all motion pictures from this popular comedy star's appearance in conjunction with the screening of the George K. Spoor films he is appearing in. "This should certainly be a "clean-up" for that Taylor is Some Boy.

Info has leaked out from the P. A.'s den or was it priced from his fertile brain, which? Well, anyhow, "this said the running man of the famous CUR in Russia" at Harry Thompson's (he never heard of "Big Bill") Pastime Theatre, with a seating capacity of 396, gathered in an audience of 280. Well wot uf it? Why all the noise? It means nuthin' a-tall. We can do anything within reason here; besides, ain’t Ralph Block a local son and full of that "I Will" stuff?

Another earful gleaned from the 15th floor of the Consumers' building. This time from Mr. 'cissors' and there you are a-ward of the pen, Irving Mack, of the Universal local publicity staff. Here it goes.

First Exhibitor—"Yep, advertising put me out of business."

Second Exhibitor—"Is that so, I didn't know you advertised."

First Exhibitor—"I didn’t, but my competitor across the street did."

"Tis a purty little thing," as Eddie Foy would mutter, "ain't it?"

On the Firin' Line

Ha! Ha! He has added another man to his repertoire. This time he'll be after gettin' a cyar load of contracts on the big serial, "The Eagle's Eye." Phew! "tis none other than the hand's on contract star, Mr. Me Luman, erstwhile Safety Projector magnate and also fearless newspaper scribe. May they all fall fur ye, Mc.

Frank Hurst (nix on that referee stuff) is now on the road for the W. H. Clune productions, "Ramona" and "The Eyes of the World," covering the Centaur, W. A. C., Chicago, and some of the smaller houses. The exposure method has been decided upon by many of the exhibitors in these parts from his previous affiliation with "The Birth of a Nation."

Julius Bernheim comes up for air again, this time being a member of the Chicago sales team of the Universal Film Co.

Louis B. Goulden has been hitting the trail for the Celebrated Players Film Company, for the past five weeks, so friend Louis has elected to spend a workless week in ole Chi. Knocked 'em cold in Rock Island. Out of the theatre he hopped live for service. Nifty gettin', old kid.

Jack Schwartz of the State Film Co., Detroit, Mich., is giving the old home city the benefit of his winning personality for a several days' visit. Alright, Jack; don't make your visits so far apart, that's all.

Ed Saifer is stepping it on for the Celebrated Players in Indiana. The arrival of that Indiana mail at headquarters every A.M. surely bears out the statement.

Dave Hyman, former hooker for J. M. Hayes, was up to see his boss the other day, all dolled up in his new riggins. Dave is now a member of the Radio division out at the Naval Station, and, take it from us, he makes some Jackie.

Joe Kallison, formerly of the Paramount, is now booker for the Celebrated Players, with Morris Tobb handling shipments.

Bill Weaver, able assistant to "Pepe" Smith, editor of Screen Optics is back again after a breathless visit spent with natives of Boise, Iowa. Bill sez: "The main street out there is all glutted up with snow, and it has played the deuce with town traffic." Gosh all hemblock! but that's tough on the business institutions, ain't it?

Edwin Silverman, one of filmdom's popular youths, will henceforth chat with the trade from the local Select, there be a powerful lot of this boy's business chatter, it lets him into man's realm, instantan.

Charley Miller, one of the "old guard," has resigned from the Bluebird forces to assume his place with the Goldwyn sales squad. With that "go get it stuff" that Charley has, the local office may have to stick around a wee bit longer to register the increase in the sales register.

Hoffman-Foursquare Keen to Distribute Government Films

M. H. Hoffman is determined that Foursquare Pictures shall do its fullest possible share in aiding the government in its great task to which it is engaged. Already, he has stepped in to distribute the Wharton serial, "The Eagle's Eye," which is an expose of the Imperial German Government's spy system in this country.

Mr. Hoffman followed that by arranging to distribute the entire Naval Relief League, through its president, Mrs. Moffett, a film entitled, "Our Boys and Your Boys," showing the work that is being done in the Great Lakes Naval Training Station.

The latest Foursquare patriotic move is the arrangement made between Mr. Hoffman and W. M. Rothacker, of the Rotacker Film Manufacturing Company, to distribute the one-reel subject, "Food Will Win The War." "People are just beginning to awake to the fact that food is one of the vital elements in our combat with the enemy," said Mr. Hoffman. "Food and munitions and money is not enough. Foursquare exchanges everywhere are getting behind this film with push and vim. We will put it in every motion picture theatre in the country. This is another campaign that has a vestige of patriotism—and that means nearly all of them."

W. H. Productions Co.
Issues Campaign Book

W. H. Productions Company have published for exhibitors a campaign book on William S. Hart as "The Two-Gun Man" in "The Bargain," their first Hart feature, that is said to be one of the hottest releases of the fall. The mutual benefit of the exchange and exhibitor.

This book will be the "Material here" (fit for any independent exchange because the book was gotten up not only from an advertising but also from a salesman's standpoint. I emphasize the latter aspect, because why exhibitors should book the production, stories on the cast, the punch situations, and big scenes, photographs of all posters, complete campaign of new paper cuts and publicity, star cuts, ad vice on the heralds, lobby displays, an final suggestions for free advertises.

Nilde Babette Signed As Twee-Dan Opposite

The Jester Comedy Company has signed up for one year with Nilde Babette to play opposite Twee-Dan. Mr. Babette appears in the first two comedies, "The Recruit" and "His Gold Romance," and her work proved so satisfactory that she was contracted to a deal for the first series of twelve Jester Comedies.

Miss Babette is a stranger to America having only arrived recently from Paris, but when she has done a little screen work in the French capital, and makes her debut to American screen public in "The Recruit Miss Babette possesses a distinct type of beauty, it is said, and also possesses a well cultivated line of French manners.

IS THERE ANYTHING NEW IN PLOTS?

By Samuel S. Hutchinson

The continual urge for something new is an admission of instability, or at least of a weakness, on the part of those who are so weak as to persist in demanding it. They admit that they have failed to appeal with their stories and attribute it to the fact that people are constantly desiring "something new."

The permanent fate of a picture does not invariably depend much upon the novelty of the plot or the situation as it does upon the art of depicting it. We all know that there are but a few plots in existence and that we must weave our stories about these few. Opinions differ somewhat as to how many numbers of plots and I am not disposed to make a controversial point; but even though there were but half of the number, the amount of artistic variation and atmosphere of which any plot is admissible, depends a great deal on the art perception of the one who interprets the story, either in a printed or a pictorial form.

The man who is a creator, who visions his picture before attempting to produce it, has the secret. Any other plan is merely the copying of a design. Any artisan can copy. It takes an artist to create. The director who attempts merely to out-do some other chap in splendor or expense in putting on a picture, merely puts it on, he does not produce a finished picture. For if he has not the art of telling the story on the screen, he will never be able to breathe the breath of life into any scenario. The producer who style the power to do this must be preceded by some element of constructive vision, some definite aim which will prove to be a stimulus to his genius.

There may be nothing new in stories for the screen; but I believe there is always a possibility of a vigorous and original treatment of any theme, no matter how ancient may be its framework of plot.

Clara K. Young Plays Arduous Role In Select's "The House of Glass"

Clara Kimball Young declares, according to her publicity department, that never before in her screen career has she played such a breathless and tempestuous existence as in the role of Margaret Case, which she plays in "The House of Glass," the Broadway success which she is picturing for Select Pictures.

The story centers about a innocent girl implicated in a well robbery by the man whom she is to marry. Her subsequent release from prison on parole, her flight West and marriage to a prominent railroad official, and the exposé which ten years threatens her happiness, constitute the salient points of the plot.

"The House of Glass," which is being directed by Emile Huard, is practically finished. In it Miss Young is supported by an able cast, including Edward Kimball, Corliss Mee, Peli Trenton, Norman Selby, James T., Laffey, Josie Grant, William Wotman, Peggy Burke and Doris Field. The production will be distributed by Select Pictures.

By Right of Purchase" Has Been Completed

"By Right of Purchase," Norma Talmadge's next Select production in which she will be presented by Joseph M. Schenck, has been completed. Miss Talmadge enacts the role of a beauty who becomes a beauty by circumstances into a wealthy marriage with a man whom she does not love. Her gradual awakening to the nobility of her husband's character, and the problems that arise out of the belief that she has an affection for an appealing drama of marital life. The story is written by Eugene O'Brien and a capital cast, and the picture is directed by Charles Miller who also directed the Secret of the Storm Country," and "Ghosts of Yesterday," Miss Talmadge's two previous offerings.

Enid Bennett's First Paramount

The first Paramount picture which will star Enid Bennett, under the personal supervision of Thomas H. Ince, will be published February 11. The play entitled, "The Keys of the Righteous," is now being filmed at the Ince studios.

Shirley Mason in Japanese Role
In Next Edison Company Production

Shirley Mason, heroine of "Seven Deadly Sins," is being starred by the Edison Company in a novel Japanese production now nearing completion in their Bronz studio. Provisionally called "Aliens" or "Weavers of Dreams," the play is not yet finally titled. The story deals with a pretty Japanese girl who is obliged to forsake her white husband, a young American, because of the conflict arising from difference of race. Miss Mason takes the principal role and is surrounded by a capable cast, Matt Moore being the American husband, Frederick March and Emile H. Maxi Han, in the title role; the Japanese wife, Thomas Tomimoto the child bride's father, and Mrs. Osima and Wada other Japanese characters.

In preparing the director, believe that that the new play have even stronger appeal than the famed "Madame Butterfly," first, because the racial struggle is more easily divided, and, second, because picture artistry has so greatly improved in its methods.

The play is scheduled for early publication by Perfection Pictures. Before its presentation date, however, it is likely to be introduced by a metropolitan run at a Broadway theatre. The scenes are laid in "plum blossom time," and it is in the Spring that New York will see it.

Peggy Hyland Star of "Debt of Honor"

William Fox announces that exhibitors may expect the first production Peggy Hyland has made, since joining the Fox forces, early in March. The picture bears the tentative title of "Debt of Honor." Peggy Hyland will be published as one of the Special Features, probably for the week of March 10.

Irving Cummings will be opposite Miss Hyland. Mr. Cummings returns to the Fox fold after several month's absence. The other members of Miss Hyland's company, which is under the direction of O. A. C. Lund, who will appear in important roles, include Frank Goldsmith, Eric Mayne and Hazel Adams. Joseph Ruttenberg is in charge of the photography. The picture is being screened in the Fort Lee studios.

The Great Star Petrova's Fourth Begun with Ralph Ince Directing

Work on the fourth special starring production in which Mme. Olga Petrova is to appear has been started at the Petrova Studios under the direction of Ralph Ince. The story selected for this picture is by George Middleton. The title chosen for the latest vehicle is "The Great Star" and in it she interprets the role of Lucille Caruthers, daughter of a Southern gentleman of the old school, with strong feministic ideas of her own and the individuality to place them into effect.

A particularly strong and capable cast has been assembled to support the famous artiste in her fourth special production. Thomas H. Holding, who has appeared opposite Mme. Petrova in previous pictures, "Daughter of Destiny," "The Light Within" and "The Life Mask," will portray the leading male part of "The Great Star," while J. Herbert Frank will handle a character especially suited for the display of his peculiar talents. Matilda Brundage and Edith Hinkle, both of whom have appeared in former film plays with Mme. Petrova, will occupy important parts in her latest vehicle, together with E. J. Radcliffe, who has been drafted from the legitimate stage to fill one of the roles in "The Great Star."

Gladys Brockwell Begins New Picture

Three days after she had completed "The Moral Law" at the William Fox studios on the Pacific coast Gladys Brockwell began work on a new production for Mr. Fox. In the cast are William Scott, Bertram Bracken, Lucille Young, George Woodruff, T. A. Crittenden, Sam Hennings and Berto Buzi. Edward J. Le Saint is directing the picture.
“Carmen of the Klondyke” Is First State Rights Distributors’ Film

“Carmen of the Klondyke,” featuring Clara Winkworth, will be the first offering on the state rights market by State Rights Distributors, Inc., of New York, according to an announcement by that company.

State Rights Distributors, Inc., is a recently formed organization of sixteen independent exchanges operating throughout the country. The selection of “Carmen of the Klondyke” was produced by the Selectart Film Corporation, and was purchased by the distributors organization following a committee which viewed the production was unanimous in the vote to purchase, it is reported.

Orvin G. Cocks, general manager of the State Rights Distributors, Inc., will leave soon, it is said, for a trip to many of the principal cities in the United States for the purpose of co-operating with franchise holders in the exploiting of the production.

Mr. Simmons has been in the motion picture business since 1906, at which time he left the commercial field to devote his entire attention to amusement enterprises. His first venture was the purchase of a roof garden in one of the cities of the middle west.

For several years, he operated a theatre in Chicago. He moved to Seattle, where he operated several picture theatres.

When the General Film Corporation, he organized the theatre exchange for the company and was later made business manager, controlling all the exchanges on the Pacific coast. Since that time he has managed theatres and exchanges in various parts of the country.

Orvin G. Cocks Back From Investigation Of Camp Amusements

Orvin G. Cocks, advisory secretary of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures has just returned to New York from a two weeks’ visit to a number of cities near training camps made under the auspices of the Playground and Recreation Association of America for the purpose of studying commercial amusements provided for the soldiers and sailors. He visited Boston and Lowell, Mass., New London, Conn., and Philadelphia.

In Boston he attended a meeting of the Massachusetts branch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League. A dozen of the exhibitors present offered to distribute free tickets to certain of the men in the Service Clubs, at the Navy Yard, and elsewhere as their bit. The exhibitors were unanimous in expressing the desire that free tickets should be exhibited to soldiers and sailors which might be suggestive or improperly stimulating. It was suggested that a committee be appointed to cooperate with Boston Camp Community Service in relation to commercial amusements.

It seemed probable that Sunday movies might be adopted in New London as a war measure, with a view to meeting the recreation needs of the many soldiers and sailors, particularly the latter, to be found in the neighborhood of that city.

In Philadelphia, pictures provided without charge by the exchanges on off days were shown within the camps and naval stations where there was competition with the commercial houses—in the recreation buildings of the League Island Navy Yard, the Knights of Columbus auditorium at Camp Dix, the recreation hall at Allentown, and to the soldiers in the Frankford arsenal.

Al Kaufman is Now Signal Corps Officer

Another feature of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation working force, has recently joined the colors. Al Kaufman, who has been studio manager of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation at 130 West 56th street, New York, is now second lieutenant in the Signal Corps. Mr. Kaufman joined the corps two weeks ago, and has just received his commission.

He has been directly connected with Famous Players-Lasky since the organization of the corporation and has most since its incorporation, and for a long time has been a very efficient manager of one of the biggest studios in the production of the production. He is now in Washington, where he is connected with the motion picture division of the Signal Corps, in which activity he brings an experience which should prove invaluable in the service of the Government.

New Boston Manager Object of Visit by Two Select Officials

C. E. Shurtleff, sales manager of Select Pictures Corporation, has gone to Boston on business incident to the change of management of Select’s Boston office. E. J. Farrell took charge of the affairs of Select’s Boston branch February 4 and Mr. Shurtleff will spend a couple of weeks with him.

Shurtleff, when he left New York January 30, was accompanied by Orvin G. Cocks, son of Mr. Lewis J. Selznick, president of Select Pictures Corporation, who is also going to spend several weeks in the Boston territory. The latter will devote his time to the exhibitor’s service department of Select Pictures, giving special attention to the manner in which the branch exchanges are managed.

Two-reel Picture is Aid to Government In Insurance Work

A two-reel picture with professional actors and actresses in the leading roles will be shown at all military and naval camps throughout the country beginning May 1st as a part of the national war insurance campaign. The photoplay, which is called “His Best Gift,” was produced by the Photographic Division of the Signal Corps, U. S. A., under the direction of Captain Edwin R. Hesser, formerly in charge of photoplay propaganda for the Canadian government.

Approximately one thousand patrons riot in the action of the picture. A battalion from the 314th Infantry, Camp Meade, and an Engineer Battalion from Washington Barracks take the leading part in the military action which is portrayed with full details. Realistic overseas battle scenes feature the picture.

In view of the recent loss of Mr. William Sherwood of the Signal Corps, formerly a well-known cinema actor, takes the part of The Man, and Miss Elise Bartlett, a well-known Wash-

Professionals see “Dodging a Million” At Quinn’s Rialto

The witchery of Mabel Normand reached out across the continent last week and drew to Quinn’s Rialto Theatre in Portland, Maine, a large and distinguished audience of professionals eager to see her in “Dodging a Million” the vehicle of her return to the movie picture screen after an absence of a year and a half.

Four hundred motion picture sta-

Public officials gathered in the theatre midnight to see a special screening of George Loane Tucker picture. Among those present were M. C. A. and K. of C. members, in the auditorium of the Commission on Training Camp Activities, the Liberty Theatre and in the halls adjacent to the camps. Efforts will be made to bring the photoplay before a persons in service.
U. S. Marine Corps Assist in Filming

"The Unbeliever," a Convincing War Drama

The United States Marine Corps cooperated in the production of the greatest war film since "The Birth of a Nation." The Unbeliever," adapted by Edison from the widely read story by Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews, "The Three Things," was directed by Raymond F. Gerber, who was formerly associated with the Edison company. Edward G. Raynal was the director of photography, and members of his staff. These officers had recently returned from France, where they had studied actual war conditions on the western front.

Marguerite Courtot and Raymond McKee are the featured players, and their respective roles, the Belgian refugee and the youthful Marine afforded the delightful pair excellent opportunity to display their respective talents. Miss Courtot achieves a distinction through her interpretation of the brave little Belgian party, a part that represents the noble spirit of Belgium. The unusual story is filled with fine appreciation of its significance, inspired Miss Courtot to a broad understanding and a delicate treatment. Raymond F. Gerber directed the shelling scenes, and an impressively sincere marks Mr. McKee's marine with unique success. He also directs Warren Karr, Karl von Stroheim, Earl Schenck, Kate Lester, Blanche Davenport, Gertrude Norman, Frank von Stroheim, Henrietta Martin and Harold Hallacher.

Officers Take Part

Several officers and non-commissioned officers of the Marine Corps are cast in the representative of discipline in the trained marines of the Marine Battalion give the appearance of the soldiery in the field. The cast from the U.S.M.C. includes Major Thomas Holcomb, Major Ross E. Rowell, Captain Thomas D. Satterfield, Lieut. J. F. Rorke, Sergeant M. Gill, Corporal Bob Ryland and Privates of the Sixth Battalion. Recently the film was exhibited at the Marine Corps' camp at Quantico, Va. and in action. They received themselves in intimate scenes in the trenches that only a few months before, under intense training, had dug and built themselves; they saw one of their colleagues beaten back in a Belgian village outnumbered by the enemy, and they saw the reinforced Marine Battalion launch a successful counter attack and rout the Germans. They themselves charge Over the Top and advance their line three hundred yards under terrific fire; and it is good to feel that the Sixth Battalion will live these victories over again in actuality in the field, for already it seems certain that its members will make history with the same unconquerable Americanism that they displayed in "The Unbeliever."

Numerous Accidents

Feature Filming of Universal Serials

Four accidents in as many serials being filmed at Universal City occurred during the last week as the result of the directors' efforts to provide thrills. Despite this serial production is proceeding at full blast at Universal City. With the Ben Wilson-Neva Gerber aggregation still hard at work on the story of "The Mystery Ship," Eddie Polo and Vivian Reed just commencing on "The Ull's Eye," and Jacques Jaccard busily engaged in directing Marie Walcamp in the production of "The Lion's Claw," the newest Universal serial, this particular phase of studio work is going along without any hitches.

According to the players taking part in the serials, the past week has been particularly rife with experiences of every kind. Ben Wilson is trying hard to imagine an egg or a Voltaic battery into the picture as the consequence of an auto accident. Eddie Polo is nursing a lame ankle after a close shave while walking over the thorny bushy lot where he had been thrown and trampled upon by an enraged horse. Vivian Reed and Olive Johnson complain of still suffering from the effects of putting on real-life experiences. When a runaway stage car ran them down an embankment, while Marie Wallcamp is just returning to her normal self after an encounter with a man during one of the scenes in the serial in which she is featured.

Big Demand for Special Productions

Conspiracy Work of Capt. Von Rintelen

in "The Eagle's Eye"

The increasing popularity of the special production, as reflected by the recent decision of important distributing concerns to specialize in that type of attraction, is becoming daily more manifest. Thanks to Judge Lynn S. Card, general sales manager of the U. S. Exhibitors Booking Corporation, reports recently received from Mr. Card from the firm's representative in the Virginia district, B. R. Thomas, indicate that the demand for special productions, such as the U. S. corporation distributes, is not confined to any special class of exhibitor but that large and small alike are showing a marked preference for production that readily lend themselves to extraordinary exploitation.

"I am convinced that the special production—by which I mean a subject such as the accepted program standard of merit—is the film attraction of the future," declared Mr. Card. "Daily I receive reports from representatives of the small and large men throughout the country, which show an ever-increasing demand for specials. As a rule I have found that exhibitors are willing to cater to this demand because they can put behind them a maximum of advertising and usually reap a fair profit. The regular program production, on the other hand, does not give the exhibitor the same opportunity. The demand for special productions similar to 'The Zeppelin's Last Raid,' 'Those Who Pay' and 'The Belgian' is not confined to any one locality. It is apparent in nearly every territory in the country. The exhibitor is learning that such exploitation has become an almost automatic factor in the conduct of his theatre and is anxious to obtain the sort of attractions he can advertise best."

Metro Gets Holman

Novel "The Landloper"

The photoplay rights to Holman Day's widely read novel, "The Landloper," have been acquired by Metro, it is announced. The picture will be utilized in the making of a new Metro production with Harold Lockwood as the star. "The Landloper" is a colorful romantic drama and is said to be a vehicle for the role of a picturesque wandering philosopher whose identity is a mystery beyond his name—Walker Farr. The character is a Features player and meets in a small automobile on a country road and culminates in a pretty love story. The production will be made in Florida, where Mr. Lockwood and his staff have moved for the winter months. George Irving, who has just joined the company as an associate director with Fred J. Balshofer, who will direct it.

Our Business Proves Goldwyn Has Kept Its Promises!

In the very beginning—one year ago—Goldwyn said to the exhibitors of America:

“In Goldwyn Pictures we will maintain a higher average of dramatic and technical excellence than you will be able to find in the productions of any other organization. You can therefore use Goldwyn as the basis in building a quality reputation for your theatre.”

We have kept this pledge.

And we also said in the beginning: “Goldwyn will give you bigger productions at your regular rental prices than you have ever received before from any other organization.”

We kept THIS promise by giving all Goldwyn contract customers Mary Garden in “Thais”—a box-office record-breaker. We are keeping this promise a second time by giving you Mary Garden in “The Splendid Sinner”—an even bigger attraction than “Thais.”

But the best proof of Goldwyn’s value is found in the fact that every important first-run exhibitor in North America who began showing Goldwyn Pictures last September IS STILL SHOWING THEM because they are popular and return a box-office profit.

More than 4,000 other exhibitors have followed the lead of America’s biggest showmen and are now contract customers of Goldwyn.

"Broken Ties"
Directed by ARTHUR ASHLEY

"One of the strongest World-Pictures—Suspense soars to an unusually high mark—Contains not one dull moment—Seldom has such a selection of talent been assembled to interpret the roles of a single picture." (Motion Picture News)
Luring the Investor

The entire motion picture trade has an interest in the proceedings which have been instituted in Chicago against the promoters of "The Birth of a Race" picture.

According to reports a vast quantity of this stock has been foisted upon the gullible public. A casual survey of the literature which has been sent out broadcast in connection with the selling of stock in this company at least convinces that the promoters have been assiduously optimistic.

It would be comforting to allow the promoters to escape with having this interpretation placed upon their actions—but such is hardly possible. They are entitled to no consideration and to no opportunity to create an alibi. We assert this mindful that they did not merely go out into ordinary commercial channels to sell their stock, but their salesmen took the back door route, attempting to induce the housewife and the housemaid to invest their savings in the proposed product.

They represented to prospective victims that "The Birth of a Nation" made 1,500 per cent and 'The Birth of a Race' is to be a greater picture and a greater money-maker."

Before the picture had been made—or even started—and in the face of a multitude of failures by competent men seeking to make "another" "Birth of a Nation" they may have believed in their assertions to prospective victims but if such is the case the present legal investigation should be transferred to an insanity court.

Instances of this nature place the motion picture business in a most unfortunate position before the investing public and it is to the best interests of the business that schemes of this kind be speedily stamped out.

Business—"Better Than Usual"

During the past ninety days the film industry in all its various ramifications has passed through a crucial period. The business has been compelled to face a number of extraordinary circumstances, all of which tended to frighten the timid-minded.

But the film industry has not faced the extraordinary circumstances alone: every business in the country has been called upon to face new conditions. Certain necessary readjustments, both in and out of the film industry, were regarded by some as portents of disaster. In other cases officials immediately set to work to solve the difficulties of the hour.

In cases where this has been done companies now face a prospect of great prosperity. The general business of the country is more prosperous today than ever before; the problem of unemployment does not exist and a good share of the vast deluge of currency that is being placed in circulation inevitably will find its way into the motion picture industry, producer, distributor and exhibitor.

But the business has long since passed out of the "gold mine" stage and any and every company in order to be able to prosper must be efficiently and economically conducted, must understand the current requirements of the market and be able to satisfy them. Existing conditions are a severe test for the company that has been wabbling along with an indefinite policy, hoping that some tide of extraordinary prosperity will carry it to the shores of solvency.

The Philadelphia Situation

Through various legal means, an attempt is being made in Philadelphia to see if that territory can be made safe for the independent producer and distributor.

For some time entrance into the Philadelphia market has only been possible via the conference chambers of Stanley Mastbaum and the Stanley Booking Agency. The Mastbaum combination, created and directed by a number of brilliant minds, has been able to hold the exhibition of motion pictures in Philadelphia in the hollow of its hand.

This has been due partly to the strength of the combination and partly to the apparent willingness of the majority of Philadelphia exhibitors to accept what seemed to be the inevitable—submission or extermination.

But now comes out of the west a movement headed by George K. Spoor with an insistent demand that the independent producer and the independent distributor be given a chance in Philadelphia. This movement is a test on a small scale of whether it is ever to be permitted that the film business be ground under the heels of a monopoly.

The courts in Philadelphia are to be given an opportunity to decide the legality of the question, but in the meantime the independent exhibitors in the Quaker City are to be given an opportunity to achieve the freedom from interference that they have been seeking and to rally to the support of Mr. Spoor and his associates, who are fighting the exhibitors’ battle as well as their own.

* * *

Casual Comment

Following a notable precedent in the East exhibitors should make it a rule to call in their pro-German patrons and gain their sanction, approval and consent before running any patriotic and PRO-American pictures.

* * *

George K. Spoor et al. seemed very much intent upon presenting Philadelphia exhibitors at large with a well-oiled open door policy for their native heath—and in a world where quiet determination, backed by courage and intelligence usually “gets there,” we are very hopeful.

* * *

A new departure in the gentle art of bunking the exhibitor: The formation of a “bureau of co-operation” by a company that has a mile-long-record of plundering.

* * *

With practically every film man equipped with a sure-fire plan for correcting every existing evil the future of the industry seems to be well safeguarded.

* * *

The story that Mary Pickford has paid an income tax of $250,000 should be a matter of great consolation to officials of companies that have passed their dividends. Perhaps Mary had better make the next trip to Wall Street.

Film Stock Salesmen First to Face Prosecution Under New Illinois Law

Broker Failed to Take Out State License—Was Selling "The Birth of a Race" Stock It Is Alleged

What will probably result in the first prosecution under the recently enacted "blue sky" law in Illinois centers about the sale of stock for a motion picture production. The Birth of a Race. Agents of Attorney General Edward J. Brundage have already caused to be taken into custody Giles P. Cory, head of Giles P. Cory & Co., fiscal agents for the playphot and F. W. Sherwood, stock broker.

The law, passed by the Illinois legislature, which requires brokers to take out state licenses and report to the secretary of state specific information concerning stocks they handle which are not listed on the exchanges, went into effect January 1.

Complaint against Sherwood was made to Secretary of State L. L. Emmerson who, because of the importance of the situation, brought it to the attention of Mr. Brundage. As the case may result in a test of constitutionality of the act, Mr. Brundage has determined to handle it himself.

Cory was released upon the deposit of a cash bond of $1,000. The warrant was issued by a circuit court of cook county. After Tony A. Ruggio, a real estate salesman, had told of purchasing $500 worth of stock, part payment of which he made in Liberty Bonds valued at $200. The circular which induced him to buy, he said, came from the office of Cory & Co., but the sale was completed by H. H. Parker, a special representative with offices in the advertising building.

"Parker represented that the picture would be put upon the screen about March 1," Ruggio told Assistant Attorney General R. S. Pratt. "He stated that a small investment would make a man independent for life; that dividends would be paid beginning the middle of April and amounting to at least $50 per cent monthly. He said the picture would be good for fifteen years and that these dividends would continue throughout that period."

Mr. Brundage general made it clear that his action was not a drive on the stock of "The Birth of a Race" but simply an investigation into the violations of the new law. Other companies, he said, had not filed the detail of shares with the secretary of state.

"Investigators from this office were unable to buy 'Birth of a Race' shares," said Mr. Brundage. Men have been sent out to inquire into the conditions under which stock of this sort is being disposed of.

Lee A. Ochs Heads New Body to Book Films Direct to Consumer

C. R. Seelye, L. F. Blumenthal and C. M. Rosenthal Also Associated in United Picture Theatres of America, Inc.

The United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., a co-operative film company, said to be owned, financed and controlled by motion picture exhibitors, has opened offices in the Filmm building at 1600 Broadway. The organization of the company has been in progress for several months, it is said, although the actual incorporation was not completed until the present week. For the most part, the thirty film territories of the United States with fifty experienced exchange managers and salesmen have been arranged for and the entire working staff will begin its activities by March 1.

Lee A. Ochs, president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of America, is president of the United; C. R. Seelye, formerly business manager for Pathé, Vitagraph and World, is vice-president, in charge of the exchange and general business of the company; Louis F. Blumenthal, owner of the National Theatre, Jersey City; Palace, Classic and Annex, of New York, and Palace, of Brooklyn, is treasurer; Charles M. Rosenthal, who is interested in a number of New York theatres, is secretary, and Milton M. Goldsmith, film lawyer, of New York, has been made general counsel.

"The United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., will make no contracts to secure pictures until 2,000 days have been signed, but as a number of days have already been secured the company expects to secure 4,200 days before September 1," reads a statement given by the officers. "The first release will be announced at that time or before and all prices will be based on that number of days."

For several years many of the most progressive leaders in the industry have frankly admitted the desirability of a...
Pool of State Rights Buyers Takes Over Forty-Four Features of Triangle Film Co.

List Includes Fairbanks, Hart, Keenan and Talmadge Pictures Deal Consummated by Hiller and Wilk, Inc.

In announcing the sale of Hart and Fairbanks pictures to the various state rights buyers, the S. A. Lynch Enterprise, Inc., have established a precedent in the history of the film industry.

The pool of state rights buyers, composed of the Boston Photoplay Company of Boston, Mass.; Jones, Linick & Schaefer and Ascher Bros. of Chicago, Ill.; and the Interstate Film Attractions of Philadelphia, Pa.; the Quality Film Company of Pittsburgh, Pa.; the De Luxe Feature Film Company of Seattle, Wash.; Sidney B. Lust of the Super Film Attractions, Inc., Washington, D. C., and others, contracts for which are now being consummated through Hiller & Wilk, Inc., has contracted to take over the entire list of Hart, Fairbanks, Keenan and Talmadge pictures that have been distributed through the Triangle Film Company.

These pictures will now be handled in the respective territories by the state rights distributors who have been banded together to take over this successful series of pictures.

There are forty-four pictures concerned, twelve of them Douglas Fairbanks pictures, sixteen are William S. Hart pictures, nine are Frank Keenan pictures, and seven are Norma Talmadge pictures. They represent the work of such directors as D. W. Griffith, Allan Dwan, John Emerson, Chas. Miller, Thos. H. Ince, Raymond West, Reginald Barker, and others whose names are becoming more prominent with each picture they produce.

Spoor Establishes Branch Exchanges In Foreign Lands

George K. Spoor is establishing new branch exchanges in many foreign countries. The new exchange furthest from the United States is the Essanay agency in Sydney, Australia, conducted by Clement Mason. This exchange handles not only all Essanay pictures, including scenes and comedies, but is booking the George K. Spoor Ultra features: "Uneasy Money," "Men Who Have Made Love to Me," and "Ruggles of Red Gap."

Mr. Mason sends a report to Mr. Spoor that his one-reel scenes are particularly popular in Australia as the natives of that country show a keen interest in the scenery of North America. "Uneasy Money" is proving a profitable booking in Australia, the report also says, and Taylor Holmes has a host of admirers throughout the country.

Essanay has also established a booking distributing agency in Porto Rico.

Louise Glaum Makes HerDebut as Paralta Star in "Intelligence"

Head of Her Own Company Will not Play Vampire Roles in Future

Several stories have already been prepared for production by Louise Glaum, who started work on her first Paralta Play last week at the Los Angeles studios of the company. She is making a picture in which she will make her debut as a star of the Paralta organization which is now well under way and the scene department is losing no time in making plans for "The Lady of the Peacocks."

The first two productions since she has abandoned the realm of screen vampi- re roles have many pleasing roles of dramatic and emotional characteriza- tions will be "Intelligence" and "Snap- dragon." The former was written by Monte M. Katterjohn of the Pa- ralta staff of authors, and the latter is adapted from the story of the same title by Horace Hazelton, which appeared in the Eosnay-Moody column. These pictures are now being consummated to provide Miss Glaum with gripping dramas with- out the vampire element, to follow the first two. All of the first Miss Glaum’s Paralta Plays will be produced under the direction of Wallace Worsley.

The cast for "Intelligence" will include Thurston Hall, Clara Bow, Joseph J. Dowling, Jay Morley, Arthur Allardt and Baby Mary Jane Irving.

All of Miss Glaum's pictures with Pa- ralta, Inc., will be made by the star's own producing company, of which she herself is at the head.

OCHS HEADS NEW BODY

co-operative company that would eliminate wastage in film, studio and selling pictures and get producers more money with which to make better pictures. At the same time, it was organized as necessary that film rentals should be reduced to exhibitors and all-faithed men in the industry today realize that the progress of the business demands better pictures and more consistent pictures with lower rentals and that this great result can be accomplished only by co-operation.

"Whenever a co-operative plan has been submitted it has been impossible because of personal and business jealousies and up to the present time producers and distributors while favoring such a plan have gained little headway."

"The views of all the prominent pro- ducers were secured by the officers of the United before the company was incor- porated, and when explained it was found that the producers are confident that the plan will work to the benefit of both producer and exhibitor by eliminating unnecessary waste and increasing profits for both producer and exhibitor."

"The United plan proposes to reduce the film rentals about thirty per cent giving producers a larger and quicker return than under the present expe- sive exchange system."
Chicago Theatremen Endorse "Direct to Exhibitor" Project Unanimously Guarantee Illinois Quota of 188 Days to Producers and Exhibitors-Affiliated —Seven Appointed to Perfect Plans

More than fifty Chicago exhibitors of other leagues met last week with the representatives of Producers & Exhibitors—Affiliated, exponents of the "procurer to exhibitor direct" selling plan and unanimously guaranteed Illinois' quota of 188 days required under the new organization.

The delegation of producers was ed by Charles C. Pettijohn, former general manager of the American Ex-bidders Association and included Harry lapf and William L. Sherrill of the rohan Amusement Corporation. Mr. gettijohn was named chairman of the eting on motion of the exhibitors resent.

Mr. Sherrill was the first to be called pon by the chairman. In a short talk he well briefly upon conditions which had 7 the eight independent producers to mit the proposition to the allied exbitors at their meeting in Washington.

Not Producer Combination

This movement means the salvation the independent producer," said Mr. errill. "I have no hesitation in saying is. I would go even further and say it leans also the salvation of the exhibitor.
This is not a combination of producers, ach must stand behind his own producion and the man with the best produc-on will benefit the most under this an."

Harry Rapf followed Mr. Sherrill and plained at length the plans of the Pro-users & Exhibitors—Affiliated. He tated that the organization has on hand the present time five pictures which ready for distribution as soon as ighty per cent of the quota of the entire country is guaranteed.

He urged the exhibitors to take speedy ction in forming an organization to andle the pictures under the new plan the state of Illinois. Production at the tart, he said, would be limited to one icture a week, but added that whenever emand grew the producers were le and willing to increase their output.

Pettijohn Shows Saving

In a short talk following Mr. Rapf, airman Pettijohn declared that booking under the new plan would lower the ilm rental to exhibitors practically sixty-ve per cent. "All playing days in excess of the quota required," he said, "would crease the profits to the producer and ates to exhibitor in equal proportion.

This is the one means by which you can get real co-operation among exbitors," said Mr. Pettijohn. "Paying of dues to an organization alone, does not ake for co-operation, for the exhibitor must have returns. You must give him omething. Under this plan he will make profit."

Joseph Hopp, president of the Chicago
anch of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, who, with Louis Frank, treas-er of the local chapter of the American hibitors Association, sat on the platform with the chairman of the meeting, spoke in favor of the plan.

Hopp Favors Plan

"I am heartily in favor of the plan," he said. "I was present with a number of thers in this room at the meeting of ally exhibitors in Washington when these producers appeared and explained the project. They came to Washington when they did not know they would be allowed to address the exhibitors, but they believed they had evolved something of benefit to themselves as well as theatre owners.

This apparent co-operation means nothing unless we all get behind the project and make it go. I understand fully the details and am in favor of it."

Mr. Frank, when called upon, excused himself on the plea that he was not a peaker. He said that he was fully amiliar with the project and believed in it.

"Sign," Says Frank

"Let's get busy and sign the contracts," he said in closing. "That's the real business of the day and will show that we mean to support the plan."

Jacob Cooper, William Heaney, W. D.
Burford, Joseph Hopp, Harry Corbett, Louis Frank and Dee Robinson were apnointed a committee to formulate all ar-angements for the distribution in the state. The committee has already held two meetings, executive in nature, with Joseph Hopp as temporary chairman and Mr. Frank as acting secretary. Legal talent will be consulted at once to arange for proper incorporation of the body.

Following the meeting the exhibitors witnessed a showing of "The Woman Eternal," a Harry Rapf production, at a local projection room.

M. H. Hoffman Visits Chain of Exchanges
Of Foursquare Corp.

M. H. Hoffman, of Foursquare Pictures, left New York last week for an extended trip which will take him to early every one of the twenty-one exchanges of this organization. It is Mr.
Hoffman's fourth visit to the branches within the past four months.

"There is nothing like being on the ground and putting a shoulder to the wheel," said Mr. Hoffman prior to leaving. "I have always believed in this olicy; now that I have tried it continu-sously for several months, I have learned that it should be continued as frequently as my time will allow.

I am looking forward with the keenest interest to the success I know will come from the showings of 'The Eagle's Eye.' The last of February will bring its introductory chapters, other following March 7 and thereafter.

"Exhibitors from all parts of the country are enthusing over the first three episodes which are now being screened for them, and the number and quality of the contracts indicate that this is a serial that is to be seen by the greatest number of people who have ever viewed a serial.

"I am looking for splendid business, also, for 'The Cast-Off,' the six-part Thomas H. Irving feature in which Bessie Barriscale is the chief personality. I have said that I looked for a revival of business, and Foursquare indications are that it is close at hand."

POSE OF SHIRLEY MASON AND SCENES FROM "WEAVER OF DREAMS"
Edwin Thanhouser
Resigns Presidency
Of Film Corporation

Three Year Contract Has Expired and Film Company Head Seeks Rest

The directors of the Thanhouser Film Corporation, New Rochelle, N. Y., announce that on or about March 1, they will elect a president to succeed Edwin Thanhouser.

Several years ago, upon his return from Europe, Mr. Thanhouser agreed to take charge of the company he had originally founded, the death of Charles J. Hite having left it practically headless. It took considerable urging to gain his consent, for Mr. Thanhouser believed he was entitled to a rest after his long period of strenuous activity. Finally, however, he agreed to take the presidency for a period of three years, ending March 1, 1918, with the definite understanding that the arrangement would not be renewed, no matter what conditions might be then, for, as Mr. Thanhouser said, he wanted a chance to enjoy himself and film business and pleasure do NOT mix.

At the present day, as the result of Mr. Thanhouser's wise business management, the corporation's financial condition is unique in the annals of filmdom. With studios and laboratories in New Rochelle, and another glass studio in Jacksonville, Fla., both in up-to-date condition and free from debt, and a large cash capital accumulated in the banks, financial worries will not be among the problems that will vex the new president of the Thanhouser Film Corporation.

Edwin Thanhouser was the first theatrical manager to embark in the motion picture business, and he brought to the work a knowledge of artistic and dramatic values which made "Thanhouser Pictures" popular and successful.

Several flattering propositions have been made to Mr. Thanhouser to join big film interests, but Mr. Thanhouser is not inclined to remain in the motion picture field. There is a rumor, however, that he may consider one or two "big productions" as propositions along that line, worth while both from a financial and an artistic standpoint, have been made to him.

Physical Culture Co.

To Star Larkin in Another Production

"Zongar," starring George Larkin and produced by the Physical Culture Company, has been titled, reduced to five reels, and is now the object of an extensive advertising campaign by that company. It is the claim of the company that never have more thrills been incorporated in a five reel picture. It will be sold on the state right basis.

It is the intention of the Physical Culture Company to make another picture with the same star some time during the coming summer. In the meantime Mr. Larkin is considering an offer from a program corporation to star in a serial. Former pictures he has appeared in include "Trey of Hearts" and "Grant, Police Reporter."

"A Few Remarks" by an Observant Exhibitor

Frank Vanston, manager of the Temple Theatre, Elgin, Ill., has sent a letter to the Exhibitor's Herald which contains food for thought for other exhibitors. Mr. Vanston is an exhibitor of standing, and a successful one. He heads his communication "A Few Remarks" and the following conveys his views on a number of conditions in the industry:

"The only sure way to eliminate the censor is—make clean pictures. Your paper would do well to advocate such pictures. Your review service is a great help to the exhibitor. Also your censor cut-outs—get us more of them.

"In my opinion a picture which has more than five cut-outs should be condemned, as it is not fair to the public to exhibit such a film. This may be hard on the distributors and manufacturers, but it would teach them to make pictures that would not require cut-outs. A story in nine cases out of ten is disconnected by the cut-outs.

"As an example of this, 'Hell's Crater,' Universal, had twenty-five cut-outs, which caused confusion all the way through and left the picture without an ending. I think it is a shame to rent such a picture to the exhibitor and it is also a shame to take the people's money for such a film. The exhibitor has to take the slams from the public while the other fellow can sit in his office and say: 'Well, that's too bad.'

"Another joke—big stars—such a phrase! 'My mother took in washing, now I am a big star, ten thousand a week.' See these stars in person and you'll fall off the earth. The exhibitors are suckers to pay big star prices. Cut them out and they will get off their high horse. They don't help the little theatre one bit.

"Enclosed find one dollar for the Exhibitor's Herald for one year—a paper with a punch on every page."

To Hold Meetings But Once a Month

Installation of Officers Postponed by Illness of President-Elect

The Motion Picture Theatre Owners Association, Chicago branch of the American Exhibitors Association, will hold but one meeting a month in the future as the result of an action taken at the session of that body last Friday.

It was the opinion of the members that, inasmuch as most of them were affiliated with the booking club of that organization and in this way were constantly associated, one meeting a month would be sufficient to cover the business interests of the association.

Installation of officers was again postponed because of the continued illness of E. Thomas Beatty, president-elect.

Mr. Beatty, in a letter to Louis Frank, informed the latter that he was suffering from rheumatism and while he might be in Chicago for a couple of days the latter part of February intended to go to California for a sojourn of two months or more.

Routine business only was taken up at the short meeting, which was presided over by George Henry, vice-president-elect.

Sol L. Lesser Gets Raffles for West

Sol. L. Lesser, president of the All Star Features Distributors, Inc., has just concluded a contract for the purchase of "Raffles, the Amateur Cracksman," starring John Barrymore, for California, Arizona and Nevada.

Mr. Lesser reports that the picture had only been in his house one week and the first-run contract has been closed in San Francisco by Maurice Markowitz of the Strand Theatre and in Los Angeles by Mr. Kehrlein for his new Kinema Theatre, which has practically a 3,000 seating capacity.

TWO SCENES FROM "THE BELOVED TRAITOR"

MAE MARSH AND E. K. LINCOLN IN BIG SCENES FROM MISS MARSH'S FIFTH GOLDWYN PRODUCTION. (Goldwyn.)
William Russell Forms His Own Company
To Produce Features for Mutual Program Concluded Arrangements in New York Upon Expiration of His American Contract—Will Make “Big Outdoor Stuff” on West Coast

William Russell is to appear in a series of special productions made by his own company and distributed to the trade through the exchanges of the Mutual Film Corporation. This announcement is made by Mr. Russell from his Los Angeles office, in whose concern, the William Russell productions, Inc., Mr. Russell has just returned to the west coast after a sojourn of several weeks in New York, where he conducted various negotiations relating to the formation of his company and conferred with various distributing concerns and agencies. The studies of William Russell Productions, Inc., will be located in Southern California, centrally situated for the range of scenic settings necessary to the location of the Russell type of story with the “big outdoor stuff.” “My specials will be built on the biggest vehicles obtainable,” said Mr. Russell, “always chosen with a view to giving me the big chance at doing those things which seem to have had the largest share in making my following with the public. It seems probable now that my first vehicle will be a story by William Hamilton Osborne.

Special Writers Engaged

“While in New York I negotiated with a number of writers of the first rank, and shall have an interesting announcement recently in that connection. I am also hoping on from the east a special staff scenario writer who is going to live on the job with me. I am not at liberty yet to give out the names of the members of the staff, including the director, but there is a possibility that I may make changes in directors before we start filming story No. 1.”

“I am pleased to have concluded arrangements for distribution through the Mutual Film Corporation. Through my association with the American Film Company under my contract with that concern which expired some weeks ago I went before the picture public through the Mutual Film Corporation exchanges or the larger part of my screen career and I feel that there is important value to me in this connection. Also the constantly improving status of Mutual pictures and the large number of higher class theatres served by that concern takes the choice a desirable one for me.

Mutual’s Only Male Star

“I may also admit that the fact that Mutual is not now offering in competition the work of any other male star a fact of importance in arriving at my decision. I am sure that one of the reasons for the big success of Charles Chaplin during his connection with Mutual was the fact that he was without competition of any kind on his own releasing schedule. He had a better chance than ever before to stand out by himself. I have the same sort of opportunity in my life and drama now. Mutual will not have to sell me against anything else of a like character. “I have received one message which pleases me very much. It says: ‘Congratulations and best wishes for your new venture.’

“Samuel S. Hutchinson, President, American Film Company, Inc.” “I am decidedly proud of my long and successful connection with the American Film Company and that my pictures for that concern have paved the way for the bigger pictures to come.” Mr. Russell’s eastern representatives are in negotiation with a number of writers of high status for vehicles to be used in the Russell specials this year, including Charles LeRoy Edson, Sinclair Lewis, Rex Beach and others.

Doris Kenyon Rests
Before Taking Up
Own Productions

Doris Kenyon completed a year’s contract with Pathe last Friday and after the closing scene in a serial in which she has been starring had been finished, she motored to the railway station, where she boarded a train for Palm Beach. Miss Kenyon has worked steadily without a day’s rest since last June. With her mother she will spend two weeks at the Florida winter resort. Immediately upon her return, about March 10th, she will begin work at the head of her own company, De Luxe Pictures, Inc. in the screen version of Mary Roberts Rinehart’s celebrated story, “The Street of Seven Stars,” which ran serially in the Saturday Evening Post.

Here’s the Way
To Say Rivoli

When S. L. Rothafel, director-general of the Rivoli, New York’s newest and most beautiful photoplay theatre, was asked what the pronunciation of the Italian city as a moniker for the picture play house, he didn’t know the pronunciation of that same name would cause so much trouble.

Webster says Rivoli is pronounced Re-vo-ly (long “e” and long “o”), with the accent on the second syllable or the first syllable. But it was necessary to inaugurate a prize contest to settle it and the first prize was awarded last week to the pronouncer of the following:

Should anyone ask you in confidence, privily,
How to pronounce the new theatre, Rivoli?
Rippling, smilingly, answer him civilly:
“Rivoli—Why, it’s exactly like Tivoli.”
Here’s the second prize poem
Really, it’s Riv-o-lee, Reciting on Riv-o-ley:
Riv as in river
And also in know:
Li is not lie, but lee,
Rhyming with artistry,
Sympathy, courtesy,
Rivoli show.

Torpedoed “Tuscania” Shown in Gaumont-Mutual News Film

If anything was needed to convince our people, pacifists, pro-Germans, and others, that we are really engaged in a war which must be fought until Germany is thoroughly crippled, the torpedoing of the French steamer transport “Tuscania,” and the consequent death of more than a hundred of our soldiers more than supplied that need.

Through the enterprise of the Gaumont Company the public will get a last glimpse of the “Tuscania” in No. 5 of the Gaumont-Mutual Weekly, which was issued on Sunday, February 17.

This issue of the Weekly is replete with news subjects of absorbing interest. These range from war views taken abroad to pictures of current news in the United States, including many scenes which show how we are successfully meeting the coal shortage and providing against the possibility of a shortage of food.

Now that the extreme cold wave which lasted nearly two months is broken, the immense amount of snow and ice on the ground causes fears of disastrous flood conditions. One subject in this number of the Gaumont-Mutual Weekly is the large ice jam in the Ohio River near Cincinnati.

Preparations for war in the United States are not overlooked, and a crack bee line of cracking ice in January 1915 will be a really great action. It is the idea of many military experts that our cavalry will enable us to storm our way through to Berlin after we have passed the German trenches.
Goldwin Corp. Completes Arrangement for Australian and New Zealand Distribution

Harold Bolster, Special Representative, Signs Contracts With J. C. Williamson, Ltd., and New Zealand Picture Supplies, Ltd.

With the return of Harold Bolster from a special commission in the Antipodes, Goldwyn Pictures Corporation makes announcement of its entry into an important contract for all Goldwyn productions in Australia with J. C. Williamson Films, which is the cinema branch of the J. C. Williamson Ltd. the well-known theater circuit.

This contract was effected on behalf of Goldwyn by Mr. Bolster with Mr. F. W. Thring, managing director of J. C. Williamson Films, and means that Goldwyn productions at once gain entry into the Paramount, the Star and Victoria Theatres, the greatest houses in Melbourne, and the Art Theatre Royal, the biggest amusement institution of Sydney.

The first named theatre in each city will be the first run house of Goldwyn. The Williamson Pictures interests in Australia have handled "The Birth of a Nation" and "Intolerance" and the signing of their contract with Goldwyn marks the entrance of that organization into the active distribution field. Their contract covers all of the Commonwealth of Australia, which is the entire continent, and Tasmania as well.

Mr. Bolster on this same trip closed a contract of equal importance for its territory for the distribution of all Goldwyn productions in New Zeeland with the New Zealand Picture Supplies, Ltd., through Mr. Harry Hayward, chairman of the board of directors of that organization. This contract is inclusive, besides New Zealand, of the Samoan Islands, Fiji Islands and the Island of Tahiti.

Mr. Bolster's special service for the Goldwyn organization put him in contact with lands that to date are more closely affected by war conditions than the United States and are in almost perfectly new conditions in their amusement life. He found that these countries adjusted themselves to nearly all of the reactions caused by the World War. Theatrical and other amusement enterprises faced their crisis with a solid front and have emerged safely, public patronage and attendance being virtually fully restored.

"I am away from my personal observations in both Australia and New Zealand and my observation and investigations since my return to the United States," said Mr. Bolster, "that conditions in their application to amusement enterprises were much worse than they have been here. The American people will find, just as the Australians did, that the theatre is the one diversion and amusement which they will not consent to renounce. In Australia the public came back in even larger numbers than ever before and business and the general feeling of the various cities were stimulated instantly. This change in the tide is already much in evidence in the United States, where altered weather conditions are also hastening improvement throughout the colder northern states."

Mary Burton Star
Of Wholesome Film
Personally Appears

The drawing power of an actress in her home town is proverbial but when the star is a mere child and her father prominently known, the interest in her appearance is doubled.

Manager Foster of the Marion, Marion, Ohio, saw the advantage to be gained in exploiting Little Mary Burton, star in the Wholesome production, "Little Red Riding Hood," as James Burton, the father of Mary, is a commission merchant in Marion and Mary is known to hosts of children.

The Marion management will show this feature Washington's Birthday and the event has been thoroughly advertised in both the local papers and on billboards throughout the vicinity.

Arrangements have been made to have Mary Burton appear personally at the Marion Theater as an additional feature.

Producers to Place Films at Disposal Of the Government

This announcement was made by P. A. Powers, who has been appointed by the war department chairman of a committee representing the motion picture industry, which will co-operate with Raymond B. Fosdick, chairman of the committee on training camp activities of the war and navy departments.

The latest and best photoplays of all the principal companies will be shown at the various camps and training stations, Mr. Powers said.

Acts to Prevent Theft of Film

Customs House to Have 7 Hours for Examination of Exports

The stealing, duping and pirating of motion picture productions, along with their subsequent exportation to other countries, has long been one of the troublesome problems of the film industry. The National Association of the Motion Picture Industry now believes that this has hit upon a certain means of eliminating this menace.

The United States government has just ruled that all films consigned to foreign countries must be submitted to examination 72 hours before sailing time. This announcement of Collector of the Port of New York, Byron R. Newton, read:

"Any special article difficult of real examination on the pier, such as cameras, films, motion picture machinery, phonograph records, musical instruments, etc., must be submitted for examination at room 123, Customs House at least 72 hours before departure."

The National Association is arranging to furnish the Customs House authorities with official lists of all lost and stolen films and the proper concerns rightful controlling them. All films submitted for exportation will be checked up against these lists and stolen, duped or pirated productions will be quickly detected and believed.

Frederick H. Elliott, executive secretary of the National Association of Motion Picture Industry, issued the following letter to all producer and distributor members:

"After an investigation covering a period of several months, I believe we have found an effective means of putting a stop to the exporting of stolen prints.

"In a recent order issued by the Collector of the Port of New York, motion picture films for export must be submitted for examination at room 123, Customs House, at least 72 hours before departure. The matter has been taken with the proper officials who suggest that we file with them a list of all stolen films so that in inspecting any picture for export it will be easy to detect prints which have been stolen.

"We therefore, request that you with this office at once, a complete list of any of your productions which have been lost or stolen, giving the title, the players featured, release date and any other information which would be of assistance to the officials in detecting a similar crime in the future.

"Through this method we hope to see the producers and distributors thousands of dollars annually—relieve upon prompt cooperation in furnishing us information requested."
C. E. Shurtleff, General Sales Manager for Hodkinson Cooperates With Exhibitors

Former Select Salesman—Has Had Wide Experience—To Preach the Gospel of "A Fair Deal to All"

W. W. Hodkinson has engaged C. E. Shurtleff as general sales manager for Hodkinson Service." Mr. Shurtleff has been sales manager for Select Pictures for about two years, and now he is special representative for Pathe for the year.

Mr. Shurtleff has been in the motion picture business for years, first as a salesman for Select Pictures, then as a company representative for Pathe. He was in the motion picture business in Cleveland, and he successfully managed the offices of that company in Detroit and Cincinnati.

Shurtleff's experience and success in the motion picture business has gained him innumerable friends among exhibitors who know him for his scientific sales work, which has always been backed up by a square deal.

"It is not cleverness on the part of the salesman," said Mr. Shurtleff to a representative of the Herald, "to misrepresent a product, or to promise which cannot be fulfilled. It seems that many salesmen promise everything they can, when closing a contract with an exhibitor; promises which are impossible to keep, and by these methods they are fast killing the goose that lays the golden eggs, for, after all, the exhibitor is really the one great big factor in the industry that must succeed to make the industry a success."

Exhibitors, Mr. Shurtleff believes, have reached the limit of oppressive methods, their backs are against the wall, and that it is now time for the distributors to come to their aid. Further, he believes, that exhibitors are right now on the eve of coming into their own. The new Hodkinson cooperative plan for exhibitors, he declares, will revolutionize the picture industry and place it upon a sane, practical and profitable basis.

M. P. Exhibitors Discuss Direct Booking Plan

Motion picture exhibitors of New Jersey attended a meeting at the Robert Treat Hotel, Newark, N. J., on February 12, of the Independent Producers of the Producers & Exhibitors—Affiliated. The "producer to exhibitor direct sales plan" was presented by Messrs. Herbert Brenon, I. E. Chadwick and Louis E. Levine.

JULIA LIVINGSTONE

Opens New Offices

Julia Livingstone, personal representative for Mme. Olga Petrova and publicity representative for Comstock, Bilt & Gest musical attractions, "Oh Holy Lady! Holy Lady!" and "Leave It Jane," has removed from the Times building to the little green frame house, which used to be the home of Jenny Lind at 125 West 40th street. Miss Livingstone has converted the house into radio offices and Agnes Smith and Mrs. F. S. Smith, well known newspaper editors, will make their headquarters here.

Miss Livingstone is writing a series of biographies of the eight Petrova pictures which will appear in the April Photoplay Magazine, "The Life Mask" in the forthcoming issue of Photoplay World, and the fifth Petrova picture, the scenario of which is by George Middleton, will probably appear in the Photoplay Journal.
Motion Picture Industry Cooperates
With Government Supplying Camp Films

Committee Appointed to Work With Commission on Training Camp Activities—Pictures Furnished at Low Cost

The motion picture industry is now actively co-operating with the United States Commission on Training Camp Activities of the War and Navy Departments in supplying the cantonments with films, having been given complete handling of the service.

A subcommittee, numbering P. A. Powers, Universal Film Manufacturing Company, chairman; Adolph Zukor, Famous Players-Lasky Corporation; Ricord Gradwell, World Film Corporation; J. A. Berst, Pathe Exchange, Inc.; William Fox, Fox Film Corporation; Richard Rowland, Metro Pictures Corporation; S. F. Lydon, Triangle Pictures Corporation; J. R. Freuler, Mutual Film Corporation; Samuel Goldfish, Goldwyn Pictures Corporation; George Kleine, General Film Corporation; Albert Smith, Vitagraph Company; C. G. Cocks, advisory secretary, National Board of Review, and W. D. McGuire, executive secretary, National Board of Review, has been named at the suggestion of Raymond B. Fosdick, chairman of the United States Commission.

The Chairman's Letter

Mr. Fosdick's letter to Mr. Powers, asking for co-operation of the industry follows:

"I have written to the gentlemen whose names are attached, asking them to serve on a committee to co-operate with the Commissions on Training Camp Activities of the War and Navy Departments in facilitating the use of motion pictures in the various camps and training stations. If agreeable to you, I should like you to serve as Chairman of that committee.

"From the conference that you have had with Mr. Hammer from me, and from our correspondence, you are aware of the Commission's attitude with respect to the use of motion pictures. Only 90 minutes will be the time you will accept the Chairmanship of this subcommittee. Mr. Hammer will represent the Commission in this connection, and will cordially offer you the possibility of making effective such assistance as the committee is able to give.

"You will be notified promptly of the acceptance of these who have been invited to serve so that a meeting may be called at an early date.

(Signed) Raymond B. Fosdick, Chairman."

Members of this committee met with Lee F. Hamner, representing the commission, at the Hotel Knickerbocker, New York, on February 11.

"After considerable discussion as to the ways and means of co-operating with the commission, it was agreed that a schedule of prices be drawn up, based on the dates of release. The schedule will be graduated from a maximum figure and the list will include all films of a certain age, on which the only charge will be the actual exchange charge based on the cost and expense of handling.

P. A. Powers, Chairman of the Motion Picture War Department Committee, representing the National Association in all matters pertaining to the War Department, was instructed to secure schedules at present in vogue with the various distributing companies as to what they are charging the different bodies operating in the cantonments at the present time.

Uniform Schedule Adopted

After securing this the committee will meet and decide upon a uniform schedule for all pictures to be used by the various activities in the cantonments. The plan outlined will not discriminate against any producer, the selection of the pictures being in the hands of the various secretaries, chaplins, etc., in the different cantonments. It will place in the small training camps pictures available at practically nothing, thus bringing amusement and recreation otherwise out of the reach of the soldiers stationed at these places. Moreover, it places the service of all cantonments completely in the hands of the industry, to be handled entirely by motion picture men.

The whole industry is responding to Mr. Powers' appeal for a thorough-going patriotic co-operation. The National Association of the Motion Picture Industry is putting every ounce of its united strength behind the committee. The National Board of Review has kindly consented to co-operate in the selection of films and in the preparing of the list of films which will be particularly suitable for exhibition in the various cantonments.

Furnishing films to the training camps and cantonments is the latest opportunity of the industry to do its bit for Uncle Sam. President Wilson's faith in the great power of the screen has been proven in a number of different ways since the United States entered the war. The entire industry worked whole-heartedly in swinging over the two Liberty Loans, it has, and still is, doing everything in its power to aid the Food Administration; it is pushing the war saving stamp drive; now it will bring amusement to the nation's crusaders for democracy.

Famous Players Corp.

Presents Rothapfel With Bronze Tablet

A handsome bronze tablet dedicated to S. L. Rothapfel, director of the Rivoli theatre, New York, was unveiled in the lobby of that theatre on Saturday, February 16.

The bronze is the work of Signor Giuseppe Moretti, the Italian sculptor, and was presented to Mr. Rothapfel by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation. It is cast in solid bronze and measures 28 inches by 48 inches and is placed on the wall of the lobby.

The upper half of the tablet bears a portrait of Mr. Rothapfel and the lower panel shows at the left a figure representing History leaning on the earth as she inscribes her records. At the right is a symbolic figure representing Motion Pictures, with lens and reel of film. A shaft of light shines upon the tablet illuminating it for History. The spirit of Music floats above the figure.

Many producers and exhibitors, as well as representatives of the trade press, were present at the unveiling. Willia m A. Brady gave a brief address, as president of the N. A. M. P. I., and Jesse Lasky presented the tablet to Mr. Rothapfel. Those present were:

Universal Bans Dollar Mark

In Advertising and Publicity

Information Concerning Cost of Production and Salaries Paid to Stars Not to Be Given

Either to Trade or Public

A policy which marks a radical departure from the generally accepted method of advertising and publicizing motion pictures, has just been put into effect by the Universal Film Manufacturing Company. According to instructions just issued by Carl Laemmlle, head of that organization, the public is to be informed hereafter as to the reduction cost of any of its subjects, or any information concerning the salaries paid to the players on that company's roster be given out.

This policy was adopted following a conference in which the executives of Universal took part. It was felt that to the flamboyant and bawdy methods in advertising costly productions and the salaries paid to stars, the industry in general owes the arious millstones now weighing it down. A field which ranks fifth or sixth in point of importance deserves advertising and publicity treatment less suggestive of the circus side-show, and more in keeping with its dignified position, say the Universal officials.

Advertising executives are acutely aware of the general tendency to shout from the house-top the cost of a production or a star, which carries with it the suggestion of finding it necessary to twist its moustache or stroke his chin, with his ering hand. Worse than this, it is contended, is the invasion of the unscrupulous politician to come in and get some of the easy money he hears so much about. The only way to keep the policy in force as Universal is concerned, is to occur when a production of unusual merit is produced at a low cost.

Dollar Mark Out

"From this day on, the dollar mark will find no resting place in Universal advertisements or publicity stories," said the United executives concerning the organization's new policy. "Neither the general public, nor the trade will now in the future whether any of our productions cost one hundred dollars, or one million dollars, to make. Nor will information concerning the salaries received by our stars be given out.

"If a student of this industry were to seek the fundamental causes of the one hundred and one problems that now beset both manufacturer and exhibitor, he would find, after delving deep enough, that they are the wild and foolish stories that have been allowed to be told concerning the money thrown away on features and players.

"Why has the question 'How much money is lost in wild-cat film companies during the last few years? Why have 500 normally sane manufacturers lugged in the pictures dollars upon spectacular productions which have proved non-profitable? Why have producers hotly competitive with each other in bidding up salaries and trying to aid to players of mediocre ability?"

"Gold Brick" Arguments

"These questions almost themselves! The people ignorant of film conditions were induced to invest their money in swindle organizations because the people in the business so glibly spoke in terms of hundreds of thousands of dollars. Naturally, film people wouldn't spend so much money if they didn't make more—and so the old gold brick arguments got in their fine work once more.

"One of the amusing things to me, is the manner in which film manufacturers have succeeded in fooling each other. A producer who puts out a feature costing, say, $50,000, advertised it as being a $100,000 feature. A competitor, half disbeliefing and still inclined to give the statement a measure of credence, promptly went the former up the better—and after producing a picture costing $60,000, advertised it as a $150,000 feature—and so the merry game of cost inflation was started.

"The star situation was much the same. I know of one player who got $150 a week from Universal—and wasn't worth more. A manufacturer who had heard of her actually offered the girl $800. Did we tell her? You bet we did! She never made money for us and we figured that at $800 a week she would make still less for our company. So was a matter of pure competitive policy, we did everything we could to help her break her contract with us. The last I heard of her she was in a picture from a third organization and I suspect that she is no longer with the second because they discovered that we knew all along about her box office worth.

Dignity Film Advertising

"Since we are so fond of talking about the size of our industry, why not advertise our business in keeping with our size and dignity. Too often, when one of us produces a picture that's a trifling costly, he acts like the shrinking violet, who owning a new diamond ring, finds it imperative to constantly have his hand before his face. After all, it's not money that the public wants to see in a picture. If they did, a film showing the interior of the U. S. Treasury would be a terrific hit. It's the story so why not tell about it in our advertisements and general publicity?

"Right now, the industry is paying any number of unwarranted imposters, placed upon it by little local politicians. You don't have to be a newspaper publisher to pay the municipal authorities for permission to do business. You don't hear it of restaurant owners, haberdashers, grocers, who are doing it either. We're paying for this privilege, not once, but several times, and I firmly believe it to be due to the fact that our megaphone has been used for telling about the financial end of the business.

have attracted this undesirable attention.

"There will be just one exception so far as our policy is concerned," concluded Mr. Laemmlle. "The only time we will speak of production costs in the future, will be when we desire to inform exhibitors, through the medium of the trade papers, of the low cost of an unusual picture. Then we will holler long and loud!"

New Exchange Opened

By Select Pictures

In order better to take care of its business in that territory, Select Pictures Corporation has just opened a new exchange in New Orleans. This makes the total number of Select branches throughout the United States proper twenty-one.

The New Orleans branch has been placed under the management of John S. Taylor, who was formerly associated with Branch Manager C. C. Ezell in Select's Dallas Exchange. The new Select branch will take care of the states of Mississippi and Louisiana, which heretofore had been served from the Atlanta branch under Manager Walter J. Price and the Dallas branch under Mr. Ezell.

A full equipment of prints on all Select attractions published has been furnished the New Orleans branch, and full stocks of lithographs, cuts, lobby displays, and other advertising material accessories, have been shipped to Mr. Taylor.

The New Orleans branch is located at 715 Poydras street, on which premises a long term lease has been secured by Select. Equipment has been installed in the set of offices comprising Mr. Taylor's exchange."
Five Directors and Companies Busy
On Pathe Plays in Eastern Studios

During the past week five directors and their companies were busy on Pathe pictures at the Astra studios at Jersey City, according to a recent report.

George Fitzmaurice is doing “The Grel Mystery” by Ouida Berge, starring Irene Castle, a Pathe player.

Willis Parker is directing the final scenes of “The Yellow Ticket,” starring Fannie Ward, with a cast which includes Milton Sills, Warner Oland, Armand Kalisz and Helene Chadwick in important roles. In this picture Miss Ward appears in a makeup entirely different from anything she has been seen in before, the role of a Russian peasant. The picture contains some beautiful exterior snow scenes, it is reported, and also Director Parke and Cameraman Percy Hildurn have produced a series of beautiful lighting effects and interior settings.

George B. Seitz is at work on the serial, “The House of Hate,” starring Pearl White with Antonio Moreno, and including in the cast Paul Clerget, the French pantomimist; Peggy Shaynor and John Web Dilllon. Thrills are numerous, as is reported, and it will be published March 3.

Albert Parker has just finished “Anaxing Bill,” a comedy drama, starring Gladys Hulette and Creighton Hale, and is getting ready for another production, while Fred Wright has taken these companies for the direction of Fred Jackson’s play, “For Sale.”

G. K. Spoor Feature “A Pair of Sixes”
Is Now Completed

“A Pair of Sixes” is now in the cutting room and the subtitles are being designed. This is Taylor Holmes newly completed George K. Spoor feature, and is an adaptation of the well known stage play by Edward Peple.

“A Pair of Sixes” moves rapidly and gives Mr. Holmes ample opportunity to show some rapid action comedy. Mr. Holmes expressed himself as pleased with the course of his new leading lady, Alice Mann.

Bookings on “Ruggles of Red Gap,” due for release soon, are already coming in to the offices. “Uneasy Money,” is proving a paying attraction to exhibitors, judging from reports.

Alice Brady Makes Personal Appearance
At 31 Loew Theatres

Alice Brady has been giving a shining example of “how to live on twenty-four hours a day” ever since she consented to oblige Loew Theater patrons by appearing in person at theaters where her pictures are being exhibited.

Miss Brady began a whirl around the circle by appearing at the Loew house in Providence, R. I., last Monday night, February 11. In Providence, Mayor Gainor received the popular little actress upon her appearance at the Emery theatre, where Miss Brady delighted the crowd with a monologue followed by a song revue.

After her talk at the Emery, Miss Brady sang “Eyes of Gray” and “Over There,” and as her audience still clamored, she again obliged with “Tinmy Boy.” The theater had been packed during the hour of her appearance, and over five thousand people were unable to gain admission.

Returning to New York Miss Brady spent busy days at the studio Tuesday and Wednesday, and on Wednesday night she appeared at the Loew Theater in New Rochelle where “Woman and Wife,” the second of her Select Pictures, was being previewed.

Friday found Miss Brady at the Loew Theater in Newark, N. J., “Woman and Wife” again being the picture on the bill.

During the week of February 18 Miss Brady appeared in twenty-eight of the Marcus Loew theaters in Greater New York within five nights. This meant fast traveling and hard work, but Miss Brady proved equal to it and took keen pleasure in the tour.

Jaxon Serial Passed
By the Government
Without a Change

The governmental stamp of approval has been given “A Daughter of Uncle Sam,” the Jaxon serial, as the result of the action of the Committee on Public Information, in passing the early episodes of the serial. No changes were made, it is reported, by the members of the Division of Pictures which reviewed the production, according to word received by General Film Company.

Because the governmental stamp of the serial, the governmental bureau has been much interested in reviewing “A Daughter of Uncle Sam.” The popular manner in which the serial has been produced is indicated by the act of the committee in giving its unqualified approval.

As rapidly as the concluding chapters of the feature are edited and titled they will be shown in Washington for the benefit of the Committee on Public Information, which is greatly interested in following the course of the exposure of German spy plots as unfolded in the serial.

The manner in which “A Daughter of Uncle Sam” tears aside the mask which has hidden the activities of German agents of destruction in the United States makes it one of the most important war time features produced in many months. As each of the twelve one- reel episodes of “A Daughter of Uncle Sam” features one or more phases of the work of German spies in this country, exhibitors are finding that it has tremendous advertising value which many of them are putting to use for their own advantage. The stamp of approval given the serial by the government should also add to its drawing powers.

Barbara Castleton Signs Long Contract
With World Film

Barbara Castleton has signed a long-term contract with World-Pictures. The association of Miss Castleton with World-Pictures is but a continuation, it is announced, of the policy of the company to star only those actors and actresses possessing a popularity of assured box office value. Miss Castleton joins a strange group of pictures of which her reputation is said to be derived from some of the most successful independent productions, and her regular appearance on the World Pictures roster, constantly exerts a tremendous advertising value which many of them are putting to use for their own advantage. The stamp of approval given the serial by the government should also add to its drawing powers.

P. N. Brinch Becomes Hodkinson’s Assistant

P. N. Brinch, who has been sales manager of the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation since the inception of that organization several months ago, has been appointed to the president.

Mr. Brinch has been associated with the motion picture industry since 1909 when he joined the sales forces of Pathé. He later became the traveling representative for the General Film Company and came into New York as office manager for Mutual. In 1915 he went with N. H. Wright, where he was the assistant general manager.

When W. W. Hodkinson became affiliated with Triangle he made Mr. Brinch his assistant. The most important work he had to do was he in this capacity that at the forming of the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation, Mr. Hodkinson offered him the sales manager position.

Mr. Brinch will be succeeded by C. Shurtleff.

Sawyer and Lubin
Fit Up Office for Out of Town Buyers

Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin have rented a special room adjoining their suite of offices in New York which is to be fitted up especially for the convenience and use of visiting film men and out of town rate right buyers. The room will contain all of the appointments necessary or the conducting of business and messrs. Sawyer and Lubin will maintain a private stenographer to be used by the sitting feature purchasers for the handling of their correspondence, writing of contracts and the other details which enter into the buying of state right pictures.

Complete information relative to hotels, theaters, and the location of the various film offices in New York City will be at the disposal of the different out of town exchangers.

As a complement to their “out of town room” the two executives of General Enterprises, Inc., have arranged for the construction of a projection room adjoining their offices which is to be used at only for the screening of their particular feature films but will be at the disposal of the different visiting state right buyers who, of necessity, must witness the productions of various film companies during their stay in New York. In order to lend the proper atmosphere for the projection of the General Enterprises, Inc., state right features, which include “The Warrior,” “Mother,” “The Tree” and “The Crucible of Life,” Sawyer and Lubin have placed a piano in the screening room. This may also be used for the interpretation of the various musical cue sheets which accompany the average state right feature, in order that the buyer may judge of their value.

Paralta Moves to New Headquarters

The offices of Paralta Plays, Inc., are being moved from the Godfrey Building, 729 Seventh avenue, New York, to a new building at 8 West Forty-eighth street, which is near the corner of Fifth avenue. Paralta has been located in the old quarters since the inception of the organization, but due to the extensive increase in the company’s production plans and activities and the continual enlargement of the personal, the quarters were out-grown.

Paralta Plays has taken the entire top floor of the new building and a private projection room and film vault are being erected on the roof. It is expected that the new quarters will be ready for occupancy within a week.

World Puts in Effect Daylight Saving Plan

Besting Congress to it in the saving of daylight, a new working schedule will go into effect at the studio of World Pictures on the first of March. This schedule provides for the beginning of work each day at the studio one hour earlier than is now the case. Instead of beginning work at 9 o’clock, the studio will begin to hum with activity at 8 o’clock—this change being made for the reason that it gives the studio workers an additional hour of daylight in which to work, thereby cutting off an hour in the evening in which lights would otherwise be burned.

Stanley Mastbaum and Booking Company Charged With Violating Sherman Law

Some Amusement Company Files Bill in U. S. District Court of Philadelphia Asking Injunction to Restrain Further "Illegal Methods"

The beginning of a series of legal actions against all film exchanges having a working agreement with the Stanley Booking Company of Philadelphia was put under way this week when Stanley Mastbaum, the booking company, Metro Pictures Corporation of New York and the Metro Pictures Exchange of Pennsylvania were accused of forming an illegal combination in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act in a bill filed in the United States District Court by the Some Amusement Company.

According to the allegations in the bill the defendants have formed a local "movie trust" and are using illegal methods and threats against independent exhibitors who refuse to enter into contracts with them.

While the Some Company is the complainant in the case, it is charged in theatres in this city, Baltimore, Washington, Atlantic City and nearby cities, which are not under the control of the Stanley Company, are experiencing annoyances and embarrassments because they have not contracted with the Stanley Company for their pictures.

Charge Price Advance

The Some Company, which operates the Locust Theatre, Fifty-second and Locust streets, and other motion picture theatres, exchanges and exchanges the picture exchange, had a direct contract with the Metro companies to exhibit their feature films. In December this contract was canceled and a short time thereafter, W. W. Hodkinson, Mastbaum informed the Some Company that he had become owner of part of the stock of the Metro companies and that in the future the booking of the productions would be under the control of the Stanley Company.

It is further recited in the complaint that Mastbaum and the Stanley Booking Corporation had previously endeavored to force the officers and stockholders of the companies operated by the Some Company to join the booking combination on threat to put them out of business.

Wants Complete Control

The Stanley Company is also making a vigorous effort, it is charged, to obtain complete control of the booking privileges and to this end has gone so far as to slander the various officers of the complaint company, and has tampered with its employees, inducing them to accept employment with the booking company.

So confident has the Stanley Company become, it is asserted, that it was publicly stated that within three months it will be impossible for motion-picture houses to get any attractions except through their agency and that the Some Company will be forced to close its theatres unless it agrees to their terms.

The acquisition by Mastbaum of part of the stock of the Some Company was solely for the purpose of gaining control of the productions and bookings, it is alleged.

The court is asked to compel Mastbaum and the Stanley Company to relinquish their stock holdings in the Metro corporations because such interests, and the way they are being used, violate the Sherman act.

Each defendant was also asked for to restrain the defendants from refusing to deal, sell to and lease to the complainant Metro productions, and also to restrain defendants and other alleged illegal methods.

No date has been set for a hearing in the case.

Paralta Denies "Change in Plans of Distribution"

Rumor has gone out through certain parts of the country to the effect that Paralta Plays will be available in the near future through the Pathé exchange without foundation, Paralta announces.

Arrangements were consummated some time ago for the distribution of Paralta Plays through the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation, which is booking Paralta Plays through the "Hodkinson Service," using the offices of the General Film Company's exchange.

"There is positively no thought of changing the method of distribution but Paralta Plays and the co-operative tie-in which is being effected at the present time between W. W. Hodkinson and the progressive exhibitors throughout the country, promises to be the epoch marking achievement of the industry," reads a part of the denial. "It is possible that this rumor started owing to the fact that Pathé is using a part of the extensive studios owned by Paralta in Los Angeles." Paralta Plays at the present time are publishing through the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation, twenty-four productions a year. A large portion of the plant is not being utilized by Paralta at the present time and is available for other producers. Many producers, it is said, have sought to take advantage of this opportunity and at the present time Pathé is using part of the Paralta studios and also Selznick Pictures, Inc., and the Mastercraft Photo-Play Corp. These producing companies have no connection with Paralta in any way whatever other than lessees in any way the Paralta stages. The productions are made under the direction of separate organizations.

There has never been any consideration of these various producers combining in any way, it is declared, and each will have its own distributing organizations which will be independent of the others.

Local Campaign Book on "The Eagle's Eye" Issued by Whartons

An intensive advertising campaign for local purposes in cooperation with the exhibitor, has been arranged for "The Eagle's Eye," the twenty-episode exposé of the plottings of the Imperial German government in this country, written by W. F. Hodkinson, recently retired chief of the United States Secret Service.

The Campaign Book for "The Eagle's Eye," which made its appearance this in this section a campaign in detail, is as comprehensive for the local field as most noted campaigns have been in the national field. A series of cleverly worded newspaper advertisements, heralds, slides, and lobby displays have linked up "The Eagle's Eye" with the national publicity which has already been given to its prominent author and his subject.

Six single column cuts for newspaper insertion, or for use as "throwaways," constitute the beginning of the local campaign. These cuts are designed to catch the eye of the public, and are so closely connected with advertising to follow that they constitute a preliminary campaign to the actual campaign at a very small cost. Each of these cuts is most effective. One of them depicts the medal which was distributed throughout Germany by the "Eagle's Eye" campaign and the sinking of the Lusitania. It is so hideous in design and so historical in its value, that the advertising for the first episode, which is based upon the story, is in effect, a prelude to the publishing of the serial as a whole and of each separate episode. Such titles as "The Song of Hate," "The Destruction of the Atlantic Fleet," "The Crime of the Ages," (a picture of the sinking of the Lusitania) and others of eye-compelling interest, feature each cut, followed by copy emphasizing the authenticity of the facts shown by the picture, attested by the authorship of the serial.

It is when the book reaches the part of the advertising over which the exhibitor himself has absolute control that the campaign strikes its unusual note. The banners, heralds, slides, lobby displays and portraits, all are departure from the ordinary in this line. The banner is made of especially heavy waterproofed canvas and is prepared to stand twenty weeks of any kind of weather, and look bright and new at the end.

Novelty stunts of various kinds are suggested for lobby or store window display of the book. Holographic autographs of unusual interest, with methods for duplicating them at slight expense, with a detailed description of how they can be incorporated into the advertising campaign of the book. Ciphers which were used by the Imperial German agents, which can be duplicated on any typewriter, are also incorporated.

“The Cast-Off” is a production that is splendid from all standpoints. The plot, though somewhat trite, has been handled in a most pleasing fashion and in a manner which should prove enjoyable entertainment to picture patrons. Bessie Barriscale, who has the leading role, plays her part with infinite skill. Her work is always a joy. Howard Hickman gives her splendid support and Jack Livingston handled the heavy role to advantage. The direction is by Raymond B. West.

The story: Pansy May, cheated by Guy Henley, in her youth, decides to make him pay, when, after a few years she becomes a renowned actress and Guy asks permission to pay her out. Doctor Thorpe, who has made her acquaintance during a period when she appeared at his hospital for crippled children to entertain them, takes Pansy to Guy’s home and shows her how he will destroy the honesty of a young child by accepting Guy’s attentions. “Ruggles of Red Gap” gained a great deal of fame as a story in the Saturday Evening Post and the fact that a popular story has been picturized by a company which knows how, with popular star in the lead, should mean much to exhibitors. In its seven reels there is plenty of wholesome comedy, a good story and enough of wonderful Arizona scenery to make it long remembered. There is a large and well balanced cast supporting Mr. Holmes, including Virginia Valli, Frederick Burton (who in the role of Cousin Egbert, proved himself a true comedian), Edna Phillips, Rodney La Rocque and Lilian Drew. The direction is by L. C. Windom.

The story: The American family of Jeff Tuttle, visiting England, win from Honorable George Ruggles that gentleman’s valet in a game of cards. Ruggles is established in the Tuttle home as valet to Cousin Egbert, a true Westerner. In America Ruggles is informed every man is on an equal footing. When he meets the Widow Judson, Ruggles realizes it is time to establish himself in some sort of business in which he can earn sufficient money to support himself and a wife. He establishes a restaurant in Red Gap and Mrs. Judson is made “boss” of the kitchen. The final result is Mrs. Judson becomes Mrs. Ruggles.

“The Other Man” is a disappointing subject, and one not saved by Harry Morey’s acting. Mr. Morey tries hard to make the story convincing, but it does not ring true. In his efforts he is given good support by Florence Deshon and Grace Darmond. The story concerns a busy doctor who is forced to neglect his butterfly wife. His wife proves untrue, he sinks to the life in the slums and is rescued by a beautiful girl.

The story: John Stedman, prominent physician, loses interest in life when his wife runs away with another man. He goes to the slums to live, where he meets Dorothy Harmon, a wealthy girl, who is living in the slums on a wager. The two are attracted and when Dorothy wins her bet she gives the money to Stedman, whom she has known under the name of Martin West, to re-establish his practice. Again, under the name of Stedman, he becomes prominent and wins Dorothy. When he learns that Dorothy still loves Martin West he goes back to the slums, meets Dorothy, and under the names of Martin West and Mary Jones they are married. Taking for its theme the activities of Morgan’s raiders during the Civil war and combining with this a pleasant love story “Morgan’s Raiders” comes up to the average picture in point of entertainment. Violet Mersereau acquits herself creditably and is ably supported. Many bits of good scenic effects were gleaned by the camera. The drama was written and produced by Willfred Lucas and Bess Meredith.

The story: When the war broke out Betsy Dawley lived in the mountains of Kentucky with her father. As the news of the great struggle filtered through to these people months after the war had begun, her father joined Morgan’s raiders. Betsy dons male attire and joins the raiders. In this capacity she meets Colonel John Davidson of the Yankee forces. Her father is wounded and is brought to his father’s home. His presence is discovered and Colonel Davidson demands to search the house. In aiding her father to escape, Betsy shoots the Yankee officer. Later, however, he saves her from insult at the hands of an overseer and her hatred turns to love.

"Loaded Dice" is distinctly a Frank Keenan production. And that master of the art of portraying powerful roles discharged his duty as only Keenan could. It is the story of a man, iron-willed, who stopped at nothing, not even murder, to attain his ends. Yet in his makeup there was the one weakness. He had gambled his life on the fallacy that there is no God and his knowledge that he had lost and that there was a God to whom he was accountable for his life. It is a wonderful production, gripping in its forcefulness, with a strong moral.

The story: Richard Gordon, intimate with Rose Ashton, repeatedly casts aside her plea of marriage until such time as he has attained his ends. In his mad rush for riches he arranges a compromise in which a young millionaire and Rose are concerned and with the rush money buys his way into a corner of the food market. Later he is forced to murder the millionaire, who has discovered the hoax. Ann Holton is his next victim. He feels compelled to snuff out her life because she has become troublesome. He is elected governor of the state. But a man who lived opposite Ann saw him there on the night of the murder and threatens him. He goes to his apartments intent on quieting this disturber. But a confederate of the man is the quicker with the revolver and Gordon is fatally wounded. On his deathbed he is forced to confess to Rose that his atheism is wrong; that there is a God to whom he must account and dies with a prayer on his lips.

A most charming colorful production is "A Weaver of Dreams" starring the petite Viola Dana. The role of Judith Sylvester is one of the best that has been given this little star in a long time and she handles it advantageously. The entire cast bespeaks careful selection, the settings are splendid and photography excellent. There is a touch of pathos throughout the narrative and while one's sympathy is with little Judith, who at the close of the story is left alone, still the sad ending does not have a depressing effect. It is a production replete with entertaining qualities and proved a successful attraction at the Orpheum Theatre, Chicago, where it was reviewed last week.

Russell Simpson, Clifford Bruce, Mildred Harris, Clarissa Selwyn and Russell Simpson are in the supporting cast. The direction is by John H. Collins and the story was adapted from Myrtle Reed's popular novel.

The story: Judith Sylvester and Carter Keith are looking forward to their wedding day. Shortly before that time Carter meets Marjorie Gordon and realizes that he does not love Judith. When the truth dawns upon Judith, though heartbroken, she breaks her engagement with Carter that he might marry Marjorie. Judith's aunt, an invalid for years, with whom Judith has been residing, learns that the one man she has always loved, whose name she has never learned, still remem- bers only her. So she leaves Judith alone while she goes to answer the call of love.

"Broken Ties" is a melodrama dealing with the trials and tribulations of married life, featuring June Elvidge and Montagu Love. There is nothing unusual about the production to lift it above the average. The direction has been fairly well handled and there are a number of commendable sunlit effects. The settings are artistic and the photography is fine. June Elvidge, pretty and well gowned as usual, is pleasing in her role of the neglected wife; Montagu Love, as the busy husband, is cast in a strong part, and Arthur Ashley as the "other man" gives his usual good characterization. Pinna Nesbit is excellent as the girl who hates the colored blood which flows through her veins and Kate Lester makes a fine proud mother. The direction is by Arthur Ashley.

A SCENE FROM "BROKEN TIES," WITH JUNE ELVIDGE, MONTAGU LOVE AND ARTHUR ASHLEY IN LEADING ROLES. (World.)

The story: Henry Hasbrook is murdered and his nephew, Arnold Curtis, is held for the murder. Arnold, who had been dining with Marcia Fleming, assumes the guilt rather than bring Marcia's name into the case. Investigation by Fleming, Arnold's attorney, discloses the fact that Arnold was dining with Marcia. Mrs. Fleming, seeing Marcia and Arnold leave and believing them to be dining at Arnold's apartment goes there and touches the back of the murdered man. She gets blood on her coat and the next morning buries it. Her act is witnessed by Marcia and when John Fleming forces his wife to come before the district attorney she tells him of his mother's act. At the trial Corinne La Force, ward of Hasbrook and fiancee of Arnold, confesses to the murder of Hasbrook because he prevented Arnold seeing her.

Theda Bara in
"THE FORBIDDEN PATH"
Fox drama; six parts; published February 3

As a whole: Well done
Story: Interesting
Star: Fine
Support: Ample
Settings: Picture perfect
Photography: Very good

There is every reason to believe that "The Forbidden Path" will prove as interesting everywhere as it did to patrons of Chicago's Orpheum Theatre, where it was shown last week. The plot, while not exactly new, has been very well worked out in the present instance. The ending is perhaps a little in doubt, but one feels that Nellie at last finds solace in Felix Benavente, her artist friend.

Miss Bara is cast in a likeable role, that of Nellie Lynde, and handles it in excellent fashion. Sidney Mason is pleasing as Felix Benavente, and Charles Henry Smith is well chosen as Robert Sinclair. Walter Law, as the stern father, gives a powerful characterization. Other members of the cast are Florence Martin and Wynne Hope Allen. The direction is by J. Gordon Edwards.

The story: While posing for Felix Benavente, Nellie Lynde, a true Madonna type, unaware of the wiles of men, meets Robert Sinclair, and believing him sincere, accepts his attentions. However, when he is unwelcome to her, she sinks to the lowest depths, where she is rescued by Felix in search of a model to represent the end of the path. The appearance of Sinclair and fiancee at the studio brings a desire for revenge and she forces Sinclair to establish her in an apartment and supply her every demand for money. To do this Sinclair is forced to steal, and with this evidence, Nellie makes him marry her. Sinclair tries to kill her, but on the morning of her wedding she comes to the church and confesses everything. Sinclair goes away in disgust and Felix goes to the comfort of Nellie.

Story: Suggestive
Star: Good

This is an adaptation by Edward Sheldon of Suderman's play, but we doubt if the famous German novelist would recognize this sentimental, distorted version in five reels as his brain child. It is just another poor picture added to an already long list of poor photoplays. Followers of Elsie Ferguson's work will be disappointed in the role in which she is cast in the present instance, though she handles it as well as could be expected. Crawford Kent as the lover, Cecil Fletcher as Bennett, Frank Losee as the blackmailer and Robert Cummins as the old uncle, give adequate support. The picture was carefully directed by the late Joseph Kaufman.

The story: Ever on the alert for happiness, Lily Kardos marries Daniel Calkins and believes she has at last found her "song of songs." But when Daniel drives her out of the house because he suspects Dick Laird of undue attentions, Lily accepts the hospitality of Dick's apartment. She meets Stephen Bennett and their love is mutual. However, through Stephen's uncle he is shown the other side of Lily. Disappointed, but still loving her, he asks her to become his wife, but realizing just what she is she refuses and consents to become the wife of Dick Laird, and finds a small measure of the happiness she so eagerly sought.

June Caprice Begins New Fox Feature

June Caprice began work last week on a new William Fox production which bears the working title of "When All's Fair." The picture is being made at the new Fox studio, formerly the Victor, Forty-third Street and Twelfth Avenue, New York. The story was written by Stephen Fox, a well known magazine writer, and the work is under the direction of Harry Millarde.

Miss Caprice's company includes Bernard Thornton, who also played opposite her in "The Heart of Romance," and Pell Trenton, Lola May and Charles Gotthold. Part of the scenes of the production are laid in the South and it is expected that the company will leave the city within a few days to take these.

"THE MIDNIGHT TRAIL"
American-Mutual comedy-drama; five parts; published February 23

As a whole: Entertaining
Story: Good

Photography: Good

Another one of the comedy-dramas in which William Russell has done so well and, although the story hasn't quite as good comedy as previous ones, it is an interesting tale that is told in "The Midnight Trail" and should prove entertaining to admirers of the star, as well as to those who have not followed all his pictures. In the supporting cast appear Francella Billington, Harvey Clark, whose Jasper Stride is a mighty funny old butler; Carl Stockdale, Sydney Dane, Jerome Shetler and Clarence Burton.

The story: Jack Woodford, amateur sleuth, is anxious to further his acquaintance with Alice Moreland and when he learns that jewels have been stolen from her father, he becomes an impostor in order to further his own ends and show just how much of a detective he is. He finds that Alice is a somnambulist and in her wanderings has taken the jewels and secreted them. In order to divert suspicion from her he endeavors to return them, but is discovered by Moreland's crooked secretary, who condemns Woodford as a thief when the real detective arrives on the scene. Woodford is freed and apprehends the secretary in the act of taking the jewels from the hiding place where Alice had put them. This, coupled with the fact that he loves Alice, gives the picture a happy ending.

Pauline Frederick in
"MADAME JEALOUSY"
 Paramount drama; five parts; published February 4

As a whole: Unappealing Story: Poor
Star: Low
Support: Suitible
Settings: Suitable

Allegorical plays have almost always been out of the question on the screen and this one is decidedly lacking in appeal. Pauline Frederick is no excuse for "Madame Jealousy" and it is doubtful if it will prove a popular offering anywhere. It will take a great deal of advertising to put it over, and then exhibitors run the risk of disappointing their patrons. Thomas Meighan, though constrained, has little to do but does that little well. There are a great many players in the cast and every one had more to do than the featured star. The direction is by Robert Vignola.

The story: Always ready to wreck the happiness of human beings, Jealousy selects Charm and Valor as her two victims, and is almost successful in bringing about her desires, but the arrival of their child Happiness overcomes all disagreements. Jealousy awaits with interest her next victims.

"The Woman Eternal" will rank among the photoplay classics of the year. It is a gripping story of a Kentucky mountain feud wonderfully told by a well balanced cast and epoch-making photography. Elaine Hammerstein scores a marked triumph in the role of a northern society girl who goes into the mountains to aid her grandfather in educating the illiterate natives. But these natives, as Bad Anse" Havey, head of one of the feudal clans, is commendable for his strong portrayal of a difficult role. The direction is by Ralph Ince, which is apparent throughout.

Mr. Rapf has announced his intention of cutting the production to six reels. We hope he doesn't. There is not a superfluous foot of film in the picture.

The story: Juanita Holland answering the appeal of her grandfather, goes to the Cumberland Mountain region of Kentucky to aid in educating the illiterate mountaineers. She finds a feud existing between the McBriar and Havey clans, which results in two murders during the early part of her stay. She prevails on a local judge to make Hadley, a member of the clan, to let the law take its course in the most recent murder. Yielding to her he orders the arrest of the guilty one, and following a trial the man is executed. The McBriar clan swears to get him for his unethical conduct. They find him in Juanita's home, and surround the house. He escapes to the woods but is seriously wounded by one of the McBriars. He crawls back to Juanita's home, where she saves him by shooting down several of the McBriar clan. The two plighted their troth as "Ban Anse" returns to consciousness.

"The Beloved Traitor," Fifth Goldwyn Production Starring Mae Marsh

Mae Marsh’s fifth Goldwyn production, "The Beloved Traitor," from the novel by Frank L. Packard, was recently completed at the Fort Lee, N. J. studios, following the taking of a number of scenes at Sebasco, Maine, and Marblehead, Mass. Few stars of the screen have ever been supported by so notable a cast as surrounds Miss Marsh in her latest starring vehicle.

Miss Marsh is the daughter of E. K. Lincoln, one of the featured players in "For Freedom of the World." In "The Beloved Traitor" he has the role of Judd Minot, which calls for the best that is in player of his known calibre.

George Fawcett, whose work in Goldwyn’s "The Cinderella Man," gave a touch of artistry to that production, is another featured player, having the role of Henry Bliss, a wealthy patron of art. Hedda Hopper, the wife of De Wolf Hopper and one of Madge Kennedy’s able assistants in "Nearly Married," portrays the role of Myrna Bliss in "The Beloved Traitor."

To Bradley Barker is intrusted the role of Paul Drayton, a politician and J. A. Furcy is Father Anthony in "The Beloved Traitor."

Jean Paige Returns to the Screen

In An O. Henry Story of Studio Life

Jean Paige, the popular star of a number of O. Henry successes, returns to the screen this week in "Schools and Schools," a new two-reel Broadway Star Feature published by General Film Company. This is a romance of a western girl who comes to New York to live with a beautiful and sophisticated cousin, only to become entangled in a web of jealousy. It has been pictured with all the subtle O. Henry humor and pathos.

Nevada Warren (Jean Paige) displays an unusual amount of independence when her cousin Barbara attempts to patronize her. Gilbert Ross, an artist, falls madly in love with Nevada. Her cousin tells her that Gilbert has written for her to go to his studio at midnight and the unsuspecting girl obeys the message, much to the surprise of the artist. The latter discovers that she cannot read or write. Then Gilbert discovers the deception that has been practiced on the girl. He marries Nevada instead of the cunning society girl. The clever O. Henry surprise is well worked out in this vehicle.

Another Wm. Russell Comedy Drama on Mutual Program for February 25

"The Midnight Trail" is the title of the forthcoming William Russell production, to be published by Mutual February 25. The picture was made by the American Film Company, Inc., under the direction of Edward Sloman, who directed "In Bad," "New York Luck" and "Snap Judgment."

In "The Midnight Trail," "Big Bill," as the popular star is called by his host of admirers is seen as a young man of virile and volatile temperament, in whom the spirit of adventure and romance is rampant. Inspired by the thrillers of his favorite author, Conan Doyle, he poses as an up-to-date Sherlock Holmes and sleuths on the trail of jewel thieves, in order to meet the beautiful daughter of a minister who has been robbed and get the inside track in the game of hearts. When the minister asks Jack’s attorney to secure him a detective to ferret out the mystery, Jack introduces himself as a regular sleuth-bound, flashes a card dropped by the real detective, and installs himself in the minister’s house with his valet, both posing as theological students.

How Jack exposes the villainous secretary of the minister, who was diverting the somnambulistic habits of the minister’s daughter, to that of his career and making her the unconscious tool in the thefts, furnishes a drama in which mystery and suspense are sustained to the end.

[Image of a scene from "The Mutual Strand Comedy, Up in the Air," with the Comedienne, Billie Rhodes]

Jack and his faithful valet are involved in several hand-to-hand combats with the real sleuths who appear on the scene, and who mistake them for the thieves. Russell’s delineation of the pseudo Sherlock is in his best serio-comic vein, which has been in evidence in his recent productions.

"Up In the Air" is the title of the Strand comedy for February 25, in which Billie Rhodes is featured. This is a typical Rhodes comedy full of sparkling action. Mary is seen in a daring flight in an aeroplane with her sweetheart, to whom she offers objects generously. With the aid of her chum, who establishes the aged and wealthy squire favored by father, Mary finally takes the matrimonial "flight" with her sweetheart.

The Mutual Weekly will be published on February 25, and covers events of significant interest in the United States with some special pictures from the war zone.

General’s Next "Judge Brown Story"

The amusing and exasperating difficulties encountered by a young boy in getting his dad safely married are pictured entertainingly, in "Marrying Off Dad," the current "Judge Brown Story," General Film. A number of capable, juvenile actors, drawn from real life, help to make this picture one of the most attractive of the "Stories of Youth" yet produced. The next one in this series will be "The Preacher’s Son," another laughable story of a very human boy.
Kitty Gordon's Next World Feature
Will Be "The Wasp" Published March 11

Kitty Gordon's next World picture is titled, "The Wasp," to be published March 11. The story is said to be replete with action and permits the star to display a series of beautiful creations, the last word in Spring styles.

Miss Gordon assumes the part of Grace Culver, known as "the Wasp" because of her caustic tongue, the daughter of John Culver, who is owner of canneries working on government contracts. Culver's partner sends his son Kane Putnam to the Culver home, but the friendship between Grace and Kane does not prosper. Grace decides to make an automobile trip and hires a new chauffeur named Tim Purchell.

Employees of the Culver factory become dissatisfied and strike. At this juncture Tim refuses to continue the trip and compel Grace to return. They come in contact with a group of striking employees who seize her and her maid and hurry the chauffeur away. They are trapped in a tunnel and only then realize their fundamental interest in each other.

With the aid of United States troops the prisoners are finally rescued, and it transpires that "Tim Purchell," chauffeur, is really a millionaire John Cortland, and his assumption of the disguise was part of his plan to win the sharp-tongued wasp.

Paralta Stars Complete Ten Pictures
Bessie Bariscase Leads With Five

Paralta has completed and is ready to publish ten productions starring some of the foremost dramatic artists of the screen. All of the pictures are seven reels in length and have been started at the Paralta studio in Los Angeles under the supervision of Robert Brunton.

Henry B. Walthall, whose first Paralta play, "His Robe of Honor," attracted wide attention, has finished two more features, "Hundrum Brown" and "With Hoops of Steel." Each of these productions present him in widely different characters.

Bessie Barriscase has five completed pictures. They are "Madam Who," a mystery story; "Within the Cup," an emotional drama; "Rose o' Paradise," an adaption of Grace Miller White's novel; "Blindfolded," a story of the underworld, and another production, yet unnamed, which has just been completed under the direction of Raymond B. West.

J. Warren Kerrigan has two pictures, a melodrama and a comedy-drama, which are now booking. The first is "A Man's Man," which is a screen version of Peter B. Kyne's novel of the same title. The comedy-drama is "The Turn of a Card," written by Frederick Chapin and directed by Oscar Apfel. Mr. Kerrigan is about to start on his third Paralta play, a romantic comedy-drama which combines intrigue with light humorous touches.

While these ten features are awaiting publication dates, the entire organization at the Paralta studios, including the three stars above mentioned and Louise Glau, who has just started work, in "The Wasp," "Paralta banner, is busy preparing other plays.

"Daddy's Girl" a Baby Osborne Play
To Be Published by Pathé March 3

Baby Marie Osborne is announced by Pathé as the star of "Daddy's Girl," a Gold Rooster play which will be published on March 3. This is the picture previously spoken of as "Any Home." The story by John W. Grey and M. Ramirez Torres affords the baby excellent opportunities to display the winsome pranks and talent, it is said, which have made her popular within two years.

The story is that of a child whose father is a visionary and as such is not successful. His uncle dies and leaves him a comfortable fortune. The possession of so much money and the change from poverty to affluence causes the young man to lose his head, and he neglects his wife and baby, becoming friendly with a divorced woman. In the meantime his child has become the favorite of the neighborhood.

She meets "the other woman," who is ignorant of the child's identity, and soon worms her way into the woman's heart. Then, in the course of time, that friendship is responsible for the woman giving the Baby's father up and the restoration of happiness to the little family.

THE P E R I S C O P E

By Fuller Pep

Lent was a good time to give up heatless Mondays.

Turning the crank of a camera for Uncle Sam "over there" may be a pleasanter occupation for a drafted camelman than toting a rifle, but it strikes us it's a whole lot more dangerous.

There's Big Money In It

There seems to be considerable doubt in the minds of the stockholders of a certain Chicago photoplay concern as to whether they'll make as much money as D. W. Griffith did on the "Birth of a Nation."

Jobs We Don't Want

How'd you like to have the job of cameraman for a news weekly in Petrograd just now? It must be some task distinguishing the Bushwhawiki from the Lenine-Trotzkys et al. bunch.

Willie Hearst Is Back

Who said William Randolph Hearst was out of the film game because he dropped $7,000,000? We note he has just formed the Graphic Film Corp. to produce "classics" for the screen, from stories that have appeared in his eight magazines.

Our coast correspondent states that Jimmy Young is not only regarded as a great director but has a "rep." as a fox-trotter that can't be touched.

"Blue Sky" Violators Are Blue

Looks as though this was going to be a very hard year for film stock salesmen—at least in the Central West.

Our idea of a live one editing a news weekly is Tom North of the Pathe Sun.

That Russian film actor Trotzky seems to be working without a scenario.

Metro has an art director now whose duty it is to see that Metro pictures stack up as well in settings as in story and acting.

Hurray!

Colin Campbell promises that his next picture won't have any vases on the mantels.

Those film cartoons made of mud entertain picture patrons far better than the stories of the mud-slinging manufacturers.

A motion picture company is being formed to produce "Break the News to Mother," Chas. K. Harris' song hit of a few years ago. Now if the film company doesn't go broke everything will be O. K.

The Real Thing

O. A. C. Lund, the Fox director, is a stickler for "types." He recently ordered three "extras" for parts as army officers in "The Debt of Honor" and was somewhat surprised to find four men in uniform when ready for the scene.

"I told you I wanted three, not four," said Lund to his assistant. "That fourth chap won't do; he isn't the right type for this picture."

"Oh, that one isn't an 'extra.' He's an aviator in the Naval service, who just dropped in to watch us work."

(Business of carrying out Mr. Lund, who has swooned.)

Bessie Love's next picture has a George Honey in the cast. With Love and Honey in a single film it ought to be a winner for sweetness.

Geo. Kleine is coming back with the re-issues of Broncho Billy films. These contain some of the wildest riding ever shown upon the screen, 'twill be remembered, and ought to make a hit once more.

The price of stories is going up. Here's Jules Bernard suing Triangle for $150,000 for an alleged infringement on a vaudeville playlet called "Loan St.," which he wrote.
Mazda Lamps in Projection

Argus Appliance Company Gives Solution of Difficulties Occasioned by Changing From Carbon-Arc to Mazda Bulb

Many of the difficulties experienced by exhibitors who have turned from the old style open flame carbon to the Mazda lamp style of projection, contends the Argus Lamp and Appliance Company of Cleveland, is due to the use of a faulty adapter.

This company is authority for the statement that the Scheck universal adapter, when properly installed, will adapt any make of carbon-arc motion picture projection machine to use any type of Mazda projector lamp.

The adapter is a complete lamp house in itself and fits on the front of any existing make of carbon-arc machine so that any type of Mazda projector lamp may be properly focused in it for successfully projecting motion pictures in place of the carbon arc, within the limitations of the different types of Mazda projector lamps.

The Models Now in Use

At the present time there are three models made and other models will be announced as the Mazda lamp manufacturers announce other types of Mazda projector lamps. The model "A" Scheck universal adapter is designed only for the proper operation of the 20-ampere, 28-30-volt, 600-watt Mazda projector lamp in the T-20 bulb. Model "B" for the operation of the 30-ampere, 25-volt, 750-watt Mazda lamp and the model "C" for the operation of the 30-ampere, 40-volt, 1200-watt Mazda projector lamp.

Existing compensators, transformers, rheostats and economizers used for the operation of present carbon-arc equipment, will not do, the company declares, for the correct operation of Mazda projector lamps for motion picture projection.

Mazda Engineers Supervised Making

Argus Current Regulators for the proper operation of Mazda projector lamps have been designed under the supervision and approval of the Mazda lamp engineers. They will not guarantee the performance of their newly designed lamps unless they are operated with current controlling devices they have approved.

The Argus Alternating Current Regulator is most efficient, it is claimed, transforming alternating current line voltage to the voltage and operating current of Mazda projector lamps at an efficiency of approximately 88 per cent. The direct current regulator is designed for reducing the line voltage of direct current circuits to the voltage and operating current of Mazda projector lamps, but are not as efficient as the alternating current regulators on account of the resistance dissipating considerable wattage.

General conditions under which carbon-arc motion picture projection machine arc lamps can be displaced by the present types of Mazda projector lamps as recommended by the Mazda lamp engineers after two years' successful experience are as follows:

Can Be Installed Satisfactorily

With alternating current, if a compensator, transformer, economizer or rheostat is being used with the carbon-arc equipment the resulting screen intensity will be such that usually the Scheck universal adapter, with the present type of Mazda projector lamps, can be installed with very satisfactory and comparable screen illumination where the length of throw is less than 100 feet from the projection lens to the screen, if the size of the picture is no wider than 14 feet.

If alternating current is used with mercury-arc rectifier and less than 40 amperes of current is used at the arc, the same recommendation applies.

Saving in Current Consumption

With direct current service secured from the line and controlled through a rheostat for the operation of the carbon-arc equipment or where the line voltage is alternating and direct current service is secured from a motor generator set using 35 amperes or less at the arc, present types of Mazda projector lamps will produce satisfactory screen results where the length of throw does not exceed 90 feet and the width of the picture 14 feet, but not over 35 amperes.

The average carbon-arc lamp for motion picture equipment consumes from 2,000 to 4,000 watts every hour it is in operation. Present types of Mazda projector lamps will consume from 640 to 1,200 watts. The difference can be saved on alternating current by use of the Argus Alternating Current Regulator which, the company claims, operates efficiently in transforming the line voltage to the voltage and operating current of Mazda lamps at very high efficiency.

“Social Hypocrites” Chosen by Metro

For May Allison as Individual Star

“Social Hypocrites,” a screen version of the play “Bridge” by Alicia Ramsay, which has a successful Broadway presentation with Effie Shannon and Herbert Kelcey in the leading roles, has been chosen as May Allison’s initial vehicle as an individual star in Metro pictures. Miss Allison has become a favorite as co-star with Harold Lockwood in Metro feature productions, but this will be her first starring venture alone.

“Social Hypocrites” will be directed by Albert Capellani, who recently made his bow as a Metro director with “Daybreak”, starring Edward G. Robinson. Capellani is preparing the screen adaptation himself, in collaboration with June Mathis, and work on the new production will be begun at the Metro studio at once, under the personal supervision of Maxwell Anderson. Leander de Cordova will assist Mr. Capellani.

Among those in the cast are Henry Kolker, Joseph Kilgour, Marie Wainwright, Stella Hammerstein, Frank Currier and Stephen Grattan.

“Social Hypocrites” affords excellent opportunity for the display of Miss Allison’s talents and personality, it is said. The star has the role of Leonore Fielding, an English girl who is somewhat carelessly brought up by her father, a colonel of the Coldstream Guards. The fact that he has been accused of being a card cheat is responsible for many of the surprising incidents that mark Leonore’s life.

“Are Married Policemen Safe?” Next

Sunshine Comedy on Fox Schedule

Another Fox-Lehrman Sunshine Comedy will be published February 17. It is titled “Are Married Policemen Safe?” and is reported to be a satire on human nature as evidenced in the administration of justice. A crusade against women wearing cloaks, at which a New York cab driver falls, is the course of events which results in policemen and jurists being captured by their captives.

The action ranges all the way from the United States to Mexico with trouble of several sorts developing in both countries. A Mexican who has fallen into lap of the law here struggles out and finds the way opened to revenge when his American tormentors go to Mexico on business. It develops the American is the wife of a Negro constable and that he knows how to make the most of his authority. A railroad train running straight through a station is one of the incidental phases of the action.

Don Barclay in New Esanay Comedy

Don Barclay is nearing the completion of his second Esanay comedy, “All Stuck Up,” in which the famous “Ziegfeld Follies” comedian plays the role of a paper hanger’s assistant. His first comedy published on February 16 is called “Check Your Hat, Sir?” and the scenes are for the most part laid in a cafe.

Carrel Myers to Star in "In the Dark"

Charles Edmond Walk's novel "The Green Seal," has been adapted for the screen and the story, which ran through several editions in book form, will shortly be published by Bluebird Photoplays, Inc., under the title "The Girl in the Dark." The novel has been made into a picture for Carrel Myers, the player who was seen to such advantage in "My Unmarried Wife." In "The Girl in the Dark" Miss Myers departs from the foreign type she portrayed in several previous Bluebird Photoplays and is a native American girl whose life is menaced by a band of Orientals.

A cast of unusual strength appears in support of Miss Myers. It includes Betty Schade, Alfred Allen, Harry Carter, Frank Deshon, Ashton Dearholt and Frank Tokanaga. "The Girl in the Dark" will be published the week of March 4.

MOTION PICTURES IN AUSTRALIA

Australia has about 800 theatres in which picture shows are given, and of these 450 are in towns and cities and 350 in smaller communities. Of the 450 houses presenting pictures in the larger centers about 40 have continuous performances from 11 A.M. to 11 P.M. or else a special program during the day and a special program for the evening, while the others in the larger communities give a regular program in the evening with matinees on certain days. Many have matinees every afternoon or twice a week.

In very few places in Australia are theatrical entertainments of any kind permitted on Sundays. At the 350 houses in small communities, the number of performances given varies. In many places pictures are screened only once or twice a week, while more performances are given in others, depending upon the patronage.

Most of the city houses accommodate more than 2,000 persons. A few have seating capacities as high as 3,000. The country houses rarely have a capacity of more than 1,000. Prices of admission are high. They vary from 6 to 60 cents, according to the entertainment and the location of the seat. In addition, there is the theater tax of about 5½ pence per person of admission. An amusement tax of 8½ pence per cent of the price. The usual prices for the continuous performances are 6 and 12 cents, while tickets for regular performances cost from 6 to 60 cents.

American Films in Demand

Most of the films now shown are imported from America, and an average performance in an Australian picture theatre is similar to that seen in an American house. Products from the United States average 60 per cent of the total. Five and one-half per cent of films vary from $48.66 to $245.33 per week for houses in the country and suburban districts, while for the larger houses in the cities a weekly service may cost as much as $180.65. It is customary to change the program twice a week in the country and suburbs, while in the cities the same program is presented for a whole week. Usually it is made up of about 8,000 feet of film, requiring two and one-half hours for each performance. It would contain one feature and several minor productions in the smaller centers of population, and in the cities two features with fewer minor pictures.

American films have been predominant here since the outbreak of the war, and on the whole have proved satisfactory to Australian audiences, but on account of the high admission prices in this country serial pictures find some opposition, as many persons cannot afford to attend every performance of a serial film.

Under such conditions, productions of that type prove a deterrent. Probably it would be advisable to supply fewer firearm and sex-problem films to this country, as the audiences have been satiated with such pictures, and the censorship boards in the States are said to have given the matter some attention.

American Projection Machines Used

Previous to the war the most prominent machines on this market were the Pathe and the Erneman. These no longer are procurable, and American machines have taken their places. All carbons in use now are American. An effort was made by Australian manufacturers to supply this demand, but their goods did not prove satisfactory.

The Pathé-Dalmeier seems to be the standard. Some American lenses are on this market, but so far have not been recognized as standard. This probably could be overcome if the American manufacturers gave increased attention to the proper exploitation of their wares.

As Australia is far removed from America and Europe, and all theatrical and operatic companies have to be imported from those countries at heavy expense, theatres find it impossible to maintain their costs by paying a good price for special programs as to necessitate a special department for General Manager M. J. Weisfeldt to care for applicants at the office at 17 North Wabash Avenue, Chicago.

Humphrey Dumpy March Wholesome Film

"Humphrey-Dumpy" will be the third production by Wholesome Films Corporation to be enacted by a juvenile cast. Daily rehearsals are now being held in the Wholesome studios and the filming of the scenes is to take place in the next few weeks.

There is no danger of lack of material for casts for whole some productions. The daily delegations of mothers, accompanied by future William S. Harts or Mary Pickfords, have assumed such proportions as to necessitate a special department for General Manager M. J. Weisfeldt to care for applicants at the office at 17 North Wabash Avenue, Chicago.

Jester Comedies Feature Twede-Dan

"The Recruit" is announced as the first of the Jester two-re more comedies, to be published February 15, in which Twede-Dan the featured comedian.

"His Golden Romance," a story said to be entirely opposite from "The Recruit," will be the second Jester comedy, in which Twede-Dan is called upon to assume an entirely different role. The third comedy by this company will be "All For Her."
Hockey Enthusiasts Attend M. P. Theatres While Awaiting Team

A novel and absolutely new use for the motion picture theatre has been evolved in the Dominion of Canada, thanks to the continued sporting inclinations of the people in war times, in irregular train service, cold weather and other minor reasons.

On many occasions in every city and town in Ontario during the winter months there are more or less important hockey matches. Very often the train service is so bad that a visiting team does not arrive until 11 p.m. or later, but the game is played as scheduled nevertheless.

The other evening at Lindsay, Ontario, the local rink was packed in anticipation of a game when it was announced that the visiting team from Peterboro would not arrive for two hours. The suggestion was made that he fans proceed to the local motion picture theatres until the game could be started.

Arrangements had been made to have the fact announced at the theatres and the game would not be held until the people could get back to the rink.

The idea immediately caught the spirit of the big crowd with the result that two local theatres were immediately rushed with business. From 8:30 to 11 p.m. the hockey enthusiasts enjoyed themselves and then were recalled to the rink for the game, which was not finished until 1:30 a.m.

Not only was the stunt a good one financially for the theatres, but many of those in the theatres joined the throng which went to the rink. The crowd of spectators at 11 p.m. was even greater than the one at 8 p.m. It was a real double-header for the evening.

J. Clancy, general manager of General Film Company, has returned to Montreal after a short business trip in Ottawa.

The Canadian Universal Film Co., Montreal, had the pleasure of a visit from Simon Page, of Granby, Que.

After a considerable fight with the censor board of Ontario to have the morality photoplay “Damaged Goods,” controlled in Canada by the Mutual, the military authorities have at last given permission to show this feature to the soldier audiences only in Ontario.

This feature was shown in the Liberty Theatre, Calgary, Alta., for three days, January 31 to February 2. The picture aroused considerable discussion and was accorded liberal patronage.

Chink Won Ton of Coal

There seems to be plenty of coal in Calgary, Alta. The Princess Theatre of Calgary made arrangements with the Brownie Coal Company for advertising purposes to give away a ton to one person in the audience. The first party to win this coveted prize was a returned soldier without a home. However, he immediately turned same over to the local Red Cross Society.

The second week a Celestial by the name of Wah Lee, the true Chinaman refused to make a speech of acceptance, although he was sure to give directions for the delivery of the coal and ask that it be sent right away.

OLGA PETROVA’S THIRD PRODUCTION

A MYSTERY DRAMA

A decided innovation in the type of film story which Madame Olga Petrova as appeared in during the past few months will mark her third special starring vehicle, “The Life Mask,” directed by Frank Crane. Adapted for the screen by Mrs. L. Case Russell, from the novel by the anonymous author who wrote “To L. G.,” Madame Petrova’s latest picture play, is an engrossing mystery drama.

The building of the scenario has been skillfully handled as to leave serious doubt in the minds of the audience regarding the final outcome of the story until the very last scene. Through a curiously chain of circumstances, the guilt or the murder of a wealthy society leader and financial man is thrown on all of the leading characters, including Madame Petrova herself. The unravelling of the ingled skein of events affords picture play entertainment of the most inviting type.

In “The Life Mask,” the famous Polish star offers a characterization entirely away from anything she has previously done in films, it is said. She has adapted herself admirably to the “mystery drama” atmosphere which pervades the production and her performance in the third starring vehicle, made under the banner of her own organization, is a remarkable example of her versatility and true histrionic ability.

Pathe Disposes of Unsold Territory for Two Features

Through arrangements recently concluded between J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager of Pathe Exchange, and W. E. Shallenberger, president of the Arrow Film Corporation, the Arrow will act as exclusive agents for Pathe on the sale of states rights on the Pathe pictures, “Today,” with Florence Reed, and “The Mad Lover,” with Robert Warwick.

The territory still unsold consists of North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Northern Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska, Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida and Mississippi.

The rest of the United States has been sold to strong, active concerns, who report enthusiastically on the way the pictures are going in their territory.

Charlie Chaplin’s Studio Visited by Forty U. S. Sailors

Forty sailors from a United States Naval Reserve station in the vicinity of Los Angeles have been the first of Uncle Sam’s fighting boys to accept Charlie Chaplin's invitation to inspect the million dollar comedian’s motion picture plant in Hollywood.

The husky bunch of bluejackets “stormed” the Chaplin studios this week and for several hours they were guests of the star. Charlie acted as official guide and not one feature of the big studio was left unexplained by the comedian.

So enthused was Chaplin by the presence of the sailors that he violated one of the rules of the institution in permitting the visitors to watch him perform before the camera. When the delegation was about to depart the host turned around and announced that a picture was taken. A copy has been sent to each one of the sailors as a souvenir of their visit.

The welcome sign has been hung out at the Chaplin plant for all of Uncle Sam’s soldiers and sailors. In the future they will be permitted to visit the new studios, either singly or in a body, after four-thirty every afternoon.
Paralta, Pathe and Mastercraft in Concerted Production on the West Coast

Use of One Studio Declared to Have Resulted in Tremendous Saving in Overhead and Salaries of Minor Department Heads

When the announcement was made recently that the Paralta studios would be the site of the forthcoming activities of the Pathe producing enterprises on the West Coast and also of other companies producing films independently, the news of the centering of production in this manner was hailed throughout the industry as a distinct departure in the film producing methods. Now that active production has been started by the Pathe company in the Paralta studios, the merits of the system may already be reviewed with profit.

At the present time, Paralta is continuing its schedule of production on a rapidly increasing scale. The Bessie Barriscale Company, the Henry B. Walthall Company and the Louise Glum Company, all separate producing units, are engaged in the work attendant upon new productions. While Paralta in preparation for J. Warren Kerrigan, Miss Barriscale is being directed by Raymond B. West, Mr. Walthall by F. K. Paralta, and Miss Glum by Charles Worsley, all of the regular Paralta staff.

At the same time, with the Paralta technique, the intensive productions of Bryant Washburn and Frank Keenan have already been undertaken in the Paralta studios, while the producing units of such stars as Fanny Ward and Bessie Love and others are on the way to California and will soon be at work at Paralta under the Pathe management. Another unit in this intensive production scheme is the Mastercraft Photo-Play Corporation, headed by F. Eugene Farnsworth, which has arranged to produce the works of Thomas Dixon. The Mastercraft Corporation, separate in backing and management entirely from Paralta, will operate its production activities at that studio.

That the ideas of Robert Brunton, manager of production, regarding the unlimited possibilities of a centralized effort in picture-making enterprises, have proven successful is evidenced in the manner in which the production of the Paralta and Pathe companies are already going forward side by side. Stories, of course, are handled by separate staffs in the different organizations. Jack Cunningham, who was chosen by Mr. Berst of the Pathe Company to handle scripts for the Pathe organization at the Paralta studios, is in charge of the selection and preparation of Pathe stories, having no connection with the scenario department of the Paralta Company.

Stars, directors, leading players and stories are chosen by each producing organization without reference to the others. After that the construction of sets, securing of properties, and the many details of production are handled by the management, centered in Robert Brunton, with a tremendous saving, it is said, in "overhead" expense, salaries of minor department heads and overlapping of personnel. Several sets may be purchased and extra talent hired by one studio management with a considerable elimination of lost motion.

Throughout the picture industry ever since its inception, it is pointed out, efforts have been made to systematize the producing end of the business and cut out unnecessary waste. Many articles have been written advocating a getting together of various producing organizations, which had formerly been operating independently and at cross purposes. While the present system which has been inaugurated by Paralta does not mean financial combination, yet it does bring about a centralization at certain points of large expenditures. It may thus be said to be the first large step toward cutting out waste and toward streamline work which has been several years in formulating, but which has never heretofore been a concrete reality.

Kerrigan's Second Paralta Play Ready For Distribution

J. Warren Kerrigan's second Paralta play, "The Turn of a Card," is now under discussion by Mr. W. Hodkinson, the director. The picture is a seven reel comedy-drama with distinctive settings, both exterior and interior, and it is said, a breezy play.

Mr. Kerrigan, as "Jimmy Montgomery Farrell," an oil prospector from the west, is given wide scope in which to display his versatility and which accomplishes the feat of carrying the same role through three distinctly different characterizations. In the first part of the picture he is a Westerner who later comes to New York and takes up the life of a business man who mingle in the best of New York society. However, the portrayal of the picture occurs when Mr. Kerrigan plays the part of a chauffeur, who has independent means and a fortune in oil interests, which make him practically a millionaire.

Miss Lois Wilson, who will be remembered as having appeared opposite Mr. Kerrigan in his first Paralta play "A Man's Man," also plays opposite him in "The Turn of a Card" as "Cynthisa Burdette," daughter of "Ace High Burnett," a character played by "Jimmy Farrell" beats at his own game.

Quick Sales Follow Trade Showing of Crucible of Life

Following the private premiere give to "The Crucible of Life" by Gener Enterprises, Inc., several bids for the territory were received from Arthur H. Sawyer and Herbert Lubin who are sponsoring the film, it is announced. The response by state rig buyers is the result of an innovative campaign which Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin placed into effect for the first time at this showing.

This departure from the ordinary routine of marketing territorial production was accomplished by inviting all of the leading state right purchasers to attend the premiere of the "Crucible of Life" given primarily by General Enterprise, Inc., for the benefit of the review press. That the idea met with enthusiastic response from many of the lead film men of the country is evidenced by the fact that a number made the trip especially to New York to witness the showing of the patriotic film spectra produced by the Authors Film Company and starring Jack Sherrill and Gr Diarmont.

Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin also announce that "The Crucible of Life" will be released for exhibition throughout Australia and New Zealand to Mr. George Meyer, prominent English dealer in feature films, who was present at the showing and during the conference that followed said a contract had been made for the entire foreign distribution of the seven part General Enterprise Inc., picture with J. Frank Brockliss Inc., of New York. This contract is consummated by H. A. Gillespie, president of the Brockliss organization.

Rex Beach Directing Titling and Editing Of Latest Picture

Rex Beach is directing the titling and editing of the newest Paralta production, "Heart of the Sunset," now in process of editing in the Rex Beach Pictures Company's laboratories in New York City. Pursuing the practice he established for "The Auction Block," the author will personally write the subtitles for the new production, which is to be distributed by Goldwyn as a Rex Beach special.

Rex Beach has found himself facing a problem in assembling "Heart of the Sunset." Working under unusually favorable weather conditions at Eagle Pass and Corpus Christi, Tex., Director Frank Powell and Cameraman William Field photographed every scene laid out in the continuity. As a consequence, there is a plenitude of photographically perfect film to be dealt with, a major portion of which cannot possibly be used in the completed production.

As a matter of experience Field used his directorial ingenuity and made use of a Texas norther which kept the Beach company indoors for the better part of three days during their sojourn at Eagle Pass. Somewhat to his surprise, he got several hundred feet of remarkable film depicting a storm unlike any known in northern climates. It is so unusual that Mr. Beach declares he is tempted to write a storm sequence into the story for the sake of making use of it.

"Heart of the Sunset," in the opinion of the author, is going to make a greater picture even than "The Barrier," his previous film story of life in the great open country of the west.

Mutuals Special Film "The Planters" Proves Big Box Office Hit The tremendous success of “The Planter,” the Mutual special production, based on Herman Whittaker’s striking story of life on a Mexican plantation, in which the eminent Shakespearean actor, Tyrone Power, is starred, is reflected in returns from exhibitors.

Power’s virile and masterly characterization of the brutal planter in this strange, true story of the tropics, is one of the really forceful screen delineations on record. His adventure into filmdom proves that he is without a peer in certain roles, and the story of the screen lose little of the strength that is his on the spoken stage.

The box office drawing power of this production shows what can be done when the genius of Hollywood is allied with that of the producer in filming a literary masterpiece. Whittaker’s novel was acclaimed as one of the most vivid expositions of Mexican plantation life ever written, and created a sensation when published in 1910. His book was the result of long residence in Mexico, and his story is of life as he observed it firsthand.

Over two hundred men and women took part in the production, while the cost exceeded $150,000. A brilliant cast, a strong story and gorgeous tropical scenery combine to make this a powerful attraction.

Within the period of thirty days one hundred and thirty-five representative houses played “The Planter” for runs of three days to a week, Mutual exchanges report, with without exception played to big business.

The following houses booked the feature for long runs, and many of them have asked for return bookings: Milwaukee, Wis., The Whitehouse; Toledo, Ohio, The Alhambra; Duluth, Minn., The Strand; St. Louis, Mo., Central Amusement Co.; Boston, Mass., Boston Theatre Co.; Los Angeles, Cal., Garrick Theatre; San Francisco, Cal., The Strand Theatre.

C. C. Hite Purchases Ohio State Rights To “Souls Redeemed” C. C. Hite of Cincinnati has bought the Ohio rights of Edward Warren’s production, “Souls Redeemed,” and several other features, contracts for which have just been signed by Hite and W. E. Shallenberger, president of the Arrow Film Corporation.

During his recent trip to New York Hite announced that he had become an independent state operator and had taken into partnership with him R. K. Shallenberger, the youngest brother of the head of the Arrow Film Corporation. For the past several years Hite has represented various organizations in Ohio, including Mutual, Triangle, Goldwyn and Jewel. His decision to become an independent operator followed a study of picture conditions not only in Ohio, but throughout the country. He discovered, he said, a decided trend throughout the motion picture industry towards independence and realizing he could broaden the scope of his own activities he entered the independent field in Ohio with great enthusiasm. The new firm will be conducted in Mr. Hite’s name. Offices have already been opened in Cincinnati and other cities in Ohio.

Ralph Ince Chosen To Direct Petrova In “The Great Star” The combination of author, star, director and story which is furnished in the fourth production in which Petrova will appear, is one affording exhibitors publicity possibilities and advertising value of a rare nature. Of the Polish star’s own popularity little need be said and joined with this fact is the prominence respectively of the director and author, Ralph Ince, who has been selected by Madame Petrova and Frederick L. Collins, president of the star’s production organization, to produce the fourth picture in which she will appear.

Ince was long associated with the Vitagraph Company, during which period he was responsible for innumerable film successes starring many screen celebrities. His latest production, “The Great Star,” a medium for Madame Petrova’s last appearance, is in Mr. Middleton’s name as the author of “Polly of the Circus” and the Beesco success “Polly With a Past.”
